THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 65. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, JANUARY 1, 1942. NUMBER 45.

Do Your Part . . . . .

There are many kinds of patriotism, many ways of showing your love for America. The battlefronts are far away across the oceans, yet right here at home all of us can be soldiers and can behave like soldiers, with courage and discipline. In the present crisis that's the least that we can do.

Here in America we've got the best system of mass production in the world. We've also got the best system of distribution. That's why in normal times more people can buy more things more easily here than anywhere else. Now that some products are apt to become scarce, we've got to take extra care that we don't disturb that system of distribution more than we must. We've got to take extra care that we don't put impossible demands on it—that we don't disrupt it by hoarding.

Here in America there's no excuse for hoarding. We have plenty of food. There will be shortages of some manufactured goods, but we'll have enough basic necessities.

Our system of distribution is geared to supply our normal wants. If suddenly we increase our wants to abnormal proportions by panicky buying, we'll throw it out of gear. We'll create shortages that otherwise wouldn't exist, drive prices up to extreme highs. You can help to prevent that by refusing to become frightened by false rumors of severe scarcities, by buying no more than you usually do, by trusting in America and America's ability to keep you supplied with all the things you really need.

TIRE RATIONING ORDERS TO BE BLOW TO PUBLIC

Traveling Salesmen, Taxi Drivers, Farmers Face Problem; Some Busses and Trucks to Be Allowed Tires

All the nation's average motorists—including even traveling salesmen, taxi drivers and residents of isolated rural areas lacking other transportation—will be prohibited from buying new automobile tires, under eligibility requirements established for the government's new tire rationing program.

The regulations, issued by Price Administrator Leon Henderson for the guidance of local tire rationing boards which begin operating January 5, bar issuance of tire purchase certificates except to owners of motor vehicles which fall within seven sharply defined classifications, covering essential services for health, safety and industrial and commercial operations.

Simultaneously, Henderson urged the millions of motorists who will be unable to buy new tires to stop unnecessary driving immediately and "double up" in driving to work. Only retreaded, recapped or other used tires, on which no rationing limits have yet been set, will be available to them.

The regulations provide that purchase certificates for new tires may not be issued unless an applicant certifies that the tires or tubes sought "will be mounted" on:

1—Vehicles used by physicians, surgeons, visiting nurses or veterinarians, principally for professional services.

2—Ambulances.

3—Vehicles used "exclusively" for fire fighting services, necessary public police services, enforcement of specific laws affecting public health and safety, garbage removal or other sanitation services, or mail delivery.

Certain Busses Exempt

4—Vehicles with a capacity of ten or more passengers operated "exclusively" to carry passengers as part of "services rendered to the public by a regular transportation system," as school buses, or to carry employes to and from any industrial or mining establishment or construction project "except when public transportation facilities are readily available."

5—Trucks used "exclusively" for ice and fuel delivery, transportation of materials for construction and maintenance of public roads, public utilities or production facilities, defense housing, and military establishments; trucks used by essential roofing, plumbing, heating, and electrical repair services, or waste and scrap dealers; by any common carriers; and for transporting raw materials, semi-manufactured goods and finished products—except that no certificates may be issued to transport such raw materials, semi-manufactured or finished goods "to the ultimate consumer for personal, family or household use."

6—Farm tractors or other farm implements—except automobiles or trucks—for which tires are essential to operation.

7—Industrial, mining and construction equipment—except automobiles and trucks—for which tires are essential to operation.

Hits Newspaper Deliveries

The prohibition against new tires for vehicles used to transport commodities direct to consumers was interpreted here as affecting such services as delivery of newspapers by automobile to suburban and rural subscribers—although newspaper delivery trucks within a city would not be involved since they carry a "finished product" to a dealer or distributor.

No exemption other than those specified in the seven classifications of eligibles are provided for persons who use their automobile in the daily conduct of their business.

Motorists and truck owners on the eligible list who seek new tires must fill out application forms. These forms then must be taken to an "inspector"—dealers or garage men appointed by the local rationing boards—who must inspect and report on the condition of the applicant's tires. If the inspector finds the tire or tires are unsafe and cannot be repaired, reconditioned or retreaded, he will certify the need for a new tire to the local board. The board must then review and take final action on the application.

Few Tires for Civilians

Henderson estimated recently that the nation's supply of new tires was sufficient to last about two months under normal, unrestricted demand. The announcement said that only a "very small" supply of tires would be available for civilians after rationing begins.

The war in the Pacific has cut off crude rubber imports from the Far East which annually accounts for nearly ninety-eight per cent of the entire United States supply.

Governor Appoints Auto Tire Rationing Board for County

A tire rationing board for Garrett county was named Wednesday morning by Governor Herbert R. O'Conor, with authority to issue certificates by which alone new automobile tires and tubes can be purchased.

The Governor selected Walter W. Dawson, Oakland, William L. Thomas, Grantsville, and Norval Speelman, Friendsville.

Mr. Dawson said that he would accept the position and plans to call a meeting soon. The other two members could not be contacted but it is assumed they also will accept the responsibility.

DRAFT CLASSIFICATIONS MAY CHANGE AT ANY TIME

Deferments Only Temporary, According to State Selective Service Director Stanwood

Draft registrants must realize that all deferments are only temporary, according to Lieut. Col. Henry C. Stanwood, state selective service director. "One of the basic provisions of the selective service law is that no classification is permanent," he said.

The sixty-six local draft boards in the state are undertaking the task of reclassifying registrants, many of whom will be taken out of deferred classifications, to answer the nation's increased demand for manpower.

Employers throughout the state are told they must prepare to replace men of military age. Examinations of those holding or claiming occupational or dependency deferments will be especially strict, the selective service director declared. Men whose dependents become self-supporting will lose their 3-A standing.

The men over 28 who held 1-H classifications can no longer be deferred simply because of their age and men in 4-A as having completed military service are now liable to call, the draft director said.

The Best Christmas Present

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jackson, of near Oakland, received what they termed the best Christmas present of all.

It had been reported that their son, James E. Jackson, had been killed in the Japanese attack at Oahu island, Hawaii, but they received a special delivery clipper letter from him on Christmas stating that he was well and unharmed.

FIFTY-FIVE MEN PLEDGE REGULAR RED CROSS AID

Garrett Coal Company Miners at Kitzmiller to Give $1.00 Each Per Month for Duration of War

Fifty-five men employed by H. J. Pritts of the Garrett Coal Company at Kitzmiller have pledged one dollar each per month for the duration of the war, for the American Red Cross, it was announced this week by Mr. Pritts.

Mr. Pritts said the list would vary from time to time due to men leaving for other jobs, but that the amount would be approximately the same, and would be paid fifty cents every two weeks. This means $55.00 per month just from this one source alone.

The men who have pledged this amount include:

DIED

J. EDGAR LONG

Funeral services were conducted on Friday, December 26, for J. Edgar Long, 62, for twenty-five years a prominent figure in the business and industrial affairs of central West Virginia, who died from a heart attack at his home in Clarksburg.

He was a brother-in-law of Miss Floss Shaffer, Pennington street, who attended the funeral. Surviving are his widow, who was formerly Miss Ann Shaffer, three sons and one daughter.

A native of Williamsport, Pa., prior to and during the World War Mr. Long organized and headed the Union Explosives Corporation with offices in Clarksburg and plants in the East. He was also associated with many coal companies.

MRS. ELMIRA SUSAN HAMMOND

Mrs. Elmira Susan Hammond, aged 73, died at her home, corner of Sixth and Reese streets, Tuesday morning about 10:30 o'clock, December 30, following a heart attack.

She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Beckman and was born in this county November 26, 1868. She was a member of the United Brethren church at Loch Lynn Heights.

She had been a resident of Oakland for a number of years and was well known by many people who bought shrubbery and fancy work from her from time to time.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Charles Groves, Kingwood, W. Va.; two brothers, Josiah Beckman, Mt. Lake Park, and Wayman Beckman, of near Gortner, in what is known as the Beckman settlement.

Funeral services are to be conducted on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Bolden Funeral Home with Rev. J. E. Johnson, Oakland, officiating. Interment will be in the Beckman family cemetery near Gortner.

First Group of Farm Checks Is Received

The first group of checks for farmers participating in the 1941 soil conservation program have been received at the office of John H. Carter, county agent.

This group consisted of 30 checks totaling $1,140.48. Checks will continue to be received now until 1,150 or 1,200 farmers have received approximately $40,000.00 for agreeing to soil building practices on the farm.

It was also announced that the survey of farmers to determine the amount of cooperation the Farm Defense program would receive from them in increasing the amount of various crops, was over 70 percent completed and that all farmers of the county would be contacted before long.

RED CROSS WAR RELIEF FUNDS ARE URGENTLY NEEDED

That the special Red Cross drive for funds for war relief was not being heeded in Garrett county, was announced Tuesday by J. M. Jarboe, treasurer. Only a little over $200 had been received to date and the quota asked by the national Red Cross headquarters was $2,500.

This drive for funds is altogether separate from the annual roll call which has been going on since Armistice Day.

Mr. Jarboe stressed the fact that the need was urgent and urged that the people realize the necessity of helping the less fortunate in the war-torn lands of the world. Fifteen percent of the amount collected is retained by the local chapter while 85 percent goes to national headquarters.

Citizens of the county are asked to send in their contributions to Mr. Jarboe at the Garrett National Bank in Oakland.

MARRIED

HINEBAUGH-REPETSKY — Miss Katherine Repetsky, formerly of Kempton, W. Va., and Edward E. Hinebaugh were quietly married last Saturday evening, December 27, at the Methodist parsonage in Oakland, by Rev. Minor Sprague, pastor. There were no attendants.

The bride is a graduate of Thomas High school and at present is a clerk in the store of the Davis Coal and Coke Company at Thomas. She formerly was employed in the Bon Ton Confectionery and Hinebaugh's Restaurant here.

The groom is a son of Mrs. Gracia Hinebaugh and the late Arthur Y. Hinebaugh. He was graduated from Oakland High school in 1929 and at present is a junior typist at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds.

SPOERLEIN-LAWTON — A telegram from Hagerstown last Saturday afternoon announced the fact that Miss Rita Lawton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abram Lawton, had become the bride of Earle Spoerlein, a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Spoerlein, of Gortner.

No other details are known. Miss Lawton has been employed at Fort George G. Meade in the army headquarters office. Mr. Spoerlein travels for Swift and Company.

The ceremony was performed on Christmas morning, last Thursday, December 25, at 8:15 o'clock in the Methodist church in the presence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Wolfe, Mrs. Edith Carr and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Decker. Rev. Minor Sprague, pastor, officiated.

The bride is a graduate of Oakland High school, class of 1936, and has been at Stewart and Company, Baltimore, for two years. She studied advanced hair styling, sculpturing and sketching under M. Louis, of New York, and before going to Baltimore assisted her mother in her beauty shop here.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Connellsville High school, Connellsville, Pa., class of 1934, and is a graduate of Walter Reed Roentgenology school, class of 1938. He is now assistant to the master engineer reserve units of the U. S. Army of Western Pennsylvania, stationed at Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Nicholson will remain for the time being at the home of her mother.

JONES — EYE — Miss Orva Mae Eye, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Melvin Eye, Harrisonburg, Va., and instructor in the Accident High school, became the bride of Robert W. Jones, of Frostburg, son of the late Uriah and Mrs. Edith Young Jones, at a ceremony performed in the Metropolitan Baptist church, Washington, D. C., on December 24. Dr. John C. Ball officiated.

The bride was gowned in a street length ice blue costume with black accessories and a corsage of talisman roses. Miss Custer wore a gold dress with brown accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

The bride is a graduate of Mt. Clinton High school, Va., and of State Teachers College, Frostburg, and is a member of the Phi Omicron Delta sorority. Mr. Jones is also a graduate of the Frostburg school and of the University of Maryland, class of 1935. He is principal of the Midland Consolidated school.

The couple will reside after January 3 at 66 Beall street, Frostburg.

MICHAEL-GOODWIN—Miss Mabel Jean Goodwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Goodwin, Frostburg, and David Odell Michael, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Michael, Avilton, were married Sunday, December 21, at the Seventh Day Adventist church, Cumberland, by Rev. L. L. Philphot.

The bride was attired in a white satin gown designed on princess lines and wore a floor-length veil of illusion tulle and carried a shower bouquet of pink and white roses. Bridesmaids were Miss Eileen Saunders, Cumberland; and Miss Phyllis Jenkins, Grantsville. They wore gowns of blue taffeta and corsages of pink roses. Walter Michael, Cumberland, was his brother's best man. The groom is a member of the United States Army and is stationed at Portsmouth, Va.

REID-FIKE—At a quiet home ceremony Miss Anna Lee Fike, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Fike, of Morgantown, W. Va., became the bride of Lloyd Reid, of Cameron, W. Va., at 3 o'clock on Saturday, December 20.

The single ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Obed Hamstead, grandfather of the bride, before a small group of close relatives. An informal reception followed.

The bride was attired in a street-length dress of baby blue wool with a shoulder corsage of pink rosebuds and sweetpeas. Her sister, Miss Eileen Fike, was maid of honor and wore a dusty pink street-length dress with a corsage of assorted pink flowers. John Cooper, Grafton, W. Va., was best man.

The bride is a graduate of Morgantown High school and is now attending West Virginia University from where she will be graduated in 1942. She is a member of Phi Epsilon Omicron, home economics honorary sorority.

Mr. Reid was graduated from West Virginia University in 1940. He is a member of Alpha Zeta, agricultural honorary fraternity. Since graduation he has been connected with the Farm Security Administration but is now county agricultural agent in Taylor county and is located in Grafton, W. Va., where the couple will reside.

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

A New Year's Wish . . .

To hope that it will be prosperous and happy is as out of place as a dress suit in a hobo jungle. Rather we hope for you that you will be given the opportunity of sacrifice. We hope that you will be called upon to do "a little something extra." We hope that when you feel all played out, you will go out and find another audience to persuade into buying another defense bond. We hope that when you try to buy a tire and can't that you won't gripe—and you won't try to get one "through a friend." We hope that when the market gets jittery over our war reverses (and they will come) that you will buy, not sell. Be a damn fool if you want to call it that, but a nation of damn fools of the Wake Island variety will never perish from the earth. To "Remember Pearl Harbor" is to think of surprise, treachery and revenge. To "Remember Wake Island" is to think of valor, courage and sacrifice. We prefer to "Remember Wake Island." The least all of us can try to do is to match it, each in the best way he can.

Employment Service Under Federal Status

The Employment Service office in Oakland will come under federal status beginning Friday, it was announced Wednesday morning. Two employes, Milburn W. Mann and Mrs. George M. Browning, will be under the United States Employment Service as interviewer in charge, and reception clerk, respectively, while Charles L. Briner, Jr., will remain in the employ of the State as senior clerk and deputy for the Maryland Unemployment Compensation Board in this county.

Office hours are also changing, effective Friday, when they will remain open from 8:30 to 4:30 and on Saturday from 8:30 to 12:30.

Twenty More Names Are Added to County Red Cross Roll Call

Brings Total Thus Far to 631 Members and $675.50 in Cash Received

Twenty more names were added this week to the Red Cross roll in that organization's annual roll call, making a total of 631 paid members, ten donations of less than $1.00 and $675.50 in the bank.

Mrs. Paul B. Naylor, roll call chairman, announced that those who had not been contacted and who wished to join, should see their local chairman, the county chairman or J. M. Jarboe, treasurer. A pin, enrollment card and sticker will be given them.

The county is short $524.50 in reaching its quota of $1,200 set by national headquarters.

Mrs. Naylor also reported this week the amount of $50.15 received from Friendsville. The fifty members there were included in The Republican last week. The Woman's Christian Service of the Selbysport Methodist church sent $10.00 this week and Ralph Pritts of Pritts garage, $5.00.

Others joining this week included Mrs. Hervey Roth, Mrs. I. M. Nine, Pritts Garage, Miss Ruth Ridder, Oakland.

Mrs. Paul Hinebaugh, solicitor for Hoyes Run section, listed the following: Mrs. Mary Sutter, Miss Claire Sutter, Miss LeVerne Stanton, Mrs. Grace Gearhart, Fred Gearhart, Redu Baasland, Mrs Paul Hinebaugh, Paul Hinebaugh.

Miss Inez M. Friend, Selbysport, adds a few more members to her list, the Woman's Christian Service society of the Selbysport Methodist church, Mrs. Frank Lowdermilk, Mrs. M. V. Frazee, Mrs. Wayne Frazee, Mrs. R. W. Faucett, Mrs. D. L. Fike, Mrs. Ivan Humberson, Mrs. Paul Fisher.

Mrs. C. F. White and John O. Khare joined two or three weeks ago but their names were omitted from the list, Mrs. Naylor concluded.

Governor Pleads For Realization of War

Says Nation Is in Tough Spot But That People Don't Take It Seriously

A plea to all the citizens of Maryland for full realization that war is upon the United States, for which we are by no means adequately prepared, has been made by Governor O'Conor.

"We must come to the realization that we as a nation are in a mighty tough spot, for which we are by no means adequately prepared," said the Governor. "Right at this moment our people are not rolling up their sleeves and tackling the job of all-out production as they should.

"How many people throughout Maryland today realize that they are at this moment seeing momentous happenings such as possibly the world has never before known. Many ask why our country is not better prepared. The answer is plain. Our boys have died and more will die because our people haven't taken the situation seriously enough as individuals or as a nation. Until this awareness comes we cannot honestly hold up our heads and tell our young men we have sent abroad to fight that we are doing our part at home.

"In the all-out preparedness which the country must accept as its most important home function at this period, every group must cooperate to the fullest to further the common end. On the home front, in the various functions of Civilian Defense, of industrial management and Federal official life, we must measure up if we are to achieve our war aims without unnecessary expenditure of lives and resources."

In the Meantime Mayor and Council Will Try to Make Arrangements to Stop Further Cutting

Following a meeting of the Mayor and City Council of Mountain Lake Park, and other interested parties, on Tuesday evening, the cutting of the oak trees in the Park has been halted, for thirty days at least.

Meeting with the council were Neil C. Fraley, attorney; H. C. Buckingham, district forester, and H. D. Lollar, manager of the Oakland Timber Corporation, and several interested citizens of the Park.

Lollar, who was termed "very agreeable and cooperative" by Mayor C. Oscar Hall, said that the cutting would stop for thirty days pending an effort of the Town Council to reach an agreement with Miss Osie England, head of "The Defenders of the Faith," who had made the contract with Lollar for the purchase of the trees.

Mayor Hall said it was the purpose to the council to persuade Miss England to agree not to sell any more trees for commercial purposes. If such an agreement could be reached, Mr. Hall said Lollar agreed to scrap his contract with Miss England.

The cutting of trees has provoked a storm of protest from residents of Mt. Lake Park. There are many beautiful oak trees on the 800-acre tract that was owned for many years by the Methodist Board of Foreign Missions. The Defenders of the Faith purchased a large part of the Park from the Foreign Mission Board two years ago, and since that time the Defenders have sold a portion of the property to the Mountain Lake Park Camp Meeting Association.

It was in an effort to raise money to pay for the property that the trees were being sold, according to reliable sources, and some say 500 trees, some 1,000 trees, are to be cut down. Some insist that only the defective trees are to be cut, but others point out that all trees above six inches are to be included.

Those protesting the cutting of the trees say that without the trees Mountain Lake Park isn't worth much as a beauty spot and summer place.

Mayor Hall said it had been definitely established that some of the trees already cut down were on the rights of way of the streets of the town. He said that a total of about 200 trees had already come down, mostly in what is known as the "Woods section."

The matter was placed in the hands of their attorney, Mr. Fraley, who will make an effort to reach an agreement with Miss England, who at the present time is at Intercession City, Fla.

Retired From Service

Howard S. Hoffman, after serving the Baltimore and Ohio railroad for forty-one years and nine months, most of that time as an engineer, retired on December 29.

He entered the service on March 19, 1899, as a fireman and was promoted in June, 1902, to the position of engineer. During his long career he carried both passenger and freight traffic and in recent years was assigned on the helper engine at Mt. Lake Park.

Completes Seventy-fifth Year As a Business

The Shirer Tin Shop has completed its seventy-fifth year of existence as a business in Oakland, and its proprietors are expressing their thanks this week to their friends and customers by an advertisement in this newspaper.

The business began in 1866. Its present owners are W. E. Shirer and son, Scott W. Shirer.

Plan Benefit Show

Members of the Lions club are planning a show for the benefit of the American Red Cross in the near future, it was announced following a regular meeting Monday night.

Arthur Humberson, of Detroit, was a guest of the club. Robert Martin, local manager of the Carnation Company plant, has been called into the service as a second lieutenant and expects to be assigned to duty in the near future.

H. C. Riggs, former president of the organization, and cashier of the Garrett National Bank, spoke to the group on "Banking."

Maryland Hens Get "Sit Down" Orders

Greater Efficiency in Distribution Urged For State's Poultry and Egg Industry

The chicks, grand chicks and great grandchicks of Maryland's 9,310,000 hens and roosters of 1940 are going on a health farm routine next year. They'll get vitamins, sun lamps, "activated" feeds, codliver extract and practically everything but castor oil.

They've got a job to do for a nation at war. Some of them have to grow big and tender and a lot of them will have to plump out eggs on a production line basis—30,674,000 dozens of them in 1942.

That's the task the government has assigned Maryland hens with the pointed suggestion they sit down and go to work. At the same time Maryland poultrymen are being urged to increase this year's flock of 10,427,000 broilers, fryers, roasters and fowl to 11,897,000 birds next year.

With America at war the nation's flocks will play an important part in furnishing the American diet with protective foods. The flocks will give —as well as get—the essential vitamins and other nutrients that are important to the health of a nation at war. And consumption will keep pace with production if the country's nutritionists achieve what they have set out to do.

The United States Department of Agriculture wants the American hen to lay 4,000,000,000 dozens of eggs next year and the guardians of public health want Americans to eat at least 35 per cent more eggs for the sake of health and working efficiency.

Enlisted in both campaigns are the retailers and distributors of food who are placing more and more educational emphasis on vitamin-rich protective and diet-balancing foods. More emphasis, too, is being placed on wider use of more efficient methods of food distribution so that more of these foods will be available to more people.

If savings resulting from "a wider use of more efficient methods of distribution" could be achieved for the entire Maryland poultry industry, says a report from Howard C. Pierce, poultry and egg expert for the A & P Tea company, it "would be possible to save $790,000 annually for the producers and consumers of Maryland-grown poultry."

Cost of distribution ate up $3,948,000 of the $9,871,000 retail value of Maryland-grown chickens and turkeys in 1940, with the farmers' cash income from the same birds only $5,923,000, the report said.

Department of Agriculture figures showed that, on an average, producers got but 55 cents of the consumer poultry dollar marketing through all channels.

Millions of dozens of eggs will be shipped to Britain in 1942, and to meet wartime demand for strengthening foods, poultrymen are utilizing all means to increase the efficiency of their flocks.

Scientists have developed vitamin D bearing feed concentrates. Sunlamps are installed in many feeding houses to provide the chickens with the sunshine vitamin. Birds are being bred for meat and egg laying capacity. Most chicken-feeds are nutritionally balanced. And gigantic impetus has been provided for modern methods of poultry husbandry by the wartime emergency.

We make this pledge publicly to our national government and to the people of the United States:

That we will cooperate unhesitatingly in every effort of authorized government agencies to prevent unwarranted rises in prices of foods.

That we will continue our efforts to reduce the spread between prices paid to the grower and prices charged to the consumers.

That to this end we will continue to do everything in our power to assist the farmers and growers of America in the orderly marketing of their products at the fairest possible prices to them.

That we will make every effort to hold our inventories at the lowest point consistent with good service to our customers because hoarding, whether by wholesalers, retailers, or consumers, will cause higher prices.

That we will endeavor to continue to pay our employees the highest wages and to give them the best working conditions in the grocery business generally.

That we will make every effort to continue to sell food at retail at the lowest gross margin of profit in the history of the retail grocery business.

Today we are providing food for our customers at the lowest gross profit rate in the history of the retail grocery business. This means that we have achieved efficiencies in the distribution of food never before attained. More of your food dollar goes for food and less for overhead expenses than ever before. No other great retail business in the United States in any field is operated with such a low cost of distribution.

No one in the food business can control the wholesale price of food. Only the government of the United States has power to do this, and for the protection of our people this power in the government is now a necessary power.

Today, with the nation at war, we believe that no private interest has any rights in conflict with the general public interest.

The armed forces of the United States are today receiving more and better food than ever before in our national history. It is equally important that all of our people working and living behind the lines, men, women and children, shall be better fed and better nourished than ever before in our national history.

We Resolve for 1942

Whereas the die has been cast: whereas the aggression was visited upon us with neither warning nor provocation: whereas it once again becomes our duty to gird ourselves for the battle that must prove right makes might—the sacred resolve of every man, woman and child for 1942 becomes clear, as we rally around our nation and our president. Every fibre of our being; every atom of our strength, and all our will shall be as a bulwark guarding democracy, that its cause may be victorious. Menacing may be the clouds now hovering over a wailing, praying world: but they shall be swept from the skies for all time by the unhalting, united action of America and her Allies!

EVERYBODY'S JOB

"What can I do?"

That's a question that millions of Americans all over the country are asking today. We who are behind the far-flung battle lines of freedom—how can we help?

The answer isn't hard to find. Not all of us can fly a bomber or operate a tank, but there are many other ways in which we can—and must—aid our country.

For one thing, we can all work harder at our jobs than ever before and in that way help increase America's production efficiency. We can be more careful and cut down accidents. We can build up our health and our endurance against difficult days that are bound to come. We can avoid waste both at work and at home and help to conserve materials that Uncle Sam needs now more than ever before. We can save waste paper and scrap metals that nearly every household has in the form of unused tools, kitchen utensils and similar articles.

Our plants and factories have long had well organized methods of salvaging such materials. One company saves enough aluminum to build ten two-engine bombers every month from machine shop left-overs alone. Another gets 75,000,000 pounds of non-ferrous scrap metal every year from parts of its equipment that have outlived their usefulness. Now it's up to us—every one of us—to work our salvage campaigns in our own home and save whatever we can that our country needs.

Many of the articles we have been accustomed to buy won't be available any more. Industry will have to cut down on many products to speed the output of weapons. Instead of blaming our industrial system for these shortages, we can accept them cheerfully, keep up our morale and realize that metals and materials that in peace-time we would use, are now building up the best Army, Navy and Air Force in the world.

New Year's Resolution—1942

"But mother," said Johnnie, eleven years old this autumn, "what's the use of making New Year's resolutions this year when our country's at war and nobody knows what's going to happen?"

"What's the use? Why, there's all the use in the world! It's more important this year than it's ever been in your young life to look yourself squarely in the face and decide what things you ought to do better. When your country is fighting for her very life, it's important for you to be doing your level best."

"Then I ought to go on and resolve to get better marks in history even if I might not be able to go to college after all?"

"Certainly, dear. It's more important than ever now for you to make the most of your opportunities. And in a world that's changing so fast you need to know what has happened in order to have some idea of what may happen."

"And I still need to wash behind my ears?"

"Of course, darling! In times like these, morale is essential, and being clean, even where it doesn't show, gives you self respect that contributes to morale."

"And I shouldn't tease Sis so much?"

"Well, what do you think? When people are fighting each other all over the world, don't you think it's a good thing to have peace and good feeling at home?"

"I suppose so," Johnnie admitted wriggling a little in discomfiture. "And how about writing regularly to Grandfather?"

"He's never needed your letters more that he does today when he's worried about his business and working harder than he has in years, even though he's a pretty old man."

"Aw, mother, you make it so hard. I though now with a war on, if I worked hard with the Scouts and collected old papers on Saturday for the conservation committee you'd be satisfied. But you want me to do all the other things, too, and better than ever!"

"Of course I do, son. Just as I want to do things myself and better than ever. When our country is in danger we can't neglect anything; not our health nor our appearance nor our friends, above all not our work. We've got to measure up to the highest standard we can set for ourselves and turn out more work than we ever thought we could, the way industry is doing.

"So make your New Year's resolutions the same as you've always done, and make them mean something. What if they are hard to live up to. You're an American and Americans in the past never tried to avoid the hard things. They did them and did them triumphantly. And we're going to do them again, come what may, in 1942!"

DIARY OF THE WAR

FRIDAY—Jap tank units were striking inland in Luzon and they claimed advances in other spearheads in Philippines. British troops took Bengasi in Libya and continued chasing foe westward. The Free French forces occupied islands off coast of Newfoundland without knowledge of Washington. Hongkong yielded to the Jap invaders. Nazi resistance had stiffened along Russian front but Reds claimed to be pushing invaders back and causing many German casualties. The Jap drive against Singapore had been stemmed. Borneo head-hunter descendants were rallying against Jap invasion there. Dutch were continuing their "one a day" destruction of Japanese transports and warships.

SATURDAY — American-Filipino position was strengthened in Luzon sector. Manila was declared an open and undefended city. Dutch airmen sank a Jap destroyer and transport off Borneo. Churchill appeared before Congress and spoke of an allied offensive in 1943 that would bring the Axis to terrible account. Russians reported new successes, capturing a large town which Hitler had made an anchor for a major line with hopes of halting the Red drive. German dead in recent fighting were estimated at 30,000. In Africa the remnants of Axis Libyan army were attempting a stand 90 miles south of Bengasi. Japs complete occupation of Hongkong.

SUNDAY—Jap airmen, waiting until Manila's anti-aircraft guns were hauled away and her defenses stripped as an open city, made a long and fierce attack by planes and left the city a mass of flames. Legislators were calling for retaliation. There were more arrests by Nazis in Norway. Pacific coast aliens were ordered to turn in radios and cameras. Reds claimed to have battered down stiffened German resistance and to have recaptured many more villages. A thrust across the Kerch strait into the Crimea to regain that area was seen. Both British and Japanese reinforced their lines in Malaya. Rain in Libya was slowing the British pace. Sixteen Finnish ships were seized by U. S. American-Italians were organizing a movement against Fascism to "save Italy."

MONDAY — Philippine defenders fought Jap invaders to standstill north and south of Manila. Japs made mother air raid on Manila. Japs claimed new landings on Luzon. Japs bombed a Dutch airport on Sumatra. Australian planes made direct hits on a Jap cruiser. British beat back the Japs on Malay peninsula. British made a surprise landing on Norway at two points against Nazi shipping and claimed return of all ships. Nazis admitted loss of several ships but claimed British lost 10 bombers, and destroyer. Moscow reported rout of an entire German division of teenage boys. British and Free French bombers in Africa smashed at Tripoli and Zuara. The Axis army was being pushed back more and more.

TUESDAY — American - Filipino troops withdrew to a new line and it was clear the crisis was approaching on Luzon. Japs claimed capture of Ipoh and Kuching in Malaya and Sarawak and claimed Jap subs had sunk ten American ships off Hawaii and U. S. mainland. British admitted Japs had pushed past the tin center 200 miles above Singapore. Dutch hit another Jap transport and unconfirmed reports claimed 12 more ships. U. S. subs sank two more Jap ships. Japs were believed opening a drive for Manila Bay. Russians continued offensive although acknowledging stiffer Nazi resistance. Reds claimed Italians in south were surrendering in large units. In Africa British had about isolated the main Axis forces in a town 80 miles south of Bengasi. British bombers dealt destructive blows from Norway to France. German planes blasted the northeast coast of England.

WEDNESDAY — Reds recaptured eastern end of Crimean peninsula including towns of Kerch and Feodosiya, and pushed Germans back on central front. Japs in southern Luzon advanced to within 45 miles of Manila. The Jap attack on fort in entrance to Manila bay got nowhere. Situation was no worse for British in Malaya. Martial law was proclaimed in Singapore. Dutch appealed for more planes. Axis army in making last stand in Libya lost 42 more tanks. British raided the coastal road eastward from Tripoli to stop any reinforcements to Axis army. Allied reinforcements were said to be enroute to Pacific area. Some U. S. planes arrived in Philippines. Jap subs were reported off Alaska. U. S. planned a 50-billion war program.

British planes blasted the warship nest of Nazis at Brest and Polish fighters bagged seven German defense planes.

Civilian-Defense Muddle.

No more timely piece has been written in a long time than that by Mr. Walter Lippmann in which he urged a prompt reorganization of the Office of Civilian Defense, now being run in an extraordinarily confused and utterly ineffectual way by Mayor LaGuardia and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The truth is that this question of home defense has suddenly become far too vital to tolerate much longer its handling by individuals who, even if they were qualified by experience and capacity for the job, are unable to give it their full time and attention. It was a mistake for the President to appoint Mayor LaGuardia as director in the first place. And it was a mistake, though probably one he could not help, for Mr. LaGuardia to appoint Mrs. Roosevelt as assistant director.

Neither of them is the kind of person who ought to head this activity, even if they had nothing else to do. Mr. LaGuardia, however, has other duties which simply preclude the possibility of efficiently running the OCD. Being Mayor of New York alone is enough to tax the powers of endurance and occupy all the thought and time of any man. But, in addition, Mr. LaGuardia is a member of the Canadian-American Defense Board, which involves numerous meetings, considerable travel and is anything but unimportant.

The Mayor is able and honest, but that does not mean that he is capable of taking on this OCD job and doing it well. The fact is that he isn't doing it well at all. The fact is that it is in a very badly demoralized state. The confusion was great before we got into the war. It is much greater now—so great, in fact, that it borders on the outrageous. The best evidence of this is that the President himself is perturbed over the situation. So are a good many others. Unwittingly, of course, Mrs. Roosevelt has contributed no little to the confusion. In the first place, her activities are spread all over the place. She does a daily syndicated newspaper article; she makes a weekly radio broadcast, sponsored by the South American coffee growers; she writes a monthly magazine article. In addition, she is actively supporting her friend, Mr. Joseph Lash, in his student organization. She does other things, but these are routine.

That, with all these enterprises on her hands, Mrs. Roosevelt should think herself capable of managing the vast and complicated business of civilian defense gives an idea of her belief in herself. It is a fact that neither she nor Mayor LaGuardia has effected a competent and coordinated organization anywhere. They both have great gifts for publicity, and there is hardly a day in which, in her sugary way, Mrs. Roosevelt does not pour out some more or less well-chosen words about the "great progress" being made and the "inspiring conference" being held. But the progress is not visible to the naked eye and the bewilderment is. So, also, is the resentment. There is a great deal of this in the Red Cross organization, with whose work some of her well-meant activities have interfered. Before the Pearl Harbor attack there was indignation among the women affected. There is more now. It is said that she is disposed to regard the OCD as a sort of personal possession. It is said that apparently she would like to coordinate all women activities under her. It is said that she has no clear idea of what it is all about.

This may do Mrs. Roosevelt an injustice. Her motives are always of the best. Nevertheless, these allegations are being widely made. In any event, Mr. Lippmann's suggestion does seem in the national interests. It is that both Mr. LaGuardia and Mrs. Roosevelt resign and that the President reorganize the OCD so as to put it under the jurisdiction of the War Department, to be operated by an Assistant Secretary of War for Home Defense. It should be subordinated to but not coordinated with the army—and it should be taken wholly out of the hands of untrained civilians.

Unless some such plan as this is adopted, we are not going to have an effective civilian defense. Certainly we are not going to approach effectiveness under the present setup. And with the war, civilian defense has become so important to the country as a whole that it is absurd it should continue in the hands of half-time amateurs. It is a business for the War Department, not for the busy Mayor of New York or the well-meaning wife of the President. The President knows all this and is anxious to effect a reorganization. He has said as much very recently.

A NEW YEAR'S REVERIE

Another year has passed away;
We buried it low on yesterday.
We sealed it in the tomb of years
With grief too deep for surface tears.
With regret we saw it go—
It ushered in such haggard woe;
Its gifts were rich, without alloy,
But the blow of war outweighed our joy.

What this year holds, no one can tell—
We're in the war and "War is Hell";
Such Hell as only those can feel
Whose loved ones now must meet the steel.
'Tis not the least of Mercy's plan—
The future is not known to man;
In the dark, by faith, is a better way
Than to walk alone in the light of day.

Erstwhile, God ruled on land and sea;
Men had their day and ceased to be—
Mad tyrants rose with greed for power,
But they licked the dust in the zero hour.
Our freedom's built on hero graves—
Shall we, their sons, sell out as slaves?
With sweat and blood we're ready now—
The quisling's hat won't fit our brow.

126,947 Japanese in States April 1, 1940

There were 126,947 Japanese in continental United States on April 1, 1940, of whom 47,305 were foreign born, therefore alien and ineligible for citizenship.

The Philippine Islands contained 29,057 citizens of Japan. Hawaii had 157,905, or 37.3 percent of the total population. Of the total 37,353 were foreign born.

The Pacific coast states had 112,353 Japanese or 88.5 percent of the total in the country. These states contained 40,869 alien Japanese. Los Angeles had 23,321 Jap residents, more than any other American city.

Maryland had 36, 17 of them born in the U. S. and 19 foreign born.

Garrett County's New Food Production Goals

In our present emergency food is now and will be playing a major role.

We need to promote better health in our own nation with more food and better food habits, help to feed the starving men, women and children of other countries and produce food for them and ourselves until they can get back into production. Every farm family is being asked to do its part in this big task.

Each state and county has set up its goals. The primary purposes of such goals have been stated by A. B. Hamilton, assistant professor of agriculture economics, University of Maryland, in the following six points:

(1) Feed our own people better.

Even in an emergency charity begins at home. Our sight is poor if we fail to see the need for more food and better diets in our own communities. It should not help our ego to see so many young men supposedly in the prime of life being rejected for military training when the lack of proper food is part of the cause.

(2) Feed one-fourth of the people of England.

Under the Lease-Lend act we are committed to feed ten million people of England and supply food to other countries as the President of the United States may direct. These people are not asking us to supply them with a seven-course dinner; they are merely asking us to help them exist. Food for shipment must be in a concentrated form; space in ships is at a premium. Therefore, they want dried eggs, powdered milk, cheese, tomatoes and other vegetables, and meat. Tomatoes are being stored in subways and other air-raid shelters. They serve a double purpose as food or for quenching thirst when water mains are damaged or when water is not obtainable.

(3) To make farm people conscious that we are at war.

This is an opportunity for everyone to show his patriotism by doing something for defense. Some of the slogans of 1916 were: "Food Will Win the War," or "If You Can't Fight, Farm!" and "Farm to the Fence for National Defense." This time it is "Food Will Win the War and Write the Peace."

(4) Build stock piles.

Great quantities of food will be required to feed the people even after peace is declared. Should peace be declared today, it would be necessary to feed millions of people until they could again get into production. Then, too, when the terms of peace are being drawn, the country that can feed the multitudes will have a strong hand to play.

(5) Reduce amount of inflation.

More people are now employed and wages are higher than at any time in history. However, it is not possible to produce for normal consumption and also for war purposes.

Soon it will not be possible to buy all the automobiles, refrigerators and a multitude of other products that we might have the income to purchase; therefore, there will be keen competition for the things that are for sale. To illustrate: The national income for 1942 is expected to be about 100 billion dollars and it will only be possible to produce for non-military purposes about 70 billion dollars worth of goods. What happens when you go to a sale and two people want one article? They bid up the price. That, on a national scale, is inflation.

(6) Expansion in products easier to adjust back to domestic demand.

This time an effort is being made to prevent the breaking up of the prairies to plant wheat, or expand the acreage of cotton. The increases asked are small and producers are not encouraged to go into debt. Small increases on each farm are all that is desired so that in time we can get back to supplying a domestic market with a minimum of trouble. To illustrate: Producers are asked to be more efficient in producing milk, keep the old cows one year longer and add one more cow for each 20 in the herd. That is not asking much and when this emergency is over the producer can shift back to his former number and will not lose his farm as so many did in 1920 and from 1930 to 1935.

Working in cooperation with the State Farm Defense Board and in turn with the U. S. D. A. Defense Board, the Garrett County Farm Defense Board has set up the following goals for Garrett county:

MILK—In 1942 a 10% increase in milk production over that of 1941. It is recommended that this increase be brought about by more efficiency in producing milk.

COWS—Plus the 10% increase in milk from present herd a 4% increase in cows was recommended by the Farm Defense Board. This recommendation made in view of the local markets for milk.

HOGS FOR THE MARKET—In 1942 a 10% increase over that of 1941.

PEAS—All that local canners can take care of.

VEGETABLE GARDENS—A well-planned vegetable garden for every farm family and for every other family that has space available for a home garden. The well-planned home garden provides a good inexpensive source of food for the family, provided the owner does not pay exorbitant labor prices. In most instances the home garden on the farm is made by the women of the household or by men at odd times. The non-farm home garden is often a means of recreation or is made at out of office or business hours. In so doing full labor prices are not necessarily charged to the garden.

Schedule

Wednesday, January 7th—Grantsville Homemakers' Club at the home of Mrs. C. C. Beachy, 2:00 p. m.

Married Men Accepted As Flying Cadets Now

Major General Henry C. Pratt, Commanding General, Third Corps area, announced that married men may now be accepted for appointment as Aviation Cadets provided dependents have sufficient means of support and a statement is signed to that effect. Previous to this only unmarried men were eligible.

The age limits for the seven and one-half months training course for Aviation Cadets is 20 to 26 inclusive. While training the Cadets will receive $75 per month.

Upon completion of the course the successful Cadet will receive a commission as a Second Lieutenant, Air Corps Reserve, with a pay up to $245 per month while on active duty.

Enlisted Reservists

Enlisted Reservists of all components of the Army who volunteer for active duty in the Army of the United States will be recalled for duty immediately.

Those who are married may volunteer for active duty providing a signed certificate is presented stating that their dependents will be able to support themselves.

Reservists will be processed through the Reception Centers and then sent directly to units. Approximately 9,000 Reservists are affected by this announcement within the Corps Area.

1,200 Air Cadets Wanted

With renewed emphasis placed upon the expansion of the Army Air Corps training program, Major General Pratt announced that Aviation Cadet Examining Boards are authorized to enlist all qualified applicants for bombardier-navigator and pilot training in the full status of Aviation Cadets, Army of the United States, immediately upon successful completion of their examination.

Boards are now in session at Court Square Building, Baltimore, Md.; Langley Field, Va., and Bolling Field, D. C.

The training for bombardier-navigator and pilot will cover a period of seven and one-half months. As cadets the qualified trainees will receive $75 a month plus subsistence and medical attention. Upon successful completion of these courses the cadets will be commissioned as second lieutenants in the Air Corps Reserve with a salary up to $245 per month while on active duty.

Twelve hundred Aviation Cadets will be selected from the Third Corps Area immediately and will be sent to the Southeast Training Center, at Maxwell Field, Alabama.

Knitters Are Continuing

In these hours of national emergency many Red Cross volunteers are using knitting needles as their weapons. Lists are never exciting but the following deserve three cheers from all of Garrett county for their perseverance and determination. Mrs. Mason Callis finished an army sweater in six days; Mrs. John Stevenson, Sr., who heads the Mt. Lake Park corps of knitters, reports that Mrs. Ida Lee, Mrs. Jennie Richardson, Mrs. Ada Lawrence, Mrs. Etta Sanders, Mrs. Canaan, Mrs. Lawrence Moomaw, Mrs. Nine and Miss May Lee all are clicking their needles for national emergency, each having enrolled to finish a bundle of sweaters or shawls; Mrs. James Spencer, eleven pairs of mittens; Mrs. Loraditch, thirteen pairs of socks; and Mrs. O. P. Jones, twenty-six pairs of mittens; Mrs. Arthur Naylor has volunteered to sew all the Garrett county Red Cross labels in the one hundred and eighty beanies (caps) that are taking shape under Mrs. Jesse Ashby. Mrs. S. Townshend Naylor and Mrs. Anna Smouse, who heads mitten production, will have many to hand over to headquarters. Mrs. Edward Lawrence, Mrs. Foster Bittle, Mrs. Margaret Casteel, Mrs. Lowell Loomis, Mrs. Cecil Smith, Mrs. Herbert Leighton, Misses Barbara Hinebaugh, Elizabeth West, Nancy Lou Dawson, Ann Lawrence and Virginia Lawton, Mrs. T. E. Bishoff and Mrs. J. M. Falkenstein have knitted sweaters and mittens and now are working on soldiers' socks.

Organize Emergency Health Protection Services in Counties

In a bulletin issued by the State Department of Health, Dr. R. H. Riley, director of the department, reports that organization of emergency health protection services in the counties of Maryland has followed the plans outlined by the Medical Division of the Office of Civilian Defense. Local arrangements have proceeded in accordance with the instructions of Dr. C. Reid Edwards, professor of clinical surgery at the University of Maryland, state chief of emergency medical service for Maryland. His headquarters are in Baltimore City.

Dr. Edwards has appointed each county health officer as local chief of emergency medical service for his specific county and has duly authorized each local chief to organize an advisory council consisting of a representative of the County Medical Society, a public health nurse from the County Health Department personnel, a representative of the local Red Cross chapter, and others from medical organizations or from local groups associated with such services. Each county will serve as a health unit and all emergency public health and health protection services will be directed from the County Health Department.

Classes in home nygiene and care of the sick are a part of the educational program of each County Health Department. Special classes as a part of the defense activities have been organized in practically all of the counties, either under the direction of the County Health Department or the local chapter of the Red Cross. Information with regard to these courses and to the first aid instruction being given by the Red Cross can be obtained from the County Health Officer or the local Red Cross chapter in each county.

Dr. W. Ross Cameron, senior surgeon (reserve) of the U. S. Public Health Service, is in charge of advisory medical services associated with Federal activities, for the Third Defense Region, which includes Maryland, and is working closely with Dr. Edwards in duties connected with the development of State-wide Emergency Medical Service for Maryland. Dr. Cameron was formerly health officer of Washington county and more recently has been in charge of the survey of medical facilities in the counties, being conducted by the State Planning Commission. He was given leave of absence from the department in the early fall to enter the Public Health Service. In October he was detailed to the Third Civilian Area—which includes Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia—as regional medical officer.

Dr. Edward Davens, pediatric consultant of the State Bureau of Child Hygiene, has been relieved of other duties for a brief period to serve on the field staff of Dr. Edwards.

The government will impose a price ceiling on cigarettes at a level as of December 26.

What Price Defense?

Uncle Sam's pursestrings have been loosened already for several billions of dollars needed to protect our lives and our homes. But Americans are not complaining. They've buckled down to the job and want to know what they can do to help. Housewives, particularly, have found where they can eliminate waste and, at the same time, give their families better and more nourishing food to promote good health, and to build strong bodies.

You Can Assure Victory

Through the use of electric refrigeration and electric cookery—and keeping all electric appliances in good condition for maximum use—mothers and daughters are getting a thrill out of their savings for defense. The price of defense, then, is what can be saved every day. It's the kind of effort in which all may join, all share an equal reward. Given a chance, electricity will do its full duty to guarantee victory!

THE SYNOPTIC GOSPELS: MATTHEW, MARK, LUKE

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 1:1, 17; Mark 1:1, 14, 15; Luke 1:1-4; Acts 1:1-5.

GOLDEN TEXT—Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners.—I Timothy 1:15.

A new year of God-given opportunity with the assurance of His grace and strength for our daily need. Such is the precious gift we hold in our hands as we enter on A. D. 1942.

With the new year, we enter upon a new course of study—carefully planned ahead through 1947, if the Lord tarries. We begin very appropriately with a study of the life of Christ as presented in the first three Gospels, known as the Synoptic Gospels.

"Synoptic" is a combination of two words, meaning "a view together," and refers to the fact that Matthew, Mark, and Luke give us the same general view of Christ, although differing somewhat in their emphasis.

Matthew, writing his Gospel especially to the Jews, presents Christ as King. Mark, for the Romans, presents the Servant. Luke presents to the Greeks the Son of Man—the perfect Man, and John, for the Christian church, reveals the Son of God. But note that all the Gospels are for us, and in them we find the fourfold picture which presents the many-sided glory and beauty of our Lord. Turning to our scriptures we see—

I. The King (Matt. 1:1, 17).

These verses come at the beginning and end of the kingly genealogy of Jesus. It is important that the descent of a king be carefully recorded and studied, for it alone can prove his right to the throne. We know that Israel rejected Jesus as King, but we also know what prophecy reveals that He will one day take the throne of David and reign. Does He have that right?

In Matthew 1:1-17, we have His national and royal descent. Being son of both David and Abraham, He is heir to both the promise and the throne. As King of Israel, there was no need to trace His lineage back further than Abraham through David, but we find that in Luke (2: 23-28) the Son of Man is traced back to Adam. Mark has no genealogy for reasons noted below, and John also has none, for the Son of God is eternal, infinite, without need of genealogy.

II. The Servant (Mark 1:1, 14, 15).

A servant needs no genealogy, he needs only to be able and ready to work, and that is just what we find in Mark. The account plunges at once into the story of "the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God," who is ready to serve—by life or by death—yes, even by the death of the cross.

The forerunner, John the Baptist, bears his witness. Jesus is baptized. John is imprisoned, and immediately Jesus begins to preach, "Repent ye, and believe the gospel." The key verse of Mark is 10:45: "For even the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister." The characteristic words are "straightway," "forthwith," and "immediately." The Greek word thus translated appears about 40 times in the book. The Servant of God went quickly about the Father's business. Christians, can we say the same for ourselves?

III. The Son of Man (Luke 1:1-4).

Luke undertakes to write, under the control of the Holy Spirit, a careful account of the saving work of Christ, but he makes it doubly clear that he writes from firsthand knowledge. "Eyewitnesses" means those who made a personal investigation, hence, those who knew Christ as the Son of Man, the One who became flesh and dwelt among us. "Ministers" means literally those who served under Jesus, His personal assistants; again emphasizing His personal ministry as "the Son of man who is come to seek and to save that which was lost" (as Luke 19:10, the key verse of this Gospel, expresses it).

IV. The Risen and Ascended Lord (Acts 1:1-5).

Christ who was crucified arose a Victor over death and the grave, and ascended to the Father, where He now appears as our Advocate. That does not mean that His work on earth terminated, for we have in Acts what Dr. Morgan fittingly calls "the book of the continued doing and teaching of the living Christ by the Holy Spirit through His body, which is the church."

The Gospels (Acts 1:1) told only that "Jesus began to do and to teach." Acts continues, but does not complete the story. Christ is working today in and through surrendered believers. Will He have liberty to work through you and through me this year of 1942? If so, it is sure to be a happy—yes, a blessed—New Year.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS . . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

MOSTLY OUTSIDE

Washington, Dec. 27.

Apart from the immense advantages of coordinated effort and agreed-upon strategy against Axis powers, which is the main purpose of the visit to Mr. Churchill and the numerous technical aides and experts who came with him, it is possible that other benefits may flow.

One, of course, is the spiritual exaltation of the great and inspiring speech in the Senate chamber the day after Christmas. In that speech Mr. Churchill really lifted the nation. But that was not all he did. Certainly, in a few days he has managed to convey in Washington two exceedingly useful impressions. One is that the fight ahead of us is exceedingly grim; that there will be bad news before there is good news. Nevertheless, the ultimate and complete defeat of the enemy is something about which there is no doubt whatever. The other idea is that the cost of victory in money, lives and time depends altogether upon the way the job is managed. "If we manage it well," declared the indomitable man at his first press conference, "we shall do it in half the time."

That, of course, was not said in criticism but merely as a plain statement of obvious fact. It would be well if these Churchillian words should soak into the minds directing our own national effort, which quite clearly is not being managed well at all. It may be that we have made no more mistakes than the British in the same length of time. It may be that on the early days they made even bigger blunders that we. But that is not the point. The point is that the stake has been reached where we must at least cease making major mistakes—because mistakes now will take their toll in American lives, even though they do not threaten the ultimate outcome.

What we ought to do, of course, is to profit by British mistakes—not repeat them. England and Canada have been in this war nearly a year and a half; we have been in it just three weeks. In such vital matters as price control, civilian defense, labor policy, priorities and production problems generally, they floundered about for months, but have straightened out now—made their mistakes and corrected most of them. It would seem the part of wisdom for us to profit by their experience, not disregard it. Particularly, it would seem that the presence in Washington of Lord Beaverbrook and the accompanying experts provides an opportunity for a survey of what they have done which we can profitably avoid or profitably adopt.

At least it would be such an opportunity if there were in our Government someone with authority enough and capacity enough to get at the facts and operate along these lines. Unfortunately, there is no such person. All authority is in the hands of the President and he has delegated very little—not enough for any action not previously approved by himself. Immersed in great problems of global strategy and the direction of the armed forces, it is plain that he cannot deal with such details. The trouble is that no one else can. He hasn't delegated that kind of authority, but if he had he has not around him the sort of men capable of wielding it effectively.

And that brings up the point on which the President himself can act without delay. He can act, but no one else. In both England and Canada the best brains in the country are now in the Government. There are no conspicuously able and experienced men who are not being utilized in key positions; which is as it should be. But that is not true in this country. The reverse of that is true. Unfortunateiy, the best brains of the country today are outside of the Government, not in it. Our outstanding men of ability and experience are not being utilized. Few will dispute that statement.

A few names spring instantly to mind: B. M. Baruch, Herbert Hoover, Wendell Willkie, Alfred Sloan, Lewis W. Douglas, John E. Hanes, James A. Farley, Owen D. Young. All these men have capacity, character, experience and unquestioned patriotism. There is not one but who would be an enormous help in the great national effort we are making. They would increase both efficiency and confidence. Moreover, they are available. And there are plenty of others. But they are outside the Government, not inside. There is no way for them to serve except at Mr. Roosevelt's invitation—and that has not been extended. If there is one thing more disturbing than the caliber of the men who are managing this job, it is the caliber of the men who are not being permitted to help manage it.

Turning Over An Old Leaf

By Phillip A. Gladheim

"There were faces to remember in the Valley of the Shadow;
There were faces unregarded, there were faces to forget;
There were fires of grief and fear that are a few forgotten ashes;
There were sparks of recognition that are not forgotten yet."

They say that a specialized kind of savant is capable of predicting the future by looking intently towards the center of a ball of glass. We call such a person a crystal-gazer.

It would seem that America would profit immesureably if it could develop another kind of savant—one who could adumbrate the path life has taken in America since the turn of the century. Perhaps he needs the patience to inspect the composite headlines from the press roll of each year—then add all these composites together and from these tell simply whether we still know which way we are tending or whether we have lost our way.

At present one man's guess is as plausible as the other. Even the less intelligent find it easy to arrive at conclusions, negative or positive.

Apart from a survey of press reports of all the goings on here in America it might be more accurate to examine one's own reactions to life during the past forty years. Again one meets with the personal equation.

During these forty years many people have not altered their place, mode or belief in living; others have rubbed up against life with innumerable hazards to inherited aptitudes. This is because they have lived a trailer-car existence. With these life has been a kaleidioscope of change; with the former a stereoptican view with the same old slides.

What has happened to our churches, schools and homes, even in small towns? Churches and schools have become larger. School attendance has increased, therefore reason for adding to equipment, but the attendance at church has been decreasing, but the Church has a solid hope in the future.

As to our homes: We have apparently more of them, but less children. The houses have become smaller for two reasons—less children and less company.

We make most of our social contacts in the various organizations, church and community.

As to our morals: The central doctrine now is "you are not guilty until you get caught." On the uncaught, undetected side of our life, anything can happen and does happen, even if we believe only in part the lurid and sensational reports of the press, describing daily the tragedies of infidelity, stealing and murder.

Think of the new inventions America has made in ways to evade the laws of God and man. The front page of our press is fundamentally an open confession that the supposedly most enlightened section of the human race of today can't successfully observe a few simple, eternal laws created 3500 years ago. In other words we are living at least 3600 B. C. morally—although scientifically, intellectually we are living in 1942 A. D. How can we reconcile the widening gap between the evolution of our outward progress and the "devilution" of our inner life?

Our material, cultural and social resources have increased, but we are now in the phase of a world-wide fratricide because we are morally bankrupt. Nothing less than a world-wide spiritual movement that will bring us an up-to-date ethic will avert the complete annihilation of our civilized orders.

Life in 1942, anyway you look at it, is much more hazardous and uncertain than in 1900. The past cannot be recalled. If it were in our power to move the world's life upstream to 1900 and relive these decades, we would not care for the repeat.

Tomorrow lures us on as a traveler in the desert wastes. In spite of the days when he have seen mirages, he knows that somewhere ahead is a real city of celestial perfections built triumphatly out of all the grand failures of receding ages.

It would seem then that within one's own heart whether he discern the faint, dim path of glory thru the muck of the past and see it ever widening and more radiant as it stretches out towards the great tomorrows, encompassing more of stricken humanity until the compassion of God is co-extensive with the ultimate desires of human happiness and freedom—such a vision of life is safe and filled with warm assurance.

An old proverb for this New Year is: "With God, go over the sea; without Him, not over the threshold."

Brazilian police battled with organized Nazis in that country and 16 storm troopers were among those rounded up in a widespread police raid. The German ambassador to Brazil has been called home.

Washington Snapshots

By JAMES PRESTON

The big three of our Victory Program—the Government, industry and labor—face the new year with a problem to solve which in itself is enough to give them a headache. The big questions are where to get and how to organize all the man-power that is needed to carry out the Victory Program.

Here are the facts of the situation: Industry is preparing to double or triple its present production schedules. This means a twenty-four hour day, seven days a week. At the same time, the Army is trying to increase its manpower from 1,588,500 men (as of October 9th) to a draft army of about 4 million men, and eventually 10 million.

In order to meet the requirements of a 168-hour work week, industry, in cooperation with the Government, is planning to increase the number of shifts at work in defense factories to possibly three shifts a day. If that can't be done, longer hours are in store for labor.

Some states are suspending all existing labor laws and regulations which might impede defense production. The Federal Government, however, has no present intentions of modifying the basic forty-hour week for persons engaged in interstate and foreign commerce. Employers of such persons will be compelled to pay time and a half for all over-time work, until the acuteness of the situation forces some amendment to the Wage-Hour Act.

The consoling aspect of the problem is the fact that workers who are forced out of jobs by the drastic curtailment of consumer industries will be taken up by the defense industries which are faced with a labor shortage. Although it is difficult to figure out defense employment requirements on an industry-by-industry basis, the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates that by the middle of 1942 approximately 3,000,000 additional workers will be needed. If the 168-hour week is attained, it may mean another million defense workers, bringing the estimated total to seven or eight million within less than a year. These figures do not account for workers who are indirectly engaged in defense work.

All this, observers here point out, creates a tremendous managerial problem, the scope of which is difficult to comprehend. The increase in industrial personnel means an increase in supervisory staffs; the increase in the armed forces means an increase in government employment behind the lines. Both raise health, housing, recreational, training and a dozen other questions which industry and the Government must answer. In addition, increased production means plant expansion, materials, machinery and plant conversions . . . problems for industry to meet. It also means a determination of fundamental policies for the Government, not the least of which are allocation of strategic materials, price and wage control, the extent of governmental supervision of industry.

Consumers, too, will be called upon to do their share. General rationing plans are now being worked out by the war, price and production agencies. Nothing to get jittery about, but it is essential to realize that consumer rationing is an ordinary by-product of war.

Besides the rationing of tires that begins on January 4th, government circles anticipate that consumer durable goods will be next on the list—refrigerators, washing machines, vacuum cleaners, radios. Undoubtedly, automobiles will have to be rationed also, according to the OPA and OPM. Officials of these agencies would like to limit rationing to durable consumer goods, but warn that an army developing from two to ten million men may mean a rationing of some textiles. Nobody feels that it will be necessary to ration food, with the possible exception of a few commodities like fats and oils. Even so, it is emphasized here that rationing of these latter commodities is by no means a certainty and that, if it does come, such rationing is still a long way off.

Footnotes: OPM Director General Knudsen recently told a press conference that he is in favor of a "work or fight" labor policy, if it should become necessary. He was talking about some form of labor conscription.

Washington welcomed the pronouncement of the American Iron and Steel Institute that the United States alone can produce three tons of steel for every two that can be produced by Germany, Italy, Japan and all the Axis-dominated countries combined. The steel capacity of the United States, the British Empire and Russia is more than twice the Axis capacity

War Department men are speculating on how soon the OPM will be absorbed into the armed services.

CCC to Cooperate With Red Cross in County War Effort

By WILLIAM H. HYER
Department of Education, Camp S-59-CCC

Established in 1933 to provide work relief for America's idle youth and to conserve and develop the nation's natural resources, the Civilian Conservation Corps will shortly embark upon the program of active participation in the United States war effort.

Under a plan just announced the Corps' reservoir of manpower, its resources and its transportation facilities will be made available to the American Red Cross for a coordinated effort should disaster from bombing raids or other causes strike. In the meantime, CCC enrollees will be trained in disaster relief policies and procedure and will stand ready to render every assistance to the Red Cross in any emergency that may arise.

For some years the Red Cross has, under terms of cooperative agreement, been able to draw upon the resources of the various governmental agencies in meeting extensive supply and equipment needs in times of major disasters. As a result the need for stores of materials in anticipation of disaster needs has been greatly lessened.

A survey made by the Red Cross reveals that the CCC possesses resources which can be of great value in disaster relief. It is nation-wide, with completely equipped camps and transportation facilities in every state. During the current emergency, moreover, its personnal has been greatly reduced, leaving its organizational framework, its camps, trucks and other equipment available in large part for other uses.

For some time there has been a functioning agreement between the Division of Safety of the CCC and the Red Cross First Aid, Water Safety and Accident Prevention Service covering instructions in first aid, transportation of the injured and water safety. At Company 304, near Oakland, where some one hundred fifty youths are enrolled, this first aid course is a compulsory subject, and through the strict insistence of Company Commander John R. Mangan, it is made available to every enrollee.

To meet any eventuality that may arise from the present emergency, a plan has been perfected between the Red Cross and the CCC. Briefly, this plan calls for a Red Cross sponsored training program in disaster relief policies and procedures for key personnel in CCC companies throughout the country. The Red Cross will continue its present program of instruction and will request the assistance of the Corps when the need arises.

In extreme emergencies, when evacuation and mass care are major problems, the CCC has agreed to make available any of its unoccupied camps for sheltering evacues. In this connection, should the need present itself, CCC enrollees will carry out assignments as parts of the Red Cross disaster relief organization.

So far as can be determined the program of work set up by the Red Cross will not disrupt the present operation of project work in forest and park areas. Nor is it expected to lessen the efforts of skilled training of enrollees for any key defense positions.

America's War Victims Appeal for Your Help

First war poster of the new World War, painted by the distinguished artist James Montgomery Flagg, carries an appeal for a $50,000,000 war fund to aid the victims of aggression upon the United States and its island possessions.

To aid the victims of warfare being waged upon American and her island possessions, the American Red Cross has issued an appeal for a $50,000,000 war fund, Chairman Norman H. Davis announced from the national headquarters in Washington.

Mr. Davis urged men, women and children to give to this mercy fund through their local Red Cross Chapters. These funds will support the Chapter's war work with the families of men in the military services, as well as the broad relief program of the national Red Cross.

President Roosevelt, who is president of the American Red Cross, issued a proclamation urging all citizens to give to the Red Cross war fund.

In launching the appeal, Chairman Davis said:

"There are millions of our citizens who desire today to demonstrate their will to victory over the enemy. Not all can be in the armed forces, and not all can volunteer their services for humanitarian work, but all can volunteer their dollars to arm the Red Cross to be their representative at the scene of battle and distress.

"Today is the day to demonstrate our high morale, our unity, our determination not alone to support our President and our fighting men at the front, but also to insure to our wounded, homeless and suffering fellow citizens in our Pacific Islands that we stand one hundred per cent ready to aid them through the Red Cross."

GROWING PAINS

By MARIE O'DEA

THE MARYLAND TREE

Maryland is to have an arboreal emblem according to an act passed recently in the State Legislature. Behind this new Maryland Tree is an old sentiment. The act, which was introduced by Delegate H. Harold Sethoron, of Brentwood in Prince George's County, reads as follows:

Chapter 732 House Bill 402 Sethoron:

Whereas, the White Oak grows universally throughout the State of Maryland, has contributed much to the lives of its people and the development of the State, and

Whereas, the Wye Oak at Wye Mills, Maryland, is the finest specimen of White Oak in the whole United States, therefore,

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That a new section be and it is hereby added to Article 41 of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1939 Edition), title "Governor-Executive and Administrative Department", said new section to be known as Section 61A to be under a new sub-title "Maryland Tree", to follow immediately after Section 61, and to read as follows:

61A The quercus alba or White Oak is hereby declared to be the Arboreal Emblem of the State of Maryland.

Section 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1941.

There are 157 known varieties of trees native to Maryland soil. This is an unusual number and it is due to the fact that Maryland is truly the "America in Miniature" that our State Publicity Commission claims it to be. It has every possible kind of terrain and soil from the sands along the Atlantic Ocean through coastal plains, marshes, rolling meadow and hills to the high mountains of Garrett County. Trees native to all these varieties of terrain and soil grow in Maryland.

In climate, the State boasts the best that the north and the south have to offer. Accordingly most of the northern trees can grow here and so can any southern tree that will stand freezing weather. Maryland also has fertile and friendly soil for Japanese and many other foreign trees.

Yet of all these many varieties of trees, the one that the Legislators chose was the "white oak." Undoubtedly it was largely because of the famous old Wye Oak on the Eastern Shore.

This enormous tree stands at Wye Mills on the road between Centreville and Easton in Talbot county. It was standing there for nearly a century before white men came to Maryland. In other words, the tree is between 400 and 500 years old and its size proves it.

It stands about 95 feet high and has a spread of 165 feet from the tip end of the longest branch on one side straight through to the edge of the foliage directly opposite. At breast height, 4½ feet above the ground to be exact, the circumference of its trunk is 27 feet 9 inches. Enormous roots buttress the foot of the tree and measure about 54 feet in circumference. And the Oak is still growing.

Several years ago, the late DeCourcy W. Thom of Baltimore, spent about a thousand dollars to put the tree into perfect condition. But Mr. Thom was not the only person interested in the Wye Oak. About two years ago, a drive was started to raise funds for the tree's preservation. The garden clubs of the Eastern Shore and quite a few other clubs of that region as well as hundreds of individuals living all over the State have proven their interest by putting up cash.

In about three months that fund reached the sum of $6,150 and with it Marylanders made unique history. Representatives of the various Eastern Shore societies took the money to Governor Herbert R. O'Conor and asked him to buy the tree and the surrounding lots and houses.

Governor O'Conor accepted the money and in a very affecting ceremony handed a State check for the amount to Alexis Shriver, director of historical markers, State Roads Commission. Mr. Shriver immediately left Annapolis for the Eastern Shore and turned the check over to Mrs. Susie Straughn and Mr. and Mrs. John E. Kinuiman, who owned the tree.

Many States, including Maryland, have bought forests but this is the first time in history that a State ever bought a single tree for the one and only purpose of preserving it. The State Board of Public Works acquired the title to the property. The State Board of Forestry (now to come under the newly authorized Department of Natural Resources) and the State Roads Commission planned jointly to make a public park out of it. Arrangements were made to install lightning rods in it and to feed it by a more scientific method than was used during its first four or five centuries of growth.

The Straughn house which is almost touched by its branches was to be moved to the rear edge of the lot. This is a frame house and it has long been feared that if it caught fire the tree might go up too. A caretaker will live in it.

This grand-dame of all the white oaks rates this petting and pampering in her old age. Not that she has retired. Every spring she bursts into leaf with just as much vigor as any youngster of the forest. And when she sprouts all over that magnificant 165-foot spread that is perfectly symmetrical and beautifully shaped she is a marvelous spectacle. Even her acorns will be valuable.

Practically all authorities agree that she is superior to all other white oaks. Right here in Maryland there are some said to be taller and one that boasts more wood. A few of them are more than 300 years old but none are as old as the Wye and none are as big.

In November, 1940, American Forests Magazine carried a full-page picture of the Wye Oak. With it were the dimensions of the tree and a challenge to every other white oak in the United States. No other has offered competition!

Here, indeed, is proof that the Wye Oak is truly the largest and finest specimen of white oak on the entire American continent. No wonder she becomes the symbol of Maryland.

Strachan Is Aviation Cadet

Lincoln S. Strachan, son of Mrs. Lydia Strachan, of Blaine, West Va., is a member of a class of air corps cadets taking basic military training and ground school instructions at Kelly Field, Texas, "West Point of the Air."

Strachan graduated from Kitzmiller high school in 1936 and was prominent in athletics there. After one year at the University of Maryland he completed college at West Virginia University, majoring in biological science.

To Begin Class In Home Nursing In January

A course in home nursing is being offered for persons of Mountain Lake Park, Loch Lynn or Oakland, it has been announced by the county health department.

Anyone interested in taking this course is asked to inform the health office. Classes will begin in January and Mrs. Samuel Cole, health nurse, will be in charge.

GORTNER

Mrs. Anna Bittinger and Mrs. Ernest Gortner are spending this week in Pittsburgh with members of the Edminston family and Everett Kight.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Spoerlein have returned to their home here from Dinwiddie, Va., where they had been visiting with members of Mrs. Spoerlein's family.

Now Is The Time . . . .

Now is the time to remember the glow of love you felt for your family on Christmas when the children stood looking at the lighted tree with radiant faces. Even if it's a gray January day and you're trying to think of what to have for supper tonight, remember.

Now is the time to hang on to those New Year's resolutions you made with such gusto on New Year's Eve just as the bells were ringing the new year in. Even if things have gone wrong all day and you think, what's the use—now is the time.

Now is the time, too, for you to recapture that new loyalty and devotion you felt for your country that first Monday in December when bombs fell for the first time on American soil. You were ready then to give unstintingly of your time, your effort, your love to help make America as strong as she must be in the months to come. You felt united, as never before, with all other Americans in an inspiring new kind of brotherhood and knew that we could face any enemy.

You were thrilled that first week at the sight of an American flag and whenever the Star Spangled Banner was played you not only stood up—you sang at the top of your lungs, out of sheer de-

ALL MEN 20 TO 44 MUST REGISTER FOR DRAFT FEB. 16

Approximately 9,000,000 Men Of These Age Groups Will Be Enrolled

President Roosevelt on Monday set February 16 for registration of all male citizens of the nation between the ages of 20 and forty-four who have not registered previously.

Men in this age group will be subject to military service.

The date was fixed by proclamation. It made no mention of registration of men from forty-five through sixty-four, who are to be registered later on but who will be exempt from service with the armed forces under present legislation.

"Final Victory"

In his proclamation, the Chief Executive noted that this and other registrations under the Selective Service Act "will be required to insure victory, final and complete, over the enemies of the United States."

The registration will apply to all male citizens and some non-citizens born on or after January 17, 1897, and on or before December 31, 1921.

It is to take place, not only in the United States, but also in Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico, between the hours of 7 A. M. and 9 P. M.

Provisions were made for registration before February 16 and after that date in exceptional cases through arrangements with selective service officials.

The President, for the sake of full cooperation with the selective service program, urged all employers and all Government agencies to give workers sufficient time to register.

9,000,000 Men

Selective Service officials estimated approximately 9,000,000 men would be enrolled at the registration, the first of two or more such enrollments in prospect.

Officials explained that those to be registered February 16 were men 20 years old, those who have turned 21 since the registration last July, and men between 36 and 44.

Aliens must register under the law. The President may exempt persons residing in the United States who are not citizens and who have not declared their intention to become citizens, but other non-citizens must register.

Recent legislation has made men between 20 and 44 years old liable for military service, and all between 18 and 64 eligible for some type of war duty.

About 17,500,000 men already have been enrolled under the Selective Service Act, and local Draft Boards have speeded up their classification.

Lions Club Plans For Benefit Show

Plans are being completed for the Lions club style show for the benefit of the Red Cross war drive. Several committees reported progress at the regular meeting on Monday night at the William-James Hotel.

Members of the Lions club will be the star performers and there will be several items on the program in addition to the style show, according to J. M. Jarboe, who heads the committee. The entire proceeds will go to the Red Cross.

Mayor Lawrence M. Fraley was the speaker at the meeting on Monday and outlined plans for local defense in case of air raids. The local club has pledged 100 percent support.

An attendance prize of defense stamps was arranged by the club. Guests at the meeting were J. Wesley Rice, Martinsburg, W. Va.; J. F. Benson, Baltimore, and Mayor Fraley.

The second session of the seventy-seventh congress began its official year of life on January 5.

Roosevelt Asks For Fifty-Six Billion In Budget Message

U. S. to Spend $112,305 a Minute Under Plan President Advanced

President Roosevelt asked a willing Congress yesterday to provide a $56,000,000,000 war chest for the twelve months beginning next July with a nine billion increase in taxes that unquestionably will alter American ways of living for the duration.

In submitting his annual budget message he declared "We are determined to pay whatever price we must to preserve our way of life," and "until the job is done, until this war is won, we will not talk of burdens."

For the war effort Mr. Roosevelt listed one lump sum over fifty-two and one-half billion. The total budget was over 59 billion.

Against this staggering sum, the largest budget in world history, Mr. Roosevelt listed net treasury receipts under present tax laws of over 16 billion and 7 billion under new tax legislation.

The new budget means spending $112,305 each minute.

Congress lost no time in signifying its willingness to approve the appropriation involved. In a few days committees will be at work.

BANK STATEMENTS SHOW INCREASE IN RESOURCES

Oakland's two banks ended the year 1941 with resources of more than two million, five hundred thousand dollars, showing increase over the previous year, according to their bank statements being published today.

The First National Bank had resources totaling $1,405,288.45, while the Garrett National Bank in Oakland had total resources of $1,111,226.04. Combined deposits of both banks total more than two million, two hundred seventeen thousand dollars.

Both banks declared the usual dividends on shares of stock the first of January, 1942.

The First State Bank, of Grantsville has deposits of $519,466.96, and resources of $618,234.03, an increase over the previous end of the year statement.

Annual meetings of stockholders of the county's four banks will be held Tuesday, January 13, when boards of directors and officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

State Income Tax May Not Be Cut

Maryland has a net surplus of $3,000,000 of unobligated funds in the State Treasury, but the war emergency may forestall any reduction in the State income tax.

Asked whether a special session of the Legislature might be called to effect a reduction in the State income tax and consider war emergency legislation, Governor O'Conor said: "I have not decided that question. None of the other states has thus far called a special session."

The next regular session of the Legislature will convene in January of next year.

To Start First Aid Course

A standard American Red Cross Civilian Defense First Aid course is to be offered in Oakland, it was announced last night by Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, who is to be the instructor.

The course will be conducted every Wednesday night at 8 o'clock in the City Hall. Either men or women from 18 years of age and older, will be eligible.

Anyone interested is urged to meet at the City hall on Wednesday, January 1. The course consists of 10 lessons of two hours each. This course is being sponsored by the Red Cross.

TRUCE STILL STANDS BUT CONTRACT NOT CANCELLED

White Oak Trees Will Not Be Cut If Agreement to Perpetuate Them Is Reached By Parties

The thirty-day truce on the cutting of white oak trees in Mountain Lake Park still stands but no contract has been cancelled and unless an agreement is reached between the Defenders of the Faith, a religious organization, or its representative, and the people of Mt. Lake Park to perpetuate the trees, the axes will again ring there when the truce expires.

Such appeared to be the status of the situation at Oakland's neighboring town this morning. Many people seem to agree that the white oaks of the Park should be spared, but the peace treaty remains unsigned.

H. D. Lollar, general manager of the Oakland Timber Corporation said he was surprised by reports that Miss Osie England, of Kissimee, Fla., leader of the Defenders of the Faith, had cancelled the deal inasmuch as the timber company has bought and paid for between 500 and 1,000 trees on the 800-acre tract which was originally founded as a religious resort.

Lollar said he was willing to forget all about the deal if it were proved that the defenders of the white oaks sincerely meant to perpetuate the trees. But the cancellation right belongs to the lumber company, and he said that he had received no word from Miss England or her representatives.

The case of the celebrated oaks has many angles. Mr. Lollar declared he had entered into a contract with Miss England for the trees, since it was her purpose to sell, and that he would continue to cut if there was any likelihood of them being sold to any other person for commercial reasons.

About 200 trees in one section of the Park have been cut and the act caused a storm of protest from residents of the Park, because they asserted it would ruin the beauty of the summer resort. Others protested they learned that the trees were to be made into whiskey barrels.

Miss England informed a newspaper reporter that she had cancelled the deal but said she did not believe published reports that the oaks were to be used to make whiskey barrel staves. Lollar said that the white oaks were being made into 34-inch utility staves which can be used for food, syrups, medicine or whiskey.

Miss England also said that her organization had the approval of the Maryland State Forester in selling the trees, but Mayor C. Oscar Hall, of the Park, quoted H. C. Buckingham, state forest warden for this area as telling the City Council of the Park that he had given no approval of the deal, in fact knew nothing of the sale until chopping started.

Mr. Lollar stated yesterday that there was no need for anyone to go to the State Forestry Department, to Mayor Hall or anyone else to get permission to cut trees, that it was entirely an agreement between the Timber Corporation and Miss England. He added, however, that Miss England's representative had been careful in marking the trees which were to be cut so that only the "diebacks" were being used. Mayor Hall stated however that some of the largest and most beautiful white oaks had been chopped.

Miss England said in announcing her cancellation, "If our sincerity is questioned, we need only to point to the fact that a brewery offered us $75,000 for a crystal spring we own at Mountain Lake. We suspected and learned that the brewery wanted to use the water in the manufacture of beer and we unhesitatingly and unanimously declined the offer."

A county law prohibits the manufacture of beer in this county.

Just three things seemed sure today. The thirty-day truce which will not expire until January 29, is still in force; that no contract has yet been cancelled; but that the contract will be scrapped if Miss England or her representative reaches an agreement with the Mayor and City Council and people of Mt. Lake Park."

"My promise to halt the cutting of trees for thirty days was made in good faith with the people of Mt. Lake Park, and I want to cooperate with them in any way I can," concluded Mr. Lollar.

Speaker Is Ill

Miss Ann Sloan, Lonaconing, who was scheduled to address the Business and Professional Women's club this evening, is ill, but the regular business session will be conducted as usual.

Officers of the club said Miss Sloan would speak at a meeting later on.

Pythians to Install Officers on Friday

Knights of Pythias officers, elected about the middle of December, will be installed at the regular meeting of that organization on Friday evening. Julius C. Renninger, lodge deputy, will be the installing officer.

Those to be installed include Leonard C. Hathaway, chancellor commander; Clifford Phillips, vice-chancellor; William Owens, prelate; Virgil Kelley, master of work; Walter Hardesty, keeper of records and seal; Milburn Mann, master of finance; A. G. Gortner, master of exchequer; Russell Pancake, master at arms; Robert W. Sheckells, inside guard; and R. B. Purbaugh, outside guard.

An attendance award of $10.00 in defense stamps, will be given away, it was announced.

HUGE ARMS PRODUCTION PLAN FOR VICTORY IS OUTLINED BY PRESIDENT

Program For Total Victory Is Enthusiastically Received In Congress On Tuesday.

A breath-taking mammoth arms production with American forces fighting on many fronts, and an eventual hard hitting attack on the enemy's own territory, were woven into a unified war plan by President Roosevelt Tuesday and presented to an enthusiastically receptive Congress.

There were gasps and whistles of amazement from some members of Congress as he outlined the army's production program:

This year 60,000 planes; next year 125,000.

This year 45,000 tanks; next year 75,000.

This year 20,000 anti-aircraft guns; next year 35,000.

This year 8,000,000 tons of shipping; next year 10,000,000 tons.

"The figures," said the President, "and similar figures for a multitude of other implements of war will give the Japanese and Nazis a little idea of just what they accomplished in the attack at Pearl Harbor."

The militarists in Berlin and Tokyo started this war. But the massed, engered forces of common humanity will finish it.

They know that victory for us means victory for freedom, for the institution of democracy, the ideal of the family, the simple principles of common decency and humanity; victory for religion.

We must raise our sights all along the production line. Let no man say it cannot be done. It must be done—and we have undertaken to do it.

We cannot wage this war in a defensive spirit. As our power and resources are fully mobilized, we shall carry the attack against the enemy.

Supreme Court Will Review Rail Case

Abandonment Of Line From Kendall To Confluence To Be Studied

The request of the War Department for abandonment of a twenty-mile line of railroad in Garrett county and the State of Pennsylvania to facilitate construction of a flood control dam across the Youghiogheny River near Confluence, Pa., will be reviewed by the Supreme Court..

The Court agreed Monday to review the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission and a three-judge Federal Court in Maryland permitting the abandonment of the line.

Decision Contested

The decision is being fought by the Maryland Public Service Commission and the McCullough Coal Company of Friendsville.

The Commission said "irreparable damage and injury" would be caused to the communities served by the line and to the transportation public in Maryland. The Coal Company said the value of its business and properties "would be destroyed."

The railroad extends from Confluence and Oakland Junction, Pa., to Kendall, Md. It is owned by the Confluence and Oakland Railroad Company, a subsidiary of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company.

Construction of the dam, it was said, would put twelve miles of the railroad under water. The rest would be rendered useless, it was stated.

The United States holds an option to purchase it for $306,000.

CITY COUNCIL SETS UP PROJECTS FOR FUTURE

"Backlog of Work" Being Prepared to Keep People Busy After the Present War Is Concluded

Oakland's Council is one of many federal, state and local governments throughout the United States which are preparing for a "backlog of work" a list of projects to be done after the war is over.

By this long range planning the projects will be ready when the time comes. The plans and detailed specifications will be drawn, sites for any buildings already determined, and most of the preliminary work accomplished so that there will be no delay.

Oakland has concentrated on construction of water lines, street improvements, curbs, alleys, fence around the reservoirs and spring house and developing park facilities. Also mentioned are a dam flood control and recreation, and an emergency landing field. These prospectuses of projects are being drawn up through the Public Work Reserve, Federal Works Agency, Baltimore, Everett L. Gonyou, state director.

The water lines will extend the distribution system into sections not supplied with water, will replace existing lines which have been in service for many years and are badly rusted and in poor condition, will connect existing dead ends in the distribution system, will provide an auxiliary water main from the reservoir to the main part of town.

In developing park facilities the installation of playground equipment such as swings, seesaws, etc.; construction of picnic tables, benches, fire places, etc.; improving roadways through the areas and construction of a semi-enclosed recreational building, with toilet and bath house facilities, to cost approximately $7,500.

Projects on water lines are estimated to cost $22,635; curbs, $38,400; streets, $170,750; alleys, $4,900; fences, $2,800; total $239,485. The total does not include the culvert for Wilson Creek, the cost of work in the recreational areas, any work done on a dam for flood control or an emergency landing field.

Projects may be added from time to time. Mayor Lawrence Fraley pointed out that these preparations were merely to make plans for the future, in an attempt to prevent a depression such as hit this country in 1929.

Other incorporated towns of the county would probably make similar projects, he said.

Garrett County Lags In Seal Sale Returns

Preliminary returns of the 1941 tuberculosis Christmas Seal Sale have been released by the Maryland Tuberculosis Association and show as of January 3, that $38,017.04 has been raised in the counties of Maryland, showing a county-wide increase of 13 percent as of the same date last year.

Garrett county was one of the six who were lagging behind in their returns, but late returns may bring up the total to as much or more than last year. To date $354.09 has been received from Garrett county, whereas at the same time last year the amount was $408.49.

The money raised by Christmas seals is used for a program to control tuberculosis in every county in the state. "During the trying days ahead we must become more vigilant as the tuberculosis germ thrives on all disasters, especially war," said W. B. Matthews, managing director.

Mr. Matthews also called upon all those who have received Christmas Seals to please make their contributions as their aid is urgently needed.

Three County Men Are Navy Recruits

Three Garrett county men were accepted by the naval recruiting officer at Cumberland last Friday and will be sent to the Naval Training Station at Norfolk, Va., within a few days.

The recruits are Harry F. Brown, of Swanton; Williard R. Williams, of Kitzmiller, and Donald E. Helbig, of Oakland. Donald Helbig is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Helbig, South Third street.

Look at Thermometer Creates Surprise; 19 Below Revealed

To say that Garrett countians were surprised this morning when they looked at their thermometers is putting it mildly. They actually gasped and let their teeth chatter freely when they learned that it was 19 below zero.

The clear skies and lack of wind gave people to understand it wouldn't be any soft snap but they didn't expect any such figure as the thermometer at the government station at Weber's revealed.

Tuesday, at 6 below, was just another day in comparison. The largest snowfall of the year was also experienced this week when 6 inches fell on Saturday night. There was no wind and consequently no drifting to amount to anything. The snow brought scores of ski enthusiasts to the county, and more are expected for this week-end. The Otto ski tow at New Germany is expected to be completed.

1941 IS RECORD BREAKER FOR MARRIAGE LICENSES

2,994 Licenses Issued During Year for Highest Of All Time

This business of marriage has come a long way in Oakland since "Jaybird" Banks met all the passenger trains and vied with other solicitors in corraling the prospective wedding couples as they arrived here by the only means then available.

The gradual extension of improved highways and the growth of the automobile industry changed that picture, increasing the applicants, and now various laws and regulations of other states have again caused an unprecedented increase in couples who come here to be married.

The past year was a record breaker, with 3,080 applications made and 2,994 licenses issued, bringing into the coffers of the clerk of the circuit court a total of $9,068.00. Applications cost $1.00 and the license $2.00.

The all-time record for any one month was reached in December when 383 couples applied and 363 licenses were issued. Previous to that June was the highest with 334 applications and 336 licenses.

The total by months for licenses and applications is as follows:

	Licenses	Applications
January	148	152
February	140	148
March	161	155
April	207	224
June	336	334

TIRE RATIONING BOARD NAMES TIRE INSPECTORS

Committee Places Twenty-three Garages And Filling Stations On List In County

The tire rationing board for Garrett county met yesterday in the office of Walter W. Dawson, chairman, and appointed the following garages and service stations as tire inspection stations:

Sharps Motor company, Leighton Brothers garage, Ralph Pritts garage, Reaford Purbaugh, Western Auto Associate Store; Reckard and Glotfelty, Ray Teets garage, Hesen's Service Station, White's garage, Taylor Motor company, Savage and Sanders garage, Nash Motor company, all of Oakland; Spoerlein's garage, Accident; Glotfelty's garage, McHenry; Pritts Brothers garage, Kitzmiller; Casselman Motor company, Motor Service company, Keyser Ridge garage, Grantsville garage and National garage, Grantsville; Yough Motor company, R. O. McCullough, Frazee Service Station, Friendsville; Paxton G. Arnold, Deer Park.

Anyone who is entitled to tires must make application to these inspection stations and final approval is given by the rationing board. Mr. Dawson said a list of those obtaining tires would be published weekly and also those making application.

Maryland was allotted 1,239 tires for January and Garrett county is allotted 58 of these. Garrett county gets 11 passenger motorcycle and light truck tires, and 9 tubes; and 48 truck and bus tires and 40 tubes.

There are no restrictions thus far on retreads and second-hand tires.

The rationing board includes Mr. Dawson, W. L. Thomas, Grantsville, and Norval Speelman, Friendsville.

Rate Is Same As Previous Year; Taxpayers Relieved Of Household Goods Tax

The County Commissioners, at their regular meeting this week, placed the county tax rate at $1.33 per $100 of assessable property, the same figure as last year.

At the same time the Commissioners relieved the taxpayers from taxes on Household Goods for 1942, made possible and recommended under the provision of recent legislation throughout the state. The household goods of taxpayers throughout the county were assessed at $277,510 during 1941. Expected tax revenue has increased however, through an estimated increase in assessments to be made by the State Tax Commission on Corporations, and other sources amounting to $72,637.30.

The total tax basis this year is $20,500,000, including the basis of real and personal property, $13,676,068; automobiles, $350,000; and corporations, $6,473,932. At $1.33 per hundred this would bring in a total of $272,650. Bank shares at $1.00, beer license and taxes, miscellaneous revenue, etc., brings the estimated total of revenue for 1942 to $477,050.97.

Really Means Reduction

The Commissioners pointed out that with the rate the same, it more or less resulted in a reduction when the increased cost of living and higher cost of materials and services required for the county by legislation and in order for the county to carry out its necessary functions were considered.

The principal increases in the levy concern capital outlay for educational buildings, amounting to $54,994.36, required by recent laws; election expenses including the 1941 special election, $13,150; and the 1942 reassessment, ordered by the State Tax Commission, of $10,000.

The principal decrease of $34,689.46 is in public welfare due principally to discontinuance of the works progress administration projects and relief road work. Some of this work is being taken over by the Garrett County roads department, C. H. Browning, commissioner, stated.

Along with the net decrease in public welfare the 1942 budget of the Garrett County Welfare Board increased $5,518.98, Mr. Browning said, in order to obtain approximately $167,000 of federal and state funds for welfare work.

For education $179,178.39 is appropriated, and for public welfare $81,622.79. For general highways $20,500 is levied, $5,000 less than for 1941. Other items include $19,520.76 for tax collector and treasurer's office; $3,000 for tax sales, costs and related work; $22,300 for general debt service; $40,932.21 for general government; $15,000 for contingent fund; $1,000 for special fund for sheep damage; $62,750 for repayment of borrowed money, orders or warrants payable for prior levies; and $1,000 for a garage at the jail for the sheriff.

Pending completion of a few items the full report will not be published until next week.

The State tax rate this year will be 14 cents on each $100, a reduction of more than 9 cents over last year, and brought about by an act of Governor O'Conor.

The highest county rate was in 1927 when it was $1.99. It was $1.00 from 1934 to 1937, and 85 cents in 1939 when the levy date was changed.

Hearing Scheduled On Sale of Hydro-Electric Property

The Public Service Commission in Baltimore is advertising in this week's issue a notice of a hearing on a petition for the sale of the Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric Corporation property, to the Pennsylvania Electric Company, a Pennsylvania corporation.

The sale would include the transfer of all the physical properties, rights and privileges and franchises of the Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric Company. The property of that company in this county brings in almost one-fourth of the entire property tax collected. Last year the company paid in Federal, State and county taxes, over $90,000, the county tax alone running over $50,000.

The hearing is set for Thursday, January 15, at 11 o'clock, at the office of the Public Service Commission in Baltimore.

FRIENDSVILLE

Installation services for the Woman's Christian Service Society were held in the Methodist church, Sunday night with Rev. R. L. Greynolds in charge. The topic for the worship service was "For the Facing of this Hour," and the theme for the installation service was "Love in Action." Members installed were: President, Mrs. Manilla Friend; vice president, Mrs. Cleda Speicher; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Margaret Williams; recording secretary, Mrs. Kathryn Holman; treasurer, Mrs. Julia Skidmore; secretary of Christian Social Relations and local church activities, Mrs. Iva Rush; chairman of Spiritual Life, Mrs. Theresa Murphy; candlelighters, Mrs. R. L. Greynolds, Mrs. Iva Rush, Mrs. Margaret Williams, Mrs. Julia Skidmore, Mrs. Faye Friend, Mrs. Theresa Murphy; ushers, Miss Nina Peck and Miss Eileen Frazee. The regular meeting was held Tuesday night.

Miss Nina Peck entertained the Jolly Workers Sunday School class at a New Year's party at her home Wednesday night. Monopoly provided entertainment for the evening, at the conclusion of which a candlelight service was held. The hostess served refreshments.

Mrs. Faye Friend entertained Circle 1 of the Woman's Society of Christian Service at her home on Tuesday evening. Ten members were present.

Married

Miss Anna Grace Artice, daughter of James Artice, of Friendsville, and Private Robert E. Friend, of Pine Camp, N. Y., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Friend, of Selbysport, were quietly married on Saturday evening by Rev. R. L. Greynolds at the Methodist parsonage here. Water Company Elects

Stockholders of the City Water Company met at the home of B. F. Schroyer, January 3, and elected the following directors to serve during the year: H. J. Black, D. S. Custer, Norval Speelman, A. F. Neil, Q. A. Murphy, W. F. Frazee, B. F. Schroyer, and W. J. Glenn. At the end of the stockholders meeting the directors met and elected H. J. Black, president; W. F. Frazee, vice president; B. F. Schroyer, treasurer; A. F. Neil, secretary; and Cecil Schroyer, collector. The directors declared a six percent dividend on the capital stock of the company, payable February 1, 1942 to stockholders of that date. No dividend was declared during 1941, due to the heavy expenses incurred in replacing and relocating certain portions of the pipe line of the company.

W. J. Glenn, Deputy Grand Chancellor of Youghiogheny Lodge No. 134, K. of P. installed the following officers of the lodge for the ensuing term at ceremonies held at the last regular meeting in the Pythian Castle Hall: Chancellor Commander, Donald Friend; Vice Chancellor, Everett Friend; Prelate, Harry Guard; Master at Arms, W. J. Glenn; Outer Guard, Lawrence Selby; Master of Finance, Ross Selby; Master of Exchequer, J. S. Teats; Keeper of Records and Seals, Paul Fisher; Inner Guard, James Ross will be installed at the next meeting to be held January 9. W. W. Schlossnagle was elected as trustee of the lodge to serve until July, 1943. At the same meeting the lodge conferred the rank of Knight on David Humberson, Ernest Selby and Fred Selby.

A LETTER FROM HAWAII

The following letter was received in Oakland a few days ago by Mrs. E. I. Baumgartner, from Mrs. Robert Wong, a former Oakland resident, who is now in Honolulu, Hawaii, telling of reactions there to the raid of the Japanese at Pearl Harbor.

Mrs. Wong is the wife of Dr. Robert Tuck Wong, who was assigned to the Swallow Falls CCC camp in 1938 and 1939. In the fall of 1939 he went to Jefferson hospital in Philadelphia for a post graduate course in advanced work on the eye. He returned to Honolulu where he is now practicing medicine.

December 18, 1941.

Dearest Helen:

I have tried to write my friends over on the mainland to let them know that we are all safe and well, but we are so busy doing whatever we can in the daytime as we have black-out nights now which makes things different. I am still working for Bob and will for awhile as this war has changed things a bit. Bob has office hours in the morning only and the afternoons he spends down at the Queen's hospital to draw blood from blood donors for our blood bank. His practice has suffered somewhat the past two weeks, but it's beginning to pick up pagain. He also has a Red Cross unit which he has to stay on every third night, so he's kept very busy. The Red Cross is doing wonderful work here and setting up many canteens throughout the city, feeding the workers and the homeless.

This war surely took us by surprise, as we thought the peace talks were still on in Washington, but the Japs played us a dirty trick. No doubt we are all very angry at the Japs. It'll take more than the Japs to scare us and Uncle Sam's boys will show her that we can fight just as well and even better. The damage the Japs claimed they had inflicted on the islands was grossly exaggerated as you know what lies the Axis party can grind out.

We were in bed at the time of the attack and thought it to be only maneuvers and decided we'd get up and watch it as the planes were flying overhead and the anti-aircraft guns firing away, and thought it would be fun. It wasn't so much fun as we thought when a neighbor yelled across the street to get inside as we're being attacked. I couldn't believe it, but I went back into the house anyway. Later we came out to watch it again and this time we had to duck for shrapnel and pieces of flying missiles were falling around us and it landed on the house top across the street from us.

We all took it very boldly and no panic was shown by the pepople. The people here have all pitched in to help and many have opened their homes to evacuees, and our home defense workers (all had training previously) did their work very well. They patrol the streets at night and see that everybody minds the black-out laws. No one is allowed out after dark except those with special passes or permits. Overnight our lives have been changed by a nation that bites off more than she can eat, but only this time she bit too much and is having stomach trouble. She's finding out that the United States is too strong for her in everything, and she's probably regretting she ever attacked the U. S.

Everything is back to normal, business as usual, except they close earlier, at 3:30 p. m. to allow the workers time to get home before dark. Traffic is practically diminished as we all are told to drive less and conserve on gas. We have been issued gas ration cards and only 10 gallons a month, except defense workers, doctors, etc. Everybody rides the busses now. Our Christmas spirit is still with us and loads of people are in town shopping. The Japs can't keep Santa Claus from coming on Christmas Eve. You are not to worry about us, and I hope you keep us in your prayers and that is enough to give our hearts strength to help America win this war.

We have our air-raid shelter dug and I feel very safe here. Everyone here is digging in and the Army authorities wants everyone to dig their own. Bob dug ours in the empty lot next door. He gets up at around 6:30 a. m. and digs till 7:30 a. m. and again at 4:30 p. m. till 5:30 p. m. We have to fill bags with sand and do a few things to the shelter before it is finished. We have plenty of food and there is no shortage here. Merry Christmas to you and Doc, mother, dad, and a very happy and prosperous New Year. Remember our Christmas with you in 1939 and all those sled rides down Sweeney's pasture? I sure miss the snow and cold weather and wouldn't mind being back there again. Bob sends his love.

HARRIET WONG.

LEAVE THE SPRING RUSH BEHIND!

We can make your tractor perform like new — whether you need a complete overhaul job or a few new parts. But there are TWO things to keep in mind:

1. See us now — you don't want to lose valuable time after the spring rush starts.
2. Steel and iron are available only on a priority basis. By placing your order now, you enable us to better anticipate the need for parts and replacements.

Red Cross Urges That War Relief Quota Be Reached

An urgent appeal to Mrs. E. Z Tower, county chairman of the American Red Cross, to make a vigorous effort during the coming days to oversubscribe the quota set for war relief work.

The campaign for $2500.00 in Garrett county is not having much response thus far, only $295.31 having been received by J. M. Jarboe, treasurer, at the Garrett National Bank in Oakland.

The Telegram

The telegram to Mrs. Tower from William Carl Hunt, acting manager of the National Red Cross Headquarters, was as follows:

"Over 350 chapters have already exceeded war fund quotas demonstrating that the people are prepared to give generously and promptly to the Red Cross. It is essential that this fund be promptly oversubscribed and all chapters should accept this as major responsibility now. Please make every effort for vigorous campaign during coming week. The enemies of the United States continue to strike without regard for time and holidays. The Red Cross must carry on."

Grantsville 'Victim' Of War Reported Safe

Father Gets Word Sailor Believed Killed in Jap Attack Is Alive

It was a "Happy New Year" for a Grantsville father, who received word that his only son, reported December 16 as "killed in action" during the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, is alive and that the first report from the War Department was erroneous.

Henry A. Schaefer was advised that his son, Donald Carney Schaefer, 27, a gunner's mate, third class, in the United States Navy, was not among the hundreds of sailors and soldiers who met death in the attack on the Pacific base. The young sailor was the only one of several score persons from this section now in the Far East war zone reported killed.

DIARY OF THE WAR

FRIDAY — Americans and Filipinos were fighting a delaying action above Manila, the fall of the city was imminent. Japs made slight gains in Malaya. Russians began a new thrust in Donets basin and Nazis were being pushed back from Leningrad to Crimea. Hitler was said to be at the front. British attacked Axis points still held in Libya. British bombers raided Axis sea and air bases in Greece and Crete. British raided coast of orway again.

SATURDAY—Manila was occupied by Japanese but U. S. troops fought on in Luzon and fortress of Corregidor. All military equipment, etc., were removed from Manila and Cavite, the Naval base. Reds recaptured an important key town 65 miles southwest of Moscow and imperiled a Nazi salient. Japs landed new contingents in Western Malaya. General Wavell was placed in supreme command of land, sea and air forces in Pacific. The town of Bardia fell to British in Libya, along with 5,000 Axis prisoners, and this liberated 1,000 imprisoned British there. U. S. warships were reported assisting the Dutch fleet. Twenty-six nations joined for complete victory over Axis nations.

SUNDAY — Reds reported that 8,000 Spaniards, fighting with Nazis, had been killed. German people were asked to give up their skis to the army. Japs were beaten off the Malaya coast. Jap attacks on MacArthur's troops was lagging. British admit loss of four warships in recent battles but tells of bringing a large convoy to England 90 percent intact.

MONDAY — MacArthur's troops carried on their battle, driving off another bombing attack on Corregidor, shooting down four bombers. Japs in Manila were charged with discrimination against all whites. A Jap defeat appeared imminent at Changsha, in China, where 30,000 were claimed killed. Seven Jap planes were destroyed by three American flyers in Rangoon. British lines were being withdrawn in Malaya. Red army recaptured another key town southwest of Moscow and kept pushing Germans back. British bombers raided German territory in daylight, and in southern theater bombed Naples and Tripoli.

TUESDAY — American bombers sank a Jap destroyer, hit a battleship and damaged other enemy vessels in an attack off Mindanao in Philippines. Japs appeared stalled on Luzon. A seaplane tender Heron assaulted for seven hours by 15 Jap planes, smashed one flying boat, damaged another and then reached port in damaged condition. In China four Jap divisions were trapped by Chinese soldiers and 52,000 were dead or wounded. Chinese were reinforcing British Malaya and Burma. Finns again began to seek end of war. Reds reported 45-mile push into Crimea. British blasted Axis holdout posts in Libya. A German club and store in Paris were bombed and terrorism there was growing. German Generals were reported turning against Hitler.

WEDNESDAY — Americans were holding in Philippines while British defenders of Singapore opened a series of successful local offensives against Japs. Fortress of Corregidor was still strongly defended against Jap air assault. Seven Jap planes were hit over the fortress, making 22 during defense. Japs in Malaya seized an airport only 120 miles from Singapore. Chinese after killing 30,000 Japs around Hunan province were setting a trap for 40,000 more. In Russia 572 towns were recaptured in five days and 10,000 Germans killed. Reds seemed about to lift siege of Sevastopol in Crimea. Vichy was told Nazis might sieze French Africa if U. S. was favored. U. S. army bombers claimed another Jap destroyer in sea battle the day previous.

THURSDAY—Japs contined pressuer on U. S. troops in the Philippines, but apparently got nowhere, even with heavy assault on Corregidor. British were giving more ground in Malaya fighting against 5 to 1 odds. Japs struck at Australia again by air, raiding on air filed in New Britain, 800 miles north of continent. Tokyo admitted loss of another sub and damage to cruiser. Red recaptured a town only forty miles short of the new German defense line. In Crimea the Nazis were in peril of being cut off. A British raid on Sicily destroyed 44 Axis planes which were ready to raid Malta. A Tokyo radio said the Jap and U. S. fleets were fighting in the Pacific. Japs destroyed four defenseless towns in the Philippines.

An Atlantic coast passenger train was derailed near Richmond.

Casselman Leads In School Attendance

Casselman had the highest attendance record among one-teacher schools of the county for December, with a percentage of 99.4. The average number belonging to that school is 12. Red Oak school was second with 98.8, and McHenry was third with 97.3. Other schools with a record of 95 or better were Fairview, Wilson, Bethel, Sunnyside, Herrington, Mt. Zion. Ten of the forty one-teacher schools listed were above the county standard.

West Vindex led the two-teacher schools with 96.4 percent. The average number belonging is 66. Johnson was not far behind with 96.3 percent. These two schools were the only ones of 9 which were above county standard.

Kitzmiller led the nine graded schools with 95.9, with an average number belonging at 147. Crellin was second with 95.4, and Kempton was third with 95. The three were above county standard.

Accident led the six high schools with a percentage of 90.9 and an average number belonging set at 99. Oakland was second with 90.7, and Kitzmiller third with 89.4. The average number attending at Oakland is 615, and at Kitzmiller, 141. No high school was above county standard.

There are 4,666 pupils attending the public schools of the county, the record reveals.

I SEE BY THE DAILIES THAT

Three Washington boy scouts were found dead in a boat, having succumbed to exposure on Chesapeake Bay.

Jack Dempsey, 46, volunteered as a buck private, passed the phyiscal exam, but was turned down on age limit.

The French liner Normandie is being converted into a naval auxiliary vessel and is being named the U. S. S. LaFayette.

Defense bond sales in December reached a record total of 528 million dollars. But a boost was asked of all citizens.

More than five billion in army and navy contracts will be offered to automobile industry at once.

An express train carrying $250,000 in gold was wrecked near Pittsburgh, Pa., when it struck an automobile on a crossing.

NOW IS THE TIME . . . . . .

votion to your country! You were actually glad to be living in a time of such significance . . . and felt alive . . . competent . . . ready for anything.

But weeks have passed since then. We're used to being "at war," and we begin to realize that it's going to mean tedious work and little inconveniences for most of us rather than dangerous, spectacular deeds, and that faithful, painstaking work in thousands of factories as much as brilliant fighting forces are required to achieve the victory.

There is danger now of that buoyant enthusiasm and that sense of unity dying down as we begin to go our separate ways again, thinking more of our individual interest than we do of the country as a whole. So now is the time to realize with our minds, as well as feel with our hearts, what America really means: what our Constitution, our Bill of Rights, our every day ways of freedom signify in a world where there is oppression and fear and slavery

Now is the time to study the history of this country and learn what has made it great and what makes ultimate triumph a foregone conclusion. Now is the time to appreciate anew the production capacity of free men working together in a system of free enterprise to produce, as Mr. Churchill said, "results in war power beyond anything which has been seen or foreseen in the dictator states." Then, with knowledge supporting emotion, we, the men and the women of America, can maintain the morale required for the support of the long and bitter struggle!

Red Cross Knitters Working Unceasingly

Knitting in Garrett county went "up in the air" last week as Miss Leona Feld finished her third sweater, while she was a passenger on the "American Airlines" flying from New York to Elkins, W. Va., last Saturday. Miss Grace Loar and Miss Helen Townshend finished a 72-inch muffler and a shawl this week; Miss Lucille Mitchell, a shawl; Mrs. Margaret Casteel, Mrs. G. Bleakly, Mrs. F. M. Dean, Mrs. Henry McComas, Sr., Mrs. Lowell Loomis and Miss Leona Feld turned in finished mufflers. Mrs. Edward Lawrence finished two "Toddler's" sweaters in two days.

Sweaters were completed by Mrs. W. K. Freeland, Mrs. W. B. Love, Mrs. Lloyd Cook, Mrs. H. M. Weeks, Mrs. Belle Nine; Mrs. Harry Helbig and Mrs. Chas. Jackson two pair of soldier's socks; Mrs. Etta Saunders and Mrs. H. A. Loraditch, each two pairs; Miss Mary O'Donnell, three pairs, and Miss Ada Lawrence, four pairs.

Mrs. George Walls is "going strong" on mufflers, turning in two this week. Miss Julia Lawton and Mrs. Anna Smouse have three bundles of mittens all tied "ready to go" for National Defense; Mrs. Donald Sincell, three pairs of mittens; Mrs. Della Moomaw, four pairs; Miss Floss Shaffer, three pairs, and Mrs. Margaret McComas, one pair.

Eastern Star Officers Installed on Tuesday

Newly elected officers of the Order of Eastern Star were installed at the regular meeting of that organization on Tuesday evening.

Those installed included Mrs. Ray Teets, worthy matron; E. R. Jones, worthy patron; Mrs. Scott Shirer, associate matron; C. F. Hammond, associate patron; Miss Beryl Davis, secretary; Mrs. F. E. Rathbun, treasurer; Mrs. Grover C. Stemple, conductress; Mrs. William Naylor, associate conductress; Mrs. Melvin Kight, chaplain; Mrs. Samuel Aronhalt, marshall; Mrs. Donald R. Sincell, organist; Mrs. Milburn Mann Ada; Mrs. Lewis Jones, Ruth; Mrs. John H. Carter, Esther; Mrs. Delbert Davis, Martha; Mrs. Harold Harned, Electa; Mrs. Arthur Lawton, sentinel.

Accident School News

During the Christmas holidays new Webster traps were installed in the radiators of the school and a new furnace was hooked up so that it can be used to heat the old part or the new wing. At a later date the old furnace will also be hooked up so that either or both may be used, according to the weather.

Several windows were removed by the contractors adjacent to the auditorium. These places will be plastered over as soon as the other plaster work can be done.

Mr. Marvin Callis, agriculture teacher for a number of years, has accepted a position as teacher of agriculture in Delaware. Emerson Bishoff has taken his place temporarily. He is a graduate of the University of Maryland and lives on a farm between Hoyes and Friendsville.

Mr. B. O. Aiken was in Durham, N. C., to visit relatives and attend the football game between Duke university and Oregon State. He returned home last Friday evening.

First Council Meeting Of 1942 Short and Quiet

The first meeting of the Mayor and City Council for the new year was a short and quiet one. It was held on Monday evening at the City Hall.

Mrs. Lewis Jones and Miss Margaret Lawton were appointed clerks for registration day, January 26. An official notice of registration will be published next week.

The Council gave permission to the Boy Scouts to use a barn on North Third street to store the newspapers and magazines which they are collecting.

The Council extended its thanks to Robert W. Sheckells and the CCC enrollees who furnished laurel and pine for the Christmas decorations. The CCC also furnished the pine and laurel used in the churches of Oakland during the holiday season.

Total receipts for the month totaled $3,528.49, including water collections of $434.70 and taxes of $1,393.05. The golf committee turned over $550.00, making a total of $750 for the year, the other $200 having been applied on the purchase of land where the clubhouse now stands.

R. W. Lohr, assistant street superintendent, reported the ice spraying machine was completed and would be ready for trial soon. Bills amounting to $1,833.41 were ordered paid. This amount included $625.00 in electric bond coupons.

BITTINGER

The New Year has arrived and with it has come more decidedly winter weather. At this writing the ground has a thicker blanket of snow than at any other time since the beginning of winter.

Miss Doris Hetrick, who was seriously ill some days ago, has recovered and is well on the way to normal health.

Elmer Shawley, of this community, recently sold his maple sugar timber to Arthur Resh, of Jennings, thus depleting the maple sugar industry in this section to a considerable extent.

Pvt. Ross Bittinger, of the U. S. Army, visited his parents here a few days ago.

Mrs. Curran, wife of the Lutheran pastor, entertained some friends at a quilting party at the parsonage on Tuesday of last week.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Lutheran church will hold its regular monthly meeting at the Lutheran parsonage on Thursday of this week.

Many children of this community were kept at home as the result of a measles epidemic during the Christmas season.

To Speak to Mt. Lake Council on Civilian Defense

The work of acquainting the people of the county with the need of adequate civilian defense organizations continues tonight when L. M. Fraley, county coordinator and J. W. Owens, air raid warden, will meet with the Mayor and Council of Mt. Lake Park.

Both Fraley and Owens attended a meeting at Crellin on Saturday at which those who had participated in some mine extension courses were gathered in the Crellin hall. Owens appointed Harold Ream as chief air raid warden for that town and permission was granted to use the hall as a first aid station, in case of necessity.

Fraley said that the volunteers for the civilian defense organizations were not coming in as fast as expected and declared that the people should realize the seriousness of the situation and offer their services in some manner. The Episcopal church members have offered the Parish House on Center street as a first aid emergency station. Both the Leighton and Bolden funeral homes have offered their ambulances for emergency work.

Owens said he had named as his assistants in Oakland, J. W. Mitchell and Robert W. Lohr. Earl Guard, Friendsville, and Fraley, county coordinators, have named Dr. E. I. Baumgartner as head of the medical department of the county, with all physicians in the county on the committee.

May Establish Lookout Tower On Meadow Mountain

Rotary club members at Grantsville heard a plan for a lookout tower on Meadow Mountain at their meeting on Tuesday evening. The plan was outlined by E. J. Ryan and Adam Kalbaugh, Frostburg Legionnaires, in connection with the civilian defense measures. The lookout would be similar to the one already in operation on Big Savage mountain.

Approximately 85 men would be needed to operate the "spotting" tower on a 24-hour basis. Volunteers are being sought. Daniel W. Hershberger was appointed local air raid warden.

Members of Mining Class Meet At Crellin

Members of the mining class of Kempton, Bloomington, Kitzmiller, Crellin, Shallmar and Vindex met last Saturday night at Crellin. Due to inclement weather, only about forty were in attendance.

Officials in charge were Frank Powers, of the State Mine department; L. C. Hutson, Kitzmiller, instructor, and Mr. Hewitt. L. M. Fraley, county coordinator of the defense program here, and J. W. Owens, air raid warden for the southern section of the county, outlined the program for civilian defense.

Making Tests For Other Dams On Youghiogheny River

Specifications for preliminary core drillings of the proposed Crellin, Swallow Falls and Sang Run dam sites, in connection with the Youghiogheny river flood control reservoir, have been completed, according to information received from Friendsville.

The report said that cross sections and boring locations are being obtained at Swallow Falls and Sang Run dam sites.

Preliminary studies continue also for a temporary location of the Confluence and Oakland branch of the B and O. railroad near the Confluence dam site to facilitate construction of the dam pending a decision of the U. S. Supreme court relative to abandonment of the railroad.

A WEEK OF THE WAR

Twenty-six nations, including the U. S., Britain, Russia and China, signed an agreement pledging their military and economic resources in a finish fight against the Axis and banning any separate peace. The nations also subscribed to "a common program of purposes and principles" embodied in the Roosevelt-Churchill "Atlantic Charter."

The signatories of the declaration include Australia, Belgium, Canada, Costa Rica, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, the Dominican Republic, Salvador, Greece, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, India, Luxemburg, the Nethelands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Norway, Panama, Poland, South Africa and Jugoslavia. The declaration may, it said, be "adhered to by other nations which are, or which may be, rendering material assistance and contributions to the struggle for victory over Hitlerism."

The War Front

The Navy said it had evacuated Cavite and the Army announced Japanese troops entered Manila which earlier in the week had been declared an open city by General MacArthur, commanding the U. S. Forces in the Far East. Before entry of the Japanese, American and Philippine troops were withdrawn and all defense installations removed or destroyed.

General MacArthur earlier reported the enemy had "mercilessly bombed" churches, hospitals, convents, schools and other civilian installations in Manila after it was declared an open city, whereas they had only attempted bombing military installations previously. The President sent a message to the Philippine Islands pledging that their "freedom shall be redeemed and their independence established and protected. . . ." During the week, the Navy reported sinking two additional enemy ships and said three U. S. destroyers were attacked, but only slightly damaged.

Production For War

OPM reported $78,212,000,000 has been authorized for war purposes. The President told a press conference that although present spending is at the rate of 27 percent of the estimated 1942 national income of $100,000,000,000 production will be stepped up so that by next July 1 the nation will be spending at the rate of $50,000,000,000 a year—or half the national income.

Ships

The Maritime Commission said the ship-a-day goal in launchings of new ships has been reached and by the second quarter of 1942 delivery should reach two ships a day. The Commission took over 16 Finnish ships that have been tied up in U. S. ports. The Navy announced launching of a destroyer, a floating workshop and a minesweeper, and said keels were laid for two more destroyers. The Navy also said it is converting the French liner Normandie into an auxiliary.

Autos And Tires

The OPM banned all sales of new passenger automobiles and the SPAB approved an OPM plan to halt production of these vehicles "within a few weeks." The temporary ban on the retail sale, delivery, purchase, or lease of new passenger cars and of new light and heavy trucks will remain in effect until January 15, at which time a permanent rationing program will be put in effect.

OPM delegated to the Office of Price Administration authority to withhold all new tires except for essential health, safety and industrial services. OPA set up tire-rationing boards in each county of the nation and issued regulations providing no tire can be obtained even for "essential" users unless a local garageman appointed as inspector has certified the need, the local board has approved the application and the number of tires sold in each county is within the county quota. New tires were defined as those used less than 1,000 miles. No new restrictions were placed on the sale of retreaded or recapped tires.

Prices

Price Administrator Henderson set maximum manufacturers' prices for household cooking and heating stoves and for cigarettes, and issued a temporary schedule for rugs and carpets. He sent a letter to all wholesalers and retailers of sugar stating the responsibility for keeping stable the price of sugar now rests with the nation's retailers. He set top prices for 39 grades of imported green coffee, and revised previous schedules for some 1,800 fats and oils, as well as for Douglas fir doors, paperboard and cotton goods.

Dies of Self-Inflicted Wounds at Gormania

Seventeen Schools Serving Lunches to Undernourished Pupils

Number Dropped From About 35 Last Year—No Free Help Available

Efforts are being made through the Board of Education and the Garrett County Teachers' Association to increase the use of surplus food commodities throughout the schools of the county, but the lack of NYA help which was used extensively last year, and the absence of voluntary assistance is causing many pupils to do without the needed nourishment, it has been stated.

The number of schools using these surplus commodities has dropped from about 35 last year to 17 this year. The responsibility for the serving of meals and distribution of food lies with Parent-Teachers' associations or the teachers.

Teachers received instruction recently on the necessity of making application for food commodities for the month of January, on or before January 8.

B. O. Aiken, president of the teachers' association, appointed a committee for this work which included O. P. Jones, chairman; Kitzmiller; Mrs. Lena W. Walker, Vindex; Mrs. Inez M. Bush, Bloomington; Miss Josie M. Iden, Crellin; Arthur Scrogum, Accident; and William C. Grimm, Grantsville.

Requisitions cover such itmes as apples, dried beans, butter, corn meal, flour, lard, evaporated milk, prunes, rolled oats, soup, tomatoes, etc. The food is received from the Surplus Marketing Administration, Washington, D. C.

According to a bulletin recently published there are nine million school children suffering from undernourishment and five million of them who are attending 57,000 schools, are beginning to feel the benefits of school lunches.

All surplus foods received must be consumed on the school premises. The minimum requirements for a complete lunch are: one hot dish, hot or cold beverage and one or more supplementary foods. A hot dish may be described as soup, baked beans, macaroni, etc.

Those schools requesting commodities for lunches for January include thus far Boiling Springs, Mrs. Myrtle R. Reese; Corunna, Mrs. Anna Sue Harvey; Manadier, Nellie J. Beachy; Bethlehem, Gladys Broadwater; Gorman, Mrs. Phyllis H. Williams; Kitzmiller, O. P. Jones; Swanton, Clyde Humes; Finzel, Miss Elizabeth Workman; Sunnyside, Leona Hart; Lynndale, Gwendolyn Warnick; West Vindex, Margaret Graham; Beachy, Merle Hamill; Sand Spring, Chauncey M. Friend; Sang Run, Viola Broadwater; Jennings, Delta Lohr; Beall, Veronica R. Simpson; Steyer, J. Timothy Moon.

Between 135,000 and 150,000 Maryland men between 20 and 44, not previously registered, will be registered and become liable for military service on February 16.

New Class in Welding To Be Formed

It has been announced by the Board of Education that a new class in Electric and Acetylene welding will be formed in Oakland on Wednesday, January 1.

This class will be free and will meet from 6:30 to 11:30 on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

All persons interested are requested to meet in the Oakland high school at 7 p. m., January 14, with LaMark Moore, instructor.

THE INFANCY AND BOYHOOD OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 2:25-35, 39, 40.
GOLDEN TEXT—Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man.—Luke 2:52.

"Nobody knows what a boy is worth,
And the world must wait to see;
For every man in an honored place
Is a boy that used to be."

Jesus was "only a boy" as He grew through infancy and childhood, but in that baby and that boy rested all the hopes of mankind. While He was not just like any other boy, yet His growth and development were normal, and we may learn much that will enable us to help the boy in our home, in our block, or in our church.

The mother of Jesus, in fulfillment of the law of her people, on the eighth day identified Him with the nation (Luke 2:21), and then at the end of 40 days brought Him, with her humble sacrifice, to present Him to the Lord. There a beautiful and prophetic scene took place as the Holy Spirit revealed to godly old Simeon His

I. Complete Salvation—in a Baby (vv. 25-35).

The Holy Spirit (not yet come as the indwelling presence in believers' hearts) had come upon Simeon, a man right with God and with a deep longing in his heart for the coming of the Messiah—"the consolation of Israel." He was assured of living until that day, and now as he waited in the temple the babe who fulfilled that promise was laid in his arms.

He blessed God as he broke forth in praise and prophetic utterance. Note the full conception of the work of the Redeemer—deliverance from bondage and fear of death, light to the Gentiles and glory to Israel, a stone of stumbling but also of rising again. A revealer of the hearts of men—yes, and One whose sacrificial death would pierce the heart of His mother.

One is glad that Simeon and Anna (v. 36) and "them that looked for redemption in Jerusalem" saw in Mary's infant son the Son of God incarnate, for round about was unbelief (John 1:11), hatred (Matt. 2:16), and indifference (Matt. 2:4, 5).

Is it not so today? Christmas has just been celebrated. How many saw the babe in the manger as Jesus the Saviour?

The scene changes—the little family is back in Nazareth in the humble home—and there we see

II. Perfect Development in a Boy (vv. 39, 40).

The period from infancy to accountability (12 years) is summed up in the full-orbed growth of the boy Jesus described in verse 40. The one business of every child from birth to 12, or somewhere around there, until the period of adolescence, is to grow without any sense of responsibility except obedience to authority; and obedience in the case of a child is always in order to give the child perfect freedom from everything else, without any sense of responsibility. That is the story of Jesus: He grew!" (G. Campbell Morgan).

Growth is, first of all, physical. Jesus stands by the side of every boy and girl as the body grows from babyhood to maturity, for He too knew that experience. We may talk to Him as an understanding friend about the physical needs and problems of our children. Let us remember that here, as elsewhere in Scripture, the physical body is recognized as important.

Mentally, He experienced growth. The strange, apocryphal tales about the child Jesus, representing Him as a man of mature wisdom in a child's body, do not compare even remotely with the beautiful naturalness of a keen-minded boy asking questions, observing, always learning. Boys and girls, you may talk with confidence to Him about your lessons, your growing interest in this exciting world of ours, of your need for guidance in learning. Be sure that He will understand.

The crowning touch upon the growing personality of the child is the spiritual. We read of Jesus that "the grace of God was upon him." "Grace," says Dr. Morgan, "is first, that which delights and charms. Grace, secondly, is desire to impart to others the things that make them happy. Grace, finally, is the activity that does this at all costs." A gracious child is an altogether delightful being; and when that graciousness is the result of the "grace of God" upon him, it is surpassingly lovely, for it makes him Christlike, even in the days of childhood.

Great and grave has been the neglect of the spiritual life of children for whom much has been done physically and mentally. Christian parents must not make that mistake—and they need not, for the Lord Jesus here too stands ready to counsel, guide, encourage, and strengthen them in every good purpose and deed.

Washington Snapshots

By JAMES PRESTON

The swirl and tumult of war-time Washington have pushed twelve non-defense agencies, or parts of agencies, out of the city. Following a Presidential order, over 10,000 Government employees will have moved out of the Capitol within two months. With the influx of defense workers at the rate of 1,500 a week, Washington has all the appearances of a boom-town.

The additional space is welcomed by administrators who are hard pressed to find living quarters for incoming Federal workers and office space for new defense agencies.

Among the larger agencies moving out of Washington are the Patent office and the Securities and Exchange Commission. The Patent Office with 1200 of its employees makes its new home in Richmond, Va. The SEC, with its 1400 employees, will operate from Philadelphia.

What effect, if any, this mass exodus will have as a decentralizing factor in executive control over the agencies affected is a subject of speculation here.

No stone is being left unturned in an effort to vest the President with enough power to meet every emergency with speed. Not only has Congress granted him the powers which President Wilson had during the first World War, but it also went its predecessor one better and extended those powers.

By unanimous action of both the House and the Senate, the President was given authority to:

1. Censor all forms of foreign news.

2. Redistribute Government administrative functions. This, the writers of the Act hoped, would permit the President to cut red tape when there was possibility of its becoming tangled and slowing up the victory effort.

3. Control financial transactions of enemy corporations and administer other alien property. This allows the President to use almost $7,000,000,000 of alien property in the country for the best national interest.

4. Permit agencies to enter into defense contracts without competitive bidding, without performance bonds and to modify or amend contracts. The added power over contracts was needed, according to the Senate Judiciary Committee, to speed up the purchase of war materials. Congressmen pointed out that under this power the President could bring small businessmen into the victory program by removing existing restrictions on Government contracts.

An amendment requires the President to make a public record of all acts taken under the contract power. If he thinks that such publicity would be against the public interest, he need not reveal the act in question.

Now that the President has the power to streamline the complicated defense set-up, Washington businessmen are expecting a new realignment of defense agencies.

Plans for "After Pearl Harbor" are being kept secret by high military and civilian planners. Only one thing is certain .. .. . that the job is collosal. Already Administration men are discarding old estimates of 30 to 45 percent of the national income for armaments in 1942.

OPM's internal setup has been revised in the interest of speed. The shake-up brought all industrial branches dealing with civilian matters under the supervision of Director Geperal Knudsen and Associate Director Hillman.

This leaves Leon Henderson, Civilian Supply Administrator, and Douglas C. McKeachie, Director of Purchases, who formerly controlled civilian branches, and Floyd Odlum, Director of OPM Contract Distribution Division, as idea men.. .. . OPM sources predicted. It also leaves the responsibility of dealing with non-essential civilian production up to OPM's two top men, Knudsen and Hillman. It is anticipated here that future curtailment or cessation orders will come from them.

OPM statement of policy declared that one reason for the change was an increased emphasis on cooperation with industry and labor.

The Department of Labor has issued a ruling that employers may pay their employees all over-time in defense savings bonds and stamps.

While employees cannot waive their right to overtime, under the terms of the Fair Labor Standards Act, the ruling declared, "they may agree with their employers to accept their overtime compensation in defense bonds or similar Government securities."

This ruling applies, of course, only to those businesses over which the Federal Government has supervisory control. It is not unlikely, however, that many local businesses will adopt a similar policy in an effort to cooperate with the Government.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

Deterioration

Washington, Jan. 3.

So vast and overshadowing is the war that it blacks out everything else almost completely. The natural temptation is to shove all other matters aside as trivial and concentrate attention wholly upon this titanic conflict and the activities directly linked therewith.

Certainly, one cannot listen to the portentous words of Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill and fail to feel that nothing which can contribute anything at all to winning the war must be withheld. Nor can any American, sorrowed by the news from the Philippines, fail to hope with his whole heart for the day, when, as the British Prime Minister predicts, we shall teach the Japanese a lesson which they and the world will never forget.

Nevertheless, few reflective persons will contend that absorption in this great purpose should be coupled with complete indifference to what is happening to the normal machinery of the Government. Nor can it be successfully argued that such indifference promotes our war aims. Quite the reverse. This war is a test of national strength. While we bend our energies to making ourselves strong in the air, on land and on the sea, our cause is not furthered by permitting the ordinary governmental agencies to bog down and decay. It is not the part of patriotism to ignore such tendencies and it is no disfavor to the President to call attention to them. Clearly, it is no greater tax upon his time and energy to appoint a good man than to appoint a poor one. It requires little more effort to keep the governmental service up than to let it run down. But the latter course weakens us while at war and most assuredly will plague us very badly when peace comes. Discerning men here view with concern the disposition to let things disintegrate in the non-defense departments. They feel that complete absence of public comment about this is a disservice to the nation and no help to Mr. Roosevelt.

Various instances of this deterioration could be cited, but at the moment the most glaring is the plight of the Securities Exchange Commission. For a long time now this concededly important board has been steadily sliding down hill. In the opinion of some it is pretty close to the bottom now. Chiefly, this is due to the extraordinary lack of stability at the head. The worth of such a commission as this depends almost entirely upon its chairman. The SEC has had five chairmen in seven years. Last week it lost its latest, who had served hardly a year.

The five who have headed this commission since its inception in 1934 have averaged less than a year and a half. Each has used the job as a stepping stone into something that seemed more desirable. Mr. Joseph P. Kennedy became Ambassador to England; Mr. James Landis became dean of a law school; Mr. W. O. Douglas went to the Supreme Court; Mr. Jerome Frank is now on the Federal bench, and the most recent chairman, Mr. Edward C. Eicher, has just been named for the District of Columbia Court by the President, leaving the board, at the moment, headless and rudderless. Who will be the sixth or when he will be named no one knows. The President may fill the vacancy promptly with someone now on the board or he may let it drift for a long time.

In either event, two things are clear—first, that these continuous changes in the head of the board have impaired its usefulness and lessened confidence in its competency; second, the quality of the chairmen, to put it mildly, has not improved with the changes. Actually, the speed with which they have changed establishes a record. So swiftly have they followed one another that anything like a sustained and connected policy has been impossible. The fact is that the SEC chairmanship has come now to be looked upon as a temporary job in which no one stays very long. That is unfortunate for the commission and unfortunate for those who have to do business with it.

In his appointment of Mr. Eicher as its fifth and last chairman—apparently the President also accepted the temporary character of the position. At that time the statement was made that Mr. Eicher, who had been an ardent New Deal Congressman from Iowa, really wanted to be a Federal first available opportunity. Denied at Judge at first opportunity. Denied at statement. Mr. Eicher, in Congress, was one of the friends of Tommy Corcoran, then a prime White House favorite and now one of the most energetic of the defense lobbyists. Cooperating with Mr. Corcoran, Mr. Eicher opposed the renomination of Senator Gillette, who was slated as one of the first victims of the Presidential purge of 1938. Senator Gillette, however, was successful, and Mr. Eicher was put on the SEC in obvious recognition of his political services.

He became chairman when Mr. Frank was made a judge. And now he has been made a judge, and the chairmanship is again vacant. It isn't a pretty story—the way this SEC chairmanship has been batted around from one man to another. The hope is that the President this time will name a man not only qualified to serve and who has no notion of using the job as a ladder but who is not named as a reward for past political services. Concentration on the problems of the war is no reason the normal governmental machinery should be allowed to deteriorate. That does not help win the war abroad; that just weakens us at home.

No. 1300 Miscellaneous Docket. In the

AIR RAID RULES ARE MADE FOR STATE SCHOOLS

State Department Of Education Cooperating With National Office Of Civilian Defense

Instructions to keep Maryland public school children in school during air-raids or air-raid alarms headed a list of general rules adopted by the State Department of Education in cooperation with the National Office of Civilian Defense.

Other Instructions

Here are other instructions issued to principals and teachers throughout the State:

1. Select the most protected places in the building as refuges and drill the children to go quietly to those places upon the sounding of a well-recognized alarm.

2. Provide an identifiction card or tag for each child, and know where each child is assigned at all times.

First-Aid Plan

3. Provide first-aid equipment and trained personnel to handle any emergency.

Simultaneously, the committee on the protection of life and property, which drew up the directions for the school teachers, issued these instructions to parents of the children:

1. If an air-raid should come while your children are at school, see to your own safety. Stay home. Go to your refuge room. Stay away from windows.

Off Streets

2. Do not try to reach the school. You would accomplish no good. You could do a great deal of harm by such action.

3. In an air-raid, rule No. 1 is "stay off the streets." Get under cover. On the street there is danger from falling shell fragments, racing cars and fire apparatus. Stay indoors.

4. Do not try to telephone. The wires must be kept clear for wardens, police and firefighters. You might prevent an urgent message from getting through.

Report Says

The long committee report on the best method of protecting the children went on to say:

"In no case should the children be dismissed from the direction of the school. The children are under the jurisdiction of the school during the emergency program.

"The plan must be effective under and conditions, such as the noon hour with the cafeteria in use during assembly periods, play periods, changing of classes and activity periods.

"The school must be stocked with such materials as sand, shovels, rope, rakes, fire extinguishers, first aid equipment, ladder, hose with spray nozzle, etc.

Plan Activities

"Activities such as singing, reading, story telling, etc., must be planned for children during an alarm period."

Teachers were told to drill the children to respond to an air-raid alarm in the same way they are trained to answer the regular fire drills. An equally well-known all-clear signal must be set up, faculty members were informed.

On the subject of air-raid refuges within the buildings, the report made these suggestions:

"An underground basement should be selected.

Hallways Clear

"A refuge should not have water mains, gas lines and other services which create hazards if broken. Exits should be on the ground level.

"All hallways should be free of every movable obstacle.

"Attention must be given to ventilation.

"If a corridor should be used as a refuge, aisle space must be allowed for the safe passage of children to exits, to and from drinking fountains, restrooms, etc.

Windows Raised

"Windows in class rooms should be raised.

"Children are to sit down.

"All doors leading to hallways should be kept closed except a few which should be open for vetilation.

"Children should not be sated in front of open doors.

"Glass in corridor doors should be removed or protected.

Injured in Fall

Government Puts Ban On Purchase of Cars

Rationing System Will Be Set Up Soon—Auto Factories to Turn Out Defense Materials

The government has prohibited the purchase, sale or delivery of new passenger cars and trucks pending establishment of an automobile rationing system. Production of new automobiles and light trucks will be stopped entirely within a few weeks. The order was issued by Donald M. Nelson, OPM priorities director, and is effective immediately.

Stoppage of production, in line with a policy adopted by the Supply Priorities and Allocations Board, will compel the establishment of a rationing system and it is expected that purchases of new cars and trucks will be limited under the plan to government, Lend-Lease, and the most "essential" civilian users.

May Commandeer Autos

Automobile owners who have no vital need for a car have received warning from Leon Henderson, price administrator, that they may have to surrender their machines to the government for use by the armed forces or in essential civilian services.

Mr. Henderson said that this was the "gloomy prospect" for the future and that no plans for requisitioning private cars was as yet being given official consideration.

Car production will cease until after the war at the end of January, and there will not be enough new cars to meet demands of physicians and surgeons, police, fire departments, and other protective agencies, it was stated.

Farm Machinery Repair Program Being Set Up

Due to the requirements of the Food for Freedom Program sponsored by the Federal Government, special efforts are being made to assist the farmers in having their farming machinery repaired at the least possible cost and with the greatest speed. The emergency for the present war is greatly restricting the purchasing of metals of various types and this has practically made impossible the manufacture and sale of farm machinery. The farmers are being urged to raise more farm produce with less new machinery and less labor. In view of these circumstances a program for repairing farm machinery is being set up in this county with the financial support of the Federal Government. It is planned that all such machinery would be repaired without cost except for major items that may be necessary in order to repair the equipment to make it serviceable for furthering the interests of the farmers. A meeting was held last Monday afternoon in the office of F. E. Rathbun, County Superintendent of Schools, at which plans were formulated for making repairs to farm machinery as may be desired by any number of farmers. Attending the conference were Dorsey Guard, chairman, Farm Defense Board for Garrett County, Selbysport; H. M. James, Supervisor of National Defense Training, Baltimore; James House, Regional Coordinator, Flintstone; Eugene Harpold, County Coordinator, Kitzmiller; Charley B. Miller, Friendsville; John E. Lawrence, Grantsville; Emerison Bishoff, Accident; O. T. Graser, Oakland, agriculture teachers; John H. Carter, County Agent; F. E. Rathbun, County Administrator; John L. Fitzwater, supervisor of attendance, all of Oakland.

Additional information is available from any of those attending the meeting.

Shallmar Boy Is Injured While Coasting Yesterday

Cecil Grenwood Pyle, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Pyle, Shallmar, was admitted to Memorial hospital, Cumberland, yesterday afternoon suffering from a severe laceration of the head as a result of a sledding accident.

The boy was riding on the school grounds and his sled ran against another sled about 9 o'clock yesterday. First aid was given by a nearby physician. His condition was not considered serious.

Red Cross Work Goes On

"This letter gives me an opportunity again to express to you and your volunteers the thanks and appreciation of hundreds of thousands of people to whom the war has caused untold distress. Up to this time over seven million garments produced by Chapters have been sent abroad, tangible evidence of the fine spirit of humanity which prevails among the American people. You have enabled your Red Cross to carry out its responsibility for meeting material needs of those in distress and at the same time to strengthen the bonds of understanding between the people of this and other lands."

At the Red Cross headquarters this week were: Mrs. W. W. Grant, Mrs. Frank Rathbun, Mrs. Thomas Graser, Mrs. T. Deffinbaugh, Mrs. Etta White. Working at the sewing machines were: Mrs. Lowell Loomis and Mrs. Hugh Teets.

The pinker was operated by Mrs. Frances Conoly. Mrs. Harry McRobie of Oakland, and Mrs. G. B. Miller have taken the material for 75 pairs of boys shorts, and Mrs. McRobie, in a week less completed 25 pairs and cut out 100 pairs for which she deserves to go to the head of the class.

Mrs. Dewey Walter completed miniature garments and one complete layette. Mrs. DeSimmone has been sewing baby garments and has completed twenty garments.

Mrs. Charles Fleegle has completed two dresses. Mrs. Robert Sheckells has also completed an adult dress.

Mrs. Harold Miller from Grantsville has reported that the woman's dresses are progressing along to a photo finish.

Mrs. W. W. DeWitt has reported from Hoyes that the hospital pajamas are getting along.

Small Stones Also Serve

We are all needed in this great war effort to produce victory, the little ones as well as the big.

A timely story is told by David Grayson in his book, "The Countryman's Year."

"Yesterday," writes Grayson, "I was talking with an old country philosopher I know. He was laying a stone wall and commented on the indispensability of small stones to keep the large ones in place—to make the wall solid.

" 'And I was thinkin',' said he, 'of the need of small men, like me, to keep the big ones in place. They can't leave a man of us out.'

" 'That's what they sometimes forget,' said I.

" 'Yes, sir, they forget—but it ain't fer long. Their walls fall down.' "

In America today the small stones as well as the big stones are needed to build up the wall of defense. Without the little men the big plant would be compelled to close. Without the united efforts of the little men the big cause would be lost.

No matter how small we are, if we do our part, we can help in winning the war against these aggressor nations, and preserve our freedom.

SCHOOLS TO BE USED FOR DRAFT REGISTRATION

People May Register Either Saturday, Sunday or Monday, February 14, 15 or 16

Maryland is anticipating by a full forty-eight hours the national draft registration on February 16, Governor O'Conor announced to the various draft boards throughout the state.

Arrangements have been made for the use of twenty public school buildings in Garrett county for registration offices which will be open Saturday and Sunday, February 14 and 15, as well as on Monday, February 16, the day proclaimed by President Roosevelt for the national listing of all men from 20 to 45 not previously registered. If necessary the Governor said a holiday would be given to the children in schools being used for registration on Monday.

In the first general draft registration the registering was done by election officials, and the registration of those reaching twenty-one years since the first draft were registered last July 1 at the draft board office.

The registration this time will be under the jurisdiction of the local selective service boards of which there are 66 in Maryland, and teachers in schools will be used as volunteer registration officers. All men who have attained their twentieth birthday on or before December 31, 1941, and have not attained their forty-fifth birthday on February 16, 1942, and who have not heretofore registered, will be required to do so. It is expected that there will be 150,000 registrants in the state. In the registration on October 17, 1940, 240,000 men were registered in Maryland.

The registration of men eighteen and nineteen and of men between the ages of forty-five and sixty-four inclusive, as authorized in the amended selective service act, will be accomplished at another time.

On Saturday and Sunday, February 14 and 15, the hours of registration will be from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., while on the official registration day, February 16, the hours will be from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m.

The twenty schools which have been selected by the Garrett County Draft Board include, Oakland, Grantsville, Friendsville, Accident, Kitzmiller, Swanton, Kempton, Bloomington, Avilton, Gorman, Deer Park, Red House, Vindex, Sang Run, Shallmar, Jennings, Bittinger, Crellin, New Germany and Finzel.

Car Is Robbed As Owners Sleep In Trailer Nearby

A thief or thieves walked off with all of a baby's clothing as well as that of four adults last Friday night at the Hill Top Inn tourist camp on route 40, east of Grantsville, when the mercury hovered close to zero.

The owners, Claude Bowman and his son Walter Bowman, Cadillac, Mich., with their families were enroute to Baltimore where both men had secured positions with the Glenn Martin airplane plant.

They parked at the Inn tourist camp for the night and did not discover their loss until about daybreak Saturday morning. Entrance to the car was effected while the families were asleep in a trailer nearby.

In addition to the clothing various articles of baggage were also taken, including two traveling trunks and a spare tire. The loss was estimated at about $300. Lieut. Carl Dillinger, State police, investigated.

Masonic Lodge Holds Installation Service

Officers in Oakland Lodge No. 192, Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons, both elective and appointive, were installed and invested at the regular communication on Tuesday evening, with A. C. Fisher, district deputy grand lecturer, of Cumberland, as the installing officer, assisted by A. Wayne Reed, district deputy grand lecturer, of Westernport, and a number of past masters of the local organization.

The five principal officers of the lodge to be installed were Scott W. Shirer, worshipful master; Arthur Lawton, senior warden; Milburn W. Mann, junior warden; Harland L. Jones, secretary; and Cecil Smith, treasurer.

Appointive officers were Robert T. Hoffman, senior deacon; George Z. Dawson, junior deacon; Delbert Davis, senior steward; Herbert C. Leighton, junior steward; Wellington E. Yutzy, tyler.

Mr. Hoffman, retiring master, gave a report of activities for the past year and the new master also spoke briefly. Refreshments in the clubroom followed the business session.

Twenty-Six Members Added to Red Cross Roll Call This Week

The first report of the Red Cross roll call in 1942 was made this week by Mrs. Paul B. Naylor, roll call chairman, and shows thirty dollars collected in the past two weeks with 26 members added.

There has been collected in the campaign to date $705.50, with 636 paid members, leaving the county a balance of $494.50 to collect in order to reach the quota of $1200. Mrs. Naylor said the solicitors are planning to carry on and see if they can reach the goal.

In the list this week was a membership of $5.00, given by C. W. Shipley, of the Park. The others are regular memberships.

Mrs. Willard Elliott handed in the names of Mrs. Harry Stemple, Miss Nelle Helbig, Mrs. George Hanst, Miss Susie Smith and Mrs. Roger Tower.

Mrs. Eugene Harpold, Kitzmiller, adds D. W. Walker to her list; Misses Ethel and Viola Broadwater, Grantsville and Sang Run, add eight new members: Miss Nellie Hoye, Henry A. and Lois Schaefer, Byron H. Bender, Mrs. W. E. Stanton, Miss Carolyn Blanks, Mrs. J. U. Stanton, Mrs. J. A. Howell, Otho S. Fike.

Mrs. Jennie Lee Richardson, Mt. Lake, adds three to her list, C. W. Shipley, Mrs. Daisy Hicks and Lawrence Moomaw.

From Accident: Mrs. Charles Wilt, Melvin Kisner, Miss Louise Dillon, Richard Kolb.

Mrs. F. E. Rathbun, Oakland, has handed in the names of Mrs. Robert Hoffman, Robert Hoffman, Mrs. Robert Helbig, Robert Helbig.

Mrs. Paul Hinebaugh, Hoyes Run, adds the name of Mrs. Violth Sterling to her list and Mrs. Vernie E. Smouse received a membership fee from Mrs. Leo Helbig.

Committee Plans For President's Birthday Celebrations Here

The committee for the observance of the President's birthday is planning for a continuation of the March of Dimes campaign throughout the county, and also a card party in Oakland, somewhere near the date of January 30. The members were undecided about a benefit dance yesterday, believing that the card party would be more successful.

Further details are to be announced. There is already a birthday ball scheduled for Friday, January 30, at the Manhattan hotel with the Society Ramblers to furnish the music. Admission will be $1.25.

Assets Shown

Garrett county's four banks ended the year 1941 with assets of almost three and one-half million dollars, and deposits of over three million dollars.

The Friendsville bank statement is published this week, the three others were published last week. The Friendsville bank showed an increase in business as did the other three, and had deposits of $286,794.16, and assets of $334,196.35.

The combined assets of the three banks total $3,468,944.87, and the deposits $3,025,880.17.

Population Figures Given for Counties

The population of each county in Maryland, classified by sex, race, age, and farm residence, according to final data from the 1940 census, has been announced.

Garrett county was listed with a population of 21,981, of which 11,535 were male, and 10,446 were female.

Of special note was the fact that there are only five Negroes in the entire county, and none of other races, except white. The list of foreign born totaled 187.

The rural farm population was 11,019. The age in years was divided as follows: under five, 2,356; five to twenty-four, 9,188; twenty-five to sixty-four, 8,888; sixty-five and over, 1,549; twenty-one and over, 11,960.

The state's population is 1,821,244, with 915,038 males and 906,206 females. There are 81,715 foreign born, 301,931 Negroes and 832 other races, mainly Indians, Chinese and Japanese. The rural-farm population is 243,060.

Lions Club Benefit Scheduled Jan. 29th

The benefit entertainment being arranged by the Lions club has been scheduled for January 29, and will be presented at the Oakland high school auditorium.

All proceeds will go for the benefit of the Red Cross war relief fund in the county's effort to raise $2,500. Admission will be 25 cents plus 3 cents tax.

The entertainment will include a style show with other novelty acts, according to the committee which is composed of J. M. Jarboe, chairman; Daniel P. Smouse, S. Townshend Naylor, Herbert C. Leighton and Virgil B. Kelley.

Sheriff J. W. Owens gave an outline of his duties as chief air raid warden in the county at the regular meeting on Monday night. Guests were Frederick Thayer, Jr., and C. L. Briner, Jr.

Use Tax Stamps Go On Sale To Auto Owners January 15

Maryland postal officials are planning for a rush business starting today—sale of Federal use tax stamps for automobiles.

Maryland has 300,000 registered cars, so one statistician figured that two stamps would have to be sold each second of working hours at post-offices throughout the state before the deadline, February 1.

Postmaster Neal A. Sibley said he did not know what arrangements the postal department would make for sale of the stamps, and that the department expected to receive the stamps January 15.

The tax stickers will cost $2.09 each, and expire June 30, end of the fiscal year. At that time new $5 stamps must be purchased.

The original plan called for the sale of stickers to begin January 26 but advancing the opening date is expected to facilitate the sale as there are 300,000 registered automobiles whose owners will have to apply in person.

Purchaseers will get cards with each sticker. The cards must be filled out, listing the license and serial number of the car and owner's name, and sent to the Internal Revenue bureau. A fine of $25 is provided for those failing to comply.

Garrett county postoffices are expecting a supply of these stamps at any time, but none had been received locally thus far today.

Auto Licenses To Be Same for 1942

In order to preserve steel for national defense, the department of motor vehicles will issue at the regular fee, a corner metal plate, to be attached on and after March 15, 1942, to all automobile license tags. Auto owners will retain and use the same license tags and registration cards in 1942 as they did in 1941. All reservations for special license numbers have been cancelled and no requests will be granted, according to W. Lee Elgin, commissioner of motor vehicles.

Should Return Questionnaire

Owners of trucks or buses who have not completed and returned the questionnaire cards sent them in October by the War Department, are urged to do so immediately. In case of emergency requiring the use of additional transportation for military purposes, the location of these vehicles may be of vital importance to the Army and Navy.

This is your opportunity to aid your country as a good American and true Marylander, stated Mr. Elgin.

If anyone has mislaid his questionnaire, or has not received it, one can be secured from the Department of Motor Vehicles.

Pythians Lay Plans For 53rd Anniversary

Committees were named and preliminary plans made at the Knights of Pythias meeting Friday night for the Anniversary celebration to be held on February 20.

This will mark the 53rd anniversary of the founding of the local order and the 78th anniversary of the national organization. This is always considered a high spot in the Pythian year.

Walter W. Dawson was named chairman of the program committee and Wade Mason chairman of the refreshment committee.

A Civilian Defense committee composed of A. G. Gortner, chairman; J. C. Renninger, Leonard Hathaway, Clifford Phillips and Virgil B. Kelley, was named to cooperate with the county committee.

The lodge decided to purchase another $1,000 defense bond, which makes a total of $3,000 invested in these bonds.

Basketball Players Asked To Meet Monday Evening

Those interested in the basketball leagues are asked to meet again on Monday evening.

A preliminary meeting was held Monday of this week and it was felt at that time that all four churches having teams last year should be continued this season, although players were few in some instances.

A schedule and details are expected to be worked out at the meeting to be held Monday evening.

JAYCEES PLANNING FOR DINNER ON JANUARY 21

Distinguished Service Award Key to Be Presented to Community's Outstanding Young Man

Observing the twenty-second anniversary of the founding of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Oakland Jaycees are holding their Founder's Day banquet at the Manhattan hotel next Wednesday evening, January 21, at which a distinguished service award key will be presented to the community's outstanding young man of the past twelve months.

The award is presented annually by the United States Junior Chamber through its affiliated organizations in all parts of the country. The recipient is being selected by a local committee and the selection is based on the contributions to the community welfare. The recipient must be between the ages of 21 and 35 inclusive, the Jaycee age limit, but need not be a member of that organization.

Besides the presentation of the award that evening, E. R. Jones, local attorney, and a former secretary of state, will speak. Walter W. Dawson will act as toastmaster. The dinner is scheduled for 6:30 p. m., and tickets may be secured at 75 cents per plate.

Welfare Board Using Income Scale In All Cases For Assistance

Adopts Policy to Measure Ability of Sons and Daughters To Support Their Parents

The Garrett County Welfare Board, at its December meeting, adopted an income scale to be used to measure the ability of all sons and daughters to support their parents, according to an announcement by Mrs. Dorothy Ogburn, executive secretary, yesterday.

Mrs. Ogburn said this scale was being applied in all cases whether the application was for old age assistance, aid to dependent children, public assistance to the needy blind or general public assistance.

"Eligibility for public assistance is dependent upon need," she said, and added, "This is determined by the applicants' ability to support himself and his children's ability to make provision for him."

Mrs. Ogburn pointed out that the Welfare Board had always tried to leave with the children responsibilities that are rightfully theirs. She said the Board had felt for a long time its need for some scale by which to measure a child's ability to support his parent, in order that all persons' needs be treated uniformly. Some children are more willing than others to support their parents, it was said.

The figures used in the scale were arrived at on the basis that there should be provision in the son's or daughter's families for all of the ordinary expenditures of an average family at a level of health and decency. The average family in this country, a family of four, shows a net deficity from year to year, if it has an income below $1,500, according to Mrs. Ogburn. At the level of $1,500 the family begins to have an increase of assets over liabilities of about $50.00 per year, she said. Approximately two-thirds of the families in the United States have incomes of less than $1,500. Since living costs are rising the scale has been adjusted upward by 12 percent to take care of this, and the Board will plan to further revise this income scale upward as living costs continue to increase, she concluded.

December Expenditures

A report of the expenditures for December showed a total of $14,327.22, apportioned among 718 cases. The expenditures were divided as follows: old age assistance, 399 persons, $7,046.61; aid to dependent children, 149 cases, $4,156.47; public aid to needy blind, 8 persons, $169.43; general public assistance, 134 cases, $2,670.21; board for children, 28 children, $284.50.

Captured by Japs

A recent telegram received by Capt. George L. Armstrong, of Los Angeles, Calif., from the War department, has informed him that his son, Robert L. Armstrong, a corporal in the U. S. Marine corps, was taken prisoner by the Japanese in an attack on China.

Armstrong was a member of the Legation guard in Tsientsin. His mother was the late Josephine Hoye Armstrong, formerly of Sang Run.

To Promote Sale of Defense Bonds and Stamps in County

Plans are to be made in the near future for the promotion of the sale of defense bonds and stamps in Garrett county, it has been announced.

Walter W. Dawson has been named chairman for Garrett county and it is his purpose to form an organization of representative men and women from various communities throughout the county.

Nineteen Men Called For Induction Today

Left Oakland This Morning for Fort George G. Meade, Near Baltimore

Nineteen young men left Oakland this morning for Fort George G. Meade for induction into the armed forces, having been previously examined and passed by the army examination station.

Fire Damages Eggers Dwelling On Oak Street

Fire presumably originating from an overheated furnace, seriously damaged the Eggers house on Oak street early last Sunday morning, causing the three occupants to flee and painfully injuring one of them.

The alarm was given about 6:30 o'clock, and firemen fought the blaze for over an hour before it was finally extinguished, but not before it had burned portions of the living room, dining room, a bedroom and the hallway, causing an estimated damage of about $2,000. There was no insurance on either the house or its contents.

The home was occupied by Misses Clara and Annie Eggers and their brother, Joseph Eggers. The former received burns to her arms and face when she attempted to re-enter the house for some personal belongings. All three were taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Eggers, South Third street, where they will remain until spring when necessary repairs can be made.

Fire House to Be Guarded at Night

Will Be Closed to All But Members of Department And Auxiliary

All fire houses in the state have been ordered closed to all persons not members of the department, effective today, January 15, it was announced by Edward A. Shaffer, president of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, Inc.

Two members of the Oakland Volunteer Fire department will perform guard duty each night at the fire house and only known members and persons having legitimate business therein will be admitted, Mr. Shaffer stated.

He added that members of the Auxiliary fire service must show their identification cards in order to be admitted.

Falls From Building; Suffers Injuries

Leonard Riley, about 62 years old, fell from the roof of the new Southern States building, now under construction near the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad station, yesterday and suffered painful injuries to his shoulder and back.

Mr. Riley is the contractor for the construction work on the building and is rooming at the home of Mrs. S. P. Specht.

Following an examination by a local physician Mr. Riley was taken in an ambulance to his home at Shinnston, West Va. The examination revealed no broken bones.

The building is scheduled for completion on or before March first.

ANNUAL LEVY IS COMPLETED BY COMMISSIONERS

Rate of $1.33 Announced Last Week—Full Account of Budget For 1942 Published Today

The full account of the annual levy and budget for the year 1942, prepared by the County Commissioners, is being published this week. The rate was announced last week as $1.33 per $100 of assessable property, with the state rate 14 cents, making a total for state and county purposes $1.47.

The county will operate on an expected revenue of $487,050.97, although the $1.33 tax on the assessable basis of $20,500,000 will bring in only $272,650 of this amount. The property of the Youghiogheny Hydro Electric Corporation is assessed through the State Tax commission, as are all utilities, but the commission reimburses the county. Corporations are assessed at $6,473,932, and the real and personal property assessment is now $13,676,068. Automobiles are assessed at $350,000.

Schools get the largest appropriation, the total amount being $179,178.39. The 51-cent minimum brings $108,209.33, and there are additional items for capital outlay, debt service, etc. These are given in detail in the account.

The County Welfare Board will have $42,592.79 with which to operate for aid to dependent children, board for children, general public assistance, old age pensions, aid to needy blind, administration, etc. The total for public welfare is over $81,500, which includes fire departments, forest fires, fox, cat and weasel bounties, etc.

For general highways $30,500 is appropriated. For the tax collector and treasurer's office $19,520.76 is levied, while the cost of property bought by county at tax sales and the deed reference work in connection with tax sales is placed at $3,000.

General government will cost $40,932.21. The state tax rate of 14 cents on each $100 of assessable property will be applicable on the basis of $14,026,068 and will provide $19,936.50 for state purposes.

Preparing Tax Bills

Tax bills are being prepared so that taxpayers will receive them soon and thus enable many to pay their obligations and earn a five per cent discount during January and February. The discount is reduced to four per cent during March and April.

Thirteen Persons Get Tires During Week

Ten Applicants Obtain Truck Tires and Tubes in Approved Manner

Ten persons got 18 truck tires and 10 tubes, and three people got six passenger car tires and three tubes during the past week through the tire rationing board of the county, according to Walter W. Dawson, chairman.

All who made application passed the necessary requirements and were granted the right of purchase. The quota for the county is 48 truck tires, 40 truck tubes, 11 passenger tires and 9 tubes.

Two passenger car tires each went to William P. Bennett, Kempton; Dr. E. E. Sollars, Deer Park; and Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, Oakland.

Mr. Dawson announced that the Garrett Truck and Implement Company, Oakland, had also been appointed as a tire inspection station in addition to those listed last week.

Many In Attendance at First Aid Meeting Last Night

An unexpected number of persons gathered last night at the City Hall for the opening class of the first aid course being conducted by Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, under regular Red Cross sponsorship. Seventy-five or more persons were there prepared to begin the course that will last ten weeks.

The second class will be held on Wednesday evening at the Knights of Pythias Hall, as the City Hall was found inadequate to accommodate number conveniently.

JOHN THE BAPTIST AND JESUS

GOLDEN TEXT—Thou art my beloved Son; in thee I am well pleased.—Luke 3:22.

"A reed shaken with the wind?" No. "A man clothed in soft raiment?" No. "A prophet? Yea, I say unto you, and more than a prophet. For this is he, of whom it is written, Behold, I send my messenger before thy face. . . . Verily I say unto you, Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist." Such was the testimony of Jesus (Matt. 11:7-11) about the man who in our lesson of today bears his testimony concerning Jesus.

I. John: the Preacher of Repentance (vv. 1-3).

The times in which a man lives will often make or break him. If times are dark and difficult most men submit to the burden of the day without protest or effort. But not so with John. The period in which he lived is graphically brought before us as we consider the names of civil and religious leaders mentioned in verses 1 and 2. Tiberius Caesar, the emperor, was virtual dictator, "talented, ambitious, cruel, licentious, infamous, inhuman" (Van Doren). Pilate was the governor of Judea, who later condemned Jesus to the cross. Herod was a seducer and murderer. Annas and Caiaphas shared the infamy into which the priesthood had fallen.

God needed a man with a flaming message of judgment, and He had him ready out in the wilderness, far from decadent Rome and spiritually dead Jerusalem. Upon this man John came the message, a word from God—"Repent"—which stirred the whole countryside. But he had even a greater mission.

II. John—the Forerunner of Jesus (vv. 4-6).

He humbly identifies himself as the voice in the wilderness prophesied by Isaiah. His was the important duty of preparing the way for the coming of the Lord Jesus.

The picture is that of the preparation for the coming of an oriental monarch. When he "was about to make a journey, a servant was sent before him to prepare the highway. Valleys needed to be filled, hills lowered, crooked places made straight, rough ways made smooth. Thus, before men would be ready to receive Christ, moral obstacles must be removed, men must repent of their sins and turn from them" (Erdman).

Isaiah says that "all flesh shall see the salvation of God," something which God has made possible, but which we have not even yet fully carried out. The gospel is universal in its character—for all mankind. This prophetic word will, of course, have its complete fulfillment when the King comes to reign. Then "they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for they shall all know me, from the least of them to the greatest of them" (Jer. 31:34).

III. John—the Follower of Jesus (vv. 15-17).

The humility of the man, his recognition of true greatness in Christ, his willingness to efface self, is seen in the words of these verses and in such other passages as John 1:29-30, where he directed his disciples to Jesus, whom they followed, and John 3:26-30, where in response to the effort to make him jealous of Jesus because his (John's) disciples followed Him, John replied, "He must increase, but I must decrease." He was glad to be the friend of the Bridegroom who rejoiced when the bridegroom came (John 3:29). He declared himself unworthy to loose the latchet of Christ's shoe (Luke 3:16).

The Christian virtue of humility is evil spoken of by a world of force and hatred, but it is still precious in the sight of God, and the ornament par excellence of Christian character. "Be clothed with humility: for God resisteth the proud and giveth grace to the humble" (I Pet. 5:5).

As he put himself in the background, John put Christ forward as the one whose baptism would not be a material element, water, indicating the inward change of repentance, but would be with Holy Ghost fire, cleansing and transforming life.

However, the Christ who comes as a Saviour to the repentant one, comes also as the flaming fire of judgment upon the impenitent. There is wheat and chaff in the world of men, and the fan of Christ will soon separate the wheat which goes into His eternal garner from the chaff which He will burn with unquenchable fire.

Our God is a God of unfathomable grace, but He is also a God of severest judgment upon those "that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ." Read the solemn words of II Thessalonians 1:7-9. It is an awful thing to reject the Saviour, and thus to make Him our Judge.

Double-breasted coats, two pants suits and vests for double-breasted suits [illegible] on the way out because of shortage of wool, clothing manufacturers state. Styles will also be simplified.

Become Bond Conscious

American people must become bond conscious or they might eventually become bomb conscious.

We are making plans for civilian defense to prepare for bombings, if they should come. But if they become bond conscious and purchase defense savings stamps and bonds, there will be no need to prepare for bombs.

V for Victory Club

Here's one idea that might work. V for Victory clubs are being organized all over the country. The Jaycees have received information on them and are considering sponsoring the idea here.

Each member of the club is pledged to lay aside one penny for each enemy plane downed each week by Allied fighters. Then they buy defense stamps and bonds with the money.

Don't let anyone tell you that preparedness is the "bunk." If our armed forces had been prepared the story would have been different already. We are sure of ultimate victory, of course. Scouts learn to be prepared for emergencies, although the need to use the preparation may never come. A number are attending the first aid course to prepare themselves. The knowledge will be useful, even if never called upon to exercise it.

Knowing what to do in case of an air raid is not going to hurt anyone, even though many think that an insignificant dot on the map like Oakland would never be in danger. Americans don't grasp that the Japanese army can destroy just for the sake of destroying. Remember Pearl Harbor!

Mrs. Lester Yutzy, Crellin, believes that women ought to learn to shoot. That's not a bad idea either. They have a gallery over in that town. There might be a fifth columnist right in your own back yard. And if the women could shoot they would feel safer.

Firemen Preparing

Oakland Firemen have received warning to guard their property. So two firemen will remain each night at the fire house.

This gives rise to speculation as to whether or not the fire insurance rates in town might be reduced. With someone on duty 24 hours a day at the fire house, the danger of destructive fires should be considerably less. Maybe the city council could see about this.

Daylight Saving

Why do the American people need a law to break a habit? Daylight saving time causes a lot of confusion, is unwanted by the farm people, and a needless effort. Why doesn't industry decree that instead of people working from 8 to 5, that they work from 7 to 4; or whatever the usual hours are, making the starting time one hour earlier.

That would not make any change for those farm people who work from daylight to dark anyway, and would serve the same purpose of giving industrial and business workers an hour more of daylight work.

Too Many Boards

The government is filled with too many boards, which cause confusion in the war effort and a lack of coordination in running the regular channels of government.

Until Tuesday there was no one in the United States with whom Lord Beaverbrook of Great Britain could deal as minister of supply. President Roosevelt had steadfastly refused to delegate any person with authority for any post. Always he named a mediation board. If that didn't work he added more men to the board, keeping on the unsatisfactory ones and heaping up the number of people receiving salaries.

With the appointment of a one-man control over the war production it looks like things might get under way as should have been the case months ago.

It might be too far from the past Christmas but should be early enough for next Christmas. Christmas cards of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Loomis carried Christmas seals on a post card, attractively arranged. That's putting Christmas card expenses to a good use.

* * *

A farmer writes on the bottom of a monthly statement as he pays his bill to this office: "What will the Farmers do for farm help next summer?"

Maybe somebody can answer this.

It just isn't fair. They are cutting down the material for men's clothing to make styles like the 1890's, and today there is a story that women's skirts are to be longer. They are taking the cloth from the men and putting it on the women.

What's sauce for the ganders ought to be sauce for the "gooses" too. Why not make the skirts shorter and not so full. The men wouldn't care.

The schools have come in for their share of the levy this year. Out of the $1.33 figure the schools get a total of .8722, and other things in the county get .4578. Of course the $1.33 rate brings in only $272,000, while the entire receipts expected to be used in running the county amount to almost $500,000.

We keep hearing rumors this week of "nests" of aliens being found, all around us, on Summit mountain, in Pittsburgh. They were said to have short wave radios, regular arsenals, maps of industrial plants in Pittsburgh, and even one of the Deep Creek Dam. Each time the rumor is heard it expands. But there is no confirmation from any Federal officials.

I want . . . FIGHTING DOLLARS

America must be strong. Every man and woman must contribute their strength to the strength of America at war.

Some are carrying guns—some are flying planes—some are giving their blood on ships at sea.

YOU on the home front must buy those guns—those planes—those ships. That must be your contribution to freedom under fire! BUY DEFENSE STAMPS AND BONDS TODAY—buy them with every penny you have to spare!

ELECTRIC POWER

. . . Enters into every article produced for national defense

ELECTRIC POWER is the life blood of our defense industry. Vast amounts of current are used night and day to convert raw materials into the finished weapons of defense which will eventually make our country victorious. Consumption has increased many times over normal peacetime demands. Careful planning and efficient use have made plenty of electricity available to meet these extra demands without curtailing its use by the housewife. For better living and better defense use the electricity you need...conserve it where possible.

Maryland Defense Fund Nearly Gone Experts Disclose

Maryland's defense fund is about exhausted. There was a balance of about $39,000 in the fund but state fiscal experts doubted the amount would cover bills now outstanding for operation of the Maryland state guard.

There is a surplus in the general fund of $9,100,000 as of October 1, but funds from that cannot be drawn for defense purposes without legislative authority, the experts assert.

The Maryland Defense Council has about $30,000 available for its operation from now until the legislature meets in 1943. Expenses of tire rationing boards will be deducted from this amount, they said.

The 1941 general assembly appropriated $100,000 in a bond issue for the defense council. Shortly after O'Conor called the state guard to active duty and guardsmen's pay and equipment has come out of this amount. A number of guardsmen were recalled from active duty after the governor informed owners of private industrial plants and municipalities that they must hire their own guards to protect their property, but still a number of guardsmen are needed to protect state interests, the governor said.

AVILTON

We are having quite a siege of winter weather just at this time.

Jesse Merrill is able to be out again following a week of illness of grip and a sore jaw from having a tooth extracted.

Mr. and Mrs. George Fike and their daughter and Elaine Shuck, Frostburg; Ray Fike, Lily Dreese and Mrs. Rose Wilhelm and infant spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Fike.

Rev. Scrogum, of Accident and Jas. DeVault and sons were callers at the Jesse Merrill home on Sunday afternoon. On account of the cold weather there were no services conducted at Cherry Grove church on Sunday.

Mrs. George Grove returned home one day last week after having been under a physician's care at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Violet McKenzie at La Vale. Mrs. Groves' condition is not much improved.

Mrs. Fannie Weitzell has an attack of lagrippe.

James Turner spent the week-end with relatives in Baltimore.

Mrs. Walter Chaney was in Frostburg on Saturday evening.

O. S. Fike made a business trip to Frostburg on Tuesday.

Bloomington Firemen Elect Officers

Other officers elected are Charles Pattison, treasurer; William Smith, recording secretary; Claude Mooreland, financial secretary; Charles Pattison, fire chief; William Smith, first assistant chief; Harry Clark, second assistant chief; Jake Rodriguez, captain; Claude Mooreland, first lieutenant; Kenneth Kooken, second lieutenant; and William Bevers, sergeant-at-arms.

BITTINGER

Last week was the coldest week of the winter. Some snow fell and we suffered some sub-zero weather, which halted all out-of-door activities for a time.

The regular annual meeting of the stockholders of the Bittinger Mutual Telephone Company was not held on Saturday, as scheduled, but because weather conditions prevented the attendance of a sufficient number of stockholders.

Constable Daniel Hershberger, of Grantsville was in this community on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Walter Krause is seriously ill at her home as the result of an attack of measles.

O. C. Buckle and Melvin Stanton spent last Monday afternoon at Accident on business.

Lawrence and Harold Brenneman are both ill of the measles and are confied to their homes as a result.

Elmer Shawley has sold his sugar timber to Arthur Resh, a lumberman of Jennings, and the cutting of the timber will soon begin.

The Senate rejected an appeal of the President and gave Secretary of Agriculture Wickard a virtual veto power over wartime price ceilings on farm prices.

Turning Over An Old Leaf

By Phillip A. Gladheim

"There were faces to remember in the Valley of the Shadow;
There were faces unregarded, there
are faces to forget;
There were fires of grief and fear
that are a few forgotten ashes;
There are sparks of recognition that are not forgotten yet."

The transition from wagon, buggy, and sled to automobile, truck and tractor, was gradual. It is most likely that the return to these primitive modes of travel will be sudden, and in large measure find the people unprepared. Most people still believe that the horse and buggy days will never return. These old-fashioned contraptions will most likely become very fashionable—because they do not require rubber. The Japs have cut us off from our supply of rubber. This means that automobile factories, dealers, oil companies, service stations, garage men—will face unemployment—and if the supply is not restored to normalcy in two years—the whole industry will have to start from scratch.

It will be comparatively easy for the progressive Garrett County farmer to return to the more primitive modes of travel. Even though no factory exists today to make a sled—he needs only to cut down some saplings, growing upon his ridge. For wheels he will have to depend for the time being on 'tireless' auto-wheels, set them to a hand-made wagon chassis, and hitch the old grey mare to it. The only difference is that he will be moving slower, have less accidents, less taxes, insurance, and much less overhead. We have all been admitting for sometime that we have been living too fast—we would hate like sin to admit that the Japs have 'toned us down—and slowed our pace.' But whatever comes, let us be ready—that is the important thing.

Our country-side has been blanketed with snow for over a week. In the sleigh-bell days—we really enjoyed the snow. We were not afraid of skidding against guard-rails, and plunging over a precipice to our death. We wanted more and more snow—perhaps that is why we seemed to have more snow than we have today. There was nothing finer in those January evenings of yore—to see the new moon ensilver the landscape—adding to the distinctiveness of the night silhouettes of the forests, the occasional buildings that dotted the fields, here and there. Then on leaving the living-room for the outside, feeling the frosty-air of twilight, after the wind had died down, you heard the faint tintinnabulation of the merry sleigh-bells. You knew that just around the bend of the road there was on its way a party of hilarious friends, coming for an evening around the fire-side, where between the distribution of cider and cookies we would pop corn and tell tall tales. What greetings—and what adieus. The young dames with the rosy-cheeks, and the young blades with a healthy sparkle in the eyes. If such society is indigenous to horse and sleigh, the forced lack of rubber will not be a calamity; we will just begin to live again. We will let ourselves be tucked in under wool-blankets and animal skins—take the reins, and then dash off to meet the gang, not at a road-side tavern—but perhaps on some mountain-top where sleds and toboggans are started on their roaring and rollicking pace down into the valley. Along with sleds and toboggans we now have skis; these also do not depend on rubber. Most of the ski-enthusiasts are from outside the county. You can count on them getting here in spite of rubber.

ROAST STUFFED SPARERIBS

Two sections of spareribs, 1 cup fine dry bread crumbs, ¼ cup diced salt pork, ½ cup chopped celery, ½ cup chopped onion, ¼ cup chopped parsley, 5 tart apples, diced; ½ cup sugar, ¾ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper.

Select well-fleshed rib sections that match. Have the breastbone cracked so that it will be easy to carve between the ribs. Wipe the meat with a damp cloth. Prepare the stuffing as follows: Fry the salt pork until crisp and remove the pieces from the skillet. Cook the celery, onion and parsley in the fat for a few minutes and remove them. Put the apples into the skillet, sprinkle with the sugar, cover and cook until tender, then remove the lid and continue to cook until the juice evaporates and the pieces of apple are candied. Mix with the apples the bread crumbs, crisp salt pork, cooked vegetables, salt and pepper. Lay one section of the ribs out flat, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and spread with the hot stuffing. Cover with the other section and sew the two together. Sprinkle the outside with salt and pepper and rub with flour. Lay the stuffed ribs on a rack in an open roasting pan and sear in a hot oven (480 degrees F.) for 20 minutes, or until the meat is lightly browned. Reduce the oven temperature rapidly to very moderate heat (300 to 325 degrees) and contiue to cook for about an hour longer, or until the meat is tender. Remove the strings before serving the stuffed spareribs on a hot platter.

Oven-Barbecued Spareribs.

Cut into serving-size pieces, about 2 or 3 ribs wide, 2 strips or sheets of spareribs (4 to 5 pounds). Spread them, meaty side up, in a large shallow baking pan. Sprinkle lightly with one teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper. On each piece put one thin slice of lemon, sprinkle over all, generously. 1 large onion chopped fine. Put into hot oven (450 degrees) uncovered, for 45 minutes to brown a bit. Mix and bring to a boil to make barbecue sauce 1 teaspoon Chili powder, 1 tablespoon celery seed, ¼ cup brown sugar, ¼ cup vinegar, ¼ cup Worcestershire sauce, 1 cup tomato catsup, 2 cups water and a few drops of Tabasco sauce (may be omitted). After the 45 minutes are up pour barbecue sauce over ribs, reduce heat to 350 degrees and continue roasting for 1 to 1½ hours longer. Note: Don't cover pan at any time, but do baste and turn ribs occasionally so that they soak up the rich sauce and brown all over. If sauce gets too thick, add a little hot water.

Liver and Macaroni

Melt in frying pan ¾ tablespoon fat. Add and brown one pound white onions, peeled and sliced, and one green pepper diced. Add and brown lightly one pound beef liver cut in small pieces. Add 3 cups tomato juice, 1 cup tomato catsup, ½ teaspoon salt and dash pepper. Sprinkle over top 2 cups uncooked macaroni. Cover pan tightly. Leave on high heat until steam appears. Turn to low heat for about 30 minutes. Do not remove cover once switch has been turned down. Sprinkle over top with Parmesan cheese.

AURORA-EGLON

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Mankins announce the birth of a daughter, born January 9, at their home in Rowlesburg. The baby has been named Sarah Sandra. The mother was the former Miss Alice Teets, of Aurora. This is their second child. The father is employed by the Peoples Life Insurance Company.

The Rev. Loring M. Howell, (retired), of Aurora, passed away of a heart attack at his home early Saturday morning, January 10. He was a former Methodist minister, of Aurora. Funeral services were conducted Monday morning at the Aurora M. E. church by Rev. Lyons, after which the body was taken to Shinnston, W. Va., for burial.

The Aurora high basketball team, leading all the way, had little trouble disposing of Newburg high on the local floor, Tuesday night, January 13.

The Misses Creola and Viola Fike, twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Fike, of near Eglon, went Sunday to Washington, D. C. Creola has a government position there and Viola expects to obtain a position also.

Elza Bland and Russel Feather, of Eglon, went to Philadelphia, Pa., Wednesday, and from there transported on Thursday a truck load of plywood to Petersburg, W. Va.

Among those present last Sunday at a birthday dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Roth, Horse Shoe Run, were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hauser and two children, of Potomac Park, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Snyder and two children, of Eglon.

Mrs. Ray Beeghly and little son, Jimmie, of Sunnyside, spent several days last week with Mrs. Beeghly's foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Fichtner, Eglon.

Mrs. John Harsh and daughter Ila, went last Thursday, by bus, to Philadelphia, Pa., where Ila has been an occasional patient in the Shriner's hospital for crippled children. They returned to their home in Eglon, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wotring, of Potomac Park, visited their parents, at Horse Shoe Run, and Grafton, W. Va., Wednesday and Thursday.

Lee Winters, Eglon, who has been a patient in the Tucker County hospital at Parsons, W. Va., for some time, is reported to be convalescing.

Despite the cold weather a very large crowd attended the public sale of L. B. Harsh's, Wednesday.

John Evans and John T. Fike, of near Eglon, visited on Monday with John Hile, who is a patient at Tucker County hospital, Parsons, W. Va.

Guy Harvey, of near Eglon, who has been suffering of an infected foot for many months, went to a Fairmont hospital Thursday, for treatment. He has had previous hospitalization for this, but has been at his home for the past several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. John Rembold, Eglon, enjoyed the presence at their home last Sunday, of their entire family, namely: Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Rembold and baby, of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Helmick and three children, of Pierce, W. Va., and Robert, at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Selders have moved from Pittsburgh, Pa., to the home of Mrs. Selder's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Harvey.

COMMON SENSE FOR VICTORY

Today the United States is at war. We are saving rags, paper, rubber, aluminum, tin and everything that goes into equipping a modern army.

Every family head knows the importance of prudent spending. This care is doubly important in times of emergency. If a member of the family is taken sick, stinting on medical care is out of the question. But to meet the doctor's bill we watch other expenses and cut corners wherever possible.

This is just as important in government spending as it is for the family. And in an all out war it is vital to victory.

The cost of war is tremendous, and we all agree that Victory must be attained no matter what the price.

However, this does not mean that we can with safety continue to squander billions for what during the war are non essentials.

The Byrd Joint Congressional Committee has submitted a report to Congress which clearly shows how over $1,300,000,000 can be diverted from unnecessary governmental services and turned over to the war effort. This would be no small contribution to victory. It is more than enough to pay for 165 destroyers or buy equipment for over 4,000,000 soldiers.

This war is to preserve Democracy. The soul of Democracy is the right of a citizen to govern himself through his elected representatives. In these times citizens should be worthy of that right, and should exercise it—in this instance by instructing their representatives at Washington to support the recommendations of the Byrd Committee and see to it that non essentials do not divert one dollar away from the war effort.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS .....

The Same Old Formula

Washington, Jan. 10.

The announced reorganization by the President of the Office of Civilian Defense is discouraging. It is not a real reorganization; it is a phony one. Unable to bring himself to the point of grappling the problem in a forthright manner, Mr. Roosevelt again has temporized, compromised and conciliated. The result is an arrangement not satisfactory to anyone and which it requires unreasonable optimism to believe will function well.

It is typical of the way Mr. Roosevelt operates. It is the sort of thing he has done with the war-production machinery three distinct times since the creation of the first Defense Commission and which, so it is reported, he is about to do again. When an agency bogs down, the President does not clean it up and start over. Instead, his formula is to impose a new board on the original one, shuffle things around a bit, and if he brings in new men he keeps the old ones, too. Having done that, he assumes the situation has been straightened out. But it very quickly becomes clear that it has not been straightened at all. All he has done is to increase the confusion and cost, because, while he has shifted new men to the top or near the top, he has not cleared out the old men. The result is a mess.

The President himself has said that the real weakness of the New Deal lay in its administration. He should know, and certainly there is ample proof. He and his aides have gone on the principle that a speech made, a law passed and a board created meant that the objective had been achieved. Actually, all it has meant has been an increase in the jobholders and bewilderment without progress. That was the story before the Hitler threat and it has been the story of the defense effort since its inauguration in 1940, when the war clouds grew too black to ignore. This business of Mayor LaGuardia and the OCD is in tune with past performances.

The appointment by the President of Mayor LaGuardia and the appointment by Mayor LaGuardia of Mrs. Roosevelt as his assistant put in charge of this important job two part-time amateurs, each immersed in many other activities and neither with any gift for organization. With the outbreak of war, it became clear that here was a situation which could no longer be tolerated. In personal conversation, Mr. Roosevelt told various people that he felt Mr. LaGuardia had as much as any man could do to look after the defense of the city of which he is Mayor and that something had to be done. The public and press demand for his resignation has been loud and constant. Its only effect was to develop the natural obstinacy of Mr. LaGuardia and cause him violently to denounce his critics as pro-Japanese.

When it became clear, as it has been for weeks, that the LaGuardia position was untenable, the natural and logical action for the President was to concede that a mistake had been made, ask for the LaGuardia resignation and put the whole business of civilian defense under the War Department, where it properly belongs. But that is not the way Mr. Roosevelt meets situations like this. That involves admitting that the mistake was his; that he had fumbled the thing from the beginning and that those who had criticized him were right.

It simply is not in the President to make admissions of that kind. There is a curious self-esteem about the man that drives him to persist in a blunder rather than concede that he has blundered. His record is full of instances. This is just another of a long sequence, but, coming at this time, it is disheartening generally. It weakens belief in his ability to measure up to his own high oratorical standards. In brief, he talks better than he acts. In this case, instead of getting a new Director for the OCD in place of the man who clearly ought not to have anything to do with it, he retains that man as the head of the organization and, pulling another—Dean James M. Landis—out of his law school, makes him the "executive" at a salary of $10,000 a year.

The objections to this are clear. If Mr. LaGuardia is to be shorn of power and Mr. Landis the real boss, then the Mayor's position becomes silly and the effort to save his face is useless expense. On the other hand, if Mr. LaGuardia is to continue as boss and Mr. Landis is to serve under him and Mrs. Roosevelt, then there is no change in the situation except that $10,000 has been added to the cost. And if Mr. LaGuardia and Mr. Landis are to have "coequal power," then another of these Knudsen-Hillman situations which have so handicapped the OPM will have been created. Altogether, it is an absurd state of affairs which obviously cannot last. In due time it will be followed by another shift; but, meanwhile, the muddle of the civilian-defense management remains unimproved, save that at least one of the top executives will give his whole time to the job.

So far as Mr. Landis personally is concerned, there is nothing to be said in criticism of him. Nevertheless, there are several things that can be—and are being—said. One is that there is nothing in the Landis record as a lawyer and a teacher to stand him out as an organizer on the large scale required by OCD. Another is that the President's "reorganization" was timed to block threatened House action to knock Mr. LaGuardia loose from the OCD and transfer the whole outfit to the War Department. The third is that it is unfortunate that whenever Mr. Roosevelt brings a new man into a key position he always picks a third-term New Dealer and avoids such men as Wendell Willkie, Herbert Hoover, Howard Bruce, Lewis Douglas, John E. Hanes, Alfred P. Sloan, James A. Farley, all of whom are available. It lends color to the charge that he is trying to win the war just with the people he likes.

To The Editor of The Republican:

Basing our judgment on the Jap attempt to effect subjugation in China, we Americans have usually regarded the collective status of Japanese intelligence as something far below world standards, an aggregation of brain-power unable to direct successful aggression. But this is a dangerous mistake.

The I. Q. of the average Jap citizen perhaps isn't enjoying uncomfortable elevation, but these yellow-race members are cunning, daring, rapid thinkers—as well as treacherous.

High officials at the German embassy in Tokyo fear the Japs' craftiness, but they refuse to recognize or respect them as superiors. Many a Jap lower-rung official has vehemently complained of German arrogance. But, haughty as the Aryan "blue-blood" may be, he, if pressed, readily admits that the shrewdness of the Japanese is uncanny. This is not consistent with Teutonic policy to fear anyone—except, of course, a Russian—for fear and the Nazi regime has never blended well.

The Japanese people are incapable, to a great extent, of creating anything original. They copy from other countries everything from designs on dishes to the construction of bombers and tanks. Right now a very large portion of their war equipment is to some degree copied from English, German, Italian, French and American types or models.

In order to properly match these yellow winners of the medal for unprecedented treachery—with which, of course, all Japs are well supplied—we must keep American confidence riding high, but not too high, for past cases of over-confidence abroad has taught, or should have taught us, that any nation dealing with organized cut-throats of world renown, should remain vigilant until victory is thoroughly assured.

Importance of Good Posture Is Stressed

Heads Up and Deep Breathing Are a Help in Resisting Disease

Stressing the importance of good posture as an aid in keeping fit, Dr R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, said that though the advice often given by President Roosevelt to "keep your chin up" is usually intended to strengthen individual morale, it is equally applicable to physical well-being.

"Heads up and deep breathing" could very appropriately lead the list, Dr. Riley said, of personal habits that are a special help in strengthening one's resistance to disease.

"The human mechanism requires a constant supply of clean, fresh air," he continued, "to keep functioning properly. We all know when we are 'food hungry,' but we don't realize what is the matter with us when we are droopy or drowsy or below par physically, because we are 'air hungry.'

"To take the necessary supply of air into the lungs you have to learn to breathe deeply. You can't breathe deeply when you slump and slouch. To get a deep, satisfying breath of fresh air—whether indoors or out-of-doors—you have to hold your head up.

"Physiologists explain that good posture and good breathing habits bring the whole framework of the body into better alignment and help to tone-up the entire system and make it more resistant to disease, with heads up, chest out—not narrowed and contracted—and abdomen flat, there is greater room for expansion of the lungs, free action of the heart, and better circulation of the blood. The digestion is benefitted, in turn, through the toning-up of the muscles supporting the whole digestive apparatus.

"But the toning-up does not end with physical fitness. Heads up, shoulders squared and good breathing habits, help to strengthen the moral muscles also. There is a certain self-respect that comes with heads up; and courage, too, to face whatever comes. Try it, and see for yourself."

The Maryland Traffic Safety Commission's slogan for the week is: "If you're as bright as your lights, you'll dim 'em."

Washington Snapshots

By JAMES PRESTON

There is little rejoicing here at the outcome of the management-labor conference. It's more than the fact that labor has scored another potential victory on the closed shop issue. The general feeling is that little progress has been made toward the formulation of a definite war labor policy for the country.

The so-called "agreement" reached by the conferees was, in fact, no agreement at all. It was announced by the White House, not the conference, and represented the program of the labor delegates without offering any concessions to the representatives of industry. It was, observers pointed out, an effort by the administration to give the semblance of unity on basic labor issues.

The program announced by the President consists of the following points: For the duration of the war, industry and labor have agreed that there shall be no strikes or lockouts; that all disputes shall be settled by peaceful means; and that the President shall set up a War Labor Board to handle whatever disputes come up.

Almost from the beginning of the conference, industrial representatives were prepared to accept this program proposed by the labor delegates, on condition that a fourth point specifically excluding the closed shop as an issue for arbitration was added.

In spite of the fact that there was no agreement on this fourth point, industrial spokesmen have announced their readiness to cooperate in the maintenance of industrial peace. They feel that the National War Labor Board has possibilities—that is, on two conditions — that the members of the Board, when selected, are truly representative of the various interests concerned; and that the Board adopt, immediately after its creation, definite and constructive policies to govern its operations.

The later point is made time and again by informed observers, who are predicting that the new Board is doomed to the same failure as the Defense Mediation Board, unless it adopts a set of guiding principles at the outset, and repudiates any policy that smacks of equivocation.

Businessmen here feel that the Defense Mediation Board muffed completely the solution to the closed shop question. They agree with the industrial members of the President's conference that the new Board, as a cardinal principle, "should not accept for arbitration or consideration the issue of the closed shop, requiring a person to become or remain a member of a labor organization if he is to get or hold a job." The right to belong or not to belong to a union is an individual right, management has insisted, and neither employers nor the Government should exercise any compulsion.

Every business in the country is prepared to do its bit in defeating the Axis. It is recognized here that industry is not merely paying lip service to the need for cooperation in the war effort, but has actually rolled up both sleeves as a demonstration with appropriate action of its willingness to co-operate.

The aviation industry, which in the peacetime year of 1937 made a little more than $100 million worth of airplanes, expanded to an output of about $1.5 billion last year. In 1942, aviation will join the industrial giants with a production of more than $3 billion.

The Army and Navy have called for 4,000 planes a month by next November. That means almost doubling the current rate of production. OPM experts are hopeful that, with the aviation and automobile industries cooperating, the desired rate can be reached.

Another illustration is the aluminum industry. In 1937, this industry was concentrating on needs for pots and pans, railroad trains and automobiles. From a production of less than 300 million pounds that year, its output jumped to 600 million pounds in 1941, with airplane producers the big customer. This year, it is expected that production will top 800 million pounds.

It makes us feel not so bad that: The Library of Congress has already removed to a place of greater security its four most-prized original documents: The Magna Carta, the Gutenberg Bible, the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States.

Plans are afoot to triple America's synthetic rubber production program. This will be undertaken if enough materials can be provided for the construction and operation of the new plants.

More than $200 million worth of strategic war materials owned by foreigners was uncovered by the Treasury's census of alien-owned property. This property has been turned over to the SPAB, which plans to use it in the Allied war effort. Some of the property had been hidden in warehouses and factories by Axis agents, and consisted of aluminum, brass, automobile parts, tools and machinery . . . all of which, Treasury officials point out, can be used by the United States to good advantage.

Shows Typical Spirit

A letter received by a feminine defense worker, Baltimore, from her soldier friend located in Washington, D. C., seems to display the typical American spirit, and permission has been granted to use it. The letter follows:

December 8th, 1941
General Headquarters U. S. Army,
Army War College,
Washington, D. C.

Dear ——————,

Now that the reality exists, and most of us are just a little confused and bewildered, but unafraid, it's difficult to say anything that would be of interest, since all that would be apparent to talk about, you already know. The excitement and confusion and immediate danger necessitates staying in and around the War College at all times. Only on special permission may we leave here and stay away for any length of time.

Now that we are all in this thing up to the hilt, we can feel a pride in doing all that we are asked to do. For the first time in my enlistment, I feel like a soldier. You and all the rest of the American people can feel as I do, if you will conduct yourselves in an orderly and confident manner, and do as you are told at all times in regard to the defense of your country and yourselves. There is no doubt that you will be one of the assets in any home defenses that you are called on to do, and you would probably get a great deal of satisfaction and pride in doing something in the way of helping us win this war with the least bit of confusion among our families at home, which is so important when we are absent and can't help them ourselves. The air raid warnings and the sighting of planes off the Atlantic Coast, certainly leaves no doubt in our minds that we are in great danger of attack, and must be prepared fully at all times. You need feel no longer that your job isn't an important one. You are doing a job to help speed up, in what ever small way it may be, the mobilizing of troops and supplies to enable us to win with the least delay and the smallest number of lives lost. You are in the Army in another capacity, and can hold your head high with the thought that you too are a part of the defense of our Nation. It's just so damned exciting that it makes me want to leave immediately for front-line duty. If we ever needed faith in anything, we certainly need it now in our great country, our Army and ourselves.

Under these circumstances, and you can appreciate their gravity, it's difficult to tell when I'll be able to leave with any assurance of a stay of more than a few hours. I shall call you at the first opportunity, if I may, so don't forget that we are both in the Army and can be proud of each other and ourselves.

In anticipation of at least a while with you, and maybe a ride on the horses on the farm, where peace can be found, be a good girl, keep up the spirit of all you contact that need it, as our victory is assured.

Love, D. N.

Glades Star Contains Founders' Roll List

The December issue of the Glades Star, official publication of the Garrett county historical society, contains the founders' roll of the organization which numbers 16 life members and 508 regular members, for a total of 524.

All districts of the county except one are represented. Charles E. Hoye, president, has announced the goal of the club as 1,000 members.

A historical records committee is now collecting and filing records, documents, letters, books, etc., relating to local history and a space in the vault at the court house will be used for those records.

The next issue of the Glades Star will be devoted to an account of the two Revolutionary War military companies in which inhabitants of what is now Garrett county served, according to Mr. Hoye.

I SEE BY THE DAILIES THAT

Maryland industry is in need of material and men for war work, a survey reveals.

To conserve sugar and increase production of industrial alcohol for war purposes, the production of whisky was ordered cut sharply.

The Blue Network, Inc., is now operating as a separate network.

The OPM extended the ban on automobile sales until February 2nd.

Production of synthetic rubber, now being expanded, will be able to supply U. S. with two-thirds of its own needs in 1943.

U. S. signed a pact for lease-lend aid to Uruguay.

The stocking industry has declared definitely it was through with silk.

The selective service director declared it would be a long time before married men with one or more children will be called for army duty. The U. S. would have an army of seven or eight million men before such registrants were needed.

More and Better Gardens Campaign Planned in State

A state-wide campaign to encourage home production of vegetables and fruits is being planned by the University of Maryland extension service, in cooperation with specialists in other departments of the institution.

In line with a national garden conference held in Washington recently, it will be the aim to reinforce the effort to greatly increase production of food products and to improve health through encouraging better food habits and the use of high-vitamin and mineral foods.

The campaign is being organized under the direction of Miss Venia M. Kellar, assistant director of the ex- of home demonstration work. Working with her are specialists in vegetables and fruits and in nutrition. The home demonstration and agricultural agents in the respective counties will arrange for meetings and take the leadership in the campaign directly with the people. They will have the assistance and advice of specialists and will be furnished material of various kinds which will aid in securing satisfactory production of garden products.

It is not considered necessary to utilize lawns, parks, or other ornamental and recreational areas. Miss Kellar emphasizes, but it is hoped that every farm will have a family garden and that a large percentage of the families living in towns can also arrange to produce at least a considerable portion of their needs in the way of vegetables.

Two main objectives in the campaign will be the widest possible dissemination of a clear understanding of what the program is and of ways and means for its accomplishment. The support and assistance will be enlisted of all who are in any way interested, including members of the seed and nursery industry, teachers, boys and girls, and others. In line with the national designation, the program in this State will be known as the "Maryland Victory Garden Program."

Mother Says Daughter Was Not Married; Asks For Corrected Story

Through apparent deliberate misrepresentation of facts given by three young men, The Republican last week reported a marriage event which the mother of the "supposed to be bride" has declared "a big falsehood."

Since one of the three giving the information last week was the "supposed bridegroom," it was not thought necessary to check the records at the court house, but it developed that had this been done, no such misstatement would have appeared.

Dawson Sisler, Jasper Sisler and Chauncy Lowdermilk last week gave the information that the latter had been married to Mildred VanSickle, of Cranesville, on January 4, at Blooming Rose. They gave the usual marriage details without any hesitation, when asked.

On Tuesday The Republican received the letter from Mrs. Lewis VanSickle asking for a correction, since the information was false. A check of the records at the court house revealed that there had never been any application for a marriage license by either of the parties, and that of course, no marriage license had been issued. No marriage, therefore, could be legally performed in this county without such a permit.

The Republican regrets the false announcement.

To Organize the State For Salvage Purposes

Maryland's counties are being organized behind the "Salvage for Victory" campaign, H. Findlay French, chairman, cooperating with the state defense council, has appointed regional chairmen including H. C. Treisler, Hagerstown, and a chairman for each of the counties will be named in the near future.

The county chairman will direct the work of organizing collection of waste paper, scrap, rubber, etc. Meanwhile residents of Maryland are urged to save such materials and dispose of them through regular junk dealers or through their favorite charities.

Boy Scouts Gather Paper

Members of the Oakland Boy Scout troop are asking citizens to save their paper and magazines for them. They are collecting it the first of each month.

The money received from the sale of the paper and magazines will be used for scout service in the community.

Robbers Break Into Service Station At Friendsville

Robbers broke into the Frazee Service Station in Friendsville early Sunday morning and carried off cash, automobile tubes and cigarettes. A .32 calibre automatic pistol was also taken.

Entrance was gained by breaking a small section of glass in one of the front windows, then unlocking the window. Corporal Thomas Currie, of the State Police, and county authorities are investigating the case. A finger print expert from the Police department in Cumberland was also called.

This is the second time within the past year that this service station has been robbed.

Champion Girls' Quint To Play at Elk Garden

The All American Red Head World's Champion basketball team of girls, will play the K. of P. club of Elk Garden, W. Va., on Tuesday, January 20, it has been announced.

The game is called for 8 o'clock and admission is 25 and 40 cents. The red heads play only amateur men's independent, school and college teams, play men's rules and ask no favors.

Special Precautions Needed to Keep Fit

"Catching" Diseases Are Always Prevalent At This Time Of Year

As a means of keeping fit and ready for any duty that may come, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, sends out this reminder that certain "catching" diseases—colds, grippe, pneumonia, measles, scarlet fever and other so-called "children's diseases"—are always prevalent at this time of the year, and urges grown-ups and all who are responsible for the health of children to take special precautions to avoid sickness from them at this time.

"Diseases have their seasons," Dr. Riley said, "and increase or decrease with seasonal changes. Winter is the time when the respiratory diseases reach their peak. Certain of the so-called children's diseases, are especially prevalent also during the winter months.

"Certain precautionary measures will help you to ward off such diseases, or to lessen their severity if you do become ill from them: Here are some of the most important:

"Health living—a well balanced diet; dressing according to the weather and this includes galoshes or overshoes and other protection against the weather and against unnecessary chilling; moderate exercise out of doors, every day; and plenty of rest—is a source of strength and one of the best ways to develop individual resistance to disease.

"Don't go unnecessarily to places where there is illness from any of the 'catching' diseases. And do not permit children who are well to mingle or play with those who are ill—even if the sick child has 'only a cold.'

"The fingers and hands can very easily pick up infection from sources contaminated by those who are ill. Keep your hands away from your nose or mouth. And always wash your hands before eating or before preparing food for the table.

"Be very careful not to neglect a persistent cold.

"For both grown-ups and children, what seems to be 'only a cold' may be the beginning of something much more serious.

"If you have a persistent cold, especially if it is accompanied by fever, or if you are ill otherwise and suspect the presence of any of these 'winter' diseases, send for your doctor and follow his advice."

Air Raid Wardens Asked To Be Ready for Emergency

All deputy wardens in the county are asked to be ready for a blackout at any moment, according to J. W. Owens, chief air raid warden for Garrett county.

While there is no definite information, Mr. Owens said he felt that a warning might come at any moment and that everyone in the county should be ready.

Should a warning come, people should be prepared to carry out all rules and regulations laid down by the wardens in their various districts. This may be just a trial blackout or a genuine warning, he advised.

Red Cross Workers Complete Many Garments

Red Cross volunteer workers are keeping at their job of sewing garments for war sufferers. Announcement was made this week of those who have been busy.

Those at the headquarters were Mrs. F. E. Rathbun, Mrs. W. W. Grant, Mrs. Harry McRobie, Mrs. Earl Enlow, Mrs. Paul Mitchell, who cut out baby clothes for the layettes. On Wednesday Mrs. Elizabeth Schoch, Mrs. Karl Kahl and Mrs. G. B. Miller were at the machines, and Mrs. Walter Dawson at the pinker. Cutting were Mrs. Tom Graser, Mrs. Scott Shirer, Mrs. Hugh Teets, Mrs. Frances Conoly, Mrs. John Khare, Mrs. Harry Stemple and Mrs. Harry White.

Mrs. Harry McRobie has reported that the 100 pairs of boys pants were on their way to completion with the aid of Mrs. Benjamin Koch, who made 20 pairs, Miss Irene Thayer, 5 pairs, Mrs. Hattie Merrill, 9 pairs. Mrs. McRobie has taken the material for the 80 snowsuits.

Mrs. E. C. Clatterbuck, Deer Park, reports that the 99 girls' skirts, are almost complete. The second quota has been completed, packed and shipped. It contained 30 layettes amounting to 780 garments, 20 hospital bed shirts, 15 women's dresses, 15 children's dresses.

The headquarters will be open every Wednesday and Thursday, and not on Tuesday, it was announced. Mrs. Harry White has been appointed chairman of sewing and her assistants are Mrs. W. W. Grant and Mrs. F. E. Rathbun.

Miss Louise Dillon, Accident home economics teacher, has taken 15 garments to be sewed for the layettes. Mrs. Lloyd Durst, Mrs. Lester Yutzy, Mrs. E. R. Jones and Mrs. H. F. Stockslager are included in the list of sewers. Baity Ridder has been serviceing the machines free of charge and moving of material has been done by Francis W. Sanders in like manner.

DIED

MRS. A. C. WARNICK

Mrs. Clara Warnick, wife of Arthur C. Warnick, Oakland merchant, died suddenly last Saturday evening about 8:10 o'clock, at the downtown apartment of Mrs. Willard Dunbar. Death was due to a heart attack.

Mrs. Warnick had recovered from a heart attack about two years ago but she was not in the best of health since that time.

She was a daughter of the late Jonas and Emma Setzer and was born at Crellin, January 22, 1896. She was aged 45. Mr. and Mrs. Warnick had been residents of Oakland for the past twenty years.

Surviving are her husband, one son, Forrest Warnick, of Oakland; Mrs. Adair White, Cumberland; Mrs. Robert James, Tarentum, Pa., and Lucille Warnick, at home; also one brother, Harry Setzer, Coudersport, Pa., and three grandchildren. Her mother died in September, 1940.

She was a member of the Methodist church first at Crellin and later at Oakland, and funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 from the Oakland Methodist church with Rev. Minor Sprague, pastor, officiating. Interment was in the Oakland cemetery.

MISS GLADYS YOUNKIN

Miss Gladys Younkin, aged 33 years, died early Friday evening, January 9, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Younkin, Grantsville. She had suffered a heart attack about noon and died within a few hours thereafter.

Surviving are her parents, two sisters, Miss Ruth Younkin, near Pittsburgh, and Miss Mary Younkin, at home; three brothers, Harry and Walter Younkin, Grantsville, and Clarence Younkin, Baltimore.

Rev. L. A. Wagner, Accident, conducted the funeral services on Sunday afternoon from the home with interment in the Grantsville cemetery. Pallbearers were Luther Huff, Harry Huff, Cecil Stanton and Frank Klotz. Attending the funeral from here were Mr. and Mrs. Truman Bittinger.

MRS. HATTIE HOSKENS

Funeral services were conducted at Kitzmiller on Monday for Mrs. Hattie Hoskens, who died Friday, January 9, en route to a hospital.

Rev. Howard Wriston, pastor of the Methodist church, officiated at the services which were held in the church there, of which the deceased was a member.

Surviving are three children, Thomas Hoskens, Henrietta Hoskens and Florence Hoskens, all at home; also three brothers and a sister.

GEORGE COLUMBUS LEE

George Columbus Lee, 56, died at his home in Kitzmiller Sunday morning, January 11, following a heart attack. He is the son of the late John and Elizabeth Sharpens Lee and is a native of Mt. Zion, this county.

Mr. Lee, a former coal miner, retired twelve years ago after he was injured in a mining accident.

Surviving is one sister, Mrs. Anna Kisner. Funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon with interment in Mt. Zion cemetery.

JOHN HOEFER

John Hoefer, aged 85 years, died at the home of Mrs. Mary Martha Purnell, on the Mountain Lake Park road, last Friday, January 9. He suffered a stroke of paralysis in June and had been in ill health from that time until his death.

The deceased was born December 14, 1856, in Brooklyn, New York, and came to Garrett county about 1908 to work on the State road between Oakland and Accident. He began working for the H. Weber and Sons Company in 1909, and continued in the firm's employ until 1928, when he lost his eyesight. He had been staying at the Purnell home for twelve years.

Funeral services were conducted on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Leighton Funeral Home with Rev. Garrett Evans, Methodist minister at Mountain Lake Park, officiating. Interment was in the Oakland cemetery.

There are no surviving relatives as far as known.

DIARY OF THE WAR

FRIDAY—Allies suffered serious setbacks in Malaya with Japs endangering the rubber center of Juala Lumpur, 240 miles above Singapore. In Philippines MacArthur prepared his defenses for a big-scale Jap assault which was expected hourly. Allied bombers raided Bangkok. Vast Red forces were added to the fighting line and continued to push Nazis back. In Africa the Axis forces had escaped from Agedabia under cover of storms and had retreated westward. Japs declared martial law in Manila. Malta had ten air raid warnings. The main Jap base in China was threatened by Chinese forces.

SATURDAY—Jap invaders were still going forward in Malaya. Japs were bringing up more troops for an assault on American-Filipino forces on Luzon. U. S. subs were active in Pacific and struck a Jap ship near Tokyo. U. S. lost a vessel near Dutch East Indies. Chinese reported a big offensive around Canton and Nanchang. Russians claimed to have lifted the 6-months siege of Leningrad. In Crimea 100,000 Nazis were in danger of envelopment. Reds took Mosalsk in drive toward Hitler's winter line in central sector. RAF bombers were blasting Axis supply lines in Libya battle.

SUNDAY—Reds reported that hundreds of Fascist soldiers were surrendering without resistance. They reported new successes on Moscow front. Nazis were rushing reinforcements by plane for an attempted stand. British were warned of a crisis in Malaya. Australians flying American bombers scored four direct hits on a Jap ship. Nazis were denying threats of revolt and seeking recruits in a sustained drive. British bombed Axis tanks in Libya where they may have been preparing for a new stand. A Jap blow at the Dutch East Indies was considered likely.

MONDAY—Reds recaptured more towns and breached the Nazi winter line. Red troops occupied a place ten miles south of Sevastopol in Crimea. A huge ski army was reported ready to strike the Germans a crushing blow. They claimed the toll of German dead, wounded and missing already was 6½ million. Germany decreed all Serb war prisoners who were released earlier would have to return to prison camps because many had joined guerrillas. Berlin was expected to reveal Hitler's purge of generals. Allied flyers in Burma destroyed 26 Jap planes. British bombers blasted Nazi naval bases in Germany. Seized Nazi orders told Britain of fuel shortage. American bombers set afire a Jap battleship and pounded other enemy vessels. MacArthur's troops in Philippines turned back a Jap attack. Jap troops landed in Dutch East Indies gaining four footholds.

TUESDAY—Admiral Hart, allied naval commander and commander of U. S. Asiatic fleet arrived in Dutch East Indies. Chinese said U. S. bombers destroyed 9 Jap planes at Thailand and 24 more in cooperation with RAF. Allied Bombs hit two Jap cruisers and blasted two transports, but Japs established themselves on Borneo and Celebes and Tarakan island. Russians were driving ahead toward Smolensk. Unrest in Germany was declared spreading to Hitler's admirals. Japs were only 150 miles north of Singapore and Kuala Lumpur was abandoned by British. Secretary Knox declared U. S. fleet was not idle but no conclusive showdown could be expected with Jap fleet in near future. U. S. and Mexico notified the world they would jointly defend their respective territories from foreign attack.

WEDNESDAY—MacArthur's guns in Philippines administered a jarring setback to Japs, shattering and dispersing columns of enemy tanks and armored units, and silencing eleven artillery batteries. Demolition squads in Malaya were slowing the Jap push there. Axis desert army was showing fight again to the British pursuers in Libya. British also sank two Axis ships in Mediterranean. British were expecting Nazis to make attempt to capture Malta. Dutch acknowledged capture of Tarakan island, but destroyed all fuel wells. Red ski troops were storming Orel and announced capture of other towns as they drove toward Bryansk. People were urged not to be misled by reports of internal strife in Germany. An armed steamship was sunk off the coast of Nova Scotia by a submarine.

THURSDAY — Jap menace to Singapore was sharpened as British fell back but it appeared an allied offensive from Burma was on the way. Dutch bombers hit one Jap ship off Tarakan and other bombers attacked a Jap naval force. Dutch troops skirmished with Japs in Sarawak and Borneo. Philippine defenders hurled back two Jap attacks. An American tanker was sunk off Atlantic coast by sub. Reds continued to push Germans back from Moscow and Crimean fronts. Axis planes raided Malta and British planes were busy with assaults on Sicily and Tripoli. Japs applied Nazi-type rule over Manila. Allied reinforcements were said to have reached Far East.

Hit Them Where It Hurts . . . . BUY BONDS!

Make no mistake—this is a life or death struggle. Men are dying in your defense. Dying that America may be safe!

Give our fighting men the guns, the planes, the tanks they need! Bonds buy bombs. Every dime, every dollar you put into Defense Bonds and Stamps is a blow at the enemy. Hit them where it hurts — buy bonds! Bonds cost as little as $18.75 up—stamps as little as 10 cents up.

MT. LAKE PARK

This column has tried to keep from the subject of war. There is plenty of good writing on that topic every place one looks.

This week its a new title with us: "Trees." At that maybe it is a war subject. In the past week from out-of-town readers, and they are property owners as well, there has reached us many letters suggesting ways and means to work out the problem of trees being destroyed. Two letters we should like to quote. First from West Virginia:

"In thinking over the tree-cutting situation, a thoroughly crack-pot idea has occurred to me, and I wonder if you would use it in your colum:. If Mr. Lollar is sincere in being willing to release Miss England make the suggestion that all people of Mt. Lake form a Tree Association and for a dollar apiece own a tree, or five or ten trees that shall be left standing. The hitch is, of course, that the ground would not belong to the buyer, but often hair-brained schemes have been known to produce other ideas."

There was more, but you get the idea. Another suggested that the State Forestry Bureau might see their way to take over if Miss England were anxious to sell.

There was one from the District of Columbia which had an entirely different angle.

"Speaking of the trees in the Park, are the Park people crazy that they permit trees to be cut down; do they not know that Mt. Lake is hardly visible from the air on account of them. Surely there are citizens who would buy the trees with the guarantee that they shall not be cut."

So you see the war does enter people's minds, even when they think of Mt. Lake. Just thought your readers might be interested to know that it isn't only those of us here the year round, but our summer property owners who are also upset over the situation. Which, by the way, we hear may be settled satisfactorily. That's what we hear.

We were reminded of the old prosperous days in Mt. Lake Park when someone sent us an item from a "Do you Remember" column published out of the state. This item read Robert C. Tonry recalls when he was B&O agent at Mt. Lake Park in 1912 and how two or three trucks full of chestnuts in Johnny bags would be shipped east and west every day. He received commission on the express business and says it amounted to something worth while in the chestnut season.

Too bad we don't have some Johnny bags or something or other to ship these days. "Them days is gone for ever."

Marriage Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Kendrick Clyde Kierce, of Columbus, Ga., have announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Alice Vern Kierce, to Lieutenant Lyle Prevost Schill, of Camp Polk, La. His mother was the former Maize Prevost, daughter of L. C. Prevost and the late Mrs. Prevost.

Installation of Officers

The Lake Lynn Lodge of Rebekahs held their installation ceremonies on Tuesday night at the IOOF hall in Loch Lynn. In charge of the installation from Cumberland were Special District Deputy Mrs. Lacey Welsh, Mrs. May Meyers and Mrs. Kerns. They were assisted by the Past Grand Nobles of the local lodge. Both elective and appointive officers were installed. Elective—Past Noble Grand, Helen McRobie; Noble Grand, Hazel Welch; Vice Grand, Mrs. George White; Recording Secretary, Marie Gauer; Financial Secretary, Merle Moomaw; Treasurer, Annabelle Ford. Appointive officers—Warden, Margaret Taylor; Conductor, Cora Woods; Chaplain, Mrs. Rebecca Canan; Musician, Grace Callis; Right Supporter of Noble Grand, Mrs. Ray Bittinger; Left Supporter Noble Grand, Marylyle Gnegy; Right Supporter Vice Grand, Mrs Stella Calhoun; Left Supporter of Vice Grand, Mrs. George Ours; Inside Guardian, Mrs. Eva Mickey; Outside Guardian, Helma Rodeheaver. Following the business meeting a social session was held and refreshments served by the lodge.

Miss Vivian Clary is able to be out after an illness of several days.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. McWilliams announce the birth of a son on Sunday morning, January 11, at the Reeves Clinic in Westernport. The child has been named Samuel, for his paternal grandfather. Mr. McWilliams is associated with the Swallow Falls CCC Forestry Division.

Harry Turney, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Turney has enlisted in the U. S. A. Air corps and has been sent to the Jefferson Barracks near St. Louis, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. Miles Poindexter II spent the week-end here with Mrs. Poindexter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bushrod Grimes. They were en route to their home in Lynchburg after a trip in the west.

Miss Willard Clayton, who has been spending some time here with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. McClelland Clayton, was called to Fairmont last week to teach in the city schools there. Miss Clayton has been located the last few years in Amirilla, Tex., where she was an instructor in their schools. Prior to going to Texas, Miss Clayton taught in the Fairmont city schools.

Harry Turney, Sr., has announced that anyone interested in Army or Air Cadet enlistments get in touch with him at his home here. He has all literature and facts pertaining to enlistment; also enlistment blanks and will be glad to give any help possible to those seeking such information. This work is being carried on under the American Legion officers.

Jo Anne Welch, daughter of Mr. and Joseph Welch entertained fifteen of her young friends on Wednesday, January 7th, at her home, celebrating her sixth birthday. Games were played and refreshments served the young guests.

Herbert Hoover Jailed Here, But Not Ex-President

The Register at the Garrett County Jail at Oa. nd, Bears A Distinguished Name

It is that of Herbert Hoover, but the prisoner is not the ex-president of the United States, of course. He is a Finzel farmer, who, along with his brother Floyd, was committed to jail for twenty-five days in default of $25.00 fines imposed for hunting out of season, according to Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden.

Minke reported that the pair was arrested Monday by Deputy Game Wardens Francis Ruge and Joseph Keating for tracking game during the closed season. They were convicted by Magistrate C. S. Zeller at Grantsville.

Sheriff J. W. Owens also announced that Mark Wilt and Earl Wilt, of Bear Hill were being held for investigation in regard to the theft of a number of chickens throughout that area.

GRANTSVILLE

Brothers Enlist

James and John Blocher, sons of V. Lewellyn Blocher, Grantsville, have enlisted in the Army Air Corps and have been assigned to a training field at Wichita Falls, Texas.

Bridge Hostesses

Mrs. Benny Epstein and Mrs. F. J. Getty jointly entertained at three tables of contract bridge last Thursday evening at Mrs. Epstein's home. Guests included Mrs. Scott Holliday, Somerfield, Pa.; Mrs. George Shields, Mrs. Hayward F. Broadwater, Mrs. Joseph F. Fahey, Mrs. Margaret Rodamer, Mrs. W. C. Grimm, Mrs. Edwin Robeson, Mrs. Julius Renninger, Mrs. Edwin Elias, Jr., Miss Margaret Renstrom, Miss Emma Caulk.

Refreshments were served and honors for high score presented to Miss Caulk. Second high and floating prizes went to Mrs. Fahey.

Consistory Members Elected

The annual election of officers of the consistory of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church was held.

John H. Folk was chosen to succeed W. E. Stanton, the retiring elder, and Charles O. Bender was named to succeed Joel A. Beachy, the outgoing deacon. Nevin U. Broawater and J. Urban Stanton are the holdover elders. Nevin U. Broadwater will continue as treasurer of the building fund.

Red Cross Group Shows Progress

Mrs. W. Harold Miller, who is in charge of the making of garments for Red Cross relief in this community, reports that considerable progress is being made toward completing the making of 50 women's dresses which were allotted to this section. Mrs. Miller said that all of the garments had now been cut and were being finished by volunteers as rapidly as possible.

Leader At Missionary Meeting

Mrs. Roy C. Patton served as leader of the lesson discussion at the January meeting of the Lutheran Missionary Society held in the church social room. Mrs. Floyd C. Diehl was the hostess. During a business session the annual election of officers was held in which Mrs. Nevin U. Broadwater was reelected president; Mrs. Roy Patton, vice-president; Mrs. Emerson Sebold, secretary, and Mrs. Stewart Rodamer, treasurer.

Firemen Answer Call

Grantsville firemen answered a call to Casselman on Thursday evening to extinguish a blaze in Stewart Stahl's store building. The fire was confined to the flue and casing surrounding it. There was little damage resulting.

The summons delayed the initial meeting of a fire-fighting class which was scheduled to open at the school. Later about twenty-five men enrolled in the course which is under the direction of Alvin J. Yoder and Henry L. Durst.

At the bi-monthly meeting last night of the Grantsville Camp No. 11, Woodmen of the World, the annual installation of officers was held. Those installed to serve for the ensuing year were: Ralph J. Glotfelty, council commander; Herbert Layman, adviser lieutenant; Elwood Klotz, banker; Dr. T. O. Broadwater, clerk and financial secretary; Vernon Beachy, escort; Leland Swauger, watchman; Lorraine Otto, sentry; Dr. Norman R. Davis, physician; and Hayward F. Broadwater, who was chosen as auditor to serve for a term of three years.

The speaker of the evening was Deputy Spencer Graham, Crellin. During a short business session, as its contribution to defense needs, the local camp voted to purchase a $50 defense bond. Edmond Lynn and Clyde Krause, both of Grantsville, were admitted as new members at the meeting.

Entertains at Party

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Zeller entertained a group of friends at a 500 party at their home here.

Guests included Mr. and Mrs. George D. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Hershberger, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stowell, Mr. and Mrs. Orlando J. Glotfelty, Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Dunlap, Mrs. Maude B. Klock, Mrs. Eugene Taylor, Mrs. John Hanft and Mrs. Henry L. Durst. The game was concluded when a luncheon was served. High score honors were won by Mrs. Klock and Mr. Stowell.

P.-T. A. Plans Meeting

Plans for a program to be presented at a regular meeting on January 19, were outlined at a meeting of the executive committee. Mrs. J. E. Lancaster, Cumberland, president of the Allegany Council of P.-T. A. will speak. The high school glee club will furnish musical entertainment.

Personal

Miss Grace Binkley has returned to Washington, D. C., after spending a short vacation with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Johnson, Little Crossings.

Mrs. J. R. Gnagey entertained at a chop suey supper and bridge on Tuesday evening at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. T O. Broadwater. Three tables of contract were in play.

Charles S. Catherman, Cumberland, was the speaker at the Grantsville Rotary club meeting Tuesday night.

The firefighting school opens this evening. About twenty-five men have enrolled for the course.

Mrs. Benny Epstein was treated for minor injuries received Wednesday when one of several glass jars she was carrying suddenly broke. Mrs. Epstein had a deep cut in her right arm.

Mrs. Cleve Ashby is spending a week with her daughter, Mrs. Roy Mickey, in Crellin.

Mrs. Nyal Hollada and infant have been discharged from the Hazel McGilvery Hospital, Meyersdale, and removed to their home near here.

Mrs. Frank Beamer, Jr., Pittsburgh, spent the week-end here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Gortner.

Mrs. Valeria Ashby, R. N., wife of Pvt. First Class Cecil E. Ashby, Langley Field, Va., has returned to her home at Baltimore after spending some time here as the guest of Mr. and C. E. Ashby and Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Ashby, at Ashby Tavern. Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Ashby and Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Ashby went to Crellin for a brief visit with relatives.

Rev. Samuel D. Sigler, pastor of the Lutheran church, underwent an operation in a Meyersdale hospital last Friday. His condition is reported as being satisfactory.

William Winterberg, president of the County Farm Bureau, and Mrs. C. C. Beachy returned from Baltimore where they had attended the State Farm Bureau convention.

Mrs. Sara Roberta Getty, Cumberland, visited Mrs. Nettie Bill on Saturday.

Mrs. Fred Livengood and Mrs. Marshall Beachy jointly entertained the Regional Women's guild of the Reformed church at the home of Mrs. Livengood on Wednesday.

Fern King returned to Baltimore after spending two weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel H. King, of near Springs.

Single copies of The Republican may be obtained at the Hamill Book and Stationery Store, corner Third and Alder streets, where the current issue of the paper is placed on sale every Thursday afternoon. Price, 5 cents per copy.

Stenographers Are Needed

The Government needs stenographers for National defense. One is prone to think of National defense in terms of soldiers, sailors and marines. But there are many types of defense work behind the lines. A large army of civilian personnel is now on duty as stenographers in the Government service to take the dictation of the thousands of executives and administrative officers, and transcribe it into typewritten documents.

It is estimated that the Government has approximately 85,000 stenographers, typists and secretaries on the payroll. Many young men and women are responding to the call. Thousands more are needed.

The examination announced by the Civil Service Commission for stenographers is open until further notice. The examination consists solely of a dictation test at 9 words a minute and transcription of notes. All persons who can qualify are urged to apply now.

The proper application form may be obtained from the Secretary of the Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners at any first- or second-class post office or from the U. S. Civil Service Commission at Washington, D. C.

Trooper Beamer Is Hurt In Crash

Trooper Franklin Beamer, Jr., 24, of Grantsville, was injured last Thursday when his automobile was forced off the National highway three miles west of the LaVale substation barracks and crashed against a culvert.

He was admitted to Allegany hospital for observation to determine the extent of injuries but was able to leave the hospital Friday afternoon. He suffered chest bruises but no ribs were fractured. He was given a week's leave of absence before returning to active duty. The car was slightly damaged.

Beamer is a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Gortner, of Grants ille.

Garden Clean Up Now May Reduce 1942 Insect Damage

A pre-season garden clean-up will help to reduce crop damage by insects in 1942 and is especially important if there is a shortage of some insecticides, according to Dr. E. N. Cory, Entomologist for Maryland.

He points out that many kinds of insects live over the winter in truck crop residue left on the land, in weeds, leaf litter, and under boards and trash piled on the ground. Others take refuge in ditches, waste places, and in and around storage houses.

Entomologists find it pays to plow under, feed, or destroy the plant residue, and remove litter and trash from garden sites as soon after harvest as possible, even when there is no possibility of a shortage of insecticides. This year garden sanitation is more important than ever because of the increased need for many vegetable crops as defense food.

Some commercial and home gardeners in Maryland did not plow their land immediately after harvest the past season, Dr. Cory says, but there may still be time to reduce insect populations by plowing as soon as soil conditions permit. Land not subject to erosion may be plowed before winter weather is over to expose many insects and insect eggs to freezing, and to bury alive those hibernating in weeds and plant residue.

For example, tomato aphids and common stalk borers, which pass the winter as eggs on grass and weeds, are unable to survive if buried in the soil by plowing. Tomato hornworm and tomato fruit worm, which developed during the later part of the season on crop remnants, are similarly destroyed.

It's always a good practice to clean up storage houses, Dr. Cory adds, and when necessary, fumigate or otherwise treat stored beans and cowpeas to eliminate insects. Sprayers, dusters, and other gardening machinery and equipment should be stored under cover and all working parts covered with oil because of the difficulty in obtaining new machinery.

Hunters Required To File Reports

Hunters, whether lucky or unlucky during the 1941 season, are all expected to have filed reports with the State Game Warden, E. Lee Lecompte, by today, January 15.

All successful hunters have to do is note the number of each species of game they bagged on a card attached to each hunting license and mail it, the sender paying the postage.

Reports are to be filed by all persons who obtained hunting licenses in 1941, even though they did not bag any game whatever.

Penalty for failure to make the report, under the provisions of a new law, is a $2 fine, and since a record is kept of all licenses issued, enforcement is said to be comparatively simple.

Sunday Services In Community Churches

RED HOUSE LUTHERAN PARISH
A. K. Jones, Pastor

The church service at Gnegy is at 9:15; at Red House at 10:40; Sunday school and Luther League at the usual time.

The pastor will preach on the theme, "Sure I Must Fight!" The Christian Soldier needs several qualities. St. Paul used several phrases that should show what these are. "I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me." Was he given strength? Was he a good soldier of Jesus? At the close of his life he said, "I have fought a good fight." What sort of fight are we making in these dark days? Are we sure of the victory? We are inclined to become peevish, discouraged, bitter and heartsick at times. Even so, our Lord said, "In the world ye shall have tribulations, but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world."

VOLUME 65. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, JANUARY 22, 1942. NUMBER 48.

Salvage for Victory . . . .

The drive to save America's waste materials is one of the most important in the effort to get 100 percent efficiency out of this country's industrial war machine.

It is important for each individual and will teach real economy such as would not have been possible in peace times.

America's war factories need waste paper, old rags, scrap metals and old rubber. In our attics, cellars, backyards, garages—in our stores and on our farms—are waste materials that can help make ships, tanks, guns and ammunition. Old newspapers, magazines, cartons can make new paperboard to pack equipment for the armed forces.

Cast-off clothing, burlap bags, draperies, mattresses, pillows, discarded carpets can be used in factories for wiping rags and for roofing and flooring materials in emergency construction.

Iron, steel, brass, copper, aluminum, lead, etc., are needed. Discarded auto tires and tubes, rubbers, overshoes can be reclaimed for military uses.

Let the children help. It will give them a part to play in the Victory campaign.

Let's Salvage now—for victory!

OUTLOOK FOR FARMERS IS MOST ENCOURAGING

Annual Report of County Agent Gives Promising Picture for County Producers in 1942

That the outlook for farmers in the county was the most encouraging since 1920, was voiced by John H. Carter, county agent, in his annual report for 1941, recently completed.

While farmers are faced with the problem of producing more farm products with less labor and less farm machinery, Mr. Carter believes they will be receiving a price more comparable to commodities and supplies purchased on the farm. The intentional increase in farm commodities as indicated by the farm defense survey, will mean an extra amount of cash for farmers of the county, he said.

Mr. Carter, pointing out that total war meant total production, urged that all projects and plans of work in the county be correlated and adjusted to the increased farm production plan as appproved by the government. He recommended that farmers accomplish their goal of increased production without increasing capital outlay, wherever possible.

While Mr. Carter's report showed activities in dairying, beef cattle production, sheep, swine, poultry, cereals, legumes, pastures, potatoes, etc., it was pointed out that potatoes continued to be the most important cash crop, but that there was an increase in dairying, poultry, and home gardens particularly. Some of the excerpts from his report are as follows:

Dairying

Dairying in Garrett county definitely expanding at present due to new markets established. The county is favorably located for efficiency in the dairy industry as it is one of the best in the state for producing pastures. The county is listed as a modified accredited area for both tuberculosis and bang's disease, making it a desirable area for growing of young stock for replacements.

A junior cow project was set up in the county with the Extension Service, Carnation company, the Baltimore and Ohio railroad and the voag departments of the high schools, to demonstrate good dairy practices.

The two local banks purchased a purebred Holstein bull, to be used by members of the junior cow project.

Poultry

The poultry industry is gradually expanding and promises to be one of the outstanding activities in farm returns. There has been an increase of 22.5 percent in the past ten years.

The turkey industry has increased 150 percent in the past ten years.

Potatoes

Potatoes continue to be one of the most important cash crops in the county. This year more than 20,000 bushels of Sequoia potatoes, a new variety, were produced.

Soil Conservation

Much time was devoted in the county the past year to soil conservation. A decided trend toward the conservation of steep land and either by contour or strip farming or removing it from the crop rotation, is noticeable.

Defense Nutrition Work

The importance of reaching directly or indirectly every person in the county in regard to defense nutrition work, was stressed in the recommendation of Mrs. Mildred Barton Hoffman, home demonstration agent, in her annual report, also recently completed.

The 1942 program has been planned with the national emergency before us, she pointed out. It is planned to deal with vital problems now facing the homemaker but is made elastic enough to change should other emergencies arise.

The homemakers clubs devoted much of their time the past year also to home food supplies and many families checked their family food needs to see that they were getting amounts and kinds of foods needed, planned gardens and farms to meet those needs and made improvements in canning and storage. They also helped where they could with school lunches.

The study of rayon dresses, the study of foot health in relation to posture, of good material and good construction in wool coats for winter use, and similar subjects were also taken up throughout the year.

A cotton mattress project resulted in making 411 of them and having them put in 275 homes.

Project Demonstrations

Mrs. Hoffman reported that project demonstrations by members of the clubs have led them to discover that they are getting much more benefit by doing the work themselves and that their clubs are being strengthened.

Reading, music and the study of Latin American countries has been a part of the regular activities of the clubs during the past year.

Various other meetings, picnics, activities, camps, etc., of the year were carried from time to time as events occurred in this newspaper.

4-H Club Activity

The 4-H club work was centered around personal development and clothing.

TO PRESENT JEWELS AT K. OF P. ANNIVERSARY

J. E. Harned Will Get 50-Year Medal—Others to Get 25-Year Awards

Presentation of 50-year and 25-year jewels will be an important feature of the 53rd anniversary celebration of Garrett Lodge No. 113, Knights of Pythias, on Friday, February 20, according to W. W. Dawson, chairman of the program committee.

Mr. Dawson said plans for the occasion were shaping up nicely. Joseph E. Harned, local druggist and author of "Wild Flowers of the Alleghanies," has been a member of the Pythian organization for fifty years, the records show, and he will receive his 50-year jewel at the climax of the celebration.

The committee also announced that 25-year jewels would be presented to several members and that the names of the recipients would be announced soon.

Leonard Hathaway, chancellor commander, is urging all committee members to be present for a short meeting on Friday night following the regular lodge session. Fifteen dollars in defense stamps will be awarded to some lodge member.

Home Talent Play Planned at Kitzmiller

"Swing Out," a three-act comedy, will be presented by a local cast from Kitzmiller, at their school auditorium next Thursday and Friday evenings, January 29 and 30. The entertainment is being sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association.

The play is built around a garden party, which is being planned by "Mrs. Kissler," and the garden party itself is enacted in the last act of the show.

Twenty-four chorus girls wear gay and attractive costumes, and their singing and dancing add variety and color to the production.

To Donate Bingo Receipts

Proctor Kildow Post No. 71, American Legion, is donating all the proceeds from the Bingo games at the Manhattan hotel this evening to the American Red Cross war relief fund, it was announced by legion officials.

COUNTY TO TAKE PART IN VICTORY BOOK CAMPAIGN

Women's Organization to Sponsor Drive to Collect Reading Matter for Armed Forces

Garrett county will cooperate in another nation-wide movement, a victory book campaign of the American Library Association, the American Red Cross and the United Service Organizations for National Defense, Inc., which has been organized.

The primary purpose is to collect reading matter for soldiers, sailors and marines to supplement the library services provided by the government.

At a meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club last Saturday afternoon, the organization voted to sponsor the campaign in the county and the drive is already under way.

Miss Crystal Elliott was appointed county-wide chairman and the following have been appointed chairmen of their communities: Mrs. Claudine Friend, Friendsville; Miss Ethel Broadwater, Grantsville; Miss Dora Schlossnagle, Accident; Miss Margaret Kochenderfer, Kitzmiller; Asa Lewis, Kempton; Mrs. Lester Yutzy, Crellin; Mrs. E. C. Clatterbuck, Deer Park; Mrs. Margaret Berghaus, Mt. Lake Park; Miss Mary O'Donnell, Loch Lynn Heights.

F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools, has given permission for schools to be used as depositories for books collected, and the books can be brought to the schools on the school buses. Principals of the schools are being asked to cooperate with the chairman in their locality.

Garrett county's quota is 1,600 books. The State has been asked to furnish 133,000. The drive will end in Maryland on February 4.

Good books of every kind are needed: fiction, popular books on travel, history, and biography, plays, poems, essays, books on science, technology, vocations, and up-to-date reference works.

Gifts of money for the purchase of recent books will also be welcomed, it was stated. Books may be deposited at the schools, library, or other depositories designated by the chairman in each community. Arrangements will be made to collect books from homes if donors will get in touch with the local chairman.

Corner Metal Plates May Be Attached to Licenses March 15th

W. Lee Elgin, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, announced that the corner metal plate which will be used as the new 1942 automobile license tag will be one and one-third inches deep by three and one-half inches long, and that the color combination would be black numerals on an orange background. It will be attached to the upper right hand corner of the present license tags with the numerals "1943" on it.

The corner plate will also bear a serial number in small figures, and this serial number will also appear on the 1942 registration card.

Mr. Elgin said that although it would not be necessary to also carry the 1941 registration card, bearing the license number of the present tags, motorists will be requested to keep and also carry them for additional identification purposes, in order to avoid confusion or delay.

The corner plates can be displayed on and after March 15, 1942, and present 1941 tags will be void and expire at midnight, March 31, unless they display the corner plates.

These changes are being made to preserve steel for national defense.

Formation of Boys' Club Is Discussed

The likelihood of forming a Boys' club in Oakland was discussed at a meeting of business men called Tuesday night by the Boys' Work committee of the Lions club.

The Lions club has under consideration such a project and a meeting was called for the purpose of discussing both the favorable and unfavorable angles. No definite conclusion was reached but the Lions club committee will continue to talk over the subject with others and keep the idea alive.

Weather Comparatively Mild

The weather has been comparatively mild during the past week with almost spring-like weather over the last weekend. Nights, however, have remained cold and at times there have been scattering snowflakes in the air.

Features Added to Lions Club Benefit

Will Be Presented Next Thursday Evening, January 29, At 8 o'Clock

Several attractions have been added to the Lions club benefit entertainment, which is to be presented next Thursday evening, January 29, at 8 o'clock, it was announced following the regular meeting of the group on Monday evening.

The entire proceeds are to go to the American Red Cross war drive and J. M. Jarboe, treasurer for the Red Cross drive, stressed the fact that the entertainment would furnish an opportunity for local peopple to contribute in addition to regular membership and contributions.

The attractions added to the show include a hill-billy act by Crellin residents and amateur acts by talent from Grantsville and Friendsville. James Bell is scheduled for a magician's act. The style show by members of the club will be the main feature.

Tickets may be secured from any member of the club.

Ray C. Lolar, scout executive of the Potomac Council, Boy Scouts of America, was the guest speaker at Monday's meeting. Edward P. Kahl and George Fulk were guests.

Nation's Clocks To Be Turned Up One Hour Feb. 9

President Signs Daylight Savings Bill for Duration of War

America will go on daylight-saving time February 9 to conserve electricity for the titanic war effort.

President Roosevelt signed a daylight-saving bill on Tuesday and at 2 a. m. on February 9 the clocks will be turned ahead an hour for the duration. Although the bill applies only to interstate commerce activities and the federal government, it is expected to be observed by most of the nation.

Mr. Roosevelt advised Congress last July that the Federal Power commission figured there would be a saving of 736,282,000 kilowatt-hours of energy annually by putting the nation on year-around daylight saving time.

The bill was similar to that enacted during the first World war and it has the same objective of greater efficiency in industrial war effort.

The new act will become ineffective six months after the war ends unless Senate and House adopt a resolution to terminate it at an earlier date.

Sale of Explosives Under State Control

Garrett county dealers in explosives are reporting that hardly anybody seems to realize that a new state law which became effective last June regulates the sale and use of dynamite and other explosives.

Farmers are particularly "in the dark," they say, and some are incensed when dealers refuse to sell them some dynamite to blast stumps or open a well on their property. Printed application forms are available at the office of John H. Carter, county agent. Forms for those not farmers are available at the office of A. G. Ross, in the Court House.

The measure was enacted to prevent sabotage and other subversive acts, and includes control of all explosives, with the exception of ammunition for small firearms.

Coal companies must obtain dealers' licenses to handle powder used by miners in blasting, and contractors must also obtain such permits which must be approved by the State Insurance Commissioner.

More Three-A Checks Received This Week

Three more groups of checks for farmers participating in the three-A program during 1941, were received at the office of John H. Carter, county agent, according to H. Robert DeWitt, chief clerk for the local three-A set-up.

This makes a total of 65 checks amounting to $2,405.66. There are about 1,200 farmers scheduled to receive around $40,000 in this county.

Urges More Production

An urgent appeal to all farmers to increase their production of farm produce essential to national security and the defense effort, has been sent out by Claude R. Wickard, secretary of agriculture.

COMBINED BANDS TO GIVE CONCERT SUNDAY, FEB. 1

Oakland and Mt. Lake Groups To Play in Oakland High Auditorium

The combined Oakland and Mt. Lake Park band will present a concert in the high school auditorium on Sunday afternoon, February 1, beginning at 2:30.

This group, under the direction of Russell Brown, Oakland, and H. S. Mickey, Mt. Lake Park, is sponsored by the Oakland Rotary club and will be composed of at least 38 pieces.

A silver offering will be taken and will be turned over to officials in charge of the drive for funds for infantile paralysis sufferers in the county and elsewhere.

The program will include the following: Washington Post, march; Princess of India, overture; King Cotton, march; Uncle Jasper, two-step; Arcadia, overture; High School Pride, march; Moonlit Garden, overture; On the Mall, march; S. I. B. A., march, Star Spangled Banner.

The drum majorettes will give a baton drill during a short intermission.

The Oakland and Mt. Lake Park bands have been combined for several months, practice sessions on Monday and Thursday being held one time at Oakland and the other at Mt. Lake Park.

The band will also appear on the streets of Oakland on January 29, for the Red Cross benefit performance of the Lions Club.

School Lunches Now Being Served At Oakland Elementary

School lunches are again being served at the Oakland Elementary school, furnishing school children with something hot each day. The school lunch program was carried out last year through NYA help but since that help was lacking this year, the responsibility was placed in the hands of the Parent-Teacher' Association.

Mrs. Delbert Davis, president, announced that arrangements had been made for Mrs. Josephine Baker to have charge of the kitchen, and that lunches were started on Tuesday. Surplus food commodities for the month of January arrived on Saturday.

A small charge is being made for the food from those able to pay. Others who haven't the cash will bring potatoes, cabbage, etc., from their homes, when possible. Mrs. Davis said there was no money available for sugar, flour, and other staples, except by donations, and that the association would be glad to accept any such from interested citizens.

These school lunches will continue at least until May, Mrs. Davis said.

Scout Leaders Plan For Anniversary Week

Plans for observance of Scout Anniversary week were discussed at a meeting of district scout leaders on Monday evening in the Masonic clubroom. Ray C. Lalor, scout executive, Cumberland, attended.

Tentative arrangements were made for a scout-parent dinner for Tuesday, February 10, in the Oakland High school auditorium, with the Deer Park, Mt. Lake Park and Oakland scout troops participating.

A fuller program for the entire anniversary week celebration will be outlined later. This is the thirty-first anniversary of the birth of scouting in America and the 18th anniversary of the organization of the Oakland troop.

Swap Shop Planned By Women's Club

Something new is being tried by the Business and Professional Women's club here to raise money for local defense work by the women of the community.

The members are sponsoring a Swap Shop, which will be open an entire week in the Brown store building, next to the Community Store, from Saturday, January 24, to Saturday, January 31. The room will be open every afternoon.

Customers are asked to bring something of value that they don't want and pay 25 cents for the privilege of exchanging it for something which they do want.

City Registration Of Voters Monday

The city's registration of voters will take place on Monday, January 26.

The registration is only for those who have not previously registered. Following the registration day in 1941, there were 478 persons eligible to vote at municipal elections. The registration of voters in Oakland is required by an Act of the Legislature, passed in 1939.

The city hall will be open to receive new registrants from 10 a. m. to 7 p. m.

Additional Tires Are Obtained by Twelve

Quota for February Announced; Allows 32 Truck and 9 Passenger Tires

The tire rationing quota for Garrett county for February was announced yesterday by Louis C. Burr, state rationing administrator, and allows the sale of nine tires and seven tubes for passenger cars and motorcycles, and thirty-two tires and forty-five tubes for trucks and buses.

Walter W. Dawson, chairman of the county tire rationing board, announced that during the week from January 15 to 22, seven people got fifteen truck tires and 11 tubes, and five people got five passenger tires and two tubes.

The truck tires were distributed as follows: Carl Richter, Grantsville, 1; Pauline Frazee, Friendsville, 1; William Luther Nedrow, Friendsville, 4; John M. Horchler, Grantsville, 4; Walter Charles Bowman, McHenry, 2; Russell Ray Lawson, Friendsville, 2; Richard Coddington, Friendsville, 1.

The passenger car tires went to Dr. Thomas A. Gonder, Jr., Oakland, 1; Dr. Robert D. Brown, Friendsville, 1; Leslie H. Rodeheaver, Deer Park, 1; Albert Baker, Swanton, 1; Iva May Lytle, Friendsville, 1.

This makes a total for January thus far: 17 persons got 33 truck tires and 8 persons got 11 passenger tires. The quota is 48 truck tires and 11 passenger tires, revealing that no passenger tires can be given out until February.

Garrett County Dealers Have 954 Auto Tires

Approximately 170,049 tires are in the hands of Maryland dealers and of this total Garrett county has 954 of them.

These figures were released by the Maryland Council of Defense following a state-wide inventory.

The inventory also includes the number of tubes in the hands of State dealers, and of a total of 197,494 in the state, Garrett county has 931.

Allegany county had the largest number of the twenty-three counties with a list of 6,121 tires. Frederick had 5,798; Washington, 5,018; Worcester, 4,953; Montgomery, 4,079, and Caroline, 3,918. Smallest total in the state was that of Calvert county which had 191 tires.

Garrett county's tires and tubes were divided as follows: passenger tires, 827; passenger tubes, 809; truck and bus tires, 115; truck and bus tubes, 114; other tires, 12; other tubes, 8.

Accident Oil Well Has Been Abandoned

After more than a year's labor of crews of men employed by a company in drilling operations near Accident in an effort to discover oil or gas in that community, decided one day last week to abandon the well and cease operations for the time being at least.

The drill had reached a depth of 8,350 feet when the tools became fastened and notwithstanding the efforts of men specially trained to correct this condition and release the tools extending over a period of three or four weeks, it was found impossible to do so. While a slight supply of gas was struck at a depth of a few hundred feet, this was piped off by the casing.

Workmen are now engaged in pulling the casing from the hold. Later the derrick will be taken down and possibly the machinery stored.

It was also learned that the corporation is retaining leases on approximately 600 acres of property in the area, but were returning the leases to owners of the land on the remainder held under option.

BRINER AWARDED KEY FOR ACTIVE CIVIC ENDEAVOR

Gets National Jaycee Presentation for Outstanding Young Man of Oakland for Past Year

Climaxing the Junior Chamber of Commerce anniversary dinner last evening was the presentation of the distinguished service key award to Charles L. Briner, Jr., for his outstanding work in the community during the past year.

The award is presented annually by the U. S. Junior Chamber and the recipient must be between 21 and 35, the Jaycee age limit, but need not be a member of that organization. The committee's selection was a unanimous one.

Briner was chosen for his activity in organizing the Jaycees in Oakland about a year ago and serving as its first president; contributing to the success of the autumn leaf excursion, assisting in the dairy week improvement program, showing willingness to contribute his musical ability at all times, and in continually formulating ideas for the betterment of the community. The award was presented by Delbert Davis, chairman of the committee. Other committee members were Dempsey R. Fleming, Bernard I. Gonder, O. T. Graser, and Rev. Minor Sprague.

About sixty attended the function which was held in the basement of the Methodist church. A turkey dinner was served to those present.

E. Ray Jones, local attorney, spoke on the "Burma Road," what it meant to China and what it should mean to Americans, showing that nothing was impossible to those who were determined, symbolizing a long look ahead and planning for the future.

Ralph Race, Frostburg, State Jaycee president, spoke briefly on defense work in which Jaycees were engaged throughout the state. He urged people not to hoard, not to spread rumors—two things in which all could help. He stressed a quotation, "A year from today, what will we wish that we had done today?"

Phil Roth, Hancock, national councilor of the Jaycees of Maryland, also spoke briefly.

New Song Is Sung

A new song, "I Keep Forgetting We're Through," with the lyrics by Emeric Dusic, of Oakland, which has just been published, was sung by Mr. Briner.

Mr. Briner, Jesse Ashby, Cecil Smith and Bill Gibson also furnished some quartet numbers and the latter gave various interpretations of My Old Kentucky Home. In his capacity as toastmaster, Walter Dawson contributed a number of jokes.

Head-On Crash Sends Nine to Hospitals

Two cars carrying nine people crashed on the McMullen highway, near Cumberland last Saturday night, sending all of the occupants to hospitals for treatment of injuries, some of them minor ones.

One of the cars was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Butler, of Swanton, and their children Charles and Betty, and Miss Bernice Barnard, daughter of Herbert Barnard, of Luke.

Charles, 20, was treated for shock, abrasions and bruises and still remains a patient suffering with a possible skull fracture and chest injuries.

Other occupants of the car were also treated, Miss Barnard for an injured left knee, Mr. Butler for lacerations of the face, and Betty for bruises and cuts. Mrs. Butler was unhurt.

The other car was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Keefauver, of Triple Lakes, with their two children Jack and Jane. Mrs. Keefauver was treated for an injured knee and her daughter for minor lacerations. The father and son were uninjured.

Youghiogheny Power Company Sale Decision Reserved

The Public Service Commission reserved decision on the sale of the Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric Corporation's power plant in Garrett county after a hearing last Thursday in Baltimore.

The Youghiogheny Corporation and the Pennsylvania Electric Company are seeking approval for sale and transfer of Youghiogheny properties and franchises to the Pennsylvania concern.

THE TEMPTATION OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 4:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—For we have an high priest . . . (who) was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin.—Hebrews 4:15.

"We have not a high priest that cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but one that hath been in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin" (Heb. 4:15, R.V.). We recognize that Jesus was tempted as the Messiah (see Matt. 4:3, 6) and as One who had no sin, and yet He was tempted in all points as we are; and we may learn from His temptation how to meet temptation and be victorious over it.

I. Temptation.

It is the common lot of all mankind to be tempted (I Cor. 10:13). The strongest and most noble of men are subject to it; angels were tempted — yes, even Jesus was tempted. We need to know about temptation, so we note

1. What It Is (v. 1). Temptation is of the devil. It is, as Principal Fairbairn expressed it, "seduction to evil, solicitation to wrong. It stands distinguished from trial thus: trial tests, seeks to discover the man's moral qualities or character; but temptation persuades to evil, deludes that it may ruin. God tries. Satan tempts."

Note that temptation is not sin, but yielding to the temptation is sin.

We are told by James (Jas. 1:13-15) that man is tempted by his own lusts. He also tells us that God may permit temptations or trials to test our faith (Jas. 1:2, 3), but His purpose is only to prove us able to stand. God does not suffer us to be tempted beyond endurance, but provides a way of escape (I Cor. 10:13).

2. How It Works (vv. 2, 3, 5, 6, 8, 9). Satan has only three temptations, although he is a master at giving them different appearances. The temptation of Jesus followed the same threefold line as that of Adam and Eve (Gen. 3:6), which is described in I John 2:16 as the general temptation of all men, namely, "the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life." Observe how Satan worked on Jesus: (a) By appealing to the flesh (vv. 2, 3). Jesus had fasted 40 days, and Satan took advantage of that fast to suggest that He use His divine power of creation to satisfy His hunger. To do so would have been to deny His very mission on earth.

Satan observes in man the normal appetites of his body, excites them to a high degree, and then tempts him to satisfy them in an improper way. (b) By appealing to pride (vv. 5, 6). God had promised to keep Jesus "in all his ways" (Ps. 91: 11), but casting Himself from the temple was not one of God's "ways" for Him.

The devil wants us to be presumptuous and call it faith, and this is his pitfall for one who really wants to believe—cause him to become a fanatic and substitute foolish presumption for faith. (c) By appealing to the eyes (vv. 8, 9). By showing Christ the kingdoms of the earth in some kind of striking panorama, or moving picture, he offered a short cut to their rule by a brief act of worship of him, rather than by way of the cross. The devil showed his real purpose here. He wants worship—he wants us to bow to him instead of to God.

II. Our Lord Was Victorious Over Satan.

We, too, can triumph in His blessed name. To do so we need to study the way of victory.

1. How to Gain It (vv. 4, 7, 10). Three steps appear: (a) By the right use of Scripture. If our Lord needed and used that weapon, how can we possibly do without it? How can we use it if we do not study it, and hide it in our hearts (Ps. 119: 11)? (b) By complete dependence upon God. Every Scripture used by Jesus against Satan honored God the Father. We cannot fight Satan in our own strength. Luther was right—

"Did we in our own strength confide,
Our striving would be losing."

The real victory for the Christian is to bring Satan to the foot of the cross. Christ defeated him completely there, and we may plead that victory. (c) By denouncing Satan. Jesus sent him on his way. We may do the same, in Jesus' name. It is always a serious error to argue with Satan, or even to discuss matters with him. He is not divine, but he is a supernatural being with knowledge and cunning which are too much for us. Meet him with Scripture, honor God by your faith in Christ, then "resist the devil, and he will flee from you" (Jas. 4:7).

2. What It Brings (v. 11). When the defeated devil left Christ, angels came and ministered to Him. The overcoming of temptation brings victory, peace, and blessed rest. This is ever true in the life of the believer. Temptations victoriously met make one stronger in meeting the next temptation. There is always a next one, for we read (Luke 4:13) that the devil left Christ only "for a season."

Turning Over An Old Leaf

By Phillip A. Gladheim

"There were faces to remember in the Valley of the Shadow;
There were faces unregarded, there were faces to forget;
There were fires of grief and fear that are a few forgotten ashes;
There were sparks of recognition That are not forgotten yet."

One of our favorite hymns has this line: "Change and decay in all around I see."

Last week I spoke of the possible change from auto transportation to horse and buggy. I notice in the paper that both men and women on our flat city streets are taking to bicycles. This is certainly a severe rationing of rubber, especially for those who have not kept physically fit.

Several weeks ago I made mention in this column of certain sounds that used to be habitually heard in the community. There is one sound that is identified with the daily life of this community—a sound that has not changed through all these years—and is not likely to change. It is the sound of the Catholic church bell calling the faithful to prayer three times daily.

To most people in the community its only significance is that it reminds one of certain definite hours of the day.

From very early time it has been the wonted custom of the Church to set aside certain difinite times during the day of prayer, the singing of the Psalter, the reading of Scripture of the life of some holy man or woman.

All these exercises have in recent years been compiled into a single devotional book known as the Breviary. It comes in four volumes, based in the four seasons of the year. It can be obtained in the English translation. Since coming into possession of the Breviary, the pealing of the bells of St. Peter's has taken on a new significance.

It would seem most practical if the bells of the Protestant churches would join daily with the Catholic in these troublous times enjoining the faithful of the various Christian sects to be more instant in prayer, in season and out of season.

The Mediaeval motto of the Church could well be the motto of the modern Church—"ora et labore"—(pray and work).

It is undoubtedly a necessity to the spiritual person that before he or she begins the day to have recourse to prayer.

How secular we have become in our thinking of time. We sleep as long as possible, then are rudely wakened by an impudent alarm clock. The air over our homes and workshops should jubilantly vibrate with the musical bells of our churches. We will keep on changing from worse to worse until we change our hearts—turn them back to the eternal and changeless truths of our faith.

As a community, we should be humbly grateful that we are reminded three times daily by the bells of St. Peter's that we should join the faithful everywhere in offering up prayer and praise to God.

And whoever through these many decades has been the prompt bell-ringer, may he be comforted and encouraged by the thought that his humble Christian duty has been an estimable blessing not only to his church but to this community.

Showing Them How It Works

The machine guns of the Leathernecks come in for pretty rough usage, and it takes a lot of knowing how to keep 'em chattering against the Axis. Here Sgt. L. F. McRobie, instructor, is giving a few pointers with a pointer to the two Greater Boston Marines at the Marine Corps Armorers School in Philadelphia. Left to right: Sgt. McRobie, native Oaklander; Sgt. The Home Front

By HOWARD BROWNING,
Regional Information Officer, Office of Emergency Management.

This country is learning fast how you must go about fighting a world war. We are learning that it isn't enough to be united in our feeling about the war but that we must be united in action too. And that we must be realistic—prepared for a long pull.

Nothing better shows the need for realism than the fact that a lot of people thought tire rationing wasn't going to last. A lot of people thought that because we might be ready to turn out synthetic rubber at the rate of 200,000 tons a year in 18 months or so tire rationing regulations could be relaxed immediately.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson killed that idea pronto. He called it "a false hope" and said it is entirely possible that every pound of synthetic rubber that can be produced will be needed for military use.

We will do well to avoid all easy optimism all the trends indicate that things may get a lot tougher for the consumer before they get better, but things will get tougher for Hitler and Hirohito, too.

As for unity in action, we took a long step toward that on the broad and all-important war production front when the President established the war production board with Donald M. Nelson as its chairman. That action cleared the way for concentrated attack under a single leadership on the job of converting our huge national plant from the uses of peace to the work of war. And that's how we'll beat the Axis.

The past few days have shown that Americans can unite on action in spheres too. The Office of Production Management's campaign to salvage waste paper and scrap metal and rags and old rubber now has been organized in 16 states and OPM is calling on the operators of the nation's 1,700,000 retail stores to help. Now that we're in this war and faced with critical shortages of materials needed to make weapons and equipment, nothing is waste—nothing should be thrown away.

All that comes under the general head of conservation. There's another side of this conservation business too, at which we will all probably have to become experts. That's nothing more than taking care of things—from garden hose to tractors. That's just keeping the old bus running and being careful of its tires because it may be a long, long while before you can get another helping.

Speaking of tractors, the OPA probably has headed off a threatened rise in farm equipment prices. The increase was to have been based on increases slapped on original equipment tires by the four major rubber companies. The rubber companies withdrew the increases at OPA's request.

So far as the consumer is concerned the prescription looks like "the mixture as before" but in much larger doses. The great diversion dam of war needs already has impounded more of the things to which we are accustomed than we realize, many of us won't realize it until present stocks in the hands of dealers—often these stocks are large—have been exhausted. But then, we'll see the war reflected on the druggist's counter and in the clothing store and many other places beside the auto dealer's.

Another thing we can expect is conservation through substitution and simplification. Substitution merely means the use of some other material for a material needed for military purposes. The Nazis who've had to do a lot more of it than we probably will call such products of substitution "erzatz", simplification means stripping a machine or a household appliance of every bit of unnecessary material.

A good example of simplification is the "Victory model" bicycle at which OPM officials looked the other day. It weighs only 34 pounds as against a 55 pound average for last year's models. America's bike manufacturers will turn out 750,000 of these machines as against 1,827,000 of the larger models made in 1941. That'll save 30,000 tons of steel and a lot of nickel and copper. The tires are smaller and mostly reclaimed rubber.

Consumers will have to make sacrifices, but the OPA is making every effort to see they don't have to pay excessive prices for the things they need. . . sugar prices shouldn't rise until present stocks in the hands of retailers are exhausted and then only fractionally, if at all. . . there's no shortage of any foodstuffs in sight although sometimes people create temporary local shortages by "runs" based on false rumor. . . the OPM's order allocating cellophane is going to make a lot of things look a lot different. . . it'll change the packaging of cosmetics and soaps and razor blades and jigsaw puzzles and punch boards . . . cigarettes will still come done up in cellophane where the manufacturer has eliminated the use of tin foil . . . there's been a rise of ten cents a thousand in the price ceiling above the so-called "ten cent brands" of cigarettes but they shouldn't cost you any more over the counter. . . the retail price has been on that basis for some while . . . the Office of Civilian Defense has enlisted the nations 1,600,000 Boy Scouts for the duration . . . they'll assist civil defense units in emergencies . . . the OCD has launched a victory garden program . . . idea is more and larger vegetable gardens in every community.

Mayor of Coney Is One of Two Held On Moonshine Charge

The Mayor of Lonaconing is one of two men released under $500 bond for action of the Federal grand jury on charges of possessing an unregistered still and 50 gallons of mash, following a hearing before U. S. Commissioner James A. Avirett in Cumberland.

The men are Mayor John H. Evans and Richard Nevin Elliott. Charges against William E. Likins were dismissed.

The still was not in operation but parts were ready for assembly and the mash had partly fermented when seized by Federal officials. The still was found on Dan's mountain, on a farm owned by Benjamin Evans, Federal agents said.

Defense Job Seekers Asked to Register

Employment Director Says At Least 17,000 Will Be Needed In Baltimore

An appeal that workers in Maryland's 23 counties who might be fitted for defense jobs register immediately with their local office of the United States Employment Service for Maryland has been issued.

David L. B. Fringer, acting director of the employment service, declared that entry of the United States into the war against the Axis powers has made it imperative that the available supply of workers in defense plants be stepped up immediately.

Within the next six months, there will be need for at least 17,000 additional workers in Baltimore city alone, he declared. This number includes workers in shipbuilding and aircraft industries and does not make allowances for increases in employment which would be brought about by future expansion.

Mr. Fringer pointed out that the filling of Maryland jobs by Maryland workers is extremely important since it would avoid an influx of transient workers with resultant increase in housing, highway and other wartime problems.

It was also urged that whenever possible workers in non-defense jobs shift to defense work. The majority of job seekers whose applications are still in the employment service's active file are either unskilled workers or persons who possess skills which do not fit the requirements of war industries.

The Garrett County office is located in the McIntire building, Oakland.

What Every Woman Should Know About Vitamin-Saving

1. Use very little water in cooking.
2. Cook vegetables for the shortest possible time.
3. Cover utensils to keep air out.
4. Avoid unnecessary stirring of vegetables.
5. Don't put in baking soda to brighten food colors.
6. Start vegetables in boiling water.
7. Don't throw away vegetable liquids—use them in soups and cream sauces.
8. Keep foods as fresh as possible—use dependable automatic gas refrigeration.
9. Serve plenty of green vegetables.
10. Serve foods soon after cooking.
11. Broiling is preferable to frying to retain vitamins.
12. Low-temperature roasting saves vitamins and minerals.

The Home front's important, too. In maintaining the health of your family you can help assure victory for this nation. Improper cooking destroys vitamins and minerals that should reach your family table. So while we're striving for victory let's make war also on "hidden hunger." Fifty-six billion dollars! That's what we're slated to spend for war in 1942. Just to give you an idea of how much it means, it represents $1,600 for each of the country's 35 million families, $420 for every man, woman and child. It is four billion dollars more than the gross sales of over 1,770,000 retailers reporting to the Bureau of Census in 1941. It equals the dollar value of everything produced in 184,000 U. S. factories during 1939. It exceeds by nearly 13 billion dollars the gross value of all land, buildings, machinery, equipment and livestock on the 6 million American farms in 1940. It is 21 billion more than the total value of all securities listed on the New York Stock Exchange. It represents $3,295 per hour for all the time that has elapsed since the birth of Jesus Christ.

More Complications

More complications developed this week on that marriage that didn't happen, as told to The Republican by the groom who wasn't.

Last week we related how Dawson Sisler, Jasper Sisler and Chauncy Lowdermilk had come into the office to give the information that the latter had been married, when such a wedding had not taken place at all.

This week we get a visit from Jasper Sisler, of Sang Run, and he isn't the person at all who appeared at the office and at the same time that he gave the information on the wedding subscribed for the paper for one Jasper Sisler, and paid for it too.

That puts Jasper in the clear on this deal, and he has a subscription to the paper to boot. He related that Dawson Sisler was his son and that his son has also stated he had nothing to do with the story. That still leaves Lowdermilk to be accounted for. There is one fact left that we are certain of—there were three young men in here the week of January 4 and they sure did tell us a whopper. We'll know them when we see them and some day we'll find out who they are.

An article which appeared in Liberty magazine of September 7, 1940, is causing much comment these days. It was "Lightning in the Night," by Fred Allhoff. In that article he described a surprise air attack on Hawaii and Pearl Harbor. Many of the things he wrote about fifteen months ago turned out exactly as he had stated them.

Emeric Dusic's song, "I Keep Forgetting We're Through," has been published. Many people are wishing him the best of luck on his production. He's been plugging away writing lyrics for over ten years and to have this one accepted by a song-writing guild is a real break.

Homemakers' Column

HOMEMAKERS' FOOD QUIZ

1. If you live on a farm or in a small town and have some land, do you plan home food production to cut costs and get a better diet? Do you plan on a year-round basis—grow some extra in the summer to put up for winter?

2. Do you shop on the basis of your weekly menu plans—buy staple foods in bulk when you save money that way?

3. Can you take advantage of food bargains by revising your menu plans to suit them?

4. Do you watch scales, read labels, look for Government grades, know your cuts of meat, recognize quality in most fresh vegetables and fruit?

5. Do you buy by weight or by quantity rather than by price?

6. Do you compare costs of food in different stores; check your purchases before you leave a store?

7. Do you cook all protein foods—eggs, milk, meat, cheese, poultry, and fish—at low or moderate heat to keep the protein tender?

8. Do you avoid overcooking of all foods?

9. Do you cook vegetables in as little water as possible, as quickly as possible, and use all cooking water in sauces, gravies, if you can't serve it with the vegetable? Do you leave the lid off the pan while green vegetables are cooking and never add soda?

10. Do you combine your leftovers into appetizing new dishes?

11. Do you save bacon fat and meat dripping to add flavor to other foods?

12. Do you avoid thick peelings?

13. Do you avoid failures and food wastes by careful measuring, heat control, and scientific cooking methods?

14. Do you serve food attractively?

15. Do you have variety—of food, of color, of texture, of flavor?

16. Are your sauces and gravies free from lumps—your hot foods hot—your cold foods cold?

17. Does your family have fun at the table and talk about things more interesting than what's wrong with the food?

18. Finally, do they ask for second helpings?

YOU DON'T HAVE TO BE RICH to help American Defense. That's the theme of the above poster, one of the newest of the Defense Savings promotional pieces now going up in streetcars, on bulletin boards, and at other public places. This poster emphasizes the point advanced by the Treasury Department that every American can—and must—pitch in if the United States is to have the arms and the tools necessary to protect her freedom.

ESTABLISHMENT OF THE KINGDOM

And many nations shall come and say, Come, and let us go up unto the mountain of the Lord, and to the house of God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for the law shall go forth of Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem. And the Lord shall judge among many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off; and they shall beat their swords into plough shares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not life up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.

—Micah iv, 2-3.

VOLUNTEER FOR VICTORY

Victory depends as much on the morale and stamina of Maryland's citizens as on the strength of the armed forces. Every community must be organized in this all-out effort. If you are not qualified for one of the armed forces, your country needs you in the defense program.

The local organization can use more volunteers in the primary lines of community defense. Here are some of the opportunities for volunteers:

1. Air raid warden service
2. Messenger service
3. Nurse's aide service
4. Emergency medical service
5. Fire watcher
6. Rescue squad worker
7. Motor driver's corps
8. Emergency food and housing corps
9. Decontamination corps service
10. Staff corps service
11. Auxiliary policeman
12. Auxiliary fireman
13. Bomb squad service
14. Demolition and clearance crew
15. Road repair crew

Go or get in touch at once to your local Defense Board and volunteer for Victory in this civilian campaign.

IS AMERICA REALLY AWAKE?

The fall of France was supposed to have awakened America. But many thoughtful people felt that America would not become fully alert and exert its full force even on the factory front short of actual belligerency.

Even when it became avowedly the arsenal of democracy, the United States was producing at only a third the pace President Roosevelt has now promised. Pearl Harbor has made that much difference. But are Americans even now really awake and geared for an all-out effort?

Few Americans can yet feel the same urgency as the Chinese, the Russians, the British, and the Dutch who are fighting for their homes. When enemy submarines do their deadly work close to the coasts, there is excitement on the edges of the great land mass that is the home of most Americans. But inland people still feel that lovely—and dangerous—sense of security. Even on the coasts Americans cannot feel that the Japanese planes over Singapore are a greater threat to them than the submarines a few miles off shore.

Do they still feel as Singapore did two months ago? Or as the British did before Dunkirk? After Dunkirk, Britain doubled her production effort. America must now treble hers. Only an awareness—an awakeness—that will enable Americans to get from Pearl Harbor the impetus that British got from Dunkirk will provide the sense of urgency that can fire an all-out production effort. The absence of this awareness has made most of the Axis triumphs possible. But it can be developed. The Dutch in the East Indies developed much of it after The Netherlands were overrun.

America enjoys a great advantage in being remote from the most active theatres of war. As an arsenal it has a freedom to work with little or no interruption from enemy attack which none of the other great Powers possesses. But this very sense of security can be a disadvantage if it encourages apathy. It is reported that the people of Leningrad, working under the fire of German siege guns, have produced hundreds of tanks and airplanes for the defense of Russia. America has not had the spur of a Dunkirk of Leningrad. It has the problem—and the opportunity—of awaking fully without such experiences.

DEVOTION . . . .

By a GARRETT COUNTIAN

Today, in America, we find countless individuals keenly and consistently devoted to their home, business, lodge, church, to which they are readily willing to grant time, patience, funds, effort.

How about your country? Have you thought of its needs? Or do you just offer it selfish grumbling, criticism, skepticism, indifference, irony, sarcasm? Have you paused long enough to realize that your church, home, business, lodge or associated institutions are existing under their present status only because of the rights and freedom and protection offered by the United States of America, which itself is actually a great democratic institution, within which your little world is given shelter?

Violent complaining about everything from the rationing of autos to the narrowing of men's trouser legs and the creation of new taxes isn't in order today. We haven't seen the thousandth part of what the British experienced. But they proved they could take it, take it with tightened belts and grim determination; not with querulous whining and bitter resentment against necessary war-time restrictions.

Can we match the courage, determination, stability and coolness of the English? Can we apply the devotion, pride and patriotism in our land as the British did? Remember, our country may get along without you and you and you, but can YOU get along without your country?

This Writer Declares More Prayer Is Needed

To the Editor of The Republican
Dear Editor:

I would like to know how long it was during the last World War from the time the hour of prayer started, when stores were closed and people went in the churches and prayer, until the armistice was signed.

I believe we should have the time of prayer again when people who can will go in the churches and pray, or pray at home or at work. Our greatest motto is "In God We Trust." All through the Bible we read of armies being stopped and miracles being performed through prayers.

When the British were forced to leave Norway the English people had a day of prayer and a fog covered the troop ships so the planes could not find them.

Read your Bible, go to Church and pray. Sometimes we forget our Churches. If we were forced to give up our churches then we would see what a great loss and sad time it would be. We need an old time revival in America, all churches working together in one accord, confessing our sins and repenting.

With America's prayers and mother's tears behind our soldiers and sailors I believe the Lord will give us victory.

Yours truly,
JONAS H. KNOX.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS . . . .

Mrs. Roosevelt's Week

Washington, Jan. 17.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt protrudes herself into so many public fields and has become so much of a public character "on her own" that her attitude, activities and utterances are legitimate subjects for comment. Certainly, her persistent and continuous efforts to influence legislation and effect policies make her a factor that cannot be ignored.

Aside from her civilian-defense operations and her routine lines, such as writing a daily column and making a Sunday broadcast, in the week ending last Wednesday, Mrs. Roosevelt managed to attract public attention on an unusual variety of matters of general concern. It involves a considerable strain to say that in any of them she has advanced the national interests. The truth is a very good case for the reverse can be made out—always conceding that her motives are of the best and that from her point of view she is nobly discharging her duty.

In the course of this week she interjected herself into three separate controversies, found herself criticized by at least three friendly columnists and inspired pointed suggestions from various sources that she retire altogether from the OCD. In addition, she used her own column to rebuke a writer who had reported that she had "lambasted" Mr. William Knudsen. This she denied, declaring that all she had done was merely personally to present her views on civilian morale. "I said all this," she wrote, "directly to Mr. Knudsen and Mr. Hillman in somewhat forceful terms, but without criticism of them." Altogether, the story of Mrs. Roosevelt's week is an interesting one and not without importance, because she is a person of influence.

First, there was her highly publicized refusal to cross the picket line in front of a New York theatre. Accompanied by her radical young protege, Joseph Lash, she got her ticket money back, and later declared that "fair or unfair," under no circumstances would she cross a picket line. As pointed out by Mr. Pegler and others, this is equivalent to saying that right or wrong she always supports a striking union. Her belated letter, published on Tuesday, to the union boss, Petrillo, in which she expressed the view that the issue should be settled by arbitration, does not change her right or wrong attitude.

Evidence of this has been given before. Some months ago she sympathetically addressed a meeting of Brooklyn strikers, knowing nothing about the merits of the strike. This fresh evidence came at a particularly unfortunate time, when efforts are being made to outlaw strikes during the war, and the professional labor leaders are trying to exact as a price partial acceptance of the Communistic principle of labor management of industry. It is inevitable that Mrs. Roosevelt's utterances and action in this picket business be taken as sympathetic with any labor demand. And, of course, it is not possible to disassociate Mrs. Roosevelt from her White House connection, which is what gives her words weight.

Hardly had resentment over this incident subsided before she barged into another highly controversial field, raising the race issue in a speech before a group of Washington women. She was quoted in the Evening Star as saying that the nation cannot expect the colored people to feel that the United States is worth defending if they continue to be treated as they are being treated now. As one instance of discrimination, the Star said, she cited the segregation of colored women from white in Red Cross first-aid courses. "In an air raid," said Mrs. Roosevelt, "the colored women would be expected to administer first aid to colored and white alike." It was stated that her remarks were received "with murmurs of both approval and disapproval." While, of course, she did not intened to do so, it is hard to think of a better way to stir up bad feeling.

But, this expression against race discrimination by no means ended Mrs. Roosevelt's extension of herself. She covered still more territory when on Tuesday she took a stand against cutting down appropriations for NYA and WPA and indicated her distaste for the Byrd committee. She had announced in a previous column that she had had Mr. Aubrey Williams, head of the NYA and one of her special favorites, to lunch the day before. So, it was not difficult to guess the inspiration of her opposition to the Byrd recommendations. It is interesting to note that Mr. Morgenthau signed the Byrd committee's report and that the President, himself, advocates a considerable reduction in both NYA and WPA. There, of course, will be determined resistance in Congress to any economy at all. Unquestionably Mrs. Roosevelt's words lend encouragement to the resisting elements.

Finally, there was her success in having Mr. Lash put on the executive board of the youth division of the OCD. Mr. Lash is secretary of the International Student Service, and has been charged with being a Communist. This he again denied last Wednesday. Asked if his former activities had not been close to Communist lines, he enigmatically replied, "You might say there was a time when Communists were Democrats." As one of the grounds for recent criticism of Mrs. Roosevelt has been the tightness with which, despite opposition, she holds on to her OCD directorship, the Lash appointment can hardly increase confidence in that agency.

Now, of course, by her attitude on these things, Mrs. Roosevelt may have endeared herself further to the labor leaders, to the Negro leaders, to the Administration spenders, to the young radicals, and to the many who believe the Government owes them a living without work. Perhaps they do credit to her heart if not to her head and certainly they fit in with the picture of her as a great lover of humanity in the mass. But they do other things, too. They create resentment and suspicion; they keep bitterness alive and promote disunity. And they are untimely, inept and unnecessary. In a single week Mrs. Roosevelt has succeeded in making it a little harder to move forward in at least three important directions. It is quite an achievement for one woman.

Archbishop of Canterbury in England resigned and will be succeeded by a younger man. He is 77.

The Interstate Commerce Commission granted an increase of about ten percent in railroad fares.

Meter readers in Eastern Maryland are using bicycles.

A price ceiling on retreading tires was ordered, making $7.50 top price for best job on 6.00x16 size; in effect January 19.

Tolls collected by the state from the Susquehanna and Potomac river bridges passed the million mark.

DIARY OF THE WAR

FRIDAY — British withdrew further in Malaya. Further Jap progress was noted in Dutch East Indies. MacArthur's troops on Luzon kept throwing invaders back. A U. S. sub sank a large Jap merchant ship. A second ship in as many days was attack by enemy sub off the eastern seaboard. Russian offensive burst through a ring of Nazi forts outside Kharkov and encirclement around Mozhaisk continued. British pressed forward in Libya against Halfaya Pass. The Pan-American parley got under way with Sumner Welles stating independence of Western Hemisphere could live only in its unity. British bombed Hamburg shipyards. Australians joined the Malayan battle for first time. Jap losses at Changsha were placed at 60,000 by Chinese.

SATURDAY — British slowed Jap offensive on Singapore. U. S. warships sank five Jap vessels—3 transports and 2 cargo ships. British and Japs clashed along Burma border. Japs struck by air in East Indies. Nazis attempted counter-attacks on Moscow front but Reds kept advancing. Free French joined British in action against Axis on Libyan front.

SUNDAY—U. S. subs sank three Jap ships off Tokyo Bay. Free French were accused by Spain of seizing 3 Axis craft in raid off west coast of Africa. Red parachute troops were swarming behind Mozhaisk line. British plane reinforcements blasted Japs in Malaya. Churchill arrived in England following visit to U. S. British planes blasted Nazi ships in Guernsey island. British, Poles and Free French took Halfaya Pass and took 5,500 Axis prisoners. Japs launched a heavy blow at MacArthur's flank.

MONDAY—Japs crept closer to Singapore against stiffening defenses and bombers were over the naval base there. Australians inflicted losses of 8 to 1 ratio on Japs. MacArthur's troops were standing their ground on Luzon and even recaptured several positions. Reds forced their way 13 miles from Mozaisk and into Orel. New assaults were unleashed before Kharkov. British cleared up all Axis forces around Halfaya and looked on to battle with Rommel, 300 miles to the west. Germany, Italy and Japan signed a military agreement at Berlin for joint operations against united nations. Japs announced those captured at Wake island had been landed at Yokohama as prisoners of war. Stalin freed Polish trops to join fight in Libya. British seized Burma's chief, accused of conspiring to deliver country to Japs. Another merchant ship was torpedoed and sunk off the East coast, the third in about four days.

TUESDAY—Japs appeared to have been halted in western Malaya by Australians, about 90 miles from Singapore. MacArthur's men still held firm in Philippines. British withdrew from a southern port in Burma and abandoned Tavoy air base near Thailand. Japs raided Dutch Indies in widely separated points. Germans claimed to have retaken Feodosiya in Crimea but initiative was with Red armies all along the front. Another tanker was torpedoed, the third in five days. Axis diplomats had threatened Brazil if they sided with U. S. A British sub sank a German sub, troopship and damaged an Italian destroyer in Mediterranean. British planes blasted Tripoli. They reported 14,000 prisoners taken at Halfaya pass.

WEDNESDAY — Japs advanced further in Malaya and broadened their attacks elsewhere. They were within 60 miles of Singapore. From an air-craft carrier they made an assault on New Britain. Thailand troops invaded British Burma. U. S. bombers sank a Jap cruiser and tanker and a tiny torpedo boat sank a large Jap ship in a Philippine bay. Russians announced recapture of Mozhaisk, the most advanced point of the Nazis. There were further attacks on shipping off east coast of U. S., but strong counter measures were being taken.

THURSDAY — Japs were shelled to a halt in Malaya, sixty miles above Singapore. Japs suffered defeat in Philippines with American lines holding and regaining positions in counter-attacks. Many Jap bombers were at work over island approaches to Australia and people of latter termed it a dangerous threat. Dutch admitted Japs occupied Minahassa peninsula but at great cost. U. S. navy announced two more ships attacked off American coast by Axis with 46 of crews missing. Reds claimed 200,000 Germans were fleeing toward Dneiper river. Guerrilla fighters in Philippines were causing trouble for Japs. Argentina and Chile were reported prepared to join other Republics against Axis.

Tire Thefts Likened To Horse Stealing

A criminal court judge in Baltimore has likened tire stealing to horse stealing of pioneer days. The statement was made just before Baltimore police reported the largest tire theft since the rationing went into effect. Twenty-three tires were stolen from a service station.

The judge made his comment in an appeal case in which the appellant had been fined $50.00 for the petty larceny of a wheel and tire valued at $20.00. Judge R. K. Adams refused to reduce sentence and commented:

"Stealing tires today is almost analogous to horse-stealing in days gone by, and you will recall that they used to string offenders up some times for that."

Governor Emphasizes Civilian Responsibility

Emphasizing civilian responsibility, in every community throughout the state, in "this hour of urgent need," Governor O'Conor issued an appeal to Marylanders to cooperate completely and willingly in building up complete volunteer organizations in every town and county for civilian defense.

"It is not the country of any single American or his personal democratic rights that we are asked to defend," the Governor said. "It is not the future of a few favorite Americans that we are urged to safeguard. It is the collective rights and privileges of every last one of the one hundred and thirty million American citizens that we must cherish and preserve at any and all cost.

"If, therefore, you are called upon to stand on a hillside during the chilly hours of the early dawn and look for hostile air raiders, or if you are to give of your time and ability in any function of Civilian Defense, you are not merely serving a selfish interest—rather you are helping to preserve an ideal that transcends any thought of personal self seeking. You are helping to safeguard for millions now threatened with slavery, or to restore for other millions now enslaved, the most perfect system of government ever known to man.

"The time for delay and indecision has passed. Our people must realize that they are in danger—that not only their properties are jeopardized but also their future as a democracy—their very lives and the lives, happiness and honor of every one of us. "Get in touch with your local defense director immediately, or your Chief Air Raid Warden and ask for an assignment to whatever function you can serve best.

MARRIED

SILBER-PAUGH—The marriage of Miss Gladys M. Paugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Paugh, of Deer Park, to Mr. Frank C. Silber, son of Mrs. Alta Silber, of Accident, has been announced. The wedding took place the evening of January 17, 1942, at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Harry V. Schaeffer, in Washington, D. C.

Mr. Paugh gave his daughter in marriage. The bride wore a beige suit and brown accessories, with a shoulder corsage of talisman roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Vauda M. Paugh, who was attired in a pink dress with black accessories. The groom had as his best man Mr. Raymond Browning, of Washington. Mrs. Silber's mother and other relatives and friend attended.

After a short honeymoon, Mrs. Silber will return to Washington, where she is employed in the War department. Mr. Silber will return to his duties in the army.

CHURCH-YOUNKIN—Miss Margaret Ann Younkin, daughter of Mrs. Virginia Younkin, Grantsville, and George Church, son of the late Mrs. Emma Church, Mt. Savage, were married Saturday evening, January 17, at 7:30 o'clock in St. George's church there. Rev. Percy C. Adams officiated.

Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Church, brother and sister-in-law of the bridegroom, were the attendants.

The bride wore a navy blue street length dress with tan accessories and a shoulder corsage of pink rosebuds and baby breath. The matron of honor was attired in tan with brown accessories and wore a corsage of yellow rosebuds.

Mr. Church is a graduate of the Mt. Savage high school and is employed at the Mt. Savage brick yard.

Elmer Goss Drops Dead In Engine

Elmer E. Goss, about 58, of Cumberland, and former resident of Oakland, dropped dead of a heart attack as he was shoveling coal into the firebox of a westbound freight train of the B. and O. railroad that was leaving the Cumberland yards. He had been a fireman on the railroad for a number of years.

He apparently was in good health when he left for work that morning and had eaten a hearty breakfast. He was a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen.

A native of Clearfield county, Pa., Mr. Goss was a son of the late T. F. and Keturah Kline Goss.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Hallie Lipscomb Goss; six sons, Everett E., Fort Jackson, S. C.; Thomas, John R., James, Robert and William F., all of Cumberland; four daughters, Mrs. Frank Wrichtman, Fairmont, W. Va.; Mrs. William Allen, Baltimore; Mrs. Lawrence Smith, Cumberland; and Miss Virginia Goss, at home; four brothers, William Goss, Morgantown, W. Va.; Oscar Goss, Webster Springs, W. Va.; Paul Goss, Altoona, Pa.; and Guy Goss, Cumberland; three sisters, Mrs. Jane Bishoff, Library, Pa.; Mrs. Clayton Thompson, Grantsville, and Mrs. Edna Beck, Adah, Pa.

Red Cross At Work In Philippine Islands

More than 500,000 Philippine refugees all over the islands are being cared for by the American Red Cross, Joaquin M. Elizalde, Philippine Resident Commissioner, has stated. Mr. Elizalde paid a glowing tribute to the "extremely wonderful work" which the Red Cross already has done among evacuated civilians, and mentioned that one of the most serious problems which the Red Cross is now facing is that of getting food to over 8,000 lepers, who have only a bare two months supply available in their isolated island colony.

When the Philippines were attacked, the Red Cross was able to give immediate medical help, emergency first aid and evacuation assistance to the civilian populations, Red Cross officials explained. Preparations for any eventuality had been made months in advance. Large stores of emergency medical supplies and first aid equipment shipped from the United States had been strategically placed, and ten Red Cross First Aid stations of 50 beds each were set up and ready to operate.

Engagement Announced

ORDER NISI

Etta M. Helbig vs. Evelyn H. Teets et al.
No. 3256 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County.
ORDERED,

Axis Aliens Must Make Application For Certificate

Every German, Italian and Japanese national over the age of fourteen in the United States, has been ordered to apply for a "certificate of identification" under threat of internment for the duration.

Attorney General Biddle issued the order, affecting approximately 1,100,000 subjects of the Axis powers. He said the government had the dual objective of "strengthening our internal safety and protecting the loyal alien, even if he has become technically an alien enemy."

Enemy aliens in eight western states must file applications between February 2 and 7, 1942, inclusive. Elsewhere they must file applications between February 9 and 28, at their nearest first or second class postoffice. Oakland is the only second class postoffice in the county and all applications will have to be made at that office.

Aliens must submit a photograph of themselves and answer questions concerning their current activities. After a check of the applications, each alien will be given an identification card bearing his picture, signature and one finger-print. The card must be carried at all times.

Failure to comply will mean certain detection because of the check which will be made against alien registration records made in 1940.

There were 76 aliens registered in Garrett county in 1940. Only a few of these were German and Italian, and there were no alien Japanese.

MT. LAKE PARK

In this column of December 18, 1941, we wrote an article pertaining to a petition being circulated by the citizens, protesting the action of the officers of The Defenders of the Faith in having five hundred trees cut down. Since that time we have learned that we were wrong when we said the trees were sold at $1.00 a tree. It would seem that the price paid was more than that. We apologize for the error. When, last week, we gave the views of out-of-town property owners we were called by Miss England's agent and asked who wrote the column. We told him that column was not meant to be funny. The people who advocated those ideas were absolutely sincere. It may be that Miss England will have a different report on the column, but let us say here and now that we have nothing to say as regards Miss England other than good. When The Defenders of the Faith first came to Mt. Lake this column and this paper put forth all the publicity they possibly could in the interest of the new owners. She apparently does not remember the paper correspondent who talked with her and afterwards gave her good publicity in this same Republican paper. Nor does her agent remember when we got the story from him and in both county papers, we sang their praises. It might be a good idea to look up those back numbers of The Republican.

But to go back to our own personal grievance. It hurts our ego that Miss England does not know who writes this column. Miss England personally, has no enemies here. Mt. Lake liked Miss England. There has never been at any time any feeling against her. There is none in this column. But there are times when this columnist wonders if Miss England knows all that happens. To Miss England we want publicly to make any apology necessary and to say to her that so far as Mt. Lake and its citizens are concerned, we will cooperate with her. One thing Miss England probably does not know and that is Mt. Lake and Oakland both have been "bitten" many times—so it's natural that they should be a little shy.

So far as the correspondent is concerned the incident is closed. From now on anything pertaining to Mt. Lake Park and still bearing the trade mark of Board of Missions, will never be mentioned in this column, and may we hope that Miss England will receive this article.

Before we make our Swan Song we want to say we have at all times tried to help the new buyers of Mt. Lake. But at all times there has been something we could not grasp so far as a sale of the Park went.

The Victory Book Campaign Is On

The Garrett County Business and Professional Women's club is sponsoring the Victory Book Campaign for Garrett county and Mrs. Margaret Berghaus has been named chairman for Mt. Lake Park, and Miss Mary O'Donnell for Loch Lynn.

The Government has already collected some reading matter for the soldiers, sailors and marines. More good books of every kind are needed and gifts of money for purchasing new books will be welcomed. The campaign closes on February 4th. Let's show what Mt. Lake can do.

DIED

E. C. SHAFFER

Elijah Conrad Shaffer, aged 82, known to his many friends as "Cooney," died at his home just east of Oakland on the Mt. Lake Park road, on Tuesday evening, January 20, about 9 o'clock, following a stroke of paralysis earlier that day.

The deceased was a son of Christopher Shaffer and was born at Rodamer, near Terra Alta, W. Va., on November 20, 1860. He was a retired farmer and formerly worked as a fireman for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Anna Smith Shaffer, seven children, Mrs. Howard Hoffman, William W. Shaffer, Oakland; Roy Shaffer, Cumberland; Mrs. Charles Van Horton, Clarksburg, W. Va.; Mrs. Bertha Grumbach, Mrs. Grace Nye, and Miss Estel Shaffer, Fairmont, W. Va.; also nine grandchildren and one sister, Mrs. N. R. Stahl, Somerset, Pa.

His remains were taken to the Fike and Watson funeral home at Terra Alta, from which place funeral service will be conducted on Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, with Rev. H. W. Harrison, of the U. B. church, Terra Alta, officiating. Interment will be in the Terra Alta cemetery.

MRS. JANE SHARPLESS

Mrs. Jane Harvey Sharpless, 82, life-long resident of this county, died at her home near Vindex on Monday, January 19. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Harvey and was born near Mt. Zion in 1860.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Alice Bell, Elk Garden; Mrs. Emma Stark, Vindex; five sons, Joseph, Hubert and McKinley Sharpless, of Vindex; Robert Sharpless, Kitzmiller; and Charles Sharpless, at home. Three sisters and two brothers also survive: Mrs. Emma Paugh, Miss Ida Sharpless, both of Kitzmiller; Mrs. Columbia Tasker, Westernport; Lemuel Harvey, Shaw, W. Va., and Elmer Harvey, Vindex.

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday from the Mt. Zion church with Rev. William Buckheart officiating. Interment was in the Mt. Zion cemetery.

WILLIAM EDGAR STANTON

William Edgar Stanton, 71, died of a heart attack early Monday morning, January 19, at his home in Grantsville. He had been in ill health for seven years but seemed to be improving until a short time ago when he suffered an acute attack. He had recovered from this sufficiently to be out again, however.

A son of the late Eli and Harriet Broadwater Stanton, he was born in Grantsville, September 28, 1870, and spent his entire life in that community. Mr. Stanton's grandfather started "Stanton's Mill" at Little Crossings. Later his father, Eli Stanton, took over its management. Following his graduation from Poughkeepsie Business college in New York, W. E. Stanton entered the business and for a few years was in partnership with his father. Later he assumed entire ownership and had successfully conducted the business since 1909, assisted in recent years by his son, Edgar V. Stanton and son-in-law, Byron H. Bender. Mr. Stanton also served as vice-president of the former First National Bank at Grantsville.

He was a life-long member of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church and active in its work, serving as deacon and later as elder, 20 years as the latter. He was also active as a member of the church Consistory board.

In September, 1897, Mr. Stanton married Miss Rebecca VanSickel, of Somerfield, Pa. Five children were born, a daughter, Lillian, dying in infancy.

Surviving are his widow, four children, Mrs. Byron H. Bender, Mrs. Lena S. Bender, Grantsville; Mrs. Stanton Funk, Washington, Pa.; and Edgar V. Stanton, Grantsville; also four grandchildren and one sister, Mrs. Harvey H. Maust, Salisbury, Pa., and a brother, J. Urban Stanton, Grantsville.

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday afternoon from the home with Rev. Alvin J. Forry, pastor, officiating, assisted by Rev. L. N. Wilson, Berlin, Pa.

ARCHIBALD BERNARD

Archibald Bernard, whose home was near Swanton, died on Sunday, January 11, 1942, at the Springfield State Hospital, where he had been a patient for several years.

He was born August 13, 1869 near Bloomington, a son of the late Charles and Martha Tasker Bernard, and was aged 72 years, 4 months and 29 days.

Surviving are his widow, at Swanton, and a twin sister, Mrs. Cora May, Pittsburgh, Pa. He had spent his life in this county until overtaken by illness.

Services were conducted on last Thursday afternoon at one o'clock at the Methodist church in Swanton, the Rev. Elmer Bleacher, of Swanton, officiating. Interment was made in the Bernard cemetery.

MRS. CLARISSA PAUGH

Mrs. Clarissa Roderick Demmit Paugh, 79, widow of Jehu Paugh, died Sunday morning, January 18, at the home of a son, Robert Paugh, near Kitzmiller. Death was attributed to complications arising from a hip fracture suffered in a fall at her home about a year ago.

She was a daughter of Joshua and Elizabeth Smith Demmit. Surviving are four sons, Robert Paugh, near Kitzmiller, Riley Paugh, Gormania, W. Va.; Raymond and Leonard Paugh, of Deer Park; 37 grandchildren and 15 great grandchildren. Her husband died about 32 years ago. Mrs. Paugh had been a member of the U. B. church at Bethlehem for many years.

Funeral services were conducted from the home on Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock with Rev. J. C. Foster, U. B. pastor of Loch Lynn, officiating. Interment was on the home farm. Pallbearers were Charles Paugh, McKinley Paugh, Bert Paugh, Blaine Bernard, Charles Bernard and Thomas Moore.

RED HOUSE LUTHERAN PARISH
A. K. Jones, Pastor

The Sunday schools and the Luther League have their programs at the usual time next Sunday. At 10:40 the Holy Communion service at St. John's Church.

Our God and Saviour provides all that we need for the peace and nourishment of the soul. Through the Lord's Supper we receive strength and inspiration to live victoriously in days that remind us of the evil forces that are so destructive in all parts of the world. St. Paul tells us that God supplies all that we need, and that we can endure all the unhappy experiences of these dark days by keeping in close fellowship with Christ and His Church.

Oakland Wallops Elk Garden Quint, 38-7

Elk Garden's basketball team was held scoreless from the field until the last quarter and dropped a one-sided 38-7 decision to Oakland high's combination last night.

Elk Garden scored only two points against the Oakland regulars and trailed 6-0, 14-1 and 30-2 at the periods. E. Rook, with six baskets, sparked the Oakland attack.

In the first game the Elk Garden girls defeated the Oakland sextet, 23-13. Lawton and Chaney with six and five points, accounted for all but two of Oakland's total score.

Time Is Valuable . . . .

Time is precious. Don't waste it! There are fragments of time to be gathered riding along, waiting for trains or busses, waiting at the barber shop or dentist's office.

These moments in the aggregate are considerable and by intelligent planning we can catch up with ourselves and convert these inbetween periods into moments of genuine satisfaction.

"It's the leakage of little driblets of time that saps our accomplishment," writes Robert R. Updegraff, business and advertising counsellor, in the current Rotarian magazine.

He feels that dozens of successful personages have completed their work in moments other people waste. Walter Camp developed the "daily dozen" exercises as a means of keeping fit in spare minutes. Emily Post writes her notes in odd moments. John Erskine has written books, a paragraph at a time, in "marginal time."

Especially during this war is our time valuable to ourselves and our country. Let us not waste even a minute of it.

PLANS FOR DRAFT REGISTRATION ABOUT COMPLETE

Will Be Conducted in Twenty Places February 14, 15 and 16—Registrars and Places are Listed by Board

Plans are about completed by the Garrett County Draft Board for registering every male citizen who attained his twentieth birthday on or before December 31, 1941, and who has not attained his forty-fifth birthday on February 16, 1942, and who has not heretofore registered.

The registration will take place, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, February 14, 15 and 16, and will be held at twenty places throughout the county, 19 of them in school buildings.

The list of places and the chief registrars for each are as follows: (school houses unless otherwise noted) .

Oakland, Foster D. Bittle; Grantsville, Frank J. Getty; Friendsville, Wilbur J. Glenn; Accident, B. O. Aiken; Kitzmiller, O. P. Jones; Swanton, Clyde Humes; Kempton, Asa Lewis; Bloomington, Mrs. Inez Bush; Avilton, Mrs. Elizabeth Rank; Gorman, Mrs. Phyllis Harvey Williams, in Williams residence; Deer Park, Bryan L. Shockley; Red House, Grace E. Filer; Vindex, Mrs. Lena W. Walker; Sang Run, Viola Broadwater; Shallmar, Gladys Hamill; Jennings, Mrs. Delta M. Lohr; Bittinger, Helen Comer; Crellin, Josie Iden; New Germany, Esther Opel; Finzel, M. Elizabeth Workman.

Supplies for the job will be sent out to the centers as soon as received. F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent, said he felt that with the three days for the registration it would not be necessary to close any schools on Monday, and urged as many as possible to register on either Saturday or Sunday, February 14 or 15. Places will be open on Saturday and Sunday from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., and on Monday from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Car Owners Have Until Saturday to Get Auto Stickers

Car owners have until Saturday to purchase their federal automobile tax stickers. Irvin R. Rudy, local postmaster, reported 740 stickers sold thus far at the Oakland postoffice. Stickers are on sale at all postoffices in the county.

Unless an automobile carries one of the stickers on and after next Saturday the car cannot be operated.

After Saturday all unsold stickers are to be returned to the postoffice department and none will be available to those who fail to purchase them before the deadline.

The stickers cost $2.09 for the period up to June 30, and a one-cent stamp is necessary to mail a card to the Federal Internal Revenue Bureau, reporting the purchase.

Dies When Coal Bank Caves In

Joseph Sylvester Uphold, 56, became caught under a fall of dirt when a crop mine near Kendall, caved in, and died as a result of suffocation before anyone knew of his predicament.

Mr. Uphold had gone to the mine early last Thursday morning with his team and was seen around lunch time. Late in the afternoon his team of horses wandered back to his home and a search was started at once for the missing man.

He was found practically buried in the debris at the coal bank, just about a mile west of Kendall.

Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, county coroner, and J. O. Owens, sheriff, were called and made an investigation, but an inquest was deemed unnecessary.

The man was unmarried.

County Participating In Fight on Polio

The County is participating in the annual campaign against infantile paralysis with its march of dimes coin boxes and a benefit card party in Oakland tomorrow evening.

The card party is scheduled for the Episcopal Parish House, Center street. This will be conducted in place of the usual annual President's birthday ball.

Coin boxes have been placed many places throughout the county. The money realized will be divided on a fifty-fifty basis, half of it remaining in the county. Admission to the card party will be 35 cents.

STATE MANAGER TO VISIT WOODMEN CIRCLE TUESDAY

Will Discuss Local And State Problems And Plan For Year's Work

Mrs. Henrietta Snider, Maryland State manager of the Supreme Forest, Woodmen Circle, will be in Oakland on Tuesday, February 3, to meet with officers and members of the Crellin and Oakland Grove No. 3.

Mrs. Snider's headquarters are in Richmond, Va., but makes regular visits in this area. She is state manager for Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Local and state problems and plans for the year are to be discussed with the group here.

The Crellin and Oakland grove met last Thursday night, January 22, at the home of Mrs. T. E. Bishoff. Mrs. Hervey Bittner, guardian, who recently returned from Florida, gave an interesting talk about her visit and also told of an initiation ceremony of Tau Phi Lambda chapter which she attended while in Florida.

The group discussed Welfare work in which its members are engaged. They turned in more than two hundred articles of sewing and knitting last year for the Red Cross and hope to double that amount this year, according to Mrs. Bishoff.

Refreshments followed the business meeting. The local grove is one of 2,642 in 45 states and is the largest grove in Maryland. It had the first Tau Phi Lambda chapter in Maryland, an organization for juniors. There are 16 adult groves and 12 junior groups in the state. The Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle is more than 50 years old and has more than 34 million in assets.

Employment Service Placed 845 Persons During the Past Year

The Oakland office of the United States Employment Service placed 845 persons in employment during 1941, an average of 70 persons per month, it was announced by Milburn W. Mann, director. Of this number 511 were men and 334 women. Some of the jobs were temporary while others were for a longer duration.

Persons are being placed through the clearance procedure at other points in Maryland by the local office. Three stationary firemen and one stationary engineer have been placed recently at the Aberdeen Proving grounds. A large number have been placed at the Baltimore plant of the Glenn L. Martin company in recent months.

Mr. Mann said many employers in the county preferred to have the local office refer qualified workers to them rather than attempt to locate them through their own efforts.

There are 812 active registrations on file at the local office, 709 men and 103 women.

The Employment Service is advertising this week for young men to take a training course, to enable them to secure work in defense plants. The course is given free as the person also works at a given task. Further particulars are available at the office.

INTEREST IN CIVILIAN DEFENSE SATISFACTORY

Good Progress Being Made Toward Achievement of Goal of 2,500 Volunteer Workers

Satisfactory progress toward achieving the goal of 2,500 Civilian defense workers in Garrett county was reported yesterday by Earl Guard and L. M. Fraley, county coordinators.

A tabulation is to be made shortly of the exact number enrolled but thus far the blanks which have been distributed in the various communities are still in the hands of the leaders there. Wherever meetings to explain the civilian defense program are held the response has been very gratifying, according to Mr. Fraley.

About fifty State roads workers in the county will be available for Civilian defense, it was announced this week by Leo T. Downey, district engineer, and also their roads equipment.

Downey is to direct the operations of his men in the district and is to be assisted by J. Carter Shryock, assistant construction engineer and Bates Chaires, Hagerstown, junior assistant maintenance engineer. H. E. Rook will be in charge of Garrett county and Ralph Thayer, formerly of Oakland, will be in charge of Washington county. The maintenance personnel in the county numbers around fifty.

In case of emergency the road crews would first attend to the roads and then be available for any job for which they were needed.

At a recent meeting in Loch Lynn C. B. Groves was made air raid warden for that area and Lloyd Cook, who holds a first aid certificate, has volunteered to conduct a first aid class for residents of that area. The meeting was attended by Fraley and J. W. Owens, chief air raid warden for this section of the county. Fraley said he would speak to the Oakland Boy Scouts on Friday for the purpose of organizing them as messengers in case of emergency.

Robert W. Lohr left Sunday for Edgewood Arsenal, where he is taking a course of instruction offered by the U. S. army on bombs and gases. The course will take two weeks, after which Lohr will be qualified to give instruction here about such matters.

Between 80 and 90 men and women are taking the first aid course being offered each Wednesday evening in the K. of P. hall, Oakland, by Dr. E. I. Baumgartner and a number of assistants.

Bear Hill Wilts Are Much In News Today

One Fled Hospital in Nightshirt; One Given Six Months for Resisting Arrest—Others Held

The Wilts of Bear Hill are much in the news this week as the result of several brushes with the law and the escape of one from the second floor of Memorial hospital, Cumberland, where he was a patient.

As the count stands at present Leroy Wilt is missing, having climbed out of a second story window, sliding down two sheets knotted together, and disappearing in his nightshirt, from Memorial hospital on Monday morning. He was admitted the previous Tuesday with an injured left hand and was being held for authorities.

Cletus Wilt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Wilt, of near Jennings, was charged with assault and resisting arrest and at a hearing before Magistrate C. S. Zeller in Grantsville, on Tuesday, was sentenced to serve six months in the House of Correction.

Officers went to his house last week to serve a warrant, at which time the man was alleged to have fled after pushing one of them over a porch banister. Later State Trooper G. S. Dunlap, who arrived on the scene with other officers surprised Wilt as he was watching the others from what he thought was a safe distance and promptply took him into custody.

Then there are Earl Wilt, Mark Wilt, Carl Wilt, Ned Wilt and Lee Bittinger. They are being held in the county jail on charges of larceny of a quantity of chickens, turkeys, and with theft of clothing and accessories from automobiles.

Deer Park Benefit

A Bingo party will be held Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock on February 3, in the Woodmen Hall at Deer Park, and is being conducted by the roll call workers in that town, with Mrs. D. R. Hinebaugh chairman. Admission is 25 cents. The money will be added to the roll call total.

Three Boys Charged With Theft at Church

Take $22 From Purses of Choir Members Sunday Morning

Three young boys got into serious difficulty through the theft of a quantity of money last Sunday morning, with the result that one of them, Richard "Jack" Wilson, has been sentenced to a training school for boys.

Wilson, about 14 or 15, has been on parole for several months, as the result of previous escapades in Oakland.

The three on Sunday were found guilty of the theft of about $22.00 from the choir room of the Methodist church, during the morning service. The money was taken from the hand bags of the choir members. The boys then went to Terra Alta and spent approximately $15.00 in slot machines there, according to authorities.

The other two youths were placed under parole and they will be required to return the money. It is their first offense.

Forty-Two Members Added to Red Cross Roll Call This Week

Brings Total to 678 Paid Members and $768.50 in the Bank

Solicitors in the annual Red Cross Roll Call show evidences of their continued work this week with the reporting of forty-two more paid members and $63.00, making a total of 678 paid members and $768.50 in the bank. In order to reach the $1,200 quota there is still $432.50 needed.

"This is not too much," Mrs. Paul B. Naylor, roll call chairman, stated, as she urged solicitors and workers to continue their job. Extra donations came this week from the Democrat club, $15.00, the Supreme Forest, Woodmen circle of Oakland and Crellin, $5.00; from Christmas entertainment at Methodist church in Deer Park, $4.00.

Memberships sent directly to Red Cross officials here included Mrs. Myrtle Reese and Miss Clara Alice Johnson, Miss Charlotte P. Bernard and Lester Bernard, Bloomington; Mr. Warsaw, and Mrs. Warsaw.

Other memberships were Milo Wilson and Martin Sharpless, Kitzmiller, by Mrs. Harpold, solicitor; Mrs. Jack Lytle and Mrs. James B. Frantz, Selbysport, by Miss Inez M. Friend, solicitor; Joseph M. Gonder, Mrs. T. E. Bishoff, R. L. Talbot, Mrs. Mabel Sollars, Dairy Maid, Supreme Forest, Woodmen Circle of Oakland and Crellin, by Mrs. Ernest Liller, solicitor.

Mrs. D. A. Hinebaugh, Deer Park, added nine more to her list, making a total of $42.25 for Deer Park: Mrs. Charles Pysell, Mrs. Elizabeth Walters, Mrs. McKinley Paugh, Mrs. P. G. Arnold, Mrs. Corwin DeBerry, Methodist Christmas entertainment fund, Charles A. Ashby, Mrs. George Comp, Jr., Mrs. J. E. Helbig.

Misses Viola and Ethel Broadwater turned in $9.00, making $72.00 collected in Grantsville: Mrs. Charles Layman, Misses Clara and Leanna Layman, Orville Stark, Busy Workers Sunday School class of Bittinger Lutheran church, Miss Ruby Buckel, Mrs. J. Stewart Rodamer, Miss Jane Hummel, Mrs. Alice Rodamer, Miss Viola Broadwater.

Mrs. F. E. Rathbun, solicitor, added the name of Mrs. Carrie DeWitt, to her list. Miss Eva Montgomery, Crellin, added six more to her list: Mrs. Dwight Ashby, Mrs. Elwood Adams, Ralph Janoske, Mrs. Ernest Ashby, and Mrs. Dwight Gnegy.

Groundhog Due to Render Decision Monday

Time, tide nor the weather wait for any man. The winter days are being counted off one by one and on Monday the superstitious and non-superstitious will center their attention on the lowly groundhog.

Everyone will watch with interest the weather on that day, for tradition tells us (even though we don't believe it) that if the groundhog sees his shadow he will return to his burrow and there will be six weeks more of winter weather.

Most of the past week's weather has been springlike with a turn toward the wintry on Wednesday, when about two inches of snow fell. The temperature dropped to about 18 above this morning, but today is clear and moderating.

The combined Oakland and Mt. Lake Park bands will present a concert in the high school auditorium on Sunday afternoon, February 1, beginning at 2:30 o'clock. A silver offering will go for infantile paralysis sufferers.

YOUNG MAN IS FATALLY INJURED IN ACCIDENT

Ernest O'Haver, 18, Is Crushed Between Truck and Tree During Logging Operations On Saturday Afternoon

Ernest David O'Haver, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin O'Haver, of near Swallow Falls, was fatally injured last Saturday when he was crushed between a truck and a tree while at work in the forest.

The truck was loaded with logs and in some manner skidded over the edge of a road. O'Haver received a crushed chest and a fractured skull. He was brought to Oakland and given first aid by Dr. M. C. Hinebaugh and was later taken to the Potomac Valley hospital in Keyser, W. Va., in the Boiden ambulance, where he died about 9 o'clock that evening.

Working with him at the time of the accident was Harry Fike.

The young man was born December 15, 1923, and was an only child of Mr. and Mrs. O'Haver. He was a member of the Church of the Brethren.

Funeral services were conducted from the Pine Grove church on Tuesday afternoon, January 27, at 2:30 o'clock by Rev. Walter Speicher, and interment was in the Taylor Sines cemetery.

Surviving are his parents, a number of aunts and uncles, and three of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. O'Haver, and John Ream.

SCHOOL HOURS TO CHANGE UNDER DAYLIGHT SAVING

Schools Will Open at 9:30 o'Clock on Monday, February 9

The school authorities of the county are authorizing the opening of the public schools at 9:30 each morning and closing after having been in session the same number of school hours now prevailing in each school throughout the county, beginning on the morning of Monday, February 9, as announced this morning at the school board office by F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools. This action is being taken because upon that day the daylight saving time begins as stipulated by the Congress of the United States.

It is hoped these new hours, after turning the clock one hour ahead on February 9, will serve all of the children, teachers, and parents throughout the county most conveniently and satisfactorily.

The plan further contemplates opening at 9 o'clock each morning, under daylight saving time, upon the morning of Wednesday, April 1st.

Oustide of this change no others are planned in the school program such as having school on Saturday, during the balance of this school year, advancing dates of commencements and any other exercises incidental to the closing of the schools for the year, which occurs upon Friday, June 12, Mr. Rathbun said.

February's Tire Quota In Line With This Month

Maryland's tire quota for February has been set at 2962 tires and 3482 tubes. Garrett county's quota as announced last week will be 9 passenger tires and 7 tubes, 32 truck tires and 55 tubes.

Considering simply the totals of both tires and tubes, the figures are about in proportion to those of January in view of the fact that February is three days shorter.

Where too many tires and tubes were allotted to a county in January there is no recovery. Allotments are not cumulative. If the allotment has not been distributed all tires and tubes not used go back into the "jackpot."

Garrett county's quota of passenger tires was used up last week, and the truck tire quota has been completed this week.

Seven persons got fourteen truck tires and eleven truck tubes during the past week, according to information released by Walter W. Dawson, chairman of the county tire rationing board.

This brings the total for the month to 47 truck tires, leaving one for the remaining three days of the month.

Certificates were issued for new tires and tubes as follows: John Walter Grimes, Oakland, 4 tires, 4 tubes; Charles Frazee, Friendsville, 1 tire; Charles Wesley Lee, Bloomington, 3 tires, 3 tubes; Paul E. Kinsinger, Grantsville, 1 tire, 1 tube; John Wesley Steyer, Deer Park, 2 tires; Arnold Sines, Friendsville, 1 tire, 1 tube; Emory Herbert Friend, Friendsville, 2 tires, 2 tubes.

19 Names Added To City Voting List

Only nineteen names were added to the list of those entitled to vote in city elections, during the annual registration day on Monday, it was announced by city officials.

This makes a total of 500 names on the registration books, but several names of those who have died or moved away will be deleted when the books are revised by the city council members on Monday, March 2, just a week before election.

The election is to be held on March 9, and according to law, all candidates must petition in writing to have their names placed on the ballot as candidates. These petitions must be in the hands of the clerk ten days before the election.

TEN PYTHIANS WILL GET MEDALS ON FEBRUARY 20

One Fifty-Year Pin and Nine Twenty-five-year Pins To Be Awarded

Ten members of the Knights of Pythias lodge will receive long-time service pins at the anniversary celebration on Friday evening, February 20, it was announced this week by officials. Joseph E. Harned is the only one who will receive a 50-year award, and announcement of this was made last week.

Nine will receive twenty-five year awards and they are J. H. Loar, F. C. Stahl, G. J. Altstetter, E. R. Jones, Walter Hardesty, W. O. Droege, J. L. Fitzwater, John W. Ream and C. A. Fleegle.

Leonard Hathaway, chancellor commander, and Clifford Phillips, vice-chancellor, attended a Pythian meeting in Keyser on Tuesday evening and saw the Keyser degree team give the Rank of Knight to ten candidates.

Teacher Is Seeking Damages from Savage River Dam Sponsor

Associate Judge William A. Huster has taken under advisement the question of whether the Upper Potomac River Commission, sponsor of the Savage River dam project is immune to suits brought without its consent by virtue of being a governmental agency.

The point was raised by George W. Legge and W. Earle Cobey, counsel for the commission, in demurring to the $4,000 damage suit of Mrs. Marian Lohr, Cumberland, a Garrett county school teacher, against it for injuries and property loss she suffered when her car collided with debris blocking a road on the dam property in December, 1940.

The contention of governmental immunity was vigorously opposed by attorneys for Mrs. Lohr, who insisted that the commission was a separate corporation by the state and given the right to sue and be sued.

Judge Huster said he would study the briefs of both sides and announce a decision later.

All Books in Campaign Must Be in By Saturday

Those in charge of the victory book campaign in this county, who are endeavoring to collect at least 1,600 books for reading matter for the armed forces, are urging that all books be turned in by Saturday, so that they may be shipped by truck to Baltimore on Monday. Francis W. Sanders has offered to take the books to Baltimore free of charge.

All book donations may be left at any school house or at any library where they will be collected, and those having books and no way to get them to any of these places may call the community chairmen named last week and the girl scouts or some other workers will be glad to collect them, it was stated.

There has been no check-up thus far as to the number already collected, but it is hoped that the quota will be more than met.

Savings Stamps Also On Sale At Western Union

"To aid the Government in selling United States Defense Savings Stamps, Western Union is placing these stampss on sale at 5,000 public telegraph offices throughout the United States.

"Local employes of Western Union have been instructed in the sale of the stamps and have indicated their enthusiastic cooperation, it was announced by B. I. Gender, local manager of the telegraph company. The stamps will be sold in denominations of 10 and 25 cents.

MISS LONG TO BE NEXT HOME DEMONSTRATOR

Unanimous Approval of Home-Ec Graduate of Pocomoke Given By Executive Council, Monday

Approval of Miss Marianna Lee Long, of Pocomoke, as the successor to Mrs. Mildred Barton Hoffman, home demonstration agent for this county, was given unanimously at a meeting of the Executive Council of Homemakers clubs on Monday afternoon here.

Previous recommendation of Miss Long by Miss Venia M. Kellar, assistant director of Extension, University of Maryland, means that she will in all probability be the next agent here, effective March 1.

Miss Long is a graduate of Western Maryland college, receiving her degree in Home Economics and since 1939 has been working in Westminister for a Canning company along the line for which she was educated. She has been highly recommended by a number of people, and she spent the week-end in the county and conferred with the homemakers' council on Monday.

Mrs. Hoffman, retiring agent, became home demonstration agent here in July, 1936, and resigned her position last August, to become effective last October, just previous to her marriage, but due to a shortage of qualified people for that particular position at that time, she consented to continue with her work until her successor was named.

Clothing School Held

The clothing school, held under the direction of the Extension service at the home of Mrs. C. C. Gnegy this week, closed yesterday afternoon. Project demonstrators from each club in the county and others attended and helped to make up twelve garments, which will be shown throughout the county to interest the women in making house dresses, aprons, garden clothes, etc., so that the women will be better prepared for carrying out the increased garden program for national defense. The school was in charge of Miss Helen Shelby, clothing specialist, University of Maryland, assisted by Mrs. Hoffman.

Lions Club Benefit Scheduled Tonight

Plans are now complete for the Style show and review to be held at the Oakland high school this evening by the Oakland-Mt. Lake Lions club. Tickets have been on sale for the past few weeks and there is every indication of a large crowd attending. The program committee announced a complete program, including Col. Bell, the magician; Emeric Dusic's new song by Chick Briner; amateur acts by talent from Grantsville, Friendsville, Accident and Crellin. The style show will be put on by local Lions.

Tom Fisher, time lock and vault expert, gave an interesting description of his work at the meeting Monday night. Alex Hesen was a guest.

Farmers Beginning To Tap Maple Trees

Lawrence Beitzel again is leading his neighbors around Grantsville in opening the maple sugar and syrup season.

Beitzel, who operates the former Gilbert Green farm, has already "tapped" his sugar trees and has made several gallons of syrup.

Ordinarily most of the sugar grove owners do not begin sugar making until the middle or latter part of February, but the past few years have had short seasons and others plan to follow Beitzel in tapping trees earlier.

Warm days and slight freezes at night are considered perfect weather to produce the best maple syrup.

Swap Shop to Close Saturday With Auction

The Swap Shop, being sponsored by the Business & Professional Women's club here to raise money for local defense work, will come to a close on Saturday night with an auction sale of articles. The auctioneer will be Mrs. Paul Naylor.

The shop has been open every afternoon this week.

John A. Sharps, who enlisted recently in the Army Air Corps as a mechanic, is at present stationed at Jefferson Barracks, Mo.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS . . . . . .

The Spirit Of Congress

Washington, Jan. 24.

Unless it experiences a quick change of heart it will never be said of this Congress that, during the war, it distinguished itself for disinterested and patriotic service. On the contrary, a strong case can be made right now for the reverse. Certainly, the record of the last six months is nohting of which to be proud.

To be sure, Congress has voted almost unanimously the uncounted billions asked by the President for the prosecution of the war. It wildly applauded the Roosevelt and Churchill speeches. It has given the President all the personal power he asked. And much fervent oratory has come from Senators and Representatives personally stressing the necessity of sacrifices upon the part of the people. But, have they themselves set an example in this business of sacrifice? Have they given any evidence of willingness to relinquish any personal perquisities in the national interest?

Let the record answer the questions. On December 12, the Senate by a vote of 53 to 30 inserted in an appropriation bill a provision giving each Senator an additional $4500 a year clerk. This was done despite the pleas of various Senators that it was a shameless and inexcusable thing to do at this time and under these circumstances. The House, seemingly more self-respecting on this proposal, heeded the protest and refused to concur, thus killing this sneky little scheme.

On January 19, the Senate, by a vote of 42 to 24, passed a bill already passed by the House, extending the benefits of the Federal Civil Service Retirement System to all members of Congress. It is, of course, unprecedented. Persons elected to Federal office have never been regarded as entitled to retirement benefits. Heretofore, they have applied solely to appointed job holders and the primary purpose was to provide some sort of pension for the small Federal clerks whose pay is poor and who reach the age of 70 after long service.

For members of Congress now to legislate themselves into the retirement system is a piece of unadulterated selfishness. It was done over strong protests from Senator Byrd of Virginia, Senator Norris of Nebraska and others who pointed out that this, in effect, was an act by the Senate to pension Senators; that it would be bad at any time, but with the nation at war and the whole Federal credit system under terrific strain, it is an indefensible action.

Nevertheless it was taken. The twenty-four protesting Senators were overridden by the majority and unless the President vetoes the bill, which is not likely, members of Congress are "in." Of course, it is small stuff, but it leaves a very bad taste in the mouth, particularly, when it is noted that in the majority that voted for the additional clerk as well as for the pension proposal, were the Senators who over the radio and on the Senate floor are most passionately patriotic, belligerent and insistent upon the necessity of sacrifice.

To these two purely selfish acts must be coupled the larger facts that in the face of unmistakable inflation perils Congress has fiddled and fooled with the vital price-control law for six months; that it has weakly and wickedly yielded to pressure from the farm lobby; that it utterly lacked the force to enact anti-strike legislation; that it cravenly dodged the wage-regulation issue; that the House recently passed, under lobby pressure, two fantastically extravagent veteran pension proposals and a Senate committee is now considering them.

When all this is added up it makes a pretty discreditable chapter in our legislative history. The spirit which the President and others are trying to inculeate in the American people is not being exhibited in the American Congress. Neither the breast-beating speeches about the irrestible might of the United States, nor the enthusiastic demand that every individual contribute his all to the winning of the war, disguises the fact that Congress is not doing its job well. It is exhibiting neither bigness nor intelligence. It votes loudly and enthusiastically for the war billions and then gives an exhibition of petty politics and personal smallness wholly incompatible with its patriotic professions.

It is time for Congress to examine itself and change its attitude. It is time for the people to let Congress know that super-heated oratory and huge appropriations do not excuse the small, selfish and supine business which have marked this session. In or out of Congress, no one will contend that the record is a good one. The thing that seems needed to make it utterly bad is the scuttling of the Byrd committee report and the side-tracking of the reductions in normal governmental expenditures urged also by the President and the Secretary of the Treasury and vitally necessary to national security. Already there is a Senatorial group, among whom are some of our most oratorical and vociferous professional patriots, who are preparing to do just that—if they can.

An Ultimatum

Fire Destroys Barn And Contents on Farm of Truman Wilt

Fire of undetermined origin on Sunday night destroyed a large, two-story barn on the farm of Truman Wilt, two miles west of Barton, in Garrett county.

Almost all the contents of the building were also destroyed, Wilt said, with exception of several pigs which managed to escape. Burned in the blaze were a 1939-model light truck, a colt and twenty-five chickens. The loss was not covered by insurance.

The family had retired early and the blaze had made considerable headway when a member of the family awakened and spotted it from a window. The Barton fire company was summoned but it was impossible to save anything.

Turning Over An Old Leaf

By Phillip A. Gladheim

There were faces to remember in the Valley of the Shadow;
There were faces unregarded, there were faces to forget;
There were fires of grief and fear that are a few forgotten ashes;
There were sparks of recognition that are not forgotten yet."

There is a passage in Isaiah that I often think of when recalling friends who have passed from the earthly scene: "A good man dies, and no one lays it to heart." This applies to a man and a woman of whom I speak.

Arthur Townshend died a few weeks ago. He was a member of a Garrett County pioneer family. He was a successful merchant in Oakland for many years—and a very devout member of the Methodist church. Apart from his family, religious and business connections Arthur Townshend was in his own right a very enjoyable person. He belonged to the Brotherhood of Encouragement. There are not many people in any generation that by their sturdy faith are made eligible to this fraternity. But Arthur Townshend was one of them. I hope that some who read these lines, who knew Arthur Townshend, will recall their contacts with him—and how genuinely optimistic and happy were his reactions toward life. He was always a good tonic. Just two days before he took to bed in his last illness I saw him in his front yard. I stopped and talked with him, which has always been my habit. As usual his words and inflections were commingled with his smiles. The one thing I remember in the conversation is this statement made by him: "This earth with all its yesterdays has been to me very wonderful. But tomorrow? That is far more glorious."

Another prominent and faithful member of St. Paul's church has passed on during this past year; in fact, the first anniversary of her death was observed last week. Eva Hinebaugh was responsible for the first formal religious education of a large number of the men and women of this present generation, who make up the community of Oakland. I suppose she holds the record of the largest Primary Sunday School class ever organized in any of the Oakland churches. It was her great pride for many years. Her classes were interesting, and her buoyant maternalism was at its best when she superintended the incubation of little Methodists. Now they have grown up Sister Eva, and your reward is their faithfulness.

One should also mention in this connection, another devout member of the same church, who also was influential with the youth. I refer to Grace Loar, who is still with us, and whose concern for the youth has never abated. Sister Eva not only served her church as a teacher—but in these recent years when the church broke out of her old shell and formed itself anew around a beautiful sanctuary, Sister Eva was its faithful and efficient treasurer. Her good deeds unto Holy Church are bearing fruit here on earth—and she has entered her reward in Heaven. The church can't lose such faithful members as Arthur Townshend and Eva Hinebaugh, without a vivid recollection of their personalities.

SOAP MAKING

Our coconut and palm oil supply has been cut off, thus causing a rise in price in some of our soaps. Why not use some of our home materials and make our own supply of soap?

Properly made "homemade" soap is a mild soap and will not hurt either the skin or fabrics. The success in making homemade soap is in using accurate measurements and temperatures, in having the fats free from particles and salt, and in combining the lye to the fat slowly and evenly.

Recipe:
3 lbs. beef tallow
3 lbs. pork fat
2½ pts. cold water
1 can lye

Dissolve lye in water and stir until dissolved. Be careful that the fumes do not reach the skin as it will burn. it must not be dissolved in an aluminum utensil. Let cool to 80-85 degrees temperature.

If previously used pork fat is used for soap making, it should be washed by placing the fat in a large kettle and adding an equal amount of water. Heat to the boiling point then set aside to cool and harden. In this process the fat will rise to the top and the water with the salt and other particles will fall to the bottom. Skim off the fat and throw the water away. Repeat "washing", probably 4 or 5 times until the fat is clean and light. Grind tallow in food grinder or chop fine, put in a skillet and melt. Pour off the melted tallow, straining to keep all particles out. Combine the two melted fats and cool to 100-110 degrees. The fat should be in a fairly flat saucepan so that it can be stirred with a wooden or tin spoon with horizontal motions. Add lye solution to the fat in a small even stream at the side of the pan stirring constantly with a slow even motion. When the solution is of a honey-like consistency pour into small wooden boxes which have been soaked in water and lined with strips of wet cloth. Place in a fairly cool place and cover so that drafts will not reach it. Let stand for 24 to 36 hours and remove from the box. Cut in pieces and let "age" for two or more weeks before using. Soap should not be allowed to freeze.

Separation: If too cold or too hot a temperature is used, or soap is stirred too vigorously or not thoroughly mixed, a separation may occur. If separation occurs reclaim as follows:

Reclaiming Soap—Cut or shave the hardened soap into a kettle, add the lye that has separated out and about five pints of water (to above recipe.) Melt with gentle heat and occasional stirring. Then raise the heat and boil gently. It should become thick and syrupy. If it does not, add more water, 1 pint at a time, and continue boiling until it becomes ropey or hairy when dropped from the spoon. Pour into a mold and cover.

LEAVE THE SPRING RUSH BEHIND!

We can make your tractor perform like new — whether you need a complete overhaul job or a few new parts. But there are TWO things to keep in mind:

1. See us now — you don't want to lose valuable time after the spring rush starts.
2. Steel and iron are available only on a priority basis. By placing your order now, you enable us to better anticipate the need for parts and replacements.

So wouldn't it be wise to see us about fixing up your tractor IMMEDIATELY? You'll avoid the danger of costly spring stops. You'll be aiding defense by getting your parts early. Then too, we can assure you of better service while we still have plenty of parts — NOW!

NEW LIFE FOR OLD TRACTORS

DIARY OF THE WAR

FRIDAY—Japs landed on New Britain island, at Rabaul, 800 miles above Australia. On Luzon the Japs were smashing against Mac Arthur with a full army of 200,000. British in Malaya were smashing at Japs in a major battle and Japs were still seventy miles from Singapore. China sent units of air forces into Indo-China to bomb air bases. In Russia the Reds pursued retreating Germans and kept pushing back the German winter line. Nazis in Libya turned on British and advanced ten miles. Dutch destroyed rich oil fields of Eastern Borneo before Japs got to them.

SATURDAY—Japs also landed on Solomon island to increase threat to Australia. The British flank was threatened in Malaya as Japs continued to penetrate. In Burma American and British airmen shot down 17 Jap planes but on ground there were further British withdrawals. Japs on Luzon were being hurled back by American-Filipino troops. Reds announced recapture of Kholm, 260 miles west of Moscow and 120 miles short of old Russia frontier with Latvia. Axis troops reoccupied town of Agedabia in Libya in thrust against British. Dutch airmen caught a squadron of Jap warships and transports in Strait of Macassar and made 12 direct hits on 8 ships. U. S. declared it was bagging Axis subs in Atlantic. A terroristic reign was launched by Japs in occupied Philippines.

SUNDAY—Uruguay broke relations with Axis. Reds declared their men had broken the northern anchor of Hitler's winter line. U. S. navy smashed a Jap convoy in Macassar straits sinking two and damaging others. Mac Arthur accused Japs of mistreating prisoners. Dutch again struck at Japs in Macassar strait, upset a liner, hit a destroyer and another transport, making two-day total 11 ships. Australia appealed to British and U. S. for aid.

MONDAY—United nations scored crushing victories over Axis in attacks on two convoys. A Jap convoy lost more ships in Macassar strait. British bombers pounced on Italian convoy in Mediterranean, sank a large liner, fired another and torpedoed a destroyer. A battleship, cruiser and another ship may also have been hit. Singapore held firm. MacArthur handed Japs a setback in a surprise attack. Reds hurled Nazis from 44 more villages and Hitler was reported fleeing Smolensk for a safer base at Minsk. Chinese troops poured into Burma to meet a Thailand threat and bombers raided Bangkok. Hanoi was also bombed in Indo-China. Chinese captured Tamshui, only 20 miles from Hongkong. Australians attacks Jap warships in harbor of Rabaul. Despite blows Japs forced three new landings around Borneo tip, on Celebes and New Ireland.

TUESDAY—The second AEF force landed in Northern Ireland. The navy torpedoed a Jap aircraft carrier and probably sunk it. U. S. and Dutch sea and air forces sank or damaged 33 ships in that area. Only in Malaya were Japs still pressing forward, defenders falling back on left flank. Other fronts were holding. Japs were still throwing fresh troops in islands off Australia but militiamen were beating back the attacks. In Burma American volunteer pilots put forty enemy raiders over Rangoon to rout. Only skirmishes were reported in Philippines. A U. S. torpedo boat crept into Subic bay and sank a 5,000 ton Jap ship. Russians said the Nazi anchor at Rzhev, 130 miles northwest of Moscow was ready to fall. British were pushed back 150 miles in four days in Libya. Another U. S. ship was sunk in Atlantic.

WEDNESDAY—Japs, defeated in Macassar Strait struck with renewed force on Malay peninsula, pushing British back to within 48 miles of Singapore, in spite of British bombers which hit a cruiser and scored twelve hits on transports. Enemy was still resting in Philippines. U. S. pursuit planes shot down two Jap bombers and crippled third and torpedo boats hit three bombers. More Japs landed on Celebes. Reds pushed deep into Smolensk province and Nazi positions at Orel and near Kharkov were menaced. Axis counter-offensive in Libya was brought to a halt. British acknowledged loss of battleship in Mediterranean on November 25. Midway was still held by U. S. force. U. S. soldiers were doing foreign duty from 6 to 10 places, Roosevelt stated.

THURSDAY — British were still giving way before Singapore. Elsewhere the struggle was going badly for Japs. It was estimated 35,000 Japs had been drowned in Macassar strait battle which cost them 36 warships and transports. U. S. lines were holding on Luzon. Russians continued westward push, recapturing 79 villages. Reds said Nazis were fortifying the 1939 Russian-Polish frontier in case they fell back there. British position in Libya was much improved with British aerial action falling heavily upon Rommel's transport and tanks. Two U-boats were sighted in Gulf of Mexico off Texas. Yanks routed Jap plane raiders in Burma. A sub sank a Canadian passenger liner and 250 were missing.

The nation's entire supply of aluminum will be earmarked for war use.

Sunday Services In Community Churches

RED HOUSE LUTHERAN PARISH
A. K. Jones, Pastor

Church services will be held at both Gnegy and Red House next Sunday morning. Sunday schools meet at the usual time, and the young people have their service at 7:45 in the evening. Their topic is the last in the series, "Habits That Help."

"Many Called to Serve," is the theme of the lessons for Septuagesima Sunday. We are warned that some fail to endure the test of loyalty to Christ. St. Paul gives this warning over and over again in all his letters. He did what is far more important! He says, By God's grace I keep physically and spiritually fit, "lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway."

DIED

MRS. STELLA V. M'ROBIE

Mrs. Stella Victoria McRobie, wife of John William McRobie, died at her home at Swanton on Friday evening, January 23, after a lingering illness. She was the daughter of the late Jackson C. and Virginia Friend Rodeheaver and was born at Deer Park, February 14, 1876.

Besides her husband she is survived by seven children: Carroll McRobie, Mrs. Ray Custer and Mrs. Ray Beckman, Swanton; David McRobie, of Lake; Guy McRobie, White Plains, N. Y.; Mrs. Z. C. Adkins, Charleston, W. Va.; and John McRobie, address unknown; 27 grandchildren and 5 great-grandchildren; five brothers, Lee, Leslie and Clark Rodeheaver, Deer Park; Parker Rodeheaver, of Florida, and Fletcher Rodeheaver, Philadelphia, and by two sisters, Mrs. Nan Calderwood and Mrs. Prudence Dawson, of Deer Park.

Funeral services were conducted on Monday afternoon from the Methodist church, at Deer Park, with interment in the Deer Park cemetery. Services were in charge of Rev. C. W. Fraker, McHenry, assisted by Rev. Hinzman, Corinth.

Mrs. McRobie joined the Methodist church when she was 13 and lived a faithful life until her death.

MRS. JAMES D. HARVEY

Mrs. Julia Arletta Riley Harvey, widow of the late James D. Harvey, died at her home near White Church on Monday evening, January 26. She had been in failing health for a year or more but had been bedfast just a few days.

She was a daughter of the late John and Ellen Biggs Riley and was born in this county January 10, 1868. She was aged 74.

She married Mr. Harvey March 23, 1890, and had been married over 51 years when he died last October. Mrs. Harvey had been a resident of the White church community her entire lifetime and had been a member of the church there for sixty years.

Surviving are a son, Merritt S. Harvey, Morgantown, W. Va.; and a daughter, Alta Harvey, at home; also two grandchildren, two sisters and one brother, Mrs. I. N. Shillingburg, near White Church; Mrs. Emma Bowers, Swanton; and Luther Riley, Pleasant Valley.

Funeral services were conducted on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the White church with Rev. Garrett Evans, pastor of the Methodist church at Mt. Lake Park, officiating. Interment was in the church cemetery.

Credit Association to Meet

Several farm members of the Romney Production Credit Association from this county and their wives are expected to attend the eighth annual meeting at Romney, W. Va., February 3.

There will be representatives from Allegany and Garrett counties in Maryland and eight counties in West Virginia.

Congress passed a bill under which any Senator or Representative who goes down to defeat in the coming November elections, on payment thereafter of $1.39, would assure himself a Federal pension for the rest of his life.

GRANTSVILLE

Farm Machinery Course

A program for repairing farm machinery has been opened at Grantsville, as the war has restricted metal purchases and it is necessary that farmers have their machinery in shape at the least possible cost prior to the need this spring.

John E. Lawrence, vo-ag instructor, is in charge. The first meeting was held Monday and is to continue every week-day evening over a period of about ten weeks. Small materials will be supplied but larger parts must be furnished by the owner. The workshop at the school is said to be completely equipped. Mr. Lawrence is being assisted by Harry C. Edwards.

Ladies Aid Meets

Mrs. Arthur Resh entertained members of the Ladies' Aid society of the Maple Grove Church of the Brethren on Friday evening. The group decided to collect clothing for benefit of war relief.

Entertain at Bridge

Mrs. Hayward F. Broadwater and Mrs. Allen Rodamer jointly entertained at three tables of bridge last Thursday evening at Mrs. Broadwater's home.

Guests were Mrs. Scott Holliday, Somerfield, Pa.; Mrs. Evangeline Glenn, Friendsville; Miss Kathryn Speicher, Accident; Mrs. Ira L. Huff, Mrs. Benny Epstein, Mrs. Edwin Elias, Jr., Mrs. Frank J. Getty, Mrs. Julius Renninger, Mrs. W. C. Grimm, Miss Emma Caulk and Miss Margaret Renstrom.

Dr. Cook Resigns As State Superintendent

Was Head of State School System for Twenty Years; Thomas G. Pullen, Jr., to Succeed

Dr. Albert S. Cook, state superintendent of schools, resigned his position last Friday and the state board of education named Thomas G. Pullen, Jr., assistant superintendent, to succeed him.

The resignation, announced by Governor O'Conor, is effective March 1.

Dr. Cook, 70, has served as state superintendent for twenty-two years. For twenty years he was superintendent of schools for Baltimore county. His successor, a graduate of Columbia, has been assistant state superintendent for six years.

O'Conor said he was "extremely sorry" that Dr. Cook "finds is necessary to sever his connection with the schools but it is obvious that he is entitled to be relieved of his arduous duties after such lengthy and exacting service."

"His many accomplishments in this state brought him recognition as one of the foremost educators in the nation," the governor said.

Marked Increase In Communicable Disease Is Noted for 1941

Nearly 59,500 Notifiable Cases In Past Year, Health Department Reports

A preliminary report issued by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, shows a marked increase of the communicable diseases—the "catching" diseases—reported to the Department from Baltimore City on the counties in 1941, in comparison with the total for 1940.

There were nearly 59,500 coses of the "notifiable" diseases reported in 1941 in comparison with 37,026 cases in 1940. The totals in 1941 were divided as follows: Baltimore City, 36,554 cases; the counties, 22,887 cases

The flare-up in 1941 was due largely to increases in the venereal diseases, tuberculosis and in measles and other so-called children's diseases. There was an increase of over 17,000 cases in the children's diseases. Over 8,200 cases of measles were reported in comparison with 246 in 1940; over 9,900 cases of German measles in comparison with 86 in 1940 and nearly 2,000 cases of scarlet fever in comparison with 1,630 in 1940.

The increase of over 3,000 in the cases of the venereal diseases—from approximately 13,500 cases in 1940 to 16,600 in 1941—was attributed by Dr. Riley to the care with which these diseases were checked in the selective service examinations. To a large extent an increase of over 450 cases of tuberculosis—or from a total of 2,567 cases reported in 1940 to 3,022 in 1941—was felt to be due to more exact methods of diagnosis and the resulting discovery of many cases when the possibility of correction or of complete cure, is greatest.

Other increases that were causes of particular concern occurred in the following: Poliomyelitis, (infantile paralysis) from 15 cases in 1940 to 226 in 1941; typhoid fever from 127 cases in 1940 to 232 in 1941; diphtheria, from 158 cases in 1940 to 263 in 1941; dysentery from 147 cases in 1940 to 245 in 1941; diarrhea and cholera infantum from 197 cases in 1940 to 388 in 1941; and the various forms of meningitis, from 53 cases in 1940 to 149 in 1941.

There were some equally important decreases. Over 750 fewer cases of pneumonia were reported than in 1940. The total cases of pneumonia reported from the State, dropped from 4,956 cases in 1940 to 4,195 in 1941. Whooping cough, which is particularly hard on young children, also showed a marked decrease and dropped from over 6,000 cases in 1940 to 3,515 in 1941.

Physicians in attendance on the communicable diseases are requested to report the occurrence of such diseases among their patients as promptly as possible to the nearest health officer, in order that measures to prevent their spread may be instituted without delay. When there is no physician in attendance the responsibility for reporting such diseases shifts to the householder or to others who have knowledge of the facts.

FRIENDSVILLE

Miss Savilla Hanft of Friendsville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hanft, of Cove, and James Park Fike, of Morgantown, W. Va., son of Mrs. C. W. Fike, of Markleysburg, Pa., were quietly married at the Methodist parsonage at Oakland by Rev. Minor Sprague, on Sunday, December 21, 1941. The newlyweds will reside in Morgantown, W. Va., where the groom is employed.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Mrs. Helen Creasy to Private John H. DeVine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Devine, December 24, 1941. Private Devine is in camp in Oklahoma. Mrs. Devine will reside at her home here.

Birth

Mr. and Mrs. Chester H. Lohman, of Arlington, Va., announce the birth of a son, born January 17, 1942. Mrs. Lohman was formerly Miss Helen Mae Humberson, daughter of Charles Humberson, of Friendsville.

Charley B. Miller, Agriculture instructor, has announced that farm machinery repair work will begin in Friendsville, Tuesday evening, January 27. This work is sponsored by the Federal Government through the Agricultural Department of the Friendsville High School. Repair parts for old machinery are being produced only in the amounts of the indicated needs. Miller pointed out that, due to the first diversion of materials into war production, every farmer should go over his machinery at once and place repair orders. In order to carry on this work, new equipment has been delivered, plus tools to work with. Frazee's garage has been rented for a period of ten weeks for this work.

A food demonstration was conducted by Miss Catherine Close, Frostburg, in the Friendsville home economics department, Wednesday. Two full dinner courses were prepared and served for the benefit of the members of the department. Detailed explanations of the preparation of the various foods was given by Miss Close.

Mrs. Nellie Wheeler was hostess to Circle No. 2 of the Woman's Christian Service Society at her home Tuesday night. Officers for the society were elected as follows: Mrs. Mary Murphy, secretary; Mrs. Jessie Frazee, treasurer; Mrs. Nellie Wheeler, chairman of refreshment committee, and Mrs. Cathryn Holman, collector of dues. Plans were made to serve the Brotherhood, Monday evening, February 9 and to send boxes to all Friendsville boys who are serving in armed forces.

Funeral services were held at Blooming Rose, Sunday, for Wesley Uphold, 59, who died of suffocation in a local mine, Thursday morning.

Nourishing Food

beats this!

A "shot in the arm" will not win this war for America. It will take strong, well-nourished bodies to carry the load for "the duration."

Proper preservation and preparation of foods will assure victory for Uncle Sam. You can help greatly, Mrs. Electric User, by keeping your Frigidaire, your Hotpoint range, your Westinghouse Roaster-Oven, and other appliances in good condition. A check-up by a competent service man is recommended. Little things—like a few drops of oil or tightened connections, will help win this war.

NOTE: No summarization of the unpaid bills or accounts payable has been included in this report, since such items are to be provided for in the budget.

This annual report has been prepared from the Clerk's and Treasurer's records before the completion of and it is subject to the result of a final audit to December 31st, 1941. As far as possible within the limited time available, all like items have been grouped together in the summary of this report, unless in the case of expenditures, where they have been charged on the books against the estimated regular appropriation accounts, or to miscellaneous expenses or the contingent or emergency funds for additional amounts which were deemed necessary to expend as miscellaneous items or contingencies or emergencies in excess of the original estimates, in order to comply with certain Public General and Local Laws and in order to carry out the required functions of the county government and for the general welfare of Garrett County.

Your consideration is again directed to certain comments in the annual report for 1939, as follows:

Especial attention is called to the orders payable for 1938 and prior levies in the amount of $68,684.67, which were outstanding as of December 31st, 1939, subject to interest at the rate of 6% per annum, in the majority of cases, but for which sufficient taxes were not realized for those levies to take care of the orders.

This situation developed principally through the overdrafts of certain levies by the prior boards of County Commissioners when it was not noticed that the collections from beer licenses and taxes were being credited in error to the Contingent Fund and spent the second time instead of crediting such revenue to the Beer License and Taxes Levy.

The insolvent or uncollectable taxes also figure in the matter of the overdrafts for 1938 and certain prior levies.

As it costs approximately $3,300.00 per year to carry the orders payable of $55,690.79 as of 12/31/41 for 1938 levy at 6% interest per annum, any plan to pay off in part or refinance them at a lower interest rate until they may be paid in full would result in a corresponding saving in the tax funds. It will be noted from this annual report that $4,000.00 of 1930 orders payable and $8,901.75 of 1938 orders payable were ordered paid in 1941. An appropriation of $62,750.00 has been provided in the 1942 Budget to pay off Notes and Orders Payable.

We hereby certify that subject to the above explanations and qualifications, this report is correct to the best of our knowledge and belief, as shown by the records of the Clerk and Treasurer.

PAUL M. FRIEND, President (pro-tem),
Of the Board of County Commissioners of Garrett County.

U. S. Secretary of the Treasury envisioned a post-war world freed of all problems of monetary exchange through use of a standard type of currency in international transactions.

Nations of the Western Hemisphere declared the U. S. and its American allies were non-belligerents, opening their ports to warships of the United Nations.

Farmers Must Meet Food Production Goals for Victory

Cooperative Board of Directors Told That Farm Business Must Be Run Wisely

Declaring that united action on the part of farmers is necessary if they are to meet their food production goals, W. R. Rafferty, of Southern States Cooperative, delivered an address on the subject, "Cooperation and Victory," at a regional meeting of members of Southern States boards of directors and advisory boards last Thursday at Oakland.

"Only an all-out production effort on the part of American farmers can prevent a disastrous food shortage," Mr. Rafferty asserted. "We must conduct farm business more wisely than ever before if we are to meet the responsibilities of agriculture in this crisis."

Among the recommendations made by Mr. Rafferty were the following: Pay off indebtedness, build up reserves against after-war depression, produce as much as possible without buying more land, or making undue investments in either equipment or livestock, grow as much food and feed as possible at home, do as many jobs as possible on or near the farm."

In talking on "The Farm Supply Situation," Russell Furman, Winchester, Va., warned his hearers that farm supplies will be increasingly hard to get. He urged that farm machinery and equipment be repaired and made to last as long as possible and that scrap iron and used rubber be gathered up and started through the proper channels so that they may be reprocessed.

Among those attending the conference were B. B. Snyder, W. M. P. Ireland, William F. DeBerry, Truman C. Bittinger, James F. Hamilton, Oakland; Earl K. Harvey, Swanton; J. W. Steyer, Deer Park; J. M. Himes, H. H. Murphy, F. Leslie Vanscoy, and S. L. Marstiller, Montrose; P. D. Schnably, Elkins; Oscar G. Harmon, Clarence F. Kolb, Howard B. Schlossnagle, and Walter H. Fratz, Accident; C. O. Ross and J. A. Ross, Friendsville.

Knitting Activities Placed Ahead of Social Programs

With America at war, knitting activities throughout the entire county are superseding many social programs and card parties.

Mrs. John Stevenson, Sr., reports that the Neighborhood club in Mt. Lake Park and Loch Lynn has all members knitting for the chapter's quota. The Homemakers' club in Accident has Mrs. B. O. Aiken and Miss Louise Dillon in charge there.

Mrs. Frederick Thayer, Jr., and Mrs. Foster Bittle are instructing beginners here. In Kitzmiller, Miss Agnes Leurs, R. N., assists knitters. In Grantsville Mrs. C. C. Beachy and Mrs. Harold Miller have the yarn for the women of that section to make into women's sweaters. Mrs. J. W. Holman heads the Friendsville corps of knitters and reports twenty sweaters in the making. Miss Virginia Kalbaugh's knitting class in the Oakland elementary has promised the Red Cross eighty toddler sweaters.

This is the first school knitting class to be organized in the county and has been in existence since the first shipment of supplies were sent to Great Britain, it has been stated.

Mrs. V. B. Kelly, Mrs. Belle Nine, Mrs. Freeland, Misses Ruth Keller and Beulah Loughridge have completed men's sweaters. Mrs. Lawrence Moomaw finished a man's sweater in six days.

Mrs. H. A. Loraditch tops the sock knitters, turning in two pair per week. Mrs. Harry Helbig, Mrs. J. M. Falkenstein, Miss Mary O'Donnell and Miss Ada Lawrence have turned in two pair each.

Toddler sweater knitters at present are Mrs. Edward Lawrence, Mrs. H. M. Skipper, Mrs. James Towler, Mrs. Homer Wright, Misses Ann Lawrence Leona Feld and Marion Honick. Mrs. Henry McComas, Sr., has finished three mufflers, Mrs. Margaret Casteel, two; Mrs. Lowell Loomis, Mrs. Joe Helbig, Misses Helen Townshend and Ann Lawrence, one each.

Mrs. Jesse Ashby, Jr., in charge of "beanie" knitters, turned in 180, the entire county quota, this week. Each "beanie" or cap takes from six to eight hours to knit.

Mrs. Ashby was assisted by Miss Virginia Kalbaugh, Elementary teacher, and a lot of Elementary pupils. Mary F. Friend and Marion Fields each knit 23 beanies, Lucille Thomas 12, Bernadine Knotts 12, and others from eight down to 1: Jane Reckard, Jean Casteel, Rita Bittle, Joan Smith, Eleanor Schlossnagle, Delores Leighton, Martha Towler, Madeline Nethkin, Beth Shirer, Betty Lawrence, Oma Faugh, Wando Ramsey, Patty Filsinger, Loraine DeWitt, Joyce Cross, Eleanor Lipscomb, Bobby Smith, Margaret Friend, Jackie Liller, Loraine Glotfelty, Eloise Ashby, and the following ladies of the county, Mrs. Edward Lawrence, Mrs. Britton Martin, Mrs. Russell Smith, Mrs. Homer Wright, Mrs. C. W. Edwards, Mrs. F. A. Thayer, Jr., Mrs. E. I. Baumgartner, Mrs. Julius Littman, Misses Crystal Elliott, Elizabeth Browning, Betty Martin and Sue Sweitzer.

Scrap On Our Hands . .

Five hundred pounds of scrap rubber are needed for every medium tank. A battleship may contain as much as 9,000 tons of scrap metal. Ten thousand tons of waste paper will be needed this year to make ammunition containers alone. Three miles of copper wire go into a modern bomber.

Facts like these make it clear why we Americans must begin to save materials as we never have before. Government officials say that salvage operations will play an important part in winning the war. Our industries are expanding at such a rate that they will need vast quantities of scrap to keep them going full blast, making weapons, and it's up to us to see that they get it.

Salvage campaigns are being organized throughout the country to gather material of this kind. Every one of us can help in these collection drives. Every one of us has scrap of some sort that he can contribute. If you've been saving things just in case they might come in handy, they might come in handy now for Uncle Sam. And if you haven't been saving, now is the time to start.

BENEFIT SHOW INCREASES RED CROSS WAR FUND

Proceeds Total $125 at Lion's Club Style Show and Entertainment Last Thursday Night

Over four hundred people packed the Oakland High school auditorium last Thursday evening to see the Lions club entertainment given for the benefit of the American Red Cross war fund.

Proceeds of the show aggregated $125.00 which was turned over to the Red Cross. Eventually fifteen percent will be retained by the county chapter, the remainder going to the national organization. This brings the war relief fund total thus far to about $1,000, according to J. M. Jarboe, treasurer. Harvey Gortner, chairman for the Grantsville section, recently turned in $375.00 from that area.

Mrs. E. Z. Tower, president of the local Red Cross chapter, staged a tableau portraying Red Cross service, as the opening number on the benefit program. D. R. Fleming, Mt. Lake Park, president of the Oakland-Mt. Lake Lion's club, extended the official welcome, explained the purpose of the entertainment and expressed appreciation for the county-wide cooperation.

The highlight of the evening was the club style show, using male models from the membership of the service club, attired in feminine apparel, displaying gowns for the year 1960. Neil C. Fraley, as "Madame Nuff-said," introduced the models, Edward Schmidt, Herbert Leighton, Hervey Bittner, Robert Stanton, Daniel Smouse, Harold Harned, Paul M. Friend and Charley Harvey.

There were vocal selections by Charles H. Briner, Jr., Mrs. Russell Brown, accompanist; instrumental and vocal renditions by groups from Friendsville, Grantsville and Accident; a ventriloquist sketch by Dr. C. Oscar Hall; and selections by the Oakland High school glee club, orchestra and the Oakland-Mt. Lake Park band. Two of Mr. Briner's numbers were songs written by Emeric Dusic, of Oakland, one of which was recently published.

Portions of the benefit show will be taken to Grantsville for an entertainment there next Wednesday evening, February 11, in the high school auditorium.

Certificates Issued For 2 Obsolete Tires

The tire rationing board during the past week issued certificates for the purchase of two obsolete tires. This marked the first time that anyone had applied for this classification.

The regulations are such that anyone able to use obsolete tires, is able to purchase them. Harvey Miller, Deer Park, was given the right to purchase two. Charlie Teets, Oakland, was also given 1 tire and 2 tubes for truck, it was announced by Walter W. Dawson, chairman of the county tire rationing board.

No tires have been issued under the February rationing quota because of a telegram received from Louis C. Burr, State rationing administrator, ordering the local board to hold all applications received in January from eligible persons, for which certificates would have been issued had the January quota not have been exhausted.

Campaign Brings $176.00

Total collections from the March of Dimes campaign thus far have passed $176.00 and are expected to reach $225.00, according to Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, county chairman. A number of the coin boxes have not yet been collected.

The money is to be used to fight infantile paralysis in this county and throughout the nation.

ROCK FALL KILLS MINER AT FIRM ROCK ON MONDAY

Fellow Miners Recover Body After Twelve Hours of Digging

After working nearly twelve hours, workers on Monday succeeded in recovering the body of Norman Russell Michael, 56, who was buried in the Moran mine, near Firm Rock, this county, by a rock fall on Monday about noon.

Michael, who resided with his sister, Mrs. Jess Clark, Westernport, had been working in the mine located about three miles above Westernport, on a cooperative basis with two other men, one of whom was present at the time of the fall. Efforts to rescue Michael were frustrated by succeeding falls.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Garland Grove and Mrs. Clark; and four brothers, Walter, Edward, Elzie and Vista, all of Westernport. He was a son of the late Horace and Mary Fazenbaker Michael, Westernport. He was a member of Black Hawk tribe No. 131, Improved Order of Red Men.

Scouts to Observe Anniversary Week

Full Program of Events Is Scheduled from February 6th to 12th

The Boy Scouts of America will celebrate their thirty-second birthday anniversary beginning tomorrow, February 6, and for a time will bring their aims and purposes—that of character building and citizenship training—before the citizens of this country by a planned program of activity.

Locally the Oakland troop of scouts have a full week's program outlined which will take them to church, hiking, to a parent-son dinner, and which will send several of them to various organizations to explain the things they learn and demonstrate the things they can do. The celebration will conclude on Thursday, February 12, Lincoln's birthday.

At the regular meeting on Friday evening the boys will rededicate themselves to the scout oath and laws. A hike has been planned for Saturday, and on Sunday the group will attend the Lutheran church for divine worship.

The Oakland troop will combine with the Mt. Lake Park and Deer Park troops for the parent-son dinner, to be held Tuesday evening, February 10, in the Oakland high school auditorium. A scout picture, "Building for Citizenship," will be shown and there will also be contests, a boxing match and a scout circus, presented by the scouts.

During the week the members of the troop will give talks and demonstrations before various local organizations.

The program has been arranged by Howard Naylor, scoutmaster of Oakland troop. The Mt. Lake Park and Deer Park troops will also have some scouting activities during the week. Rev. Garrett Evans is scoutmaster for the Mt. Lake Park troop, and Bryan Shockley is scoutmaster of the Deer Park troop.

To Complete Course

Robert W. Lohr, assistant water superintendent for the town of Oakland, is a member of the thirteenth class which will complete a 12-day course of instruction at the War Department Civilian Defense School at Edgewood Arsenal, on February 6.

In the course, designed especially for the instruction of civilians, Lohr is receiving lessons from Chemical Warfare School faculty members and special instructions. Protection of the public against injury from bombs, incendiaries and toxic gases, maintenance or restoration of normal conditions in periods of emergency and other war problems of home fronts are subjects of lectures being given. The course embraces such diversified subjects as bomb disposal, protective equipment and construction and civilian defense organization.

A. L. NAZELROD FATALLY SHOOTS SELF YESTERDAY

Abraham Lincoln Nazelrod, 64, State road employe, fatally wounded himself at his home at Sand Flat, six miles north of Oakland, yesterday, tearing away the left side of his face with a discharge from a shotgun. He died in Potomac Valley hospital, Keyser, W. Va., around 1:50 o'clock, 10 minutes after he was admitted.

Mrs. Nazelrod told Sheriff J. W. Owens that when her husband came home early this morning he told her and her daughter he was going to shoot himself. Owens said Nazelrod had been drinking and that when in that condition often made threats of killing himself and members of his family. Mrs. Nazelrod and daughter left the house and a short time later there was a shot.

The discharge tore away the man's left jawbone, cheekbone and penetrated the skull. He was crawling around on the floor when Owens and Baumgartner arrived, and soon after was sent to the hospital.

Nazelrod was born December 30, 1877 in Harmon, West Va. He had been employed by the State Roads Commission for about nine years as a laborer.

Surviving are his widow and an adopted daughter, Mrs. Hazel Nazelrod; three brothers, Samuel Nazelrod, Hagerstown; John Nazelrod, Norton, W. Va.; Jonas Nazelrod, Thomas, W. Va.; one sister, Mrs. Stella Yakie, Cumberland.

Funeral services are to be conducdet Friday morning at 10 o'clock with Rev. Minor Sprague officiating.

Federal Auto Stamps Still on Sale Here

Federal automobile use stamps are remaining on sale at the postoffices throughout the county during February. The price will still be $2.09.

Many motorists were under the mistaken impression that the sale of stamps stopped last Saturday. Motorists must buy them if they want to continue using their cars.

Postoffices had a time keeping enough stamps on hand to supply the public. The Oakland postoffice ran out of stamps and a new order came through at 11 o'clock, just an hour before the windows closed. The lobby was crowded most of the morning.

After March 1 a sliding scale of prices on a monthly basis will be in effect for the stamps until July 1, when a new stamp costing $5 must be purchased for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1943. A sliding scale will also prevail during that twelve-month period.

Nine Below Zero Recorded Tuesday for Coldest of Week

Following a week-end storm there were two days this week with below zero temperature, and this, following the traditional event of the groundhog viewing his shadow, gave weight to the theory that there would be six weeks more of winter weather.

Weather of yesterday and today, however could not be used as evidence of this fact.

Monday morning the thermometer registered about 10 above and in spite of snow at times, the groundhog had frequent opportunities to see his shadow, had he had any desire along that line. The weather cleared that evening and on Tuesday morning 9 below zero was recorded. Although clear on Tuesday there was not much moderation and on Wednesday morning the thermometers recorded below.

After a light snowfall last night there was a continuing fall of rain today with temperature 40 and above.

Scouts and Road Workers To Help in Defense Program

The list of Oakland Boy Scouts and road workers for the County Commissioners were added this week to the names of those who will assist in the civilian defense program in this area, according to Lawrence M. Fraley, county coordinator.

Mr. Fraley said the Commissioners had agreed to enroll all county road workers in the defense program and also would offer their road machinery for any emergencies that arose.

Mr. Fraley talked to the scouts last Friday evening and they have agreed to serve as messengers in the defense program during any emergency.

Rotary Club Arranges Annual Ladies' Night

About Eighty Expected to Attend Function on Friday Evening

The Oakland Rotary club will observe its annual Ladies' Night on Friday evening, February 6, with a large number of guests and a special program, it has been announced.

The program committee has obtained Dr. Emmanuel Sternheim, of Lafayette, La., a highly recommended lecturer, for the main speaker, and he will discuss the progress of the Rotary club, "Rotary—Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow." Musical entertainment will be an added feature.

The Rotary club members will present favors to their ladies. The decorations will be patriotic.

At least eighty persons are expected to attend the function which will be held in the William-James hotel.

Nation's Clocks To Be Moved Up an Hour On Monday, Feb. 9th

Will Be Known As "War Time", According to Decision of President

When the new time goes into effect at 2 a. m., on February 9, it won't be "daylight saving time" as in the first world war, but it will be known as "war time," according to a decision of President Roosevelt. He had received many suggestions as ti how it would be termed.

Instead of Eastern Standard Time here there will be Eastern War Time, and similar changes will be made for Central, Mountain and Pacific time.

The bill passed by Congress is very similar to that enacted during the first World war and it has the same objective of greater efficiency in industrial war effort and in conserving electrical energy.

Schools to Start at 9:30

The only difference in this county will be in the schools. Beginning February 9, schools will open at 9:30, until April 1, when they will open again at 9 o'clock. This is being done to create as little difficulty as possible among the students who come from farm homes, where they get up at daylight regardless and have a specified amount of work to do before going to school.

Trains will run on "War Time" and outside of the first day of change, there will be no difficulty experienced. The law applies particularly to interstate commerce activities and the federal government, which includes the railroads. Some trains will of necessity be an hour late on February 9, as they will have left their starting point on Eastern Standard time and will still be enroute to their destination when the time changes.

The train schedule remains the same as at present.

WESTBOUND

Train No. 23	4:57 a. m.
Train No. 29	10:09 a. m.
Train No. 11	1:59 p. m.
Train No. 1	10:50 p. m.

Train No. 1 is the National Limited and stops in Oakland only to discharge passengers from Washington and east. The Diplomat runs at 1 a. m., but does not stop.

EASTBOUND

Train No. 30	10:44 a. m.
Train No. 12	6:26 p. m.
Train No. 24	12:30 a. m.

Train No. 2 is the National Limited, reaching Oakland at 3 a. m., but it does not stop. Train No. 4, the Diplomat runs at 6:36 a. m., but does not stop except on previous notice to station agent for passengers to Washington and points east of that city.

Just Turn Clocks Ahead

To cause the least confusion people are urged to turn their clocks ahead one hour when they go to bed on Sunday night. Then they'll be all set to go to work at the proper time on Monday morning, with nothing lost except one hour of sleep.

World Day of Prayer To Be Observed Here

The World Day of Prayer will be held in the Methodist church, Oakland, at 3 o'clock p. m., on Friday, February 20. This is the day when all the people of the world are requested to meet together in prayer, and all denominations are invited to this service in Oakland.

The people of all nearby communities not having this service are invited to attend, including Aurora, Red House, Deer Park, Mt. Lake, Loch Lynn, Crellin, Bittinger, Accident, McHenry, and others.

A committee of different denominations has been arranged with Mrs. W. W. Grant the leader.

CITY COUNCIL ARRANGES FOR ELECTION MARCH 9TH

Names Judges and Clerks At Monthly Session on Tuesday Evening

Preparations for the annual municipal election were made at the regular monthly meeting of the Mayor and Town Council on Tuesday evening, by the appointment of judges, and Miss Elizabeth West and Miss Margaret Lawton were named clerks.

The election will be held Monday, March 9. The mayor, three councilmen and the treasurer are to be named this year.

Mayor Lawrence M. Fraley is expected to seek another term, as is also Richard Davis, treasurer. The retiring councilmen are Earl Shartzer, Raymond D. Houck and Henry W. McComas, Jr., and it is not known what their intentions are. It is necessary that candidates file a petition at the council chamber ten days prior to election.

Tuesday's meeting was a short one. The treasurer reported collections for the month of January as totaling $3,786.46. Included in this amount were water collections of $2,097; and taxes of $1,061.31. Total collections from March 1, 1941, to February 1, amounted to $39,310.43. Monthly bills amounted to $2,812.88, and included in this was repayment of a loan of $1,000 to the First National Bank, payment of material and labor in constructing the sewer line on Eighth street, of $200; and purchase of a number of water meters. The town still owes banks $2,500, it was stated.

A report of the test made on the town's water supply showed absolutely no contamination.

Movie tax for the month totaled $39.90, and was divided by law to the Red Cross, Fire Department and Oakland Public Library.

No Increase in City Tax Is Anticipated By Mayor and Council

Assurance that there would be no increase in the city tax rate, in spite of expected loss in revenue, was given one day this week by Lawrence M. Fraley, Mayor, and Delbert M. Davis, President of the City Council.

A State law exempting persons from paying personal property taxes in the county and a ruling prohibiting an incorporated municipality from demanding and collecting trader's licenses because of a duplication of taxation, conflicting with the State law for trader's licenses, will reduce the town's revenues this year by at least $1,500, it was stated.

The expected reduction in gasoline tax revenue will also affect the various towns, it was added.

The city's tax rate is 70 cents per $100 of assessable property. Retrenchment will be the order of the day, according to the town officials.

512 BIRTHS; 249 DEATHS RECORDED HERE IN 1941

More Births in May Than Any Other Month—More Deaths In January

Births in Garrett county during 1941 were more than double the deaths, according to records compiled in the office of the county health department. The records gave 512 births and 249 deaths.

More births occurred in May than in any other month, while the highest number of deaths occurred in January. The complete tabulation by months is as follows:

	Births	Deaths
January	51	34
February	36	23
March	53	26
April	48	24
May	54	18
June	49	12
July	37	16
August	44	24
September	46	19
October	32	17
November	37	20
December	25	16
Total	512	249

Friendsville Voters Hold Municipal Election

At the annual municipal election in Friendsville on Tuesday, Ray McCullough was named mayor; Paul Friend, Lloyd Jenkins and Ray Lytle, members of the town council. They were unopposed at the polls.

Holdover members of council are Donald Chisholm, William Frazee and Blaine Frantz.

Nine Inductees to Leave Tomorrow

The names of nine inductees who are to be sent to Fort George G. Meade, near Baltimore, on Friday morning, February 6, were announced by the local draft board this morning.

Draft Registrars to Meet for Instruction

Meetings preliminary to the registration of those 20 to 44, for the purpose of giving out instructions to chief registrars who are to have charge at the twenty registration places in the county, have been arranged, according to information received from the office of the County draft board.

Preliminary meetings are planned to be held at Kitzmiller, Oakland High, Accident and Grantsville school buildings, for short sessions. The dates are to be announced after all necessary supplies have been distributed.

The registrars have already received a copy of the regulations for this third registration and a sample of the registration card that is to be used. They are also being asked to select two, three or four assistant registrars to help in the work. The Draft Board named F. E. Rathbun, County Superintendent, as assistant county chief registrar.

At the meeting the chief registrars will be required to take an oath concerning their duties and the country which they are serving. One or more members of the Draft Board are expecting to attend each of the four conferences.

Cutting Not Yet Begun at Mt. Lake

An additional five days of grace were given to those interested in saving the oak trees at Mt. Lake Park that have been purchased for cutting, it was stated today by H. D. Lollar, of the Oakland Timber Corporation.

The trees were sold several weeks ago by Miss Osie England, of the Defenders of the Faith, and when it was feared that many of the trees were to be cut down there, citizens became aroused and have tried to find a solution.

Mr. Lollar agreed to a thirty-day suspension of cutting and this time was up on Monday. The citizens asked for five more days and this extension was granted. The time for reaching an agreement will be up Saturday.

33 Schools Using Surplus Commodities

Thirty-three schools made requisitions for surplus food commodities during February, it was announced by F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent.

These commodities are distributed by the State Department of Public Welfare to schools without cost. This is almost double the number who made the request in January.

They include Swanton, Sand Spring, McCabe, New Germany, Jennings, Manadier Ridge, Chestnut Grove, McHenry, Sang Run, Rich Hill, Oakland High school, Sunnyside, Corunna, Gorman, Swan Meadow, Red House, Steyer, Beall, Finzel, Deer Park, Bethlehem, Combination, Spring Glade, Boiling Spring, Bittinger, Beachy, Fairview, Bear Hill, West Vindex, Kitzmiller, Bray and Lynndale.

George Kerins Named Shop Foreman of NYA

George T. Kerins, Oakland, has been named shop foreman of the National Youth Administration machine shop in Frostburg, which just began operating on Monday.

Fifty boys are employed there and the 40 by 100 building contains lathes, milling machines, shapers, grinders, drills and power presses. William C. Schramm, Barton, is general custodian.

Young men working at the shop are to receive training from 7 to 11 a. m., and 8 to 12 p. m. They will work on production from 11:30 a. m., to 3:30 p. m., and 3:30 p. m. to 7:30 p. m. There will be two shifts daily.

AGED MAN LOSES LIFE IN BURNING HOME LAST NIGHT

Edwin Leach, 86, of Red Oak, Caught in Flaming Home Around Midnight

Edwin Leach, 86 years old and living alone at his farm at Red Oak, near the Arnold coal mine, District No. 8, was burned to death last night when his house was consumed by flames.

Mr. Leach lived very close to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Frank Childs and family, and a series of explosions, probably caused by the discharge of ammunition which was in the flaming house, aroused them from sleep and they saw the house about ready to cave in.

They summoned neighbors but nothing could be done on account of the exploding shells and the intense heat.

Mr. Leach had been ill but was able to get around his room. James Childs, a grandson, had gone to the house earlier in the evening and had fixed the fires for the night. It was thought the aged man might have been smoking in bed and the sparks ignited the bedclothing. He slept in a downstairs room.

Mr. Leach preferred to live alone although members of his family had tried to persuade him to live with them, because of his advanced age and danger of just such an occurrence as actually took place.

State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley was notified this morning and he is making an investigation today. The body had not been recovered early this morning. Mr. Leach also had a pet dog and cat and it is presumed they also perished in the flames.

Garrett County Goes Over Top in Victory Book Campaign Quota

Drive Closed February 4 and Quota of 1,600 Books Was Far Exceeded

Garrett county has again come through to do its share for defense. The Victory Book Drive closed on February 4, and the quota of 1,600 books to be collected in our county for the boys in camp was far overreached, according to Miss Crystal Elliott, county chairman.

The campaign in our county was sponsored by the Business and Professional Women's club. Through the courtesy of the William-James Hotel, the books were boxed and stored there, and will be taken to Baltimore today by Francis Sanders, free of charge. The Girl Scouts helped the local committee in the collection of the books.

Mrs. Kathryn Helbig, president of the local club, expressed appreciation of the overwhelming cooperation of the chairmen in the outlying towns and the principals of the schools, who helped in the collection of the books. The Accident school is especially commended for its cash donation of $8.00, in addition to the books collected. This money will be sent to State headquarters for the purchase of books. The books contributed throughout the county were of the highest type and in very good condition.

Secures Position With Department of Justice

Julius C. Renninger, local young attorney here, has secured a position with the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice in Washington, D. C., and left early this week to assume his new duties.

Mr. Renninger went to Washington several weeks ago to take an examination for this position and just learned of the appointment on Friday. He spent most of the past week-end in straightening up his office affairs, and closing the Renninger home on Second street. His mother, Mrs. J. C. Renninger, who has been visiting her sister and brothers in Silver Spring for several weeks, will remain there until May or June before returning to Oakland. His wife, instructor in home economics in the high school at Grantsville, will continue in her position.

Taken to Sykesville

Arthur Peck, 37 years old, of Sand Flat, was placed in the county jail yesterday, and this morning was taken to the State hospital at Sykesville for possible treatment. He had been suffering from hallucinations, officials said.

McGuffey's Famous Readers

The Books That Helped Shape The Nation And Left Its Speech With A Heritage That Still Lives

(By D. A. Saunders in the Public Opinion Quarterly)

Despite the "Little Red School-house" stereotype now prevailing, education in America during the last century was the subject of more controversy and experimentation than today. The fluidity characteristic of the growing period of any institution was present; and, in the midst of that fluidity, the omnipresence of the McGuffey Readers is all the more noteworthy.

The first (1837) edition of the Eclectic Series of schoolbooks found the United States twenty-six in number, with a land area little more than half that of today and a population of about sixteen million; yet by 1850 seven million McGuffey textbooks had been sold. Forty million were turned out by 1870, despite the Civil War and Reconstruction, and an additional sixty million by 1890. . . .

William Holmes McGuffey, born in 1800, was a true child of the nineteenth century. His parents were Scotch-Irish Presbyterians who had moved from western Pennsylvania to Ohio shortly before his birth. His pioneer boyhood was not unusual, nor was his progression from a local academy to a near-by college to a professorship at Miami University, where he taught ancient languages.

He held the presidency of three universities, including the University of Cincinnati and the University of Ohio, before accepting in 1845 the chair of moral philosophy at the University of Virginia, where he remained until his death, in 1873. Revisions and new editions of his textbooks appeared steadily after 1937, and further revisions were made in the series after his death.

The popularity of the McGuffey Readers was based upon a number of factors. First, they were for their day surprisingly modern and managed not only to include vigorous and excellent literature but to do so deftly. The leaden quality of Puritan texts, with their somewhat sulphurous overtones, is not to be found. . . .

In addition to throwing off a rather ponderous heritage, McGuffey managed to be a surprisingly good salesman. Take that word "eclectic" on the cover of so many millions of his readers: "Eclectic" was a magic word whose judicious mixture of mystery and meaning served to captivate local school boards. It was understood (if at all) as "taking the best theories"—sound doctrine, or so it appeared to an age little concerned with the fine points of philosophy.

These factors are of little weight, however, when compared to McGuffey's amazing ability to reflect and further the prevailing social doctrines. What was McGuffey's world? Primarily, it was a growing-frontier world, while representing the fullest flower of the Acquisitive Society, imparted its flavor to the entire American social scene. . . .

Morality in an acquisitive society is a morality of acquisition. How could McGuffey teach honesty in a frontier world devoid of policemen? He did it the only possible way, by showing honesty's rewards . . . . There is no trace in McGuffey of virtue for its own sake; on the contrary, virtue pays. Those who practice these virtues—honesty, industry, charity, piety and the like—receive very tangible rewards in return.

In an age tuned primarily to the acquisition of property, it is not unusual that stress should be placed upon its sancity once acquired. Thus every child was cautioned to leave the possessions of others strictly alone. . . . Even stronger penalties attach to the cardinal sins of drinking, gambling and laziness. McGuffey warns again and again to "beware of the first drink," and reprints prohibition pep-talks such as Hawthorne's "Town Pump." Gambling is frowned upon for "the baseness of using the money of another, won without honest industry, obtained without an equivalent."

The full measure of censure is, however, reserved for the mortal sin of laziness. The child's whole life—apparently including any chance of going to Heaven — depended upon strict attention to business. . . .

In perspective, there should be no scorn of McGuffey for setting a price on virtue, or even for recommending politeness and kindness because they paid dividends. L'art pour l'art was simply not of his age.

It is difficult to overestimate the importance of the part which McGuffey's Readers played in imbuing nineteenth-century America with an uncompromising nationalism.

McGuffey's favorite source for patriotism, pure and undefiled was Daniel Webster. Many of Webster's most nationalistic addresses were reprinted. . . . An address of Dr. Beecher, ostensibly an appeal for education, managed to emphasize the importance of the unity of the Eastern seaboard and the West. Washington appears in numbers of stories, some which have no "plot" and would be completely pointless without his presence. The Puritan Fathers Lafayette—Patrick Henry and (surprisingly) John Marshall, receive similar treatment.

Though occasionally using the flag as a patriotic symbol, McGuffey preferred the American eagle, and the eagle is the subject of several poems and stories. . . .

The McGuffey Readers were sprinkled with a liberal assortment of Biblical psalms and stories, but from the standpoint of religion McGuffey contributed not so much a doctrine as an attitude. In place of the hell-fire-and-brimstone tradition he substituted a viewpoint which for his times must have seemed almost flippant! In one story a schoolboy claimed that he had sprained his ankle "on one of the commandments."

The ultimate measure of McGuffey's influence is, however, the wide dispersion of his poems, stories and proverbs among generations who have all but forgotten his name. In this respect, indeed, he has fared better than many Americans: instead of being canonized as a historical saint, he lives in the everyday speech of the people.

MT. LAKE PARK

Many Books Donated

We want to thank all donors of books, here and elsewhere, for their splendid cooperation in the Victory Book drive. The list of donors is too long to publish, but suffice to say that Mountain Lake Park, as usual, went "over the top." In fact we were told only last night that Garrett county had exceeded her quota of 1600, to which we had only one reply: "Doesn't Garrett county always do that." Anyhow, many thanks.

Red Cross Knitters

The classes in Red Cross knitting here in the Park are doing a fine work under the supervision of Mrs. John Stevenson, Sr., who has handed in the following report of completed work:

Sweaters—Mrs. Gregory Bleakly, two; Mrs. Lloyd Cook, two; Mrs. Rebecca Canan, one; Mrs. Mason Callis, two; Mrs. Ward Freeland, one; Mrs. Annebelle Ford, one; Mrs. Belle Nine, four; Mrs. Clyde Gnegy, one; Miss Nell Lee, one; Mrs. Lawrence Moomaw, five; Mrs. H. M. Weeks, two.

Scarves — Mrs. Gregory Bleakly, two; Mrs. Annabelle Ford, one.

Socks (pairs)—Miss Mary O'Donnell, five; Miss Ada Lawrence, fourteen; Mrs. Etta Sanders, fourteen; Mrs. Nettie Eichelberger, two; Lorraine Cook, one.

Other articles—Mrs. Lawrence Moomaw, two pairs mittens; Miss Josi Weimer, two cardigans. Shawls—Mrs. Ida Lee, two; Mrs. William Bitzer, one; Miss Dessie Rodeheaver, three.

Last Friday afternoon a group of fifteen workers met at the home of their supervisor, Mrs. Stevenson, at which time several new recruits were added to the Mountain Lake group. A social session followed the work session.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. C. Fleming and Mrs. R. L. Cunningham, Fairmont, spent Friday here with Mrs. Allie Haymond.

William Bitzer, representative of Miss Osie England and The Defenders of the Faith, is in Pittsburgh on a business trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Chance, of Clarksburg, were Park visitors last week. They came for the birthday anniversary celebration of Mr. Chance's mother, Mrs. Kate Chance, a venerable and highly respected citizen of the Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Tower and son, of Cumberland, were luncheon guests on Tuesday of Mrs. F. M. Murphy.

Mrs. J. A. Turney, Miss Helen Schooley and Mrs. Paul Turney, the latter of Oakland, were Cumberland visitors on Thursday.

Miss Myrtie Finnell, who has been in Morgantown the past few weeks, is now in Clarksburg for a brief visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Gay Hayden had as guests on Sunday Mrs. Hayden's sister, Mrs. Xenia Hill and son Will, of Luke, and Miss Ella Poling, of Lonaconing.

Forrest Welling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Welling, who is in the Army Air Corps, stationed at Tampa, Florida, is recovering nicely from a motorcycle accident in which he received injuries several weeks ago.

Mrs. Elizabeth Baker, who is critically ill at her home, east of Loch Lynn Heights, shows small improvement and little hope is entertained for her recovery.

Mrs. Pat Morgan is recovering from an illness of several days.

Carleton Bittinger, son of O. C. Bittinger, who enlisted a week ago in the Navy, has received orders to report to Baltimore on Friday of this week. He will go immediately into training quarters.

The first Congressional medal of honor to be given during this war was authorized for 2nd Lieut. Alexander R. Nininger, Jr., an officer in the Philippine Scouts.

Turning Over An Old Leaf

By Phillip A. Gladheim

There were faces to remember in the Valley of the Shadow;
There were faces unregarded, there
were faces to forget;
There were fires of grief and fear
that are a few forgotten ashes;
There were sparks of recognition that are not forgotten yet."

The hero of this week's column is a farmer. Some of the most genuine personalities are those isolated on a lonely farm, mingling very infrequently with other people, because they are faithful and hardy servants of the soil and its daily miracle of never-ending cycles. Townspeople are tradesmen; they are not understood by rural folk and by them often interpreted as suspicious characters. Townspeople have the tendency of feeling superior toward the farmer. The present trend of events is showing society a new angle of the vocation of a farmer—and learning also that farmers are not only a sturdy and independent class—but have an innate culture, whereas the culture of townspeople is superimposed, and never gets under a tough and unyielding skin. The farmer is near the soil—he is constantly associated with things that grow—He is aware that his inner life is a matter of growth—and this is fundamentally what is meant by culture. There are however many farmers who just plod with a dull thud. But let us keep attentive to the other class of men and women who rejoice in their work, their children, neighbors, home, and the soil.

In the last few years there has come to our neighborhood a farmer and his wife who have spent most of their years on a farm east of Meadow Mountain, between Glendale and Bittinger. They raised a family of four, three girls and one boy. These children are now grown, married, have children. There are to date twenty-seven grandchildren—all hale and hearty. Instead of being dissatisfied with simple life on the farm these children married farmers—and fortunately each have splendid large farms, well equipped—and their land joins together. The farm also of the parents joins that of the children, comprising today a total of 1300 acres of Garrett county's best soil. But as I said above our hero-farmer with his wife have moved from the old place and have come to a small farm near Oakland. His name is Irvin Custer; that of his wife, Melissa. Now Irvin and Melissa are happy with each other, their work, and their growing family. They are excellent neighbors, always willing to give a helping hand—and always have time for conversation on worthwhile topics spiced occasionally with a good story. Irvin and Melissa are to that stage of their life where men and women brought up in the cities generally retire and finally disappear from this earth as dry rot. Not so this hale and hearty pair. They are up at five—to bed at eight. In between rising and retiring a host of tasks. They are not only farmers—but have learned many other valuable forms of handcraft. If Irvin wants to build a barn or a house he builds it—if he wants to recondition his car or tractor he can do it. He has his own blacksmith, carpentery and electric shop. He has kept up to date—with all modern advances save one. He and Melissa have never seen a movie.

AURORA-EGLON

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Harvey accompanied their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Rembold, last Tuesday, to Pittsburgh, where they plan to visit for a week.

Mrs. Bob Glaze and two children, Bobby and Lena, visited for several days recently at the home of Mrs. Glaze's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Wotring, Aurora.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Ford and family, of Benbush were week-end visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Fike, Eglon.

Willard Feather, who has been an inmate in the Ohio Valley General Hospital for several weeks, returned by bus Tuesday, to his home in Eglon.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilmour Fike and family motored to Uniontown, Pa., Sunday. Mr. Fike's mother, Mrs. Sarah Fike, returned home with them after having spent several weeks with another son, Paul Fike and family.

If Mr. Groundhog did venture to come out of his winter quarters last Monday in an attempt to see his shadow, he surely got well chilled, since the mercury dropped, that night, to 18 degrees below zero at some points in this community.

Mr. Flint, mill boss for Morrison, Grose Lumber Company, Erwin, died Tuesday morning from injuries he received Monday evening, when he was struck by a car, driven by a Rowlesburg resident, when he was walking alongside of the road, near the mill.

You are invited to attend services at any of the various places of worship in this community on next Sunday morning and evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Lilburn Crumrine are the parents of a daughter, born Wednesday morning, January 28, at the home of Mrs. Crumrine's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ayers, Aurora. This is their third child.

A daughter was born Friday morning, January 30, to Mrs. Grace Ayers, at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Stemple, Aurora. This is the second child. The father, Troy Ayers, was fatally injured September 6, when the truck in which he was riding, and driven by his brother-in-law, Lilburn Crumrine, wrecked near Charles Town, W. Va. Mr. and Mrs. George B. Wotring, Aurora, are the maternal grandparents.

Announcement was received of the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Snyder of this community, but now residing in Oakland. Mrs. Snyder was the former Miss Zelda Slaubaugh, Eglon. This is their first child. Mrs. Nora and the late Samuel Snyder are the paternal grandparents. The father is employed in the Economy Market, at Oakland.

Funeral services for Thomas Lipscomb, who died Tuesday night, January 27, at his home on Mountain Top after a lingering illness, were held Friday afternoon at St. Paul's Lutheran church at Aurora. The Reverends A. K. Jones, of Red House, and E. J. Johnson, of Aurora were in charge.

Mrs. Julius Arnold, of Horse Shoe Run, who suffered a light heart attack early last Friday morning, is much improved at this time.

Lee Winters, who was a surgical patient in the Tucker County Hospital, Parsons, for several weeks, returned Monday to his home at Eglon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray C. Judy, Eglon, are remodeling the interior of their house.

Rev. and Mrs. Ezra Fike left today for Lakeland, Fla., where they will spend a few weeks with their daughter Ruth Fike, who is an instructor in the Florida schools.

Dewey Harsch, of Adrian, Mich., grandson of Albert Harsch, is visiting relatives in this area for several days, prior to his enlistment in the U. S. army.

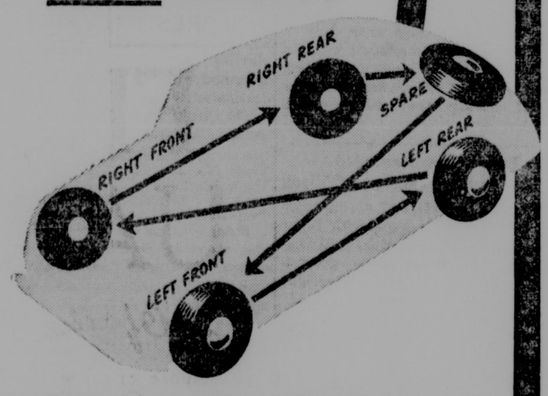
Make your tires last!

HERE'S HOW YOUR ESSO DEALER WILL HELP YOU GET EXTRA MILEAGE



Switch Wheels Every 3,000 to 5,000 Miles—Don't let your spare go to waste. Your Esso Dealer will change all tires periodically as shown in the diagram above. The charge is trifling compared with the additional mileage.

Keep Tires Properly Inflated — Air standards at your Esso Dealer's are checked for accuracy — important today when a difference of a pound or two is vital. Properly inflated tires go more miles and last longer.

Drive Moderately — At 30 miles per hour, tires last twice as long as at 50.

Check Regularly — Let your Esso Dealer check your tire pressures every week. Most motorists used to neglect this for indefinite periods. Now it is urgent that they learn not only to watch tires, but to retard wear of every possible part. Learn to rely on your Esso Dealer for help.

Tax on Boats Too

The boat owners in this area are to be taxed as well as the auto owners. The commissioner of internal revenue has reminded boat owners that a new tax on the use of boats became effective February 1, to be paid by the owner of the craft.

The term "boat" means all boats propelled by machinery, sail or both, measuring sixteen feet or more in over-all length. Payment of the tax is to be evidenced by stamps which may be procured only from offices of collectors of internal revenue. The stamps are green and must be affixed to the boat so that they will be readily visible for inspection. The first stamp covers the period to June 30.

The yearly rate for boats 16 to 28 feet is $5.00. This size ought to cover all boats on Deep Creek Lake.

A number of business establishments and companies have completed arrangements for facilitating the voluntary purchase of defense bonds by employes through pay check deductions.

Many workers are putting aside so much each week or month for their purchase.

Whichever way is being used, the important thing is to buy defense bonds and stamps.

One Job to Do

Production Chief Donald M. Nelson has handed out the program of victory to the administration and to every man and woman, every industrialist and every laboring man in the United States, in the shortest possible number of words.

"We have just one job to do—to make enough war material to lick Hitler and the Japs and to do it in the shortest possible time."

That means production.

The Home Front

The home front is important in winning the war, and it is going to call for sacrifice, but that will be a small sum to pay for such values as liberty, the right to pursue happiness and work for a decent sort of world.

Sugar and tires are just starters. The needs of army and navy are going to affect clothes as well as diets. There will be change in the contents of the kitchen shelves and in our closets, bureau drawers and living rooms.

There will be a lot less of the tin can for baking powder, beer, biscuits, candy, cereals, flour, chocolate and cocoa, dog food, spices, condiments, petroleum products, tobacco.

Women's styles probably will be altered. Maybe we're in for a period of slim silhouettes and short skirts. It looks as though the foundations are safe as enough crude rubber is to be made available for foundation garments, girdles, corsets, etc. There'll be more rayon and cotton stockings. The Nylon supply will soon be needed for military purposes, and silk was practically exhausted for commercial use sometime ago.

My Kingdom for a Horse—Or a Bicycle

It won't be long until the old gray mare will be back with us, even though she won't be what she used to be.

The person with a one horse-power affair can laugh at those who are subject to auto, tire and gas restrictions. No need to worry on color, no new model streamlining, no simonizing, no running boards to slip on, no tail lights to replace, no need to change oil, no anti-freeze, no motor tune-up and grinding of valves, no defroster to get out of whack just when it is sleeting, no danger of not starting in cold weather and you won't have to choke it to get it running smoothly.

OR

If you're not satisfied with the old-fashioned horse, you can get a bicycle. You'll buy your license by the foot-power, not horsepower, and we'll be a nation of peddlers.

Or

You can use just what the Lord has provided and walk. They won't be able to ration your legs but I don't know what they'll do to shoe leather. So better get those feet toughened up for the duration of the emergency.

Plans are under way to draw on men with dependents and those suffering from minor physical defects to build up the nation's fighting forces, the selective service director has disclosed.

Firemen Elect Officers; Plan Meeting

The town firemen elected officers for the ensuing year at a recent meeting and planned to hold a defense gathering at a later date.

Officers of the fire company elected were as follows: President, John Capel; vice-president, James H. Fike, secretary, Lawrence Schroyer; treasurer, Robert W. Murphy; chief, Dwight Matheny; assistant, James Lininger, warden, Arnold Sines; executive committee, Quincy A. Murphy, Ralph Murphy, Frank Hare, Bud Umbel and Fred Selby.

A citizens home defense meeting to be held on a date to be announced, at the public school building when L. M. Fraley and R. E. Guard, Maryland defense coordinators for Garrett county, along with Sheriff J. W. Owens, chief air raid warden for the southern half of the county, will be invited to be present and address the meeting to which all citizens are cordially invited and urged to attend in order to learn how to protect themselves in case of an air raid over this community.

Home Nursing Classes Formed

Miss Helen Miller has organized home hygiene nursing classes in the junior and senior departments of the Friendsville and Accident schools. Approximately twenty members are enrolled in each of the classes. Miss Miller has announced that first aid and child care will be among the topics studied and discussed in each of the groups. The course will be given once a week for a period of several weeks.

Minor Matters of Interest

Miss Eileen Frazee was hostess to the members of Circle 3 of the WSCS at her home on Thursday night. Mrs. John Williams was leader of the group during the evening. Miss Helen Miller conducted the business session, after which refreshments were served by the hostess.

The farm machinery repair work has gotten off to a good start this past week, according to a statement by Charley B. Miller. Plans have been worked out to have the shop open on Tuesday and Thursday from 7:00 p. m. to 10:00 p. m., and on Saturday from 8:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m. The shop is equipped to take care of most farm repair jobs. Ernest Griffith is assisting Mr. Miller with the work.

The Garrett County Farm bureau directors met in the Accident school on Wednesday evening. William Winterberg and Ross Speicher gave reports of their trip to the State convention held in Baltimore earlier in the month. The next meeting is scheduled to be held in the Friendsville school on March 25.

The revival meeting, which was in progress in the Sang Run church for the past two weeks, closed on Sunday evening.

Another meeting was begun on Monday evening of this week in the Selbysport Methodist church with the Rev. R. L. Greynolds in charge, assisted by the Rev. Lucian Smith.

Forestry Service Feeling CCC Cut

Fire fighting activities of the State Forestry Service will be handicapped this year because of the decrease in personnel of the Civilian Conservation Corps in Maryland, F. W. Besley, State Forester, declares.

Only three CCC camps in the State are now working for the forestry service, two of these being located in this county at Swallow Falls and Meadow Mountain. The third is in Worcester county. Four years ago eight CCC camps were attached to the forestry service.

Mr. Besley said the work of the CCC boys was very helpful in fire control.

The CCC began to retrench in 1938 as a result of reduced appropriations and an upswing in business. Only thirteen CCC camps remain in the State out of a one-time high of twenty-one. The abandoned camps are being held in readiness for military use during the war, according to S. G. Smith, liaison officer for the CCC in Maryland.

LEAVE THE SPRING RUSH BEHIND!

We can make your tractor perform like new — whether you need a complete overhaul job or a few new parts. But there are TWO things to keep in mind:

1. See us now — you don't want to lose valuable time after the spring rush starts.
2. Steel and iron are available only on a priority basis. By placing your order now, you enable us to better anticipate the need for parts and replacements.

So wouldn't it be wise to see us about fixing up your tractor IMMEDIATELY? You'll avoid the danger of costly spring stops. You'll be aiding defense by getting your parts early. Then too, we can assure you of better service while we still have plenty of parts — NOW!

NEW LIFE FOR OLD TRACTORS

SCOUT ANNIVERSARY—

For ten million men and boys in America this week, February 6 to 12, is an anniversary. Thirty-two years ago the Boy Scouts of America was founded. The groups of twelve to fifteen year olds who rallied to the Scout banner during that first year was small. But each year saw more and more boys being touched by the Scout Oath and Law.

The first year a scattered few—61,495 all told—had the advantages of Scouting. But by 1915 almost a half million boys had enjoyed the great game of Scouting—262,043 were active and a slightly smaller group had "graduated," as it were.

The growth of the Boy Scouts of America has been steady ever since. Each year more boys came within influence of Scouting. Naturally many boys joined the ever increasing number of young men who had been Scouts. And because they had been Scouts they were better citizens. This number continues to grow until today ten million men and boys represent the circle of direct influence of Scouting.

Thus it is that not only are the million and a half active Boy Scouts and Scouters celebrating the thirty-second birthday of Scouting, but the eight and one half million alumni of Scouting also have a claim in the birthday festivities.

Most former Scouts still hold with the Scout Oath and Law, and hope their own sons also will say:

"On my honor I will do my best—
To do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the Scout Law.
To help other people at all times.
To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight."

WHAT ABOUT THOSE WASHINGTON "PARASITES?"

The President's demand that "parasites" leave Washington to make room for war workers is one of those juicy press-conference statements which delight the Presidential sense of humor but which throw little light on difficult public problems.

Mr. Roosevelt indicated that he applied the term "parasite" to those who have no real duties in Washington but who have settled there because they like the social life and prefer to have their children educated in local schools. Particularly, he seems to have had in mind those persons residing in twenty-room mansions on Massachusetts avenue. If these people would only get out, according to the President, it would be easier to provide lodging for the war workers.

As so often happens at Mr. Roosevelt's press conferences, this proposal serves to divert attention from a very real problem to one that is merely spectacular. The real problem in this case is the continued presence in Washington of thousands of New Deal jobholders who were there before the war effort was started and who have no real contribution to make to the effort. If there is to be a search for parasites, it would be much better to go through this group with a fine tooth comb than to go prying into private homes on Massachusetts avenue. There are only a few of the twency-room mansions of which the President speaks, but there are thousands of superfluous jobholders, each of whom takes up space.

Let us look at the facts. On December 31, 1932, just before Mr. Roosevelt took office, there were 66,303 civilian employes of the Federal Government in Washington. On June 30, 1940, just before the defense program got started, there were 133,645 civilian employes of the Federal Government in Washington. Mr. Roosevelt and his New Deal subordinates had doubled the number of jobholders in the District in eight years.

With 133,645 civilian employes in the District, the New Deal had more people on the public pay roll in Washington than the Wilson Administration had on November 11, 1918, when the drive to win the first World War was at its peak. The civil service pay rolls in the District of Columbia showed only 117,760 names on Armistice Day. The New Deal had 16,000 more than this before the all-out defense program was started.

According to a civil service report released today, there were 199,283 civilian employes in Washington in November. This represents a gain of 65,638 since June 30, 1940, when the defense effort started. According to a statement by the Public Buildings Commissioner, 85,000 more workers are to be called to the National Capital in a short time. Thus there will be an addition of 150,000 workers due to the war in the District of Columbia alone, to say nothing of the hundreds of thousands added in other parts of the country. No wonder Washington faces overcrowding.

Before the rush gets worse, why not try a little elimination? The Byrd committee recommended many cuts not yet made in the operating expenses of many non-defense agencies. Other proposals for economy have pointed to places where savings could be effected. Why not try to do more along the lines thus indicated? Reduction in non-defense pay rolls would not only save money. It would rid Washington of some of the "parasites" who are now making difficulty for those who have war work to do.

There is the Department of Agriculture, for example, which has 12,682 employes in Washington. There is the Commerce Department, with 11,144. There is the Federal Works Agency, with 14,152 and a lot of money to spend for non-defense public works. There are 2,995 press agents, most of whom are in the District. There are numerous other Federal agencies whose pay rolls are loaded down with workers who have nothing to do with the defense effort. In this group are the real "parasites". Why not get rid of them, and thus do a good turn for the overburdened taxpayer, while relieving Washington congestion too?—Baltimore Sunday Sun.

Washington Snapshots

By JAMES PRESTON

The opinion is unanmous here that, throughout the war, the unionization cause will make gains.

From present indications, labor is asking a return for its all-out cooperation in war production. It seeks, as consideration to bind the bargain, a voice in management.

Industrialists and industry men in the OPM view this development with alarm. They feel that this country is today facing a labor problem of far greater significance than it did when it had defense strike after defense strike to contend with. The fight over giving labor a share in management is waged bitterly behind the scenes here.

Labor's demand stems back to last fall, when Philip Murray, president of the CIO, presented his "industry council plan."

The Murray plan contemplates the establishment of councils for every industry. These councils would be composed of an equal number of labor and management representatives, with a chairman to represent the public appointed by the President. The industry would then be run from top to bottom by its council.

The Murray plan was widely criticized at the time of its proposal. It was pointed out by economists, both friendly and unfriendly to labor, that the management of an industrial enterprise requires a specialized type of skill. The fact that a man makes a good labor leader does not, of itself, qualify him to share in the direction of industry. There is, it was pointed out, no correlation between the two.

The public was let in on this controversy by press reports of the fight over the conversion of the automobile industry to armament production.

During the negotiations about the automobile industry, labor leaders consistently called for the adoption of the Reuther plan, which is an adaptation of the Murray plan to the automobile industry, worked out by one of Philip Murray's proteges.

Nor have CIO leaders been content merely to cheer while the auotmobile industry fight was on. They have plans already prepared for industry-labor committee operation of the steel industry, the aluminum indstry and the copper and all other non-ferrous metal industries. All these plans provide that labor shall have an equal voice with management in the operation of the industry in question.

The President's budget for the next fiscal year, like all governmental finances, at least since the defense effort began, cites figures which, to Mr. Average Citizen, are astronomical in size.

It was, therefore, with a sigh of relief that Congressmen received the translation of the President's production schedule into terms which they and their constituents can understand. It is felt here that the National Association of Manufacturers' picture of the proposed program in the practical terminology of labor supply, floor space and machinery is a comprehensive one.

To meet the President's schedule of 125,000 planes by 1943, it will be necessary to turn out one plane every four minutes, the NAM disclosed. In order to meet the President's estimate of production of 8,000,000 dead-weight tons of merchant shipping during 1942, it will be necessary to sustain a rate of approximately two ships a day, it was pointed out.

Candid shots: Not only is the radio industry giving full aid to Uncle Sam, but the support of amateur radio operators has also been enlisted. The FCC, at the request of the Defense Communications Board, ordered all amateur radio operators to stop sending. It is felt that cessation of amateur transmissions will give the FCC and the Army and other government agencies an opportunity to police the situation. The Government is aware that amateur operators are valuable in the war effort, and is working out plans for the use of "hams" in its wide program.

The nation's chickens and cows were the subject of spirited Congressional discussion. Action putting the hands of the clock forward an hour was taken in a bill enacting year-round daylight saving on a country-wide scale, for the duration of the war. The farm group was vociferous in voicing its objection to getting up an hour earlier, but rallied round when it was put to the actual test of voting.

Court of Appeals to Decide Whether Dam Board Can Be Sued

Circuit Court Ruling in Damage Suit to Be Appealed by Teacher

Maryland's court of appeals will be asked to rule on the question of whether the Upper Potomac River Commission, sponsor of the huge Savage River project in Garrett county, is immune to suits brought without its consent by virtue of being a governmental agency.

The question will go to the court of appeals as a result of a ruling Tuesday by Associate Judge William A. Huster in Allegany county circuit court sustaining the demurrer of the commission to a $4,000 damage suit filed against it by Mrs. Marion Lohr, of Cumberland.

William L. Wilson, Jr., co-counsel with Edward J. Ryan for Mrs. Lohr, said an appeal will be entered from Judge Huster's ruling.

In sustaining the commission's demurrer, Judge Huster upheld its argument that it was engaged in a governmental function, and was, therefore, not responsible for the damage claim of Mrs. Lohr. In other words, the commission enjoys governmental immunity and may not be sued without its consent, the ruling says in effect.

This contention was vigorously opposed by Attorneys Ryan and Wilson at a hearing January 27, at which they insisted that the commission was an independent corporation chartered by the State of Maryland and given the right to sue and be sued by the statute creating it.

A similar case was before the court of appeals more than a year ago, but it was remanded to circuit court here for further action without any ruling as to the issue of governmental immunity.

Mrs. Lohr, a Garrett county school teacher, asks $4,000 damages for injuries and property loss she allegedly suffered when her car collided with debris blocking a road on the dam property in December, 1940. The suit charged the commission with negligence in permitting the highway to be blocked as a result of its construction activities.

Oakland High Takes Seventh Straight Game

Oakland high school basketball team won its seventh straight game last night, this time at the expense of Terra Alta High school. The final score was 32 to 27.

Lyons with 17 points and Rook with 12, were going at full speed for Oakland while Ashby and Kahl contributed the other three points. Thomas led the Terra Alta team, scoring with 12 points, while Kelly and Sell contributed 6 and 7 points, respectively, and Cassiday 2.

Others playing for Oakland included Jones, Stewart, Treacy, Snyder.

Terra Alta led 14 to 13 at the half but Oakland tied the count at the third quarter and then outscored their rivals 13 to 8, in the final period. In the preliminary the Oakland Merchants were defeated by Elk Garden 55 to 28. Homer Brooks, former W. V. U. player, scored 33 points for the winners. Playing on the Oakland team were Coddington, Crites, Stewart, Wolfe, Bittinger, Sisler and Glotfelty.

GAME COMMISSION PUTS TEETH IN DEER LAWS

Simplification Of Enforcement Proposed By Fish and Game Body at Semi-Annual Meeting

The Maryland State Game and Inland Fish Commission has recommended that the deer hunting regulations be amended to simplify enforcement of the ban on the slaying of does and spike-bucks, it has been revealed by Fulcher P. Smith, Western Maryland representative on the commission.

Smith said the commission at its semi-annual meeting in Baltimore, January 27 recommended that it be made unlawful:

Possession Illegal

1. For any person to have in his possession any illegal deer, dead or alive, or any part or parts thereof.

2. For any person to remove the head or any other part of a slain deer before it is checked by a game warden.

The amended regulations would also provide that each illegal deer, or part thereof, found in a person's possession be deemed a separate offense, with each subject to penalty.

The penalty for violation of the new sections would be the same as for violation of the law against killing illegal deer, a fine of $100. Enforcement would be simplified by virtue of the fact that it would not be necessary for wardens to prove who actually killed a doe or spike-buck; possession would be prima facie evidence of a violation.

Other Changes Made

The commission took action on several other matters of interest to Western Maryland sportsmen, changing the opening date of the bass season to make it conform with the regular fishing season, setting aside three streams for fly fishing only, closing two Garrett county trout streams for propagation purposes, modifying rabbit and turkey stocking procedure and naming a committee to investigate trout rearing facilities in the state.

The period July 1 to November 30 was designated as bass season in Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties. The change, which advances the opening date from June 15, makes it conform with the general fishing season.

Fly-Fishing Streams

Two Garrett county streams and one in Washington county were set aside for fly-fishing only. The streams are Savage river, from its junction with the Potomac to the new dam; Cherry creek; and Beaver creek in Washington county, from Cress pond to Tom's meadow.

The season in these areas will be from May 1 to July 15, the opening being fifteen days later than the opening of the regular trout season. No artificial baits may be used.

Cherry creek was set aside for fly-fishing last year as an experiment and proved highly successful.

The Garrett county streams closed to fishing in order to devote them to propagation purposes are the North branch of Bear creek, from its source to its junction with Bear creek, and Monroe run, from its source to its junction with Savage river. These streams will be closed to all fishing for two years in order to permit experiments in the propagation of brook trout.

Smith said the commission declined to approve the recommendation of some sportsmen's groups in the eastern section of the state that the daily creel limit for trout be reduced from ten to five.

The commission adopted a policy of stocking rabbits in Allegany and Garrett counties after March 15, in order to prevent the mortality which frequently results from late snows and severe cold waves, and machinery was set in motion to make the necessary arrangements for executing the policy.

It was also decided to begin, as an experiment, the stocking of wild turkey hens during the spring. The step will be taken gradually under the supervision of game wardens in order to determine its practicability.

A special committee was named to investigate the state's future needs with reference to facilities for rearing trout. Smith, who was named to the committee, pointed out that the water shortage east of Hancock presented difficulties last year and suggested to the commission the need for a study of the problem and the steps necessary to meet it.

Season Opens February 15

It will be lawful to fish for suckers, catfish, carp, eels and gudgeons from February 15 to November 30.

The open season for brook, brown and rainbow trout is April 15 to July 15, except in the Youghiogheny river below Swallow Falls, where the open season on rainbow trout is July 1 to November 30.

America was declared headed toward another bicycle era. Umbrella sales are also expected to rise with curb on motoring.

Cold and hunger are plaguing Europe during the third winter of the war there.

On February 16 the Battleship Alabama, costing 80 million, will be launched at Norfolk.

DIARY OF THE WAR

FRIDAY — Japs continued their drive on Singapore. They forced new landings on Dutch Indies but their main troop bodies were still in the Macassar Strait under American-Dutch bomber and torpedo action. Flyers over Burma shot down 13 Jap planes, making 111 destroyed there. MacArthur's men smashed Jap infantry assaults. Japs demanded surrender of MacArthur's forces. Reds captured town in upper Ukraine below Kharkov in 95-mile advance, killing 25,000 Nazis. The Axis Libyan army recaptured Bengasi in their surprise push westward. Churchill got a 464 to 1 vote of confidence from Parliament. U. S. Pilot announced "sighted sub, sank same," which was 20 declared sunk by U. S. in both oceans.

SATURDAY—Japs were within 18 miles of Singapore. It was announced 106 enemy warships and transports and other vessels had been sunk or damaged by American and Dutch action. The fighting in Dutch Indies was inconclusive. The Japs were attempting to round up their crippled invasion fleet in Macassar strait. British firmly held positions in Burma east and south of Moulmein. Reds pictured the Nazis as being outflanked and cut up in scores of sectors, and Reds as closing in upon Smolensk. British said most of garrison had been withdrawn safely from Bengasi in Libya. Hitler recalled all active divisions from France, Belgium and Holland to build up a reserve army for Nazi spring campaign. Ecuador broke off diplomatic relations with Axis. Hitler told his people he couldn't assure peace this year.

SUNDAY — Jap troops were defeated around Canton in a five-day battle with Chinese. British yielded Moulmein in Burma for a stronger line. British began digging in at Singapore preparatory for big battle. MacArthur reported in addition to holding off Japanese his forces had taken some prisoners. A sea, land and air battle raged around Amboina, East Indian naval base. Reds raced forward on Ukraine front with 200 villages reported recaptured. Reds were using ski-borne artillery. Axis drive in Libya was losing its impetus.

MONDAY—Warships and planes of the U. S. fleet struck at Jap bases on six islands in Marshall and Gilbert group, sinking many enemy auxiliary ships and planes. Two U. S. warships were slightly damaged by "near misses" of Jap bombers. Eleven American aircraft were lost. It was first attack on Jap soil. Japs tried a barge invasion of Corregidor fortress in Philippines but were caught by surprise and crushed by artillery fire. Jap losses were heavy. Singapore's guns opened fire for first time in direct defense of the naval base there. Axis forces in Libya rolled 60 more miles. Reds reported a 55-mile gain along a 60-mile front. The Dutch battled to confine the enemy to scattered points where landings already had been achieved. Jap air attacks in all areas had slackened. A Jap general was reported a suicide over two defeats at Changsha by Chinese.

TUESDAY — Allied position was critical all over Pacific with exception of Luzon in Philippines. There a powerful enemy offensive of at least 30,000 men was beaten back by MacArthur's troops. Four U. S. bombers in the Indies shot down 9 Jap planes, losing one ship. Japs were dropping fire bombs on Singapore, preparatory to invasion. Dutch said Pontianak, on west Borneo, 440 miles from Batavia, had fallen to Japs. Japs were making slow progress in Burma and had forced the Salween river in some instances. Soviet armies in Russia drove ahead all along the front. Reds were active in Barents Sea in sinking enemy transports and supply ships of Germans. Rommel's Axis desert army pushed another 100 miles in a three-day drive in Libya.

WEDNESDAY—Two Jap attempts to land troops on MacArthur's flank in Philippines were smashed. Japs however broadened offensive by attacking Dutch naval base on Java with many planes with considerable damage. There were several daylight raids upon Singapore. Reds reached out for Smolensk on Central front at 40-below temperature. Reds were less than 20 miles from Ukraine hydro-electric city on Dnieper river. Nazi reserves were failing to stem Red advance. British position in Libya was somewhat improved. Chinese reported a big Jap convoy headed south in Formosa strait. A torpedo boat in Manila Bay braved fire of enemy craft and shot two torpedoes at enemy warship. A battalion of naval bluejackets and marines were organized and fighting alongside MacArthur's army on Bataan peninsula.

THURSDAY—Action was light on Singapore front except for British artillery and Jap bombers. In Philippines MacArthur's troops again broke up an assault and mopped up isolated enemy units which landed behind the lines. The Dutch were battling Japs around Amboina, a naval base. In Burma British bombed enemy concentrations and kept them on far side of important river there. British troops in Libya fell back from Derna leaving only 150 miles of Libyan coast to British, but held the inland route and were on offensive against Rommel's flank. Red armies went on with advance on Smolensk and along South and north. Another ship sinking was reported off Maryland.

Mitten Quota Completed

The mitten quota for Garrett County knitters, 200 pairs, has been completed, it was announced this week by Mrs. Anna Smouse and Mrs. S. Townshend Naylor, who are in charge of this particular part of the knitting program.

Of the thirty-two women in the county helping in this project, there hasn't been one able to match the work and speed of Mrs. C. P. Jones, of Kitzmiller, mother of the principal of Kitzmiller High school, who is 79 years old and who has completed 50 pair. She is keeping right on, even though the quota is filled.

Others who have had a part in completing the mittens are Mrs. Minor Sprague, Mrs. Edward Lawrence, Mrs. Edward Offutt, Mrs. Thomas Nicholson, Mrs. Harold Rook, Gladys Holsopple, Ann Naylor, Mrs. S. LEROY WILT, WHO FLED HOSPITAL, IS CAPTURED

Was Arrested Near New Germany Last Thursday After 4-Day Manhunt In Two Counties

Leroy Wilt, of Bear Hill, who fled from Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, in a night shirt, has been apprehended. He was caught last Thursday afternoon, January 29, near New Germany, by State police after an intensive manhunt in which a three-State alarm had been broadcast.

Wilt's capture by State Police Corporal Harold Carl and Trooper Graydon S. Dunlap, climaxed a constant search of four days.

Wilt was in the hospital for treatment of an infected left hand after being arrested by State police for investigation in connection with a series of thefts in Garrett county, according to Corporal Carl.

Falls Thirty-Five Feet

Wilt had had no medical treatment since the Sunday prior to his escape, he stated. The fugitive was injured in making his getaway from the institution. Wilt told officers he fell 35 feet from a second floor bathroom at the hospital. He said he had tied two sheets and a bed spread together, fastened them to a radiator and then started his descent to freedom.

Hardly had he started down, he said, when one of the sheets began to tear. He tried to make his way back to the window, but because of his injured hand was unable to do so, the window screen having dropped back to place. Accordingly Wilt said he dropped to an areaway which runs along the basement dispensary and injured his back. He told officers he lost consciousness following the fall and lay in the areaway for an unknown length of time before making his way to Ridgeley, where he got shelter until the following day and also exchanging his hospital bed clothing for other clothes.

Wilt declared he was a "lone wolf" in the escape and was aided by no one. He said he walked to Ridgeley. Reaching Garrett county Wilt spent most of the time in the woods, obtaining food and shelter from friends and relatives.

Wilt's capture on the West Shale road near New Germany followed an all-night search by a nine-man posse in plain clothes. Corporal Carl said that three homes of Wilt's friends and relatives were "raided" without success, but that the police kept him on the move. He finally surrendered without a struggle.

Wilt was placed in the Allegany county jail at Cumberland and when the county physician there considered his condition unfavorable and recommended that he be returned to the hospital for treatment of the hand and x-rays of his back injury.

In the hunt for the man a number of other troopers with Constable Bailey, of Barton, and Constable Hershberger, of Grantsville, assisted.

After a new outbreak of violence against Nazis in Paris, six were executed and 100 exiled.

Early income tax returns show a gain of 100 percent over last January. January collections were over 133 million.

Bus lines were authorized to increase passenger fares by 10 percent.

Red Cross Roll Call List Still Growing

Seventeen more members were added to the Red Cross roll call list last week and $22.50 added to the money received, bringing the totals thus far to 695 paid members and $791.00 in bank, according to a report by Mrs. Paul B. Naylor, roll call chairman. This leaves $409.00 to collect before the quota of $1,200 is reached.

D. W. Walter handed the roll call chairman a check for $5.00 and Jacob Dilgard, Sr., of Gorman gave $2.00.

Clyde Humes, Swanton solicitor, handed in a list of six, Richard Loum, Miss Mollie Friend, Miss Grant Friend, Miss Lillian Harvey, Mrs. Joe Lohr, Mrs. George Sharpless.

Miss Thelma M. Steyer, Steyer and Gorman solicitor, sent in the following: Miss Thelma M. Steyer, Virgil T. Steyer, Jacob Dilgard, Mrs. James Gilbert, Mrs. Pearl Schell, Miss Ruth Edgar, Mrs. C. E. Shillingburg, W. T. Steyer, Jacob Dilgard, Sr., Mrs. V. T. Steyer.

The names of Miss Cassie Wilson, Kitzmiller, Marylyn Rebekah lodge No. 23, of Blaine, W. Va., and Mrs. Carrie DeWitt, Oakland, were also received.

The roll call continues, Mrs. Naylor said.

MARRIED

FRIEND-LILLER—The announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Nina Friend, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Friend, of Mt. Lake Park, to Kenneth Liller, son of Mrs. Henry Liller, formerly of near Gormania, W. Va.

The couple were quietly married January 1, 1942, at Baltimore, by Rev. Wheeler. They are now living in Baltimore, where the groom is employed by the Bethlehem Steel Company.

The War Today

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

The United States Pacific fleet's devastating attack on the Japanese bases in the Marshall and Gilbert islands is by far the best war news of the day, not only because it is a smashing fine victory but because it finally blasts the lie that the fleet was destroyed at Pearl Harbor.

Despite assurances from Washington to the contrary, the Japs have pushed that propaganda hard, and their tale hasn't been hurt in the telling by the fact that two months have passed without much visible activity to disprove it. Now we know that we have a fleet—both sea and air—and a good one!

All of which gives a chance for the little Monday sermon rushing about and grousing "what's the matter with so-and-so" every time there is a setback, not only damage their own morale but that of their neighbors. Countries that have been caught napping and unprepared for war, must expect to take some knocks while they are getting set for action.

Represents Double-Edged Victory

The havoc wrought by our bombers and warships represents a double-edged victory. It has vastly lowered the Japanese striking power against the Hawaiian islands and our west coast. And it has eased the threat against our vital sea communications with Australia and the western Pacific battle ground.

Our Allies in the Orient are bound to take much encouragement from this display of American air and seapower. Undoubtedly we shall see a continuation of such assaults on the Japanese islands possessions, but I think we shall make a mistake if we jump to the conclusion that the United States Pacific fleet is now going to proceed full steam ahead right into the midst of the battle for Singapore and the Indies and clean house of the Japs in short order.

Just as we shouldn't get down in the mouth every time there is a setback, so it's equally bad for our blood pressure to entertain fantastic dreams. It's good enough for us to know that our fighting arms are getting ahead with their job.

The picture of the battle of Singapore looks fairly grim. The Japs apparently have made another important killing in the occupation of the important city of Pontianak on the west coast of Dutch Borneo. If this is confirmed, it will mean that the little men from the island empire have secured a further base which lies close to besieged Singapore and Dutch Sumatra.

Japan's striking power rests in the accumulation of these island bases which provide the Nipponese at once with airdromes, naval harbors, and centers for the accumulation of troops and supplies ready for the grand assault against Singapore and the main Dutch possessions. One of the greatest threats, of course, is the heavy increase in Japanese air power upon which the battle of Singapore is turning.

It may be that units of our Pacific fleet now will be able to knock out some of these outlying bases, in cooperation with the Dutch.

Allies Need Reinforcements

The Allies will have to move very considerable air reinforcements to this battle zone if Singapore and the Indies are to be saved. And they will have to be moved fast, because Allied air bases are getting mighty scarce. That's another vital point that a good many folk overlook—it doesn't do you any good to have fifty-thousand warplanes ready for action if you haven't any bases from which to operate.

Reinforcements of a nature unspecified have arrived within the last few days at Singapore to encourage the defenders. They need all encouragement they can get, for the great trial is at hand.

If the British had plenty of warplanes one would say they might hold out indefinitely, but unless air reinforcements arrive the Japanese may be able to blast their way ashore. There is to my mind another grave danger for the defenders, and that lies in the open reservoirs of rain-water upon which three-quarters of a million people must depend. The amount of water undoubtedly is sufficient for a long siege, but there is a possibility of the Japs poisoning it from the air.

The Navy announced it might use six billion in ammunition by June 30.

A BUSY SABBATH IN CAPERNAUM

LESSON TEXT—Mark 1:21-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day.—Revelation 1:10.

The Sabbath of the Jew and the Lord's Day (Sunday) of the Christian were both intended to be days of rest. The ordinary activities of life were to cease and one was to be free to worship and to rest. The manner in which a man uses this God-given day of rest is a remarkably accurate indicator of his spiritual condition.

We have before us the account of a very busy Sabbath day which our Lord spent in Capernaum, the city in which most of His mighty works were done, but which ignored Him and His teaching to its own destruction (see Matt. 11:23, 24). As we look at our Lord's activity on that day we learn what we may do with our Sundays to make them bear fruit for eternity. We find Him in three places.

I. In the Church (vv. 21-28).

The Sabbath day found our Lord with His people in the synagogue, their place of worship. The service of worship was probably formal and lacking in spiritual vitality, but none-the-less He was there. What have we to say if we miss the opportunity for fellowship and service which church attendance brings us?

Observe that because He was there He (as a distinguished religious teacher) was called upon to teach the people. He taught them in the serene consciousness of His divine authority, and the people were delighted and astonished at His message. We may not serve exactly as He did, but if we present ourselves in God's house on His day we will find the way opening for us to share in the worship.

Jesus not only spoke, but He performed a miracle. Certain it is that we could not do what He did, but we can be ready to give ourselves in service as well as in worship, or in speaking. There is much work to be done in the church, and God's people should be ready and willing to do it.

II. In the Home (vv. 29-31).

From the synagogue Christ went into the home. How appropriate! We too should go from the church to the home, always bringing with us the strength and blessing of the worship service.

The daughter of a great preacher and Bible teacher said the thing she most loved in her father was that he did not give out the "cream" of his Christianity in his meetings and bring home the "skim milk." Too often we fail to bring into the home the power and beauty of the service in the church. We who have been very sweet and spiritual in the church should not come home to be sour and crabbed.

Jesus brought a blessing into Peter's home, miraculously healing his mother-in-law of a great fever, setting her free to serve. Here again we cannot do what He did, but we can, in His name, bring power and blessing into our homes.

III. In the City (vv. 32-34).

From the home the ministry of Jesus reached out to the entire city. As the strict laws forbidding travel on the Jewish Sabbath were set aside by the coming of sundown, not only the city but the entire countryside brought their sick and needy to Him.

The scene staggers the imagination as one attempts to conceive of this coming together of troubled humanity for the Master's touch. Mark tells us that He healed many; Matthew, that He healed all, and Luke, the physician, is emphatic in saying that He healed every one of them.

We may learn from this incident that our Christian faith, which has been developed and strengthened by our time of worship and service in the church, should not only reflect itself in the home, but should reach out into the life of the community in which we live. The primary interest of the Christian in his city or the place of his residence should be spiritual, a desire to bring to bear upon the people of the community the power of the gospel.

There is, however, a secondary responsibility which is of much importance and that is the extending of Christian influence into every phase of school, social, political, and business life. It is said that when D. L. Moody came into a barber shop the entire course of the conversation changed. The Christian should have an influence on problems of social welfare, the work of the public schools, the proper conduct of business in the community, and surely upon its political life. It is said that if every Christian in America would vote according to his professed convictions we could put the saloons out of business in a single election. Why not do it?

The Supreme court decided that Congress can regulate any trade, even that conducted entirely within one state, if it competes with interstate commerce.

Historical Society Board of Directors Meets for Business

The Board of Directors of the Garrett County Historical Society met at the Manhattan hotel, Oakland, on January 21. Present were Charles E. Hoye, president; Miss Viola Broadwater, second vice-president; S. H. Jackson, secreary; Joseph E. Harned, treasurer, and Miss E. J. West, member for the Great Glades.

Business transacted included several resolutions:

1. To incorporate the Society under State laws.
2. To publish the Glades Star quarterly, 1,000 copies per issue.
3. To apply for second class mailing privileges for the Star.
4. To continue the membership campaign, especially in districts now having few members.
5. To take steps, in cooperation with the D. A. R. and American Legion, to secure Government grave markers for Revolutionary soldiers' graves in Garrett county.
6. Approval of the annual budget.

The Oldtimer

The Goff Place

I was asked, one day last summer, if I was not interested in finding out why my mother's home on the Northwestern Pike, now the Hamilton dairy farm, which had been deeded to Elizabeth Hoye Phillips by her uncle, John Hoye, of Cumberland, in 1856, and was for many years prior to the Civil War, known as the Goff Place.

The question and tone of voice suggested a challenge, which always piques my curiosity.

Garrett countians having lately gone historical and there being a dearth of authoritative records in this county, no suggestions even must be overlooked, for one never knows where a quest will lead or what it might reveal.

Goff, being an unfamiliar name to this community, I could think of no Goffs but Judge Nathan Goff, of Clarksburg, West Va. I remembered his mother who occasionally visited Mountain Lake Park during its halcyon days, so I wrote him for information. He replied that he knew absolutely nothing about the family, but gave me the address of a near relative who was interested in ancestral lore.

In due time an interesting letter came from James Goff of Whitewater, Wisconsin, saying "one of his ancestors must have lived on the place in question, as two brothers were early settlers in Preston county, which adjoins that part of Maryland. The family came from Massachusetts or Rhode Island and were descendants of William Goff, one of the judges who condemned to death Charles I of England."

The Great Commonwealth, which had done so much to restore England's national prestige, was at an end. Pym, John Hampden, John Milton and Oliver Cromwell, these four far-sighted, strong-hearted, liberty-loving men were dead. Charles II, an exile in Personally, before crossing the Channel, he granted unconditional amnesty to all his father's enemies, but placed Parliament under the obligation of avenging his father's fate.

"Twenty-five of these judges were dead; nineteen had fled to other countries. Two, William Goff and his father-in-law, Edward Whalley, one a lieutenant-general, the other a major-general in Cromwell's army, secreted themselves on a vessel sailing for Boston. Upon their arrival, they were courteously received by Governor Endicott, but close on their trail came warrants for their arrest and they fled to the woods, where, for years, they led a precarious existence in caves, among rocks along the seashore and with the Indians. Finally, they found refuge with a minister in Hadley."

Years passed, and King Philip, son of Massasoit, and chief of the Wampanoags, went on the warpath. It was a fast day in Hadley and the people had assembled in church. The Indians fell upon them and were about to massacre them en masse, when an old man with long white hair and beard appeared. He was brave, cool and spoke with authority. The Indians were driven off. The old man, too, disappeared, and was never seen again.

"This old man was William Goff, who for many years was considered by the Colonists as a heavenly interventionist in their hour of peril."

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Wilhelm and Marshal Broadwater were in Cumberland on Monday.

Harold Fike, accompanied by his brother George Fike, of Frostburg, made a business trip to Easton, Pa., on Monday, returning Tuesday evening.

Anna May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Garlitz, is a patient in Allegany Hospital, with an infected jaw.

Mrs. Charles Chaney is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Guerine Coleman and family, at Frostburg.

Jimmy Robeson spent the weekend here with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Fike.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Broadwater have moved into their new bungalow, near Avilton.

Lawrence Hayes, who recently returned from Puerto Rico, spent the week-end at the Fike home.

Parasites

Washington, Feb. 3.

No one wants—particularly in a time of war—to defend that unpleasant breed of people to whom the word parasite justly can be applied. If needed war workers are unable to find living quarters because of "rich social parasites," who, preempting the great houses, come here merely because Washington is an exciting place to spend the winter, then dislodging them is a sound proposal clearly in the national interests.

But, when Mr. Roosevelt, at his press conference last week, brought up the subject of parasites and talked about his power to drive them out of Washington, he certainly opened wide the door to inquiry as to his attitude toward the parasites within the Administration as well as those without. It was inevitable and natural that many should rush forward to point out that the social parasites whom Mr. Roosevelt accuses of crowding Washington are utterly insignificant compared to the political parasites for whom he is personally responsible. Expanding the definition of parasites, as he did, to make it include those who clutter up the city without performing any useful function, he indicts his own Administration. Perhaps, if he had realized this he would not have brought the subject up—even if he had to miss the gratification of a stimulating press conference.

The truth is that never in the history of the country has anyone conceived of so vast an army of useless individuals as are now on the Government pay rolls. This was true before the defense organization was set up in 1940. In the eight years following 1932 the New Deal created so many new boards, commissions, agencies and authorities that the number of jobholders in the District of Columbia had more than doubled. With 133,645 civilian employes in Washington, this Administration exceeded in peacetime by more than 16,000 the pay-roll record of the Wilson Administration in 1918, when the first World War was at its peak. Since June 30, 1940, more than 80,000 additional employes have been added to the rolls in Washington. They are now going on at the rate of a thousand a week. Before the war has gone another year the number of civilian Government employes in the District will approximate 300,000.

This just does not make sense. It has no relation whatever to efficiency. Actually, the sheer size of the organization makes inefficiency inevitable. The truth is that the machine is so cumbersome, clogged up and unwieldly that its progress is painful and its direction uncertain. From the beginning, the President has imposed no restriction on—and made no effort to restrict—the size of the multitudinous defense agencies established. Naturally, no one else has. Every head has had practically a free hand as to the number of employes he could appoint and the salaries he could pay.

The result has been fantastic. All sense of proportion has been lost. These alphabetical agencies just swell and swell and swell. The publicity army is the best illustration. There are now 2,895 full-time Government press agents and 31,618 on part-time. There are more than a thousand individuals on the White House executive staff. No one knows how many there are under the Price Administration, or in the OCD, or in any of the others. The pressure from Congressmen and politicians to put more on never relaxes.

In the creation of a great war machine a certain amount of confusion, of course, is inevitable. No one expects a perfectly functioning organization without any duplication and with no drones. But, what has happened here is beyond reason. If the President wants to make room for legitimate war workers by driving the parasites out of Washington, the place to start is in his defense organization. He thus not only could solve the room-shortage problem but he could improve the tone, temper and efficiency of our whole war effort.

It was announced that the Kelly-Springfield plant in Cumberland had received a contract to manufacture shells for the government. About 800 will be employed.

Meet Old Sourpuss!

He isn't unique. Every community has one or more like him, always dissatisfied with things as they are, always criticizing, always belittling, the fellow who knows how to run everything but his own life and enterprises. "Why save electricity," he queries, "we've got plenty, haven't we?"

Truth is, we make a lot of it, but none to waste, and the Sourpusses here and elsewhere are the ones who will have to be cured to keep from defeating the efforts of the thousands of others who will comply willingly with whatever restrictions have to be imposed.

As a good citizen, you can aid in national defense by seeing to it that no electricity is wasted in your home or business and encouraging the other fellow to do likewise. War is a cooperative enterprise in which personal likes and dislikes go into the melting pot of victory for the nation. We know we can count on our customers to do what they know is right "for the duration" and beyond.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS . . . . . .

A Conference Called For

Washington, Jan. 31.

There is a disposition in certain Washington quarters to dismiss from consideration at this time all post-war problems on the ground that the primary thing is to win the war. Of course, they are right about that, but they are not right in the assumption that thought given now to conditions clearly recognized as inevitable following the war, interferes with winning it or diminishes concentration on that objective.

On the contrary, not to plan now for what is sure to happen then is to subject the country to unnecessary and really appalling dangers. To be caught unprepared to deal with the tremendous job of transferring from a war economy to a peace economy is inexcusable and indefensible. It is to repeat in a big and far more perilous way the lack of foresight responsible for the rubber shortage, which almost overnight paralyzed the entire automobile industry of the United States.

Failure to prepare for the adjustment after the war will involve a very much greater dislocation than that. Failure to prepare for this adjustment is to risk a social revolution that easily might plunge the country into chaos and from which an America, utterly different from the America we have known, would emerge. Warnings of this possibility have been sounded from time to time by various persons but they seem to have made little impression. Up to now, no concrete step toward preparing has been taken. Yet no reflective man will dispute the vital necessity of preparation.

This is why the just published report of the so-called National Resources Planning Board, of which Mr. Frederick A. Delano, aged uncle of the President, is chairman, is of more than usual interest. This document was written by Dr. Alvin H. Hansen, special adviser to the Federal Reserve Board and a great friend of Vice-President Wallace. It is a vague, voluminous affair, which makes a great many recommendations without suggesting any practical way of translating them into realities. The fact most worth noting about the report is that it is the fourth distinct pronouncement on the subject. The other three were a little less in length and slightly more concrete. But, in the main, all four are in complete accord on the basic facts. And, up to now, they are identical in that not one has made the least progress.

First, there was Assistant Secretary of State Adolph A. Berle. A pioneer in the field, Mr. Berle published a book nearly a year ago pointing out the character of the post-war problems and clearly indicating the action that should be taken. In a trenchant magazine article a few months ago he again warned of the dangers and pointed out the opportunities. Next, there was Mr. Charles E. Wilson, president of the General Electric Company. Concurring in the Berle views, Mr. Wilson strongly expressed the conviction that failure of industry now to prepare and plan for the return to a peace basis was to commit an economic crime, criminal in character.

Third, there was Mr. Owen D. Young, retired industrialist and head of the American Youth Commission. In a report made public last week, Mr. Young accentuated, emphasized and elaborated the points made by the Messrs. Berle and Wilson. Among other things, he called for advanced planning to assure jobs for the millions of young men who will be without jobs when the war is over—Which is exactly what the Messrs. Berle and Wilson have called for. Further, Mr. Young asserts that, in addition to the youths from 16 to 21 who will be jobless when peace comes, there will be several millions from 21 to 36, released from the armed services and with strong claims on the country, seeking something to do. If these claims are not met, he says, these young men will not be silent. Every social unrest movement will appeal to them. Continued and widespread unemployment may lead to social revolt. Thus speaks Mr. Young, as a result of much study and thought on the subject. He is neither an alarmist nor a theorist. He is one of the ablest, most distinguished and more disinterested citizens of the country and his words should carry weight.

And, finally, along comes "Uncle Fred" Delano, Dr. Hansen and the National Resources Planning Board. Here we have four important individuals, each one viewing the facts from a different angle and functioning in a different field, yet in complete accord upon three things: First, that the danger exists; second, that advance planning is necessary to avert it; third, that there is little time to be lost. In addition, all four of these men are equipped to offer concrete and constructive suggestions. Obviously, it is a matter in which there must be cooperation between the Government and industry. It isn't a job which either can do by itself. It is a job that must be done together.

Is it not time that this cooperative planning should begin? Is it not time that conferences, instead of being talked about, should be held? When four men such as Mr. Berle, Mr. Wilson, Mr. Young and Dr. Hansen are in accord about the presence of danger and the need for action, it is reasonable to assume that they can get action. It is quite clear that unless they do more than write books, magazine articles and reports there will be no action because no one in authority is considering taking the initial steps. Just as a start, a conference between the Messrs. Berle, Wilson, Young and Hansen would seem to be indicated. Instead of expressing their views separately, they should get together and act collectively. Somebody ought to make a move.

GRANTSVILLE

To Present Play

A religious play, "What Would Jesus Do," will be presented in the school auditorium at 8:00 o'clock Saturday evening by the younge people of Somerfield Methodist church. Proceeds are for playground equipment at Grantsville.

Sideswipes Truck

Gilbert Colmer narrowly escaped injury when his Mercury sedan sideswiped a CCC truck at the east end of town Saturday evening, during a snowstorm. Occupants of the vehicles escaped injury but Colmer's car damage was estimated at about $250.

Bride Is Honored

Misses Margaret Renstrom and Emma Caulk jointly entertained at a miscellaneous shower last Thursday evening honoring Mrs. Ruth MacMurray Patterson, recently married. Three tables of bridge were in play. Honors were won by Mrs. Benny Epstein with Mrs. Edwin Elias, Jr., second. Others attending were Mrs. Julius Renninger, Mrs. Scott Holliday, Miss Kathryn Speicher, Mrs. Hayward F. Broadwater, Mrs. C. A. Rodamer, Mrs. George B. Shields, Mrs. Frank J. Getty and Mrs. W. C. Grimm. A two-course luncheon was served.

Church Honors Awarded

The Zion Lutheran Sunday school, Jennings, awarded a number of pupils for faithful attendance at services. Highest honor went to Alverta Billmeyer, who received an eleven-year bar. Wanda Yommer, Luther Beachy, Robert Hoover, Hubert Yommer and Junior Beachy received bars for being present every Sunday for ten years. Jane Wiley, Helen Stahl and Darrell Stahl, nine years; Helen Beachy and Harry Yommer, eight years. Bars were also awarded to others for perfect attendance from seven years down to one year.

TEAMWORK. . . .

The muse of poetry touched the assembly line of the Glenn L. Martin Company in Baltimore the other day and brought forth this collaborative poem entitled "Teamwork."

Give us a chance, have a heart,
Ours is the spirit to do our part.
About Pearl Harbor there's no use crying,
It's now our job to "Get 'Em Flying!"
It little counts we've started late
We'll win the war and blot out hate.

Think of the soldiers for our protection
And give them your deserved affection.
The sailors too are fighting like mad
To keep Americans free and glad.
The sailors, soldiers, air corps too
Are fighting to keep America true.

If bombs should fall, be cool and collected
Because you know, you're well protected.
Make blackouts effective as you can,
We'll show who'll win this war with Japan.
Join "Home Defense," do your part well,
We'll beat those Japs clear to hell.

Every bond we buy means guns at bay,
Means help and strength to the U. S. A.
Each week put aside a sum for stamps
And we'll have those Japs by the seat of their pants.
So come on, Americans, buy bonds and stamps
And let's rub out those Japanese tramps.

Big Gain in Births Over Deaths in 1941

Preliminary Figures Are Given Out By Bureau of Vital Statistics

Preliminary figures for births and deaths in Maryland in 1941, assembled from the year's records by the State Bureau of Vital Statistics and announced by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, show that gains were far in excess of losses during the year.

There were 34,682 births and 21,995 deaths reported in the State in 1941, in comparison with 30,329 births and 22,110 deaths in 1940. Of the births reported in 1941, 27,408 were white and 7,274 colored. Of the 21,995 deaths reported in 1941, 16,905 occurred in the white population and 5,090 in the colored. There were 11,347 deaths in Baltimore City, 8,323 white and 3,024 colored and 10,648 in the counties, 8,582 white and 2,066 colored.

Physicians were in attendance at 26,634 of the white births and at 5,498 of the colored, 97.2 per cent and 75.6 per cent, respectively of the totals; and mid-wives at 731 or 2.7 per cent of the white births and at 1,754—24.1 per cent—of the colored.

Heart disease was the leading cause of death in both white and colored races. Cancer came next in the white population and tuberculosis in the colored. Nephritis—diseases of the kidneys—had third place among the deaths in both white and colored populations. There was a favorable decrease in the total deaths from the degenerative diseases usually associated with the middle aged and older groups—the first in a period of years. The total mortality from these causes dropped from 13,523 in 1940 to 13,245 in 1941. The deaths from the diseases in this group were as follows: In 1941, heart disease was charged with 6,246; cancer, 2,615; nephritis, 2,162; cerebral hemorrhage, 1,648 and diabetes with 574 deaths. In 1940, there were 6,329 deaths from heart disease; 2,525 from cancer; 2,327 from nephritis; 1,771 from cerebral hemorrhage and 571 from diabetes.

There were significant decreases in two other diseases of special importance. Deaths from tuberculosis dropped from 1,450 in 1940 to 1,366 in 1941. During 1941—the second year of the pneumonia control program—deaths from the pneumonias dropped to 1,078 from 1,131 in 1940.

Of the 21,995 deaths reported in 1941, 1,817—approximately 8 per cent of the total, or one in every thirteen—were babies under a year old. There were 802 infant deaths reported from Baltimore City, 454 white and 348 colored, and 1,015 from the counties, 701 white and 314 colored. Over half of the infant deaths—967—occurred in the first month of life.

The most favorable age, so far as deaths were concerned, was the group from one to 24 years old, in which there were only 1,430 deaths, nearly 400 fewer than the deaths of infants less than a year old. There were 2,732 deaths in the age groups from 25 to 44 years old and nearly six times that many, or 16,016 deaths among Marylanders from 45 to 70 years old or older.

Finzel-Long Stretch

CITRUS FRUITS

For those who like to add variety to their menus with cooked citrus flavors:

Ham with Orange
(Serves 6)

6 servings fried ham (about 1½ pounds)
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups orange juice
Parsley
2 to 3 oranges for slices

Fry ham. Add flour to 2 tablespoons of fat from frying ham. Cook until lightly browned. Add orange juice, stirring well to avoid lumps. Cook 5 minutes or until sauce is thick. Pour sauce around ham on serving dish. Garnish with parsley and orange slices.

Lemon with Vegetables
(Serves 4-6)

Harvard Beets: Mix well and boil 5 minutes:

½ cup sugar, blended with
½ tablespoon cornstarch
¼ cup water
¼ cup lemon juice
2 tablespoons salad oil or melted butter

Add: 2½ cups cooked and seasoned sliced beets. Let stand over low heat 20 minutes.

Orange Cream Custard
(Serves 6-8)

2 egg yolks, beaten
1-3 cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 cup orange juice
1 cup fresh or canned milk

Orange Waffles
(Serves 4-6)

Beat together:

2 eggs, beaten
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons grated orange peel
1⅔ cups pastry flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt

Add flour to egg mixture alternately with:

½ cup orange juice, and 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Lastly add: ½ cup melted butter.

Cook for about 3 minutes on heated waffle iron. Serve at once with orange marmalade; butter creamed with orange marmalade; or triple "decker" garnished with orange slices topped with whipped cream or ice cream.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of my dear wife, Maude May Sines, who passed away one year ago, March the first, 1941.

For more than thirty-five years we were together,
I thought our being together would last always,
You were called away so suddenly we could hardly believe that you were gone.
No one but myself will ever know how I have missed you
And how I have suffered and the tears I have shed;
When I think of the many happy years we spent together,
And in a moment of time you were gone.
We did all we could to save you but all in vain,
God wanted an angel and He called you.
You were a good wife and mother and we will never forget you,
And no one can ever take your place.
I know that God will take good care of you, and I hope to meet you in Heaven.

The blow was hard, the shock severe
We never thought death so near
Only those who have lost can tell
The pain of parting without farewell
A precious one from us is gone
A voice we loved is stilled
A place is vacant in our home
That never can be filled.

Not my will, but God's will be done.

Her Husband,

STATE TRAFFIC MISHAPS TAKE JUMP DURING 1941

Traffic Commission Reports 606 Lives Lost In Maryland Accidents

Traffic accidents on Maryland streets and highways took a toll of 606 lives last year, 56 more than in 1940, Governor O'Conor Traffic Safety Commission reported.

A total of 22,329 traffic collisions resulted in an average of 1.7 persons killed and 29.5 persons injured every day.

Fatalities Up 10 Per Cent

Fatalities increased 10 per cent over the previous year and there was a comparable increase in accidents of all types. The report said, however, that gasoline consumption figures showed a 15 per cent increase in traffic.

Baltimore City, where traffic density is highest had 75 per cent of the year's accidents. But these were responsible for only 25 per cent of the fatalities. The counties, on the other hand, reported only 25 per cent of the state's total accidents but experienced 75 per cent of the fatalities.

The commission blamed higher speeds and incomplete reporting of all types of accidents for the high rural severity rate.

December Peak Month

Accidents for the year reached their peak in December. Deaths in the final month number 55, second only to August and November when 62 fatalities were reported in each month. April, with 36 deaths, was low for the year.

The breakdown in deaths by counties for the year:

Allegany, 19; Arundel, 34; Baltimore County, 70; Baltimore City, 148; Calvert, 3; Caroline, 4; Carroll, 15; Cecil, 25; Charles, 11; Dorchester, 7; Frederick, 12; Garrett, 4; Harford, 47; Howard, 48; Kent, 1; Montgomery, 17; Prince George's, 64; Queen Anne, 7; St. Mary's, 7; Somerset, 11; Talbot, 5; Washington, 20; Wicomico, 11; Worcester, 16.

Combined Bands Give Enjoyable Concert

Oakland and Mt. Lake Park Organizations Play Group of 12 Numbers

The bands of Oakland and Mt. Lake Park combined to present an enjoyable concert last Sunday afternoon in the Oakland High school auditorium. The inclement weather kept the crowd under the hundred mark.

Twelve numbers were directed by Harry S. Mickey and Russell H. Brown, who have been instructors for the two bands for several years. The latter helped to organize the Gilbert-Brown Boys band and later directed it for several years before it was reorganized and rejuvenated as the Oakland Boys band under sponsorship of the Rotary club. Mr. Mickey has been identified with bands as their director for many years. He first directed a band at Kempton, later at Crellin, and for the past several years the Mt. Lake Park-Loch Lynn organization.

Due to war activity and the absence of many of the former members of the two bands it was decided to combine the two organizations several months ago, holding alternate practice sessions in Oakland and Mt. Lake Park. This has produced a band of around forty pieces and in addition there are half a dozen majorettes connected with the group.

Among the personnel are Regis Kerins, Clinton Shaffer, William Welch, Robert Bosley, Clara Beckman, Roseanna White, Lilliam Shaffer, Robert Gnegy, George Friend, clarinets; Foster Mann, Harry Coddington, Preston Ford, William Stahl, Rex Teagarden, Stanley Callis, Darwin Martin, Jr., William Hahn, John Fitzwater, Jr., Robert Groves, Carroll Harvey, trumpets; Richard Turney, Robert Rudy and Tommy Jones, saxophones; Dailey Sisler and Lawrence Groves, altos; Robert Taylor, Harry Wolf, Delbert Bittinger, Dave Walter, Jr., trombones; Orville Bittinger, and Charles Tusing, baritones; Dwight Gower, Wright Moon, Tommy Stanton, William Landon and Arthur Wolf, drums; Joseph Welch, Ugo Massi and Roy Mickey, basses.

The drum majorettes are Frieda Cross, Ruth Bittinger, Shirley Krause, Geraldine Freeland, T. Wilt and Dolores Swartzentruber. They gave a baton drill during one of the numbers on Sunday afternoon.

The silver offering was turned over to those in charge of the campaign to raise funds for the fight against infantile paralysis.

Single copies of The Republican may be obtained at the Hamill Book and Stationery Store, corner Third and Alder streets, where the current issue of the paper is placed on sale every Thursday afternoon. Price, 5 cents per copy.

HUMPTY DUMPTY

GEORGE FIKE

Funeral services were conducted from the Sand Spring Church of God last Wednesday afternoon, January 28, for George Fike, 46, who died January 26, in Memorial hospital, Cumberland. Services were in charge of Rev. Jeffreys.

He was married on August 20, 1920 to Pearl Featherman.

Mr. Fike was a member of the American Legion, havinb been a veteran of World War No. 1. He was inducted October 27, 1917, and served in Co. G, 312th infantry and Co. F, 328th infantry. He was overseas from May 1, 1918 to May 20, 1919, and saw action in the Lucey Sector, Marbache Sector, St. Mihiel, and Meuse-Argonne. He was honorably discharged, May 28, 1919.

Surviving are his widow, three daughters, Gladys, Bernice and Ruth; his father, William Fike; and two brothers, Hosea and Wesley Fike, of Friendsville.

Interment was in the Sand Spring cemetery.

WILLIAM GLOTFELTY

William Glotfelty, 76, well known farmer of the Bittinger section, died early Thursday morning, January 29, at his home, after an illness of about a year.

A son of Nimrod and Magdalena Broadwater Glotfelty, he was a native of the county and resided in that section all his life. He successfully operated the Glades farm for many years and in spite of ill health continued as manager until a short time ago.

Surviving are his widow, the former Sara Casteel, whom he married about thirty-five years ago, a son Nathan Glotfelty, at home; and three daughters, Lucille Glotfelty, at home; Josephine Glotfelty, Cumberland; and Mrs. Raymond Klotz, Bittinger; three sisters, Mrs. Eva Cottrel, Wolf Summit, near Clarksburug, W. Va.; Mrs. Martha Ferguson, Fairmont, W. Va., and Mrs. Ida Friend, Friendsville; a brother, Josephus Glotfelty, near Bittinger, and one grandson, Wesley Klotz, Bittinger.

Funeral services were conducted from his home on Saturday afternoon, with Rev. R. L. Greynolds, pastor of the Friendsville Methodist church, officiating. Interment was in the family burial plot nearby.

Pallbearers were Lawrence Friend, Ernest Friend, Emmett Friend, Kermit Glotfelty, Orville Glotfelty and Elwood Glotfelty, all nephews of the deceased.

M. J. HOLLIDAY

Milton J. Holliday, 58, of Springs, Pa., near Grantsville, died in Memorial hospital, Cumberland on January 29. He was born in Maple Glenn and spent his life in the Grantsville section as a farmer.

Surviving are his widow and nine children; also three sisters and two brothers, one of the brothers being Russell Holliday, Grantsville.

Funeral services were conducted from the Maple Glenn Church of the Brethren last Saturday afternoon.

MRS. ELIZABETH W. BAKER

Mrs. Elizabeth Ellen Warnick Baker, widow of Simon P. Baker, died at her home, about a mile from Loch Lynn Heights, last night, after an illness of several months.

A daughter of the late Ashford and Intha Warnick, she was born at New Germany August 5, 1862, and was aged 79 years.

She was a member of the Maple Springs Church of the Brethren.

Surviving are two sons, Charles and Benj. H. Baker, both living on the home place; and the following brothers and sisters, Mrs. Mary Simpson, Grantsville; Horace Warnick, Cumberland; Mrs. Clara Broadwater, Salisbury, Pa.; John H. Warnick, Moorefield, W. Va.; Mrs. F. A. Garlitz, Cresaptown; Bertha Warnick, Mt. Lake Park; Arthur C. Warnick, Oakland, and four grandchildren. Her husband died in 1916.

Funeral services will be conducted Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the U. B. church, Loch Lynn, with Rev. Ramsey Fike officiating, assisted by Rev. J. C. Foster, of Loch Lynn. Interment will be in the Wonderly cemetery.

The body will be at the Leighton Funeral home until Sunday.

MRS. SAMUEL RODEHEAVER

Mrs. Elmira Cross Rodeheaver, wife of Samuel Rodeheaver, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harry Paugh, near Sand Flat, this morning. She had been in an automobile accident a few weeks ago and it was thought that injuries received at that time contributed to her death, although apparently there had been nothing serious.

She was born in Iowa, April 3, 1870, a daughter of the late Thomas and Mary Cross, and was aged 71 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodeheaver had been married for 55 years. She was a member of the Paradise U. B. church.

Surviving are her husband, two children, Mrs. Harry Paugh, Oakland; and Lonnie H. Rodeheaver, Sand Flat; two brothers and two sisters, Elmer Cross, Oakland; William Cross, California, Pa.; Mrs. John Kisner, Deer Park; Mrs. Sherman Savage, Sang Run, and three grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted from the Paradise U. B. church on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in charge of Rev. J. C. Foster, pastor.

Interment will be made in the Rodeheaver cemetery at Sand Flat.

MRS. MARY SHEARER

Mrs. Mary Humbird Shearer, wife of the Rev. William Shearer, rector of St. Timothy's Episcopal church, Catonsville, and former rector of St. Matthew's church, Oakland, died Saturday at her home.

She was a daughter of the late Jacob and Sallie Criss Humbird, of Cumberland.

Funeral services were conducted Monday with interment in Rockville. Surviving are her husband, a daughter, Mrs. E. Henze, Washington; a sister and a brother.

MISS REBAKAH WILT

Miss Rebekah Wilt, aged 73 years, died at the home of Mrs. Hattie Brobst, near Swanton, on Wednesday morning, February 4.

Miss Wilt was a daughter of the late John and Sally Wilt, and was born in this county on September 14, 1868. She was the last surviving member of her immediate family. A number of nieces and nephews are living, however.

Funeral services will be conducted Friday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the North Glade Methodist church, with the Rev. C. W. Fraker, of McHenry, in charge. Interment will be in the John A. Wilt cemetery.

BERTRAM EDWIN GEORG

Bertram Edwin Georg, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Georg, died January 26, 1942, at Douglestoh, Long Island, N. Y.

Funeral services were held at Douglestoh on Tuesday evening, January 27, and interment was in the Accident Zion Lutheran church cemetery on January 29, with Rev. C. F. Dauphin officiating.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 65. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, FEBRUARY 12, 1942. NUMBER 51.

Observance of Lent . . . .

Lent will begin next Wednesday for all Christian people and any others who care to set aside that period for meditation and prayer.

At a time in our national life when spiritual foundations need to be strengthened, Lent furnishes an opportunity to the people of this nation and all nations to think seriously concerning the purpose for which Jesus our Saviour came into this world, and the purpose for which he died.

During Lent it is everyone's privilege to come into closer contact with God and get better acquainted with Christ's teachings.

These teachings are as important today as they were when Jesus lived on earth. That millions of people do not abide by them, is not the fault of the church. It is the fault of individuals themselves.

As has been said before, religion is no magic remedy. It is no easy way. The practice involves expenditure of time and effort. It involves sacrificial living and painful effort. But each person must nourish his own soul, and this can be done by praying more earnestly, worshiping more regularly, thinking more kindly, acting more generously, giving more freely toward the support of his church and other worthwhile endeavors.

Only about 60 percent of the people in the United States are affiliated with any church. What an influence could be exerted, if 130,000,000 people were united in a common effort to advance the Christian religion and way of life!

OFFICERS CLEAR UP SERIES OF COUNTY THEFTS

Confessions Obtained This Week From Group of Bear Hill Wilts—Two Are Sentenced

As the result of some persistent detective work on the part of troopers A. M. Spioch and George M. Browning, assisted by other members of the State police and county officers, confessions were obtained this week from alleged traversers of the Bear Hill section which clear up a series of robberies that has included chicken and turkey thefts, robbery of parked automobiles and trailers along the highways, theft of auto accessories and other incidents.

These robberies occurred mostly in the area around Grantsville and Bittinger, from Swanton to Westernport, and even in Allegany county, over the past several months, and implicates members of the Wilt family at Bear Hill and a Bittinger boy from Allegany county. According to Trooper Spioch and Browning, confessions were obtained from Earl Wilt, Ned Wilt, Carl Wilt and Mark Wilt, and Lee Bittinger, and their confessions implicate Leroy Wilt, who is now a patient in Memorial hospital, Cumberland. Wilt was captured several days ago after fleeing from the hospital in his nightgown. He sustained a serious injury to his back when he dropped from a second story window and is now in a cast at the institution. Spioch said the ages of the accused run from 16 to 24. Bittinger is from Moscow.

Three Are Sentenced

Ned Wilt and Carl Wilt pleaded guilty to the charges on Monday before Magistrate H. A. Loraditch, and were sentenced to serve 18 months in the House of Correction. Lee Bittinger several days ago was given six months in the House of Correction on a charge of breaking into a mine in Allegany county. Leroy Wilt, Earl Wilt and Mark Wilt are being held for action of the Garrett County Grand jury.

The court records of Allegany county show that in 1938 Leroy and Earl Wilt were sentenced to serve 18 months in the House of Correction on a charge of cattle and chicken thievery.

Articles Valued at $3,500

It is estimated by officers that the group had made away with at least $2,500.00 worth of articles from cars, etc., and had disposed of at least 100 turkeys and 300 to 400 chickens. About $500.00 worth of clothing and auto accessories had been recovered, some in Maryland and some in Pennsylvania, they said.

Spioch added that Agnes May Robeson, of Avilton, was also being held as a material witness, having been with Leroy Wilt the morning he was captured near Westernport. Officers said the cars the Wilts were operating at various times belonged to other people.

Solving of the series of thefts was accomplished over a period of two months or more. Two months ago Sergt. John Henry Doad, in command of the Cumberland police barracks ordered Browning and Spioch to work on the case, giving them full responsibilities as to their activities. Spioch said that they worked in plain clothes in the Bear Hill section for some time investigating many angles of the case and obtained clues and much information which gradually led to the arrest of the accused and the recovery of much of the loot. Articles were recovered for the owner of a New York car that was robbed in front of a Grantsville hotel, and the owner of the trailer that was robbed at Hill Top Inn recently.

J. W. Owens, sheriff, said he believed the success of the investigation was the result of the "free reign" given the officers by their superior. Assisting in the investigation and round-up of the Wilts were Corporal H. C. Carl, Corporal Thomas Currie, Trooper Ase Dunlap, Constables D. W. Hershberger, Harry Bailey and John Henry Robinson, Sheriff Owens, State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley, and others.

Roll Call Takes Jump With 45 New Members

$81.00 Received During the Week Making 740 Members And $872.00

The Red Cross roll call took an upward swing during the week, 45 members being enrolled to add to the previous total of 695, to make 740 members. The chairman received $81.00 this week making the total for the drive $872.00.

This leaves only $328.00 to be collected to reach the quota of $1,200 set by the National headquarters at the beginning of the drive last Armistice Day. Mrs. Paul B. Naylor, roll call chairman, said the drive would continue.

Deer Park people held a Bingo party, sponsored by Mrs. D. R. Hinebaugh, and proceeds of $22.00 were turned over to the Red Cross. The Knights of Pythias lodge at Friendsville gave $10.00. Mrs. Leslie Adams, solicitor for Vindex, turned in $6.00. The balance was from regular membership fees, one of these being the Primary Girls of the Deer Park Methodist Sunday school.

Mrs. Adams, Vindex, announced the following names: Mrs. O. W. Tasker, M. G. Willis, Miss Juaniata Pennell, Mrs. Haven DeWitt, Mrs. Jack Pennell, Mrs. Elwood Comp, Mrs. Joseph Gregory, Mrs. Floyd Ellifritz, Mrs. Roy Barnhouse, Mrs. Earl Doman, Mrs. James Tichnell, Mrs. Harry Edwards, Jr., Mrs. Lee McRobie, Mrs. John L. Boyce, Mrs. Virgie Nelson, Mrs. Charles Hokin, Lewis Barger, Mrs. Pauline Sines, Roy Comp, Charles Emmart, Mrs. Ernest Kent, Harold Adams, Mrs. Henry Fisher, Mrs. James Banning.

Miss Louise Nicklow, Friendsville, adds the following to her list: Mrs. Jeannette Statler, Mrs. Donald Chisholm, Mrs. Donald A. Friend, Mrs. William E. Dunham, Mrs. Emert Shoemaker, Mrs. Clarence Nicklow, Mrs. Clara G. Doolan, Mrs. Clara Kester, Miss Martha Huotari, Mrs. Stanley Friend, Mrs. Arrold Fox, Tommy Sines.

Mrs. Ethel Fox, Kempton solicitor, adds six to her list: Mrs. James Skeveris, Mrs. Pete Kuski, Mrs. Anna Kronik, Mrs. Arthur King, Mrs. Harry Wolfe.

Jaycees Name New Members of the Board

Five new members to the Board of Directors of the Oakland Junior Chamber of Commerce were named at a meeting of the organization at Chimney Corner on Tuesday evening.

They were Melvin Kight, Paul Turney, Virgil Kelley, Emeric Dusic and C. C. "Dick" Helbig. They will serve along with five other holdover members, Howard White, Lewis Jones, Edwin Michael, C. L. Briner, Jr., and Richard Glotfelty. Directors will select the officers of the club for the ensuing year.

At Tuesday's meeting the Time's current events test was given to club members and the winner, Lewis R. Jones, was given his choice of any $5.00 book published, as a prize.

The next meeting of the club will be held on March 10, with Emeric Dusic, Virgil Kelley and Clyde Dahlgren in charge of the program.

STILL A CHANCE TO SAVE TREES AT MT. LAKE PARK

Cutting Resumed Tuesday, But Force Reduced To Two Men Pending Conference With Representative

That there was still a chance to reach an agreement in which the white oak trees of Mountain Lake Park would be saved from the woodsmen's axe, was indicated yesterday when workmen for the Oakland Timber Corporation were reduced to a minimum of two engaged in cutting trees in the area, pending a conference with C. A. Maddy, representative of the Defenders of the Faith, enroute to Mountain Lake Park from Florida.

A special meeting of the Mayor and Town Council of the Park was called for Tuesday night at which time they talked by telephone with Miss Osie England, leader of the Defenders, who is in Florida, and she dispatched a telegram to H. D. Lollar, manager of the Oakland Timber Corporation, asking him to stop cutting trees until Mr. Maddy arrived for a conference with him and the Mt. Lake Council.

At a meeting of the town council there December 30, 1941, Mr. Lollar stated his corporation had purchased from the Defenders of the Faith through their representative W. O. Bitzer, 500 trees and also had an option to make further purchases, the option effective for one year. At that time there had been approximately 200 trees cut and the citizens of the Park and the Council were endeavoring to save the remainder of them.

Agreed on Truce

At that time Mr. Lollar declared he would be willing to cease further cutting for a period of 30 days and that at the end of that time would relinquish any claim he had for any timber under his contract with the Defenders of the Faith provided that an agreement could be executed assuring that the timber would not in the future be cut and removed by someone else.

At a council meeting on January 14, Dr. C. Oscar Hall, mayor, said that the council through its attorney Neil C. Fraley, offered to exempt taxes on Hotel England providing Miss England would agree not to sell the trees in the future. No definite agreement however, was made.

The thirty-day truce was up last Thursday. A five day extension of the truce was asked for and granted, and on Tuesday morning the Timber Corporation began cutting trees. Then came Miss England's telegram and an arrangement with the city council to reduce the workmen to two until Mr. Maddy appears. The balance of the crew of about 18, according to John Bayliss, of the Mt. Lake Park council were sent to work in the Herrington Manor forest area.

As soon as Mr. Maddy appears, it is expected that several conferences will be held.

Rev. Minor Sprague was the principal speaker at the regular meeting of the Oakland-Mt. Lake Lions club at the William-James hotel on February 9. He gave a description of his visit to the Eastern states on his recent vacation.

Robert Sincell, Eagle scout and local member of the Sea Scouts, gave a talk on the origin of scouting and described his trip on the Chesapeake Bay during the past summer.

Several members of the local club went to Grantsville last night to appear in the Red Cross benefit, sponsored by the Rotary club there. The style show sponsored here several days ago raised $125.00 for the Red Cross.

Ski Meet Planned

Plans are being made for the second annual Southern Ski Championship tournament to be held at New Germany, Saturday and Sunday, February 21 and 22. Last year about 100 participated.

Auto Stamp Sale Continues

About 100 automobile use tax stamps have been sold at the local postoffice since the first of the month, it was announced this morning by postoffice officials.

Three Enemy Aliens

The postoffice in Oakland has registered three enemy aliens since the order went into effect last week. All three are Italians.

Draft Boards Hear Rehabilitation Plans For Rejected Men

Delbert M. Davis, chairman of the county draft board, and Harland L. Jones, clerk, attended an all-day conference with Col. Henry C. Stanwood, state director of Selective Service, on Sunday, February 8, in Baltimore, and discussed plans for the rahbilitation of rejected draftees.

Operation of the Selective Service act in Maryland has been so efficient that this state has been selected as discussed plans for the rehabilitation program, according to Col. Stanwood.

Plans are now in progress for the possible reclassifying of all those draftees who have been placed in 1-B class.

Nearly 100 Attend Parent-Scout Dinner

Four Troops Represented At Council Function on Tuesday Evening

Four scout troops in the district were represented at the parent-son dinner held in the Oakland High school auditorium on Tuesday evening as the climax to the anniversary week celebration. Around 100 attended the function from Oakland, Friendsville, Mt. Lake Park and Oakland.

The object of the meeting was a general get-together for the purpose of having the parents learn more about the scouting program. A twenty-minute moving picture on scouting was shown and this was followed by stunts and demonstrations by members of the four troops. These included a boxing match, knot tying contest, pyramid signaling, and a demonstration of the various bandages for first aid work. The knowledge of first aid is one of the many requirements of boy scouts.

Rev. Garrett Evans, Mt. Lake Park scoutmaster, was toastmaster and S. Townshend Naylor, chairman for the Deep Creek district, spoke briefly and outlined the purpose of the scout council. The meeting closed with the rededication of the scouts to the scout oath and laws, and the pledging of allegiance to the flag of the United States of America.

Anniversary week officially ends today, February 12. Throughout the week the scouts have had a full program with a hike planned for last Saturday, attendance at the Lutheran church on Sunday, and sending representatives to the various civic organizations of town for short talks on the advantages and value of the scouting program.

Usual Union Lenten Services to Be Held

First Meeting Scheduled Next Wednesday Night At Episcopal Church

Following a custom of long standing, the Protestant churches of Oakland will again this year unite in a series of Union Lenten services, with all three congregations meeting together each Wednesday night through Lent, and part of Holy Week.

The first service will be held next Wednesday night at St. Matthew's Episcopal church, with Rev. Minor Sprague, Methodist minister, bringing the message. After that, services will pass to the Lutheran and Methodist churches, continuing in the same order until Wednesday night of Holy Week, with the pastors taking turns bringing the messages.

These services are for the benefit of the entire community, at a time in our national life when spiritual foundations need to be strengthened, Rev. Sprague stated. It is hoped by the cooperating pastors that this year's services will meet with the usual popular response, and that those who have not previously attended will this year make a practice of setting aside Wednesday nights and Holy Week for this purpose.

All services will begin at 7:30.

Farmers Receiving Checks

More checks for farmers participating in the triple-A program of the agricultural adjustment administration, were received at the office of the county agent this week, bringing the total number thus far to 671 and the amount received to $24,167.24.

Those eligible to receive the checks are being or already have been notified, it was stated.

About 1,200 farmers are participating and all checks to be received by them amount to approximately $40,000.

DRAFT BOARD REMINDS OF HEAVY PENALTIES FOR NOT REGISTERING

All Those Coming Within Age Limits Who Have Not Previously Registered, Urged To Do So

Fearing that many men did not understand the regulations for the coming registration this week-end, D. E. Offutt, chairman of the Garrett County Draft board gave out a reminder yesterday that it must include all men who have attained their twentieth birthday on or before December 31, 1941, and have not attained their forty-fifth birthday on February 16, 1942, and who have not heretofore registered.

There are heavy penalties for failure to register. Those who registered in either the first or second registrations, need not do so again, it was pointed out.

The registration will be conducted in twenty places on February 14, 15 and 16, all school buildings except at Gorman. Places will be open Saturday and Sunday from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., and on Monday from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Conferences preliminary to the registration for instructing the chief registrars, are being held tomorrow. One at Kitzmiller will be at 9:30 for Kitzmiller, Vindex, Shallmar, Bloomington registrars; one at Oakland at 11 a. m., for Oakland, Gorman, Deer Park, Red House, Crellin, Swanton and Kempton registrars; one at Accident at 1:45 for Accident, Sang Run and Friendsville registrars; and one at Grantsville at 3 p. m., for Grantsville, Avilton, Jennings, Bittinger, New Germany and Finzel registrars.

At these conferences necessary supplies for the registration will be delivered. A member of the draft board and John L. Fitzwater, assistant chief registrar, will be in attendance to instruct in any way possible and to answer any questions.

To Assist With Filing Maryland Income Tax Blanks

Field Representatives of the State Comptroller have been assigned to various sections and communities throughout Maryland for the purpose of assisting taxpayers in filing State income tax returns for the calendar year 1941, according to J. Millard Tawes, comptroller.

The representative for the Federal income tax bureau was in Oakland this week.

The state representative will be in Oakland, at the court house, on March 17, 18 and 19.

Other nearby points include Westernport, city building, March 20 and 21; Luke, Devon club, March 23, 24, 26 and 27; Barton, First National Bank, March 28; Lonaconing, Liberty Trust company, March 30; Frostburg, Fidelity Savings Bank, March 31, April 1; Cumberland, court house, February 16 to April 15.

Rotarians Guests of the Grantsville Club Tuesday Night

Fourteen members of the Oakland Rotary Club journeyed to Grantsville Tuesday night to become guests of the recently organized Rotary club of that town.

The Oakland group had charge of the program, which included short talks by several members, selections by the Rotary Club quartet and a piano take-off by William L. Gibson.

Those making up the Oakland party included William L. Gibson, Cecil A. Smith, Jesse J. Ashby, Rev. Minor Sprague, O. T. Graser, Grover C. Stemple, James A. Towler, Mason Glotfelty, Walter W. Dawson, Dr. W. W. Grant, Prentice DeBerry, Arthur Lawton, Ralph Weber, John A. Carter

To Present Jewels

Odith M. Brotemarkle, grand chancellor of the Knights of Pythias of Maryland, will be present at the anniversary celebration on February 20, to present the 50-year jewel and 25-year jewels to members of the organization who have been a Pythian for those lengths of time.

The rank of Esquire will be conferred on Friday night.

Sharpless Re-Eelcted Mayor Of Kitzmiller

Leslie B. Sharpless was re-elected mayor of Kitzmiller at the municipal electeion held by the voters of that town one day last week.

Councilmen chosen for the ensuing term were Wilbur Burrell, John Bishop and Seymour Arnold.

Mrs. Minnie McKean was elected tax collector.

Jaycees to Bring Radio Varieties Here for Benefit

The Junior Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a performance in Oakland on Thursday night, February 26, for the benefit of the Red Cross war relief fund.

Charles L. Briner, Jr., president, announced this morning he had secured the Radio Varieties from the Fairmont radio station, for that night, and the show will be presented in the Oakland High school auditorium.

The entertainers include Budge and Fudge, Little John, Cherokee Sue, Bob Key, and Wrangler Joe. Admission will be 20 and 35 cents, tax included.

GRAND AND PETIT JURORS CHOSEN FOR MARCH TERM

Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan Here Tuesday for That Purpose — Grand Jurors to Meet March 9

Grand and Petit jurors for the March term of the Garrett County Circuit Court were selected on Tuesday by Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan, in presence of attorneys and court officials.

The Grand jury is scheduled to report for duty on Monday, March 9, at 10 a. m., while the petit jury is returnable on Thursday, March 12, at 9 a. m. The criminal docket, however, won't be called until Monday, March 23, as result of a recent regulation which gives the State's Attorney a week following adjournment of the grand jury, to prepare his cases. Dempsey R. Fleming, Mt. Lake Park, was named foreman of the grand jury.

The other twenty-two members of the grand jury include Stewart Rodamer, Robert W. Lohr, Harry John Edwards, Terrance F. O'Donnell, Charles E. Hoye, Harry J. Bender, Joseph Campbell, Philip S. Obsolete tires were given to Charles W. Nine, 2; Virginia Kershner, 2; George W. Woods, Hutton, 2; Robert T. Hoffman, Oakland, 1; Adolphus F. George, Swanton, 1.

People Asked to Observe "Americanism Week"

The Junior Chamber of Commerce is asking the citizens of this area to observe an "Americanism Week" in the interest of developing a greater appreciation of the benefits of the American form of government. A proclamation to this effect has been made by Mayor L. M. Fraley and the time will be between the dates of Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays, February 12 and 22.

During this time citizens are urged to display their American flags and give consideration to the duties and privileges of a citizen and to renew his pledge of allegiance to the principles set forth in the Constitution of the United States of America.

TWO YOUTHS ARE CHARGED WITH ARMED ROBBERY

William Wilson, 19, and Harold Harvey, 14, Caught Tuesday After Hold-up and Theft Of Automobile

Capture of two youths charged with armed robbery was announced today by Neil C. Fraley, State's Attorney, ending a two-day search for the ones who "bummed" a ride with James B. Collins, of Cumberland, along the Deer-Park-Kitzmiller road on Monday evening, held him up with a sawed-off shotgun, robbed him of $7.00 and stole his automobile. Both confessed.

Fraley said the two who confessed were William Wilson, 19, an escaped convict from the West Virginia penitentiary; and Harold Harvey, 14, Kitzmiller. The arrest was made by Constable Roy Sowers, Kitzmiller, on Tuesday night. The car was recovered but was in a damaged condition as investigation revealed that the two had driven the machine quite a number of miles.

Escaped Convict

Wilson admitted having been sentenced to the Industrial School for Boys at Pruntytown, W. Va., by Judge Drane, of Keyser, in 1937, from which place he ran away a short time after, proceeding to Huntington. There he was arrested in 1939 on a stolen car charge and sentenced to from one to ten years in the State penitentiary at Moundsville. He was placed on a road gang in 1941, from which he escaped about five months ago, he told Fraley. Since that time he had gone to Kitzmiller, where he had been for several weeks. He told the State's Attorney that his father was Lawrence Wilson and his stepfather Alston DeCoste, of Kingwood, W. Va.

It was at Kitzmiller he met young Harvey, a son of James Harvey, and the two planned for such an event as took place Monday night. Young Harvey said he took his father's twelve-guage shotgun and sawed off part of the barrel, and then took off the wooden stock and burned it to make the weapon more easily carried. When arrested they had several shotgun shells, some with ordinary shot, and some with pumpkin balls, officials said. The gun was missing.

Details of the hold-up were re-enacted by those involved as the result of lengthy questioning yesterday in the State's Attorney office.

Thumbed Ride

The two thumbed a ride and were picked up near the Altamont Log church, enroute to Kitzmiller, by Collins, who is said to be a CIO labor organizer. At the top of the mountain, Harvey, in the back seat said, "This is it," and pointed the gun at Collins. At the intersection of the Swanton-Bloomington roads, they put Collins out of the car, took $7.00 of his money and moved away. Collins wandered to Swanton, informed Joe Lohr of the event and the latter brought him to Deer Park, where officers were notified.

The boys told of a trip to Westernport that night where the Pennsylvania license tags were thrown into the Potomac river and West Virginia tags obtained from a parked car there and substituted on the stolen Plymouth. Tuesday they told Fraley they drove to Kingwood and contemplated holding up a filling station there but did not carry through their plans.

When they returned to Kitzmiller Tuesday evening, Harvey's father, who had become suspicious of their actions, notified Constable Sowers, and arrest followed. Sheriff J. W. Owens, Corporal Thomas Currie and A. M. Spioch, of the State police, were informed and they brought them to the Oakland jail.

Wilson, during the entire examination, appeared unconcerned as to his fate, contemplating that he might get a life sentence, either in West Virginia or Maryland. Harvey said he guessed he could take his share of the blame. He told Fraley that he and his father "batched" in Kitzmiller, and that his mother lived in Sulphur City, near Elk Garden, W. Va. He has gone no farther than the 7th grade in school.

Credit Association Meets

At the 8th annual stockholders meeting of the Romney Production Credit Association, held in Romney on February 3, it was announced that during the year 214 loans amounting to $383,000 were made to farmers in eight counties in West Virginia and Allegany and Garrett counties, in Maryland.

A STIRRING THOUGHT

School teachers of the nation, preparing to register consumers for sugar rationing, must know how many pounds each consumer has already accumulated. Can they also find out how much a consumer wastes?

The most selfish hoarding housewife would hardly set out to accumulate a ton in the pantry; but it appears that average consumers in New York City daily throw away about three and a half tons by not adequately agitating spoons in cups. Such inadequate activity of the spoon leaves some sugar in the otherwise empty cup. Three and a half tons a day in New York City; 1,250 tons a year. For the United States all together, 25,000 tons of sugar. Two shiploads. A proverb pops up. What is worth doing is worth doing well.

A housewife might exclaim: "Now whoever thought of that!" and another ask: "How on earth do they know?" It appears that Dr. John L. Rice, City Health Commissioner of New York, thought of it; and "how they know" was come at by making a survey of 8,133 abandoned cups in 244 restaurants in four boroughs of that metropolis. Of these cups one out of every five contained undissolved sugar, 1,328 showing that the lazy spoon had left half a teaspoonful, 302 nearly a teaspoonful, and 92

Time To Get Riled

It's time to get up on our hind legs and object—when Eleanor Roosevelt decides to have the American people learn to do the Elenor Glide so we can dance out from under any bombs being dropped—and to the tune of giving the instructor and inventor of the Glide $4,600 a year from the public treasury.

When has the American morale gotten so low that it needs bolstering in such fashion?

Here is the set-up: County councils of civilian defense all over the country are working without remuneration with equipment purchased by themselves in many cases.

Citizens are ready to defend their country.

They are sending their sons to the front.

They agree with Congress and the President in passing without any dissent legislation that authorizes the spending of billions of dollars—but they want it spent for worthy purposes.

They want petty politics eliminated during wartime.

They want efficiency, authority delegated to those who are in important positions so as to eliminate red tape and mediation that delay prompt action.

They want this waste cut to the bone.

They want to rid the country of fifth columnists in Washington and elsewhere.

People are united for defense of this country and the defeat of Japan, Germany and Italy.

What Do We Get?

We find Congressmen voting themselves pensions.

Mrs. Roosevelt making $4,600 salary appointments like she was handing out invitations to dinner, and giving jobs to about everyone the Dies committee discovers has tendencies against the good of the government.

We find Washington full of parasites and Federal employes increasing at an enormous rate, while the defense effort although large, is not up to what it could be.

We find other boondoggling by high Government officials who are taking advantage of the loyalty of the people who back their Government.

We Need To Get Mad

Charles county members of the Civilian Defense Council sent a formal protest to the Maryland Congressmen and Governor O'Conor against employment of the dancer Mayris Chaney and Melvin Douglas, movie actor. They charged that the "employment of such persons at fancy salaries is definitely SABOTAGING the work of local organizations operated solely by volunteer effort." The council added that it was "tired of propaganda and promises about defense assistance and the patience of its workers is exhausted. They want to see some definite action."

Those engaged in such SABOTAGE are the real fifth columnists in this country, more dangerous than the Japanese on the west coast.

We've Got To Object

At first thought one feels like laying down on the job and saying, "If that's what is happening in this country what is the use of trying to be patriotic and help in the defense of our country?"

But that is what our enemies would want. The country is worth saving, in spite of the few hundred individuals in Washington who would destroy it. To give up now, we would be termed traitors, and certainly we will not do that.

Then the thing to do is to object—and do it loudly—to all the silly ideas and unnecessary spending sprees of people who have authority. Do your objecting individually and collectively if necessary. The National Farm Bureau, as a body, has started its investigation into some of the spending in the farm security organization, but it is only a start.

The newspapers gave heartening news over the week-end, telling of the flood of protests being received in Washington about the actions of the office of civilian defense. More protests are needed. If people become sufficiently aroused to let their Congressmen know how they feel, there is a chance to cure these defects. But if they are allowed to continue sillier things will be done.

Thus far many people have been of the opinon that they can't do anything about it—that they are too insignificant as an individual and too far from Washington for their opinion to have any influence.

It is this lack of action on the part of people that has made the politicians so bold and open to petty activities.

So make protests and make them loud and long. Tell them at a time when there is need for first aid supplies and defense equipment, that it is disgusting and discouraging to read about employment of esthetic dancers and an arts council by the Office of Civilian Defense.

Why employ White House entertainers and high salaried press agents when all along the Atlantic coast the people need supplies necessary to protect life and property, helmets for air-raid wardens, gas masks, bandages, medical supplies, fire-fighting equipment and automobile tires for men and women working night and day on defense projects?

It is the stupidity of many Government officials that has lowered the morale of the citizens, if there has been any reduction in morale. The sooner they act sensibly and like patriotic Americans the sooner will the morale thermometer go up. The American people don't need the Eleanor Glide—or Eleanor—to win this war. They want production of arms, munitions, tanks, planes, submarines for preparedness, and then they want action.

The American people don't need the appointment of a Negro friend of the first lady as a racial relations adviser at $4,600 per year. They don't need a consultant on community activities under her direction at $22.22 per day.

Again, I repeat, they don't need Eleanor or her proteges to win this war.

They need honest and conscientious people in Government, and they want action.

Let's give them action.

Let's get mad!

Making a Soldier of Sugar

As we have sent men abroad to fight for America—as we have sent money—as we have drafted steel, with other commodities, into fighting-service or enlisted wheat and other fighting-foods—so we must make a soldier of sugar.

Nutriment for the nations at war is as vital to the outcome as the powder that feeds the guns. A great nutrient in time of peace—in war a veritable sinew—sugar is now called upon to play a heroic part, to supply the peoples of our Allies—whose strength is ours.

To wrap up sugar in the American flag, so to speak, and put it into the fight becomes a duty of loyalty. It will be borne cheerfully by every industry, every dealer, and every individual it falls upon. Upon certain industries it falls heavily—and especially on the workers who derive their living from them. Yet the American civilian is in this war with the soldier. American business great and small, American capital from Wall Street to the remotest country bank, is with the Government every step of the way. The U. S. means Us. All of us, are in the fight with everything we have, instead of everything we cherish.

This company regards it a privilege to commend [illegible] particularly to refrain from [illegible] to reduce [illegible] end of conservation we pledge our efforts in every direction that opportunity may disclose, in manufacture as well as beyond the scope of our immediate interests; and in this effort generally we bespeak the co-operation of dealers and consumers everywhere.

THE COCA-COLA COMPANY
ATLANTA, GA.

WORLD WAR I
1917

The United States Government restricted the use of sugar in World War I. The response of The Coca-Cola Company was expressed in the newspaper advertisement reproduced at the left.

Again, Sugar enlists for Victory

WORLD WAR II
1942

History repeats itself in World War II. Sugar has been called to war again. Our government has restricted the use of sugar for all. Naturally, that includes Coca-Cola.

You'll continue to find Coca-Cola around the corner from anywhere, though we regret that you won't be able to enjoy the pause that refreshes as often as you might like. Our volume has been reduced. But this we pledge: the character of Coca-Cola will be unimpaired. The American people can continue to trust its quality.

As in 1917, we count upon the patience of dealers everywhere. Conserving sugar is another step toward Victory. Whatever any of us may have, or may not have, Victory we must have above all else!

AURORA-EGLON

The State of West Virginia has purchased 118½ acres of land lying between Aurora and Brookside, for development as a wayside park. Picnic grounds and recreation facilities will be provided on this tract which lies along Route 50.

Announcement was received here of the birth of a daughter, Wednesday, February 4, at their home near Gortner, to Mr. and Mrs. Hurley Miller. This is their second child. The mother was the former Miss Luretha Henline of this community. Mr. Miller is the father of five other children by a previous marriage.

The body of William M. Stratzman, of Mayview, Pa., was brought to Aurora Wednesday afternoon and burial was made in Carmel cemetery.

Short burial services were conducted last Friday afternoon at the home of his only child, Mrs. Frank Childs, for Edwin Leech, of Red Oak, whose body was almost completely consumed when his house burned to the ground last Wednesday night. Services were in charge of Rev. Daniel Spaid, of Eglon.

A surprise gathering occurred on Wednesday, February 4, at the home on Mountain Top, for Mrs. Cyrena Hardesty, who celebrated here seventy-sixth birthday anniversary. A covered dish dinner was served to approximately twenty guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Martin moved on Friday from Rock Inn to a farm near Red House, where Mr. Matrin will be a tenant.

Mrs. Lephia Gustafson, who is a guest of the Drs. Miller, Eglon, visited friends in Kingwood last Friday.

Mrs. Claude Wilhelm returned Monday to her home at Horse Shoe Run after having spent a few days with her niece, Mrs. Hurley Miller, near Gortner.

Paul Snyder, who is employed at the Eglon Machine Shop, was painfully injured about his face last week by an explosion when he attempted to weld a gasoline container which had been empty for a couple of weeks. He was treated by Dr. Miller, after which he was able to go to his home.

Guy Harvey is now a surgical patient in a Fairmont hospital.

Arlie Slabach, of the Gnegy church community, was taken to an Elkins hospital for treatment last Tuesday.

Roy Martin, of near Red House, who became suddenly ill Tuesday night when working in a coal mine at Kempton, was rushed to an Elkins hospital, where he remains a patient.

Roscoe Lantz, of near Aurora, who has been employed by Elza Bland until just recently, is now working in a coal mine at Pierce, W. Va.

Miss Esther Fike, a student nurse in a Baltimore hospital, came to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Fike, Eglon, on Wednesday. The Fike children plan a quiet commemorative gathering at the home on next Sunday, it being the birthday anniversary of their mother.

Miss Nina Spiggle, school teacher at Franklin, W. Va., spent the weekend at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Spiggle, Aurora.

Funeral services were held Friday, February 6, at Erwin, W. Va., for G. L. Flint, who died Tuesday morning of injuries suffered when he was struck by a car on Monday evening, a short distance from his home at Erwin. The body was taken to Cumberland for burial. Surviving relatives include the widow, Mrs. Lura Bly Flint, and two daughters, Mrs. Martha Martin, of Keyser, and little Patricia Lynn, at home.

A. W. Fike, farmer, has purchased a new tractor, which was delivered to him on Wednesday.

Officials of China and India held a conference at New Delhi, India, to plan downfall of Japanese. Both countries number between them 800,000,000 souls, one-third of the world's population.

FRIENDSVILLE

Church Activities

The W. S. C. S. held their monthly meeting in the Methodist church, Tuesday night. Mrs. L. L. Friend was in charge of the business session. Mrs. F. O. Speicher was in charge of the program, the topic of which was "Race Relations." Miss Helen Miller gave a talk and Mrs. Julia Skidmore directed the devotional service. At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served by Circle 3, with Mrs. Ralph Murphy, Mrs. Margaret Williams and Miss Helen Miller serving on the committee.

A brotherhood supper and program for the men of the four churches of the town was held Monday evening, February 9, at 7 o'clock in the Methodist church basement. All members of the Methodist church were invited to attend. An oyster supper was served by Circle 2-x, with Miss Nina Peck, leader, in charge.

West Virginia Cities May Get Overflow of Government Agencies

W. E. Reynolds, United States Commissioner of Public Buildings, Washington, and Jennings Randolph, West Virginia Congressman, stopped in Oakland last Saturday while enroute to the capitol, after making a survey of Martinsburg and Elkins for office space and housing facilities for possible movement of several hundred non-defense government workers from Washington to make way for defense agencies.

Working on the belief that it would take five years to win the war, Mr. Reynolds is trying to find space for government bureaus and workers to make way for the gigantic war effort. Twelve thousand people are already in the process of moving and 15,000 more are to be moved soon.

Congressman Randolph, who spoke last summer at Mt. Lake Park and who always attends the tennis tournament there, was one of the speakers at a meeting at Arthurdale, W. Va., on Friday night, along with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Randolph asserted that "American people must be prepared to stand the shock of other defeats other than the one at Pearl Harbor. We must be prepared to read long lists of casualties from the fighting fronts. We must recognize that our enemies are well equipped, resourceful, ruthless. The quicker we realize that the task is tremendous, the better it will be and the quicker will ultimate victory be won."

The two men were also accompanied by Harry J. Nichols, New York engineer; and J. L. McCuen, Washington business man. The former has designed a number of bombs.

Since the men said it was the policy to move agencies into towns that already had the proper facilities, it was pointed out that any such a move in this county was highly improbable.

Finzel-Long Stretch

Women offer their service at the Out-post 24-B, located on Big Savage mountain, Garrett county on Route 40. The matter of having women assist in this work has already been discussed by the men observers, but no definite action was taken at the recent meeting at the Legion Hall.

Fred W. Boettner, chief observer, stated there is little difficulty in securing men for the night shifts, but that it frequently requires hours of telephoning to secure enough male observers to serve during the day.

Miss Bertha Snyder, Frostburg, became the bride of Mr. Harold Klink, Finzel, son of Mrs. Nellie Klink. The groom is now employed at the Celanese Corporation.

Mrs. George Durst is recovering from an attack of influenza and tonsilitis.

Mrs. Olin Garlitz was visiting in this vicinity, Tuesday.

Miss Mary McMahon spent Tuesday in Frostburg with friends.

Mr. Allen Clark, Finzel, who is employed at Baltimore, spent the week-end with his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Orval Crowe spent Monday afternoon in Frostburg.

Johnny Michaels, Finzel, is able to be out again, after sickness.

Four persons were hurt in an accident at Red Hill. The accident occurred, State police said, when a car driven by Miss Bess Volk, LaVale, who is well known in this vicinity, and the other car, driven by Gilbert Warnick, Moscow, collided. Three Celanese workers, riding with Warnick, were treated in a hospital for injuries suffered in the collision. The injured persons were taken to the hospital by Edward Neat, Frostburg. Trooper Harry Harrison of the State Police said that no charges have been placed against the drivers of the cars.

Present efforts to conserve sugar remind us of the 1918 restaurant sign: "Please use less sugar and stir like thunder! We don't mind the noise."

10:45 a. m. Service of Worship, with good music by the choir under the direction of Mrs. F. A. Thayer, Jr. This being the Sunday preceding the beginning of the Lenten period, Rev. Sprague will bring an appropriate message designed to lead closer to Christ. His subject is, "The Hands Under the Wings."

6:00 p. m. The Youth Fellowship will hold a Teacup Hour, followed by a devotional meeting and discussion. All young people should avail themselves of this opportunity for fellowship and growth.

We welcome to our church and its services all who are seeking to worship and serve God.

RED HOUSE LUTHERAN PARISH
A. K. Jones, Pastor

Church services at both Gnegy and Red House next Sunday morning. The young people study the subject of Reverence for God at the evening meeting.

The Scripture lessons for next Sunday, Quinquagesima Sunday, remind us of Jesus' determination to go up to Jerusalem, regardless of the suffering He knew He must endure there. While on the way, He heard a blind beggar calling for help. The crowd tried to silence the poor fellow's pitiful cries, but Jesus could not pass him by without giving the man a chance to begin life all over again. How blind the disciples were! They saw only a beggar! Jesus saw an unfortunate child of God. How blind are we?

DIARY OF THE WAR

THURSDAY—Singapore was considered as good as gone with British short of air power, men, equipment and other necessary items. Japs demanded surrender of the place but British refused and continued to fight. Japs meanwhile were widening out their offensive and striking at points which would bring them nearer Java in the Dutch Indies. Dutch planes however, intercepted and turned back Jap bombers which sought to fly over Soerabaja. Admiral Hart was relieved of his command and a Dutch vice-admiral C. E. L. Helfrich advanced to chief of Allied naval forces in western Pacific. There was a lull in fighting on Philippines. Chinese troops were helping British in Burma, but Japs pushed across the Salween river. Japs were using U. S. goods sent to them for relief in a disastrous earthquake in 1935. Russians were pushing ahead but Nazi resistance was increasing. Another tanker was sunk off the New Jersey coast. U. S. sent troops to the Dutch West Indies off coast of Venezuela.

Sugar hoarders are to be required to use their supplies when rationing regulations are put into effect, before they will be permitted to buy any more.

GRANTSVILLE

The Women's Christian Service society of the State Line Methodist church met last Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Williams. The topic was "Race Relations."

Injured in Mine

Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Edwards and other relatives here received word that their nephew, William Broadwater, 26, Lonaconing, was seriously injured Friday night while at work in the Consolidation Coal Company's mine No. 17 at Lord, when he was caught in a fall of ceiling rock. He was taken to the Miners' hospital, Frostburg.

Promoted to Corporal

Mr. and Mrs. Matthew E. Martin, Sr., New Germany, have received word that their son, Matthew E. Martin, Jr., has been promoted to the rank of corporal. Young Martin joined the army last May 8, and is stationed at Pine Camp, N. Y. Before coming to New Germany, Corp. Martin was a resident of Gilmore and attended Central high school in Lonaconing.

Plan Bazaar for Church

Plans are under way for a bazaar, bake sale, and chili supper which is to be held in the Methodist church here February 19. The affair is being sponsored by the Women's Society of Christian Service of the local church and the proceeds will be added to the church improvement fund. Mrs. Harry C. Edwards, Mrs. George D. Edwards and Mrs. Olen H. Yoder are in charge of the arrangements.

Telephone Company Names New Head for Western District

Edward T. Beall has been appointed district commercial manager of the Western District of The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City with headquarters at Hagerstown, according to an announcement made by Harry S. Boyle, Jr., general commercial manager. He succeeds Silas M. Creech who has been transferred to the Washington Telephone Company as auditor of receipts. Garrett county will be part of his area.

Mr. Beall was born in Baltimore, March 16, 1908, and was graduated from Johns Hopkins University in 1929.

He entered the service of the Company in July, 1929 as a clerk in Washington. In 1937 he was appointed commercial supervisor-customer relations and in 1940 he was transferred to the Baltimore business office, where he has been manager.

Mr. Beall is married and they have one son, thirteen.

Mr. Creech served the Maryland Telephone Company in various supervisory capacities before his transfer to Washington and while in the Western District was active in civic affairs, being a member of the Chamber of Commerce in Cumberland, Hagerstown and Westminster and the Hagerstown Rotary Club.

County World War Veteran Dies In Chicago

Marshal R. Durst, 53 years old, a native of Avilton, Garrett county, and a World War veteran, died at his home in Chicago, Ill., last Monday afternoon, February 3, following an illness of more than a year.

Mr. Durst, who left the Avilton section about twenty-five years ago, was a son of Wesley and Sarah Layman Durst, and was born at Avilton on March 23, 1888. For a number of years he was employed as a buyer of meats at the University of Chicago. His death was attributed to an unusual ailment in which the nerves of the muscles gradually died.

Funeral services were conducted from the home place in Avilton on Friday afternoon, February 6, with the Rev. Virgil R. Gillum, pastor of the Grantsville Methodist charge, officiating. Interment was in Mt. Zion cemetery. A military burial was conducted by members of Frostburg Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Emma Durst, and the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Mary Steele, Lonaconing; Harry Durst, Johnstown, Pa.; Ira Durst, Chicago; Charles Durst, Avilton; Crisie, Sheridan, George and Norman Durst and Mrs. Wilfred Warne, all at home.

DIED

EDWIN LEECH

Funeral services were conducted last Friday for Edwin Leech, who died last Wednesday night, February 4, at his home near Red Oak, when he became trapped in his blazing home. Services were conducted from the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. F. Childs, by Rev. Daniel Spade. Interment was in the Fairview cemetery.

The deceased was born near Clearfield, Pa., December 8, 1855, and was aged 86 years, 1 month and 27 days. He was the last surviving member of a family of eleven children.

Surviving are his daughter, Mrs. Virgie Childs, of Red Oak; five grandchildren, Edwin J. Childs, Adena Ohio; William W. Childs, Akron, O.; Mrs. Flo Gnegy, Pleasant Valley, near Oakland; Mrs. Edna Harvey, Gormania, W. Va., and James Childs, Gormania; also 18 great grandchildren and 6 great great grandchildren.

JOSIAH WESLEY KILDOW

Josiah Wesley Kildow, 62, assistant postmaster at Friedens, Pa., died last Thursday afternoon, February 5, in Memorial hospital at Johnstown, Pa., where he had been a patient since January 11.

He was a son of William and Lydia C. Kildow and was born in Oakland. Surviving are his parents, who reside just south of the corporate limits, his widow, Mrs. Mary E. Kildow; a daughter, Mrs. Theodore Fore, Nashville, Tenn., and these brothers and sisters: Earl Kildow, Ravenna, O.; M. P. Kildow, Linden, N. J.; Hopwood C. Kildow, Coronada, Cal.; Mrs. Fred Mageary, Los Angeles, Cal.; Mrs. James Bennett, Cincinnati, O., and Mrs. George Street, Oakland.

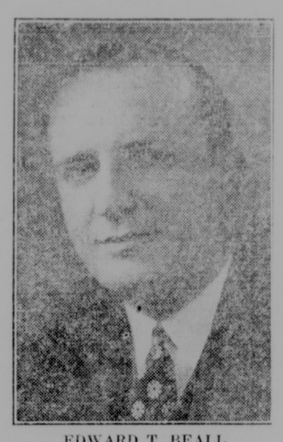
He was a veteran of the Spanish-American War and was a member of the Masonic lodge at Friedens.

Funeral services were conducted Monday afternoon at Friedens. The remains were brought to the Leighton Funeral Home Monday evening, and additional services held at the funeral home on Tuesday afternoon with Rev. Minor Sprague officiating, assisted by Rev. B. F. Radisill of DuBois, Pa.

Burial was in the Oakland cemetery.

MRS. MARTHA F. NINE

Mrs. Martha Fitzwater Nine, aged 82, widow of C. E. Nine, died at the home of her son, Herald Nine, in Akron, O., on Monday, February 9.



EDWARD T. BEALL

She was a daughter of the late Silas and Martha Fitzwater and was born in the North Glade section August 21, 1859. She was the last surviving member of a family of twelve children. Mr. Nine died about three years ago.

They moved to Morgantown from this area about twenty years ago and two years ago Mrs. Nine moved to Akron. She had been a member of the Methodist church since childhood.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Robert Pickering, Detroit; two sons, Albert Nine, Elkins, W. Va.; and Hershel Nine, Akron; also two granddaughters, Martha Lee and Imogene Pickering, Detroit.

The remains were brought to Oakland this morning and taken to the Bolden Funeral home from which place services are being conducted this afternoon at 2 o'clock with Rev. J. E. Johnson officiating. Interment will be in the Deer Park cemetery.

JAMES LAZEAR POLLOCK

James Lazear Pollock, retired clothing salesman and resident of Oakland for almost forty years, died at his home on Second street yesterday afternoon, February 11, about 4:15 o'clock. He had been in ill health for several years. The immediate cause of his death was uremic poisoning.

Mr. Pollock was a son of the late Thomas and Ann Pollock and was born in Jefferson, Pa., February 21, 1861. Had he lived 10 more days he would have reached the age of 81 years. At the age of ten he moved to Philadelphia, where he resided until 1904 when he came to Oakland.

He was a member of St. Matthew's Episcopal church and had been a senior warden in the church for the past twenty years. He was also a member of Oakland Lodge No. 192, A., F. and A. M.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Hattie Bartlett Pollock, two sons, Edward Pollock, of Philadelphia; and James Pollock, of Oakland; also seven grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock from St. Matthew's church with Rev. D. C. Trimble, of Baltimore, former rector here, officiating, assisted by Rev. A. D. Jones. Interment will be in the Episcopal cemetery.

CHARLES A. BENDER

Charles Augustus Bender, 69, well known resident of Grantsville, died at 1 o'clock Tuesday morning, February 10, at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. T. O. Broadwater. He had been in failing health for eleven years.

A son of John and Elizabeth Otto Bender, he was born March 8, 1873. His mother was a native of Germany. Until he became ill Mr. Bender was recognized as an active and successful citizen. He conducted a general store in the Springs community for a time. On April 18, 1897 he married Miss Emma Yutzy and moved to Grantsville, where he opened a general merchandise store. This was destroyed by fire about a year later and Mr. and Mrs. Bender took over the management of Casselman hotel which business he conducted for several years. Disposing of the hotel he again entered the mercantile business in partnership with his brother, the late J. J. Bender. He later withdrew to purchase the National hotel which he operated for a number of years. He also operated hotels at Salisbury and Meyersdale for a brief period.

Mr. Bender was also interested in the coal operations of this section. He operated the Meyers Coal company and later disposed of a half interest to Joel A. Beachy, but retained his remaining interest until his death. Mr. Bender served as a director of the former First National Bank at Grantsville and was a charter member of Camp No. 41, Woodmen of the World. He was a member of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church at Grantsville.

Surviving are his widow, two daughters, Mrs. T. O. Broadwater and Mrs. J. B. Gnagey, one son Charles O. Bender, all of Grantsville; also four brothers, Fred Bender, John Bender, Springs; C. E. Bender, Columbiana, O., and Daniel H. Bender, Albany, Ore.; and nine grandchildren.

Funeral services are being conducted from the church this afternoon.

Areas Set Aside For Fly Fishing

Parts Of Cherry Creek And Savage River "Fisherman's Paradise"

Fishing regulations in non-tidal waters as adopted by the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission in January, have been announced by E. Lee LeCompte, State Game Warden. These restrictions are in addition to laws enacted by the General Assembly.

The commission has set aside in the State several areas known as "Fisherman's Paradise." These areas have been set aside at the request of sportsmen and others for the purpose of setting an example for those who have not yet qualified as expert fly fishermen.

Two places were named in Garrett county. Cherry Creek, beginning at a point about 300 feet below the dam to the mouth where it empties into Deep Creek Lake, and the Savage River, beginning at the new dam to the mouth where it empties into the Potomac River.

The open season on these areas is April 15 to July 15. Fishing will be permitted only between 5:30 a. m., and 8 p. m., and it will be unlawful to take fish by any means except by the use of artificial flies. Spinners will be prohibited. The creel limit is five trout per day. The fish must be at least seven inches in length.

Monroe Run, from its source to where it forms a junction with the Savage River, and the North Branch of Bear Creek, better known as Little Bear Creek, from its source to where it empties into Bear Creek, are closed to all fishing for a period of two years or until the open season for trout in 1943. This action is for the purpose of experimenting and using these streams as estuaries for brook trout.

READING the day's war news, like reading Western thrillers, is a part of every boy's life. But make sure he's reading under good light! The hide of a Hun is hardly worth the danger of eyestrain that comes from reading . . . and studying . . . under poor light.

In every American household necessary interest in the war may tend to shift attention and interest away from other things with which we are more familiar. But don't forget that good light is a daily necessity! America and her allies will win the war ONLY if every man, woman, and child stays in tip-top condition. And to do that, keen eyesight is of prime importance. A very small sum will safeguard your family's eyesight through these difficult times.

MARRIED

DRUMM — WISSEMAN — Miss Helen Virginia Wisseman, daughter of C. C. Wisseman, Grantsville, became the bride of Francis Walter Drumm, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Drumm, of Cumberland, on Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock in the rectory of St. Patrick's Catholic church. Rev. Thomas A. Hardesty officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph B. Doak were the attendants.

The bride was attired in a teal blue velvet costume with brown accessories and wore a shoulder corsage of gardenias. The matron of honor wore a black velvet gown and a corsage of pink rose buds.

The bride is a graduate of Grantsville high school, class of 1935, and is employed by the First Federal Savings and Loan Association, Cumberland. The bridegroom is a graduate of LaSalle high school, class of 1934, and is employed by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad as a Diesel supervisor.

A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the groom's parents to members of the wedding party and a few members of the immediate families.

MASON-GROVE — Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Beatrice Catherine Grove, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex W. Grove, to Osbourne Mason, son of C. C. Mason, both of Friendsville. The ring ceremony was performed by Rev. L. A. Wagner, in the Lutheran parsonage, February 4.

The bride was attired in a cadet blue street length dress with royal blue accessories. Mrs. Mason was graduated from Friendsville high school with the class of 1940.

The bridegroom is employed by the Celanese Corporation of America, Cumberland. The bride will reside with her parents for the present.

Lohr, Accident community progessive farmer, will retire from agricultural pursuits at an early date because of the invalidism of Mrs. Lohr, who has been confined to her room for a number of months as the result of a stroke of paralysis. By advertisement in The Republican today Mr. Lohr gives notice that he will offer for sale at public auction on Saturday, February 21, all his personal property, consisting of a number of cows, farm implements and other equipment. The sale will occur at his farm, beginning at 12 o'clock noon.

Weather Is Varied

Weather of the past week has been varied but there has been enough snow and cold to convince one that there can still be a lot of winter. Thermometers on two nights dropped to around zero with moderate temperatures in the day.

Several inches of snow fell Saturday night and slowed up traffic for several hours. Highways at present are slippery and dangerous as the result of a thaw followed by a freeze and then more snow. Snowing continues today with temperature around 20 degrees.

Postoffice Warns Against Chain Letters

In order that the attention of the public be called to the illegal character of the endless chain schemes soliciting Defense Savings Stamps the Post Office Department has asked for publicity of the following notice:

"The mails in all parts of the country are still being flooded with letters relating to so-called endless chain schemes soliciting defense savings stamps.

"Patrons should be warned that the sending of such matter through the mails is a violation of the postal fraud and lottery statutes. Notices are served upon persons participating in such schemes whose names come to the attention of the Post Office Department requiring them to show cause why fraud orders should not be issued against them. Such orders forbid the delivery of any mail to the persons named therein."

Registrants Will Be Asked Nine Questions

Males Between 20 and 45 Years Required to "Sign Up" February 14, 15 and 16

Only nine simple questions will be asked those men who register on February 14, 15 and 16 for possible military service under the provisions of the Selective Service Act, Lt. Col. H. C. Stanwood, State Director of Selective Service for Maryland has emphasized.

Registration of the individual should require a comparatively short time, the director said, pointing out that the registrant will not be asked to fill out questionnaires but must only answer interrogations about his identity, his place of residence and his mailing address. Also he will be required to list his telephone, if any; his age in years and date of birth, place of birth, the name and address of the person who will always know his address, his employer's name and address, and his place of employment or business.

Time To Respond

While it is important that registration be conducted as speedily as possible, Colonel Stanwood said that every registrant will be given ample time to respond properly to the questions on the registration card, which on this occasion will be green. White and melon cards, respectively, were used for the first and second Selective Service registrations.

No questionnaires will be given registrants when they register February 14, 15 and 16, nor will they then be required to undergo any physical examination, Colonel Stanwood emphasized.

Questionnaires are given to registrants after their order numbers have been determined and reached by their local boards. Physical examinations are given only after the boards have passed on the general qualifications of registrants and have determined that they should not be deferred for reasons of interest to the nation.

Those required to register are all men, not previously registered, between the ages of twenty and forty-five, men who reached the age of twenty before January 1, 1942, and men who have not reached the age of forty-five on February 16.

Stenographers Being Sought by Government

The Manager of the Fourth United States Civil Service District announced today that there is a critical shortage of stenographers and indicated that hundreds must be recruited at once for duty in the Government departments in Washington. All who are qualified are urged to apply immediately to the local civil service secretary at the post office in Oakland, for full information.

To expedite the filling of existing vacancies, the speed of dictation in the civil service examination for junior stenographer has been reduced from 96 to 80 words per minute, and the local civil service secretary has been authorized to accept applications, examine competitors, and forward the papers to Washington for immediate grading. Those who qualify will be offered immediate employment in Washington at an entrance salary of $1440 per annum. Applications cannot be accepted from persons under 18 years of age or from persons who are not American citizens.

Notifiable Diseases In County Totaled 202 In 1941

An itemized report of the cases of notifiable diseases in Maryland during 1941, released by the State Health department, shows a total of 202 for Garrett county, out of the state total of 59,441.

They were divided as follows: typhoid fever, 1; measles, 17; scarlet fever, 42; chicken pox, 26; German measles, 3; whooping cough, 4; mumps, 2; diphtheria, 1; septic sore throat and tonsilitis, 10; Vincent's angina, 1; influenza, 9; dysentery, 1; diarrhea and cholera infantum, 9; poliomyelitis, 1; meningitis, 2; tuberculosis, 17; syphilis, 14; gonorrhea, 15; pneumonia, 2; bronchopneumonia, 13; lobar pneumonia, 12.

Deaths were caused by some of these diseases, as follows: whooping cough, 1; syphilis, 1; influenza and pneumonia, 17; tuberculosis, 8.

Half of Maryland Delegates To Congress Favor Reduction

Half of Maryland's delegation to Congress is backing Senator Byrd in his efforts to save the nation up to two billion dollars by curtailing non-essential Federal spending, according to a report from the Maryland Public Expenditure Council.

Senators Tydings and Radcliffe and Congressmen Wade and Cole have notified their constituents that they are in favor of reducing non-defense expenditures. There remain four Congress members to be heard from: Mrs. Katherine E. Byron of the 6th district; Lansdale G. Sasscer, 5th district; and John A. Meyer, 4th district, Thomas D'Alexandro, Jr., 3rd trict.

Officials Discuss Water Supply And Equipment Problems

Plans for a sort of "lease-lend" arrangement among water supply systems in the western Maryland area were discussed at a meeting in Cumberland last Thursday, several officials conferring with William J. Edwards, water coordinator and George L. Hall, chief engineer of the state department of health.

Under the arrangement water departments of various communities in Allegany and Garrett counties will be enabled to borrow equipment and supplies from each other for emergency use with the understanding that they will be replaced.

Inventories of supplies and equipment have been received from Westernport, Oakland, Barton, Barrellville, Mt. Savage, Lonaconing and the Cumberland Suburban Water Company as well as from Cumberland.

This information will make it possible for a water system in need of certain equipment to learn quickly where it may be obtained.

Red Cross Work Continues

Women all over the county continue to work faithfully for the American Red Cross. Friendsville women have completed 100 bed shirts and 20 operating gowns. The Mt. Lake quota of 74 boys' shirts has been completed. Mrs. Harry McRobie, of near town, has finished 100 pair of boys' pants. Mrs. Harry Durst has finished 12 dresses and has taken 12 more to make.

Working at headquarters this week were Mrs. Harry Friend, Mrs. Gordon Miller, Mrs. Harry White, Mrs. Irvin Rudy, Mrs. Prema Brown, Mrs. Frank Casteel, Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Elizabeth Schoch, Mrs. Harry Stemple, Mrs. O. T. Graser, Mrs. F. E. Rathbun, Mrs. William Grant, Mrs. Walter Dawson, Mrs. E. I. Baumgartner and Mrs. Hugh Teets.

Accident Women Busy In Red Cross War Work

Mrs. Edwin H. Georg, in charge of the making of Red Cross garments in the Accident community, reports the completion of one hundred nineteen children's woolen dresses from material supplied by the Red Cross. The cutting of the material was done by Mrs. John Kahl and Mrs. Edwin H. Georg. Sewing of the garments, and the number of dresses completed was done by women volunteers of the community as follows:

Mrs. D. A. King, 40; Mrs. Claude Fike, 8; Mrs. Walter Fratz, 7; Mrs. P. J. Kahl and Mrs. Harvey Harmon, 6; Mrs. Luther Keller, 4; Mrs. Howard Schlossnagle, Miss Gertrude Richter, Mrs. Elmer Kolb, Mrs. Otto Gochringer, Mrs. R. C. Turney, Mrs. Charles Rexrode, Mrs. Harold Kahl, Mrs. Luther Bowser, Mrs. B. O. Aiken, Miss Rose Miller, Mrs. William Miller, Mrs. Earl Alexander, Mrs. John Shumaker, Mrs. William Fratz, Mrs. C. C. Gochringer, Mrs. Frank Spoerlein, and Mrs. Earl Ault.

Qualifications Listed For State Forester Job

Maryland's second State Forester must be a man who has had "recent successful, technical and administrative experience in forestry work in positions of progressive responsibility."

That is the specifications for applicants to replace F. W. Besley, State Forester, issued by Harry C. Jones, State Employment Commissioner.

Besley has resigned his position because of the age-limit restriction on a position of this character.

Applicants also must have the equivalent of a college education and a degree equal to that of Bachelor of Foretry. They must know State forestry laws, be familiar with Maryland shade trees and forest conditions, be technically skilled, have administrative and executive ability and have "ability to address the public."

50-M.-P. Men. . . . . .

Herbert Casson, the efficiency expert of London, England, points out that electric motor manufacturers use the initials H. P. on motor nameplates to abbreviate the word Horsepower that precedes the horsepower ratings of motors, and he believes we should use the initials M. P. to denote the Manpower rating of a Man.

"To penetrate through the difficulties of today," writes Casson, "we need men who are like projectiles . . . irresistible, unbeatable men.

"We need men who are diamond-hard—men who are harder than whatever attempts to obstruct them."

American industry today needs a great army of 50-M.-P. men; men who have stepped-up their Manpower to do a man-sized job. The time is here when brains and muscles and machines must be speeded-up to new levels of efficiency.

To hurl us on to victory in the battle of production and to enable us to defend and preserve democracy, we need more 50-Manpower Men!

Ski Meet Depends on Snow This Week-end

Second Annual Southern Championship Tourney Planned for Saturday and Sunday—If It Snows

Providing there is enough snow, the second annual Southern Ski Championship tournament will be held at New Germany Saturday and Sunday, February 21 and 22.

The meet, sponsored by the Western Maryland Ski club, is expected to draw more than 100 entrants from the area. About the same number participated last year and more than 1,000 were on hand to witness the winter sports event.

Farmers are preparing for the influx of visitors and have planned meals of buckwheat cakes and sausage and Garrett county maple syrup.

The 1941 tournament won nation-wide publicity for the area, with the nationally-circulated "Ski Annual" publishing a highly favorable report on the South's only ski meet.

The downhill race for experts, to be run Saturday on the steep Whiskey Holly Trail, is expected to be one of the highlights of the meet. This 3,300-foot run has been described as one of the finest of its kind in the east.

Sunday's events are to include a slalom race for men novices, another for women novices and a 10-mile cross country race, open to all skiers. The slalom events will be run on the Otto slope and the cross-country race will begin and end at the same place.

Contestants are expected from Baltimore, Washington, Frederick, Hagerstown, Annapolis and other more distant points as well as the tri-state area.

That is, if it snows.

About 200 skiers were on hand last week-end, making the most of the snow while it lasted, but it was rapidly disappearing then, and there have been heavy rains since then.

Fifteen Persons Get Car Tires This Week

Twenty-one Tires and 17 Tubes Are Distributed Feb. 12 to 19

Purchase of obsolete tires is taking a jump this week, with certificates being issued for 11 of them, and 8 tubes. The chairman of the tire rationing committee, Walter W. Dawson, also announced that certificates had been issued for 8 truck tires, 7 tubes, and two passenger tires and tubes. Fifteen persons were issued certificates for 21 tires and 17 tubes.

Those being granted the right to purchase include the following:

Trucks—Blaine Frazee, Friendsville, 2 tires and tubes; Clarence Frazee, Friendsville, 1 tire and tube; Joshua H. Turner, Avilton, 2 tires and 1 tube; John Hersker, Grantsville, 2 tires; Huston Friend, Friendsville, 1 tire and tube; James A. Cover, Friendsville, and Arnold Friend, Deer Park, 1 tube each.

Obsolete cars—Emmitt Wilt, Kitzmiller, 2 tires; Howard Biggs, Gormania, 1 tire and tube; Oscar Simpson, Deer Park, 1 tire; Noah Hershberger, Grantsville, 2 tires and tubes; William R. Browning, Oakland, 2 tires and tubes; Elmer D. Schrock, Grantsville, 1 tire and 2 tubes; Ray Lytle, Friendsville, 2 tires and 1 tube.

When the rationing of retreading goes into effect, the county board will be able to ration 17 retread truck tires, but no passenger cars will get retreads until the middle of April.

Red Cross Benefit

The Radio Varieties from the Fairmont radio station, will come to Oakland under the sponsorship of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, on Thursday night, February 26, for a benefit performance.

Proceeds will be given over to the Red Cross war relief fund. The entertainment will be presented in the Oakland High school auditorium.

Supreme Court Hears Argument on Right To Abandon Railroad

Appeal Taken on Order of ICC Which Would Permit Abandoning Railroad at Friendsville

The Supreme Court in Washington last Thursday had under advisement an appeal from an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission which opponents of the order allege, "will create a community of ghost towns in Garrett county."

The ICC order would permit the Confluence and Oakland Railroad company and the Baltimore and Ohio railroad to abandon twenty miles of road serving Friendsville and surrounding communities.

The Federal Government wishes this particular trackage abandoned to permit the erection of a dam for flood control purposes.

Urges Relocation of Rails

An argument that the railroads should be obliged in the interest of the public to relocate the twenty miles of rails and continue to service Friendsville was presented by Jo-Company, which operates the coal Public Service Commission.

Representing the McCullough Coal Company which operates the coal mine on which Friendsville and the surrounding communities are dependent for a livelihood, was Clarence W. Miles.

If the railroad into Friendsville and the mine is abandoned, Mr. Sherbow asserted in his argument before the court, Friendsville and the other small communities dependent thereon will become "ghost towns."

Gun Used by Armed Robbers Discovered

Youngest of Two Being Held Leads Officers to Place Where It Was Thrown By Them

Harold Harvey, fourteen-year-old youth, who is one of two being held in the county jail on a charge of armed robbery, this week led county officers to where they had thrown the sawed-off shotgun, a short time before they were arrested at Kitzmiller, Tuesday night.

The gun was in the woods, only a short distance from where the automobile was recovered. Neil C. Fraley described the gun as a dangerous weapon and added that "it was loaded too."

He expressed the belief that had they pulled the trigger the night they are alleged to have held up James B. Collins, on the Deer Park-Kitzmiller road, that the resulting explosion would have injured everyone present. The barrel had been sawed short and the wooden part of the stock had been taken off and burned, leaving only a small strip of metal as a handle.

William Wilson, 19, the other one being held on the same charge, is being detained in solitary confinement. Wilson is an escaped convict from the West Virginia penitentiary, according to his confession last week.

Both are being held for action of the grand jury which meets next month.

Must File for City Office By Thursday

Candidates for positions as Mayor, councilmen or treasurer, must file their petition in the council chamber by next Thursday, or their names will not be placed on the ballot, it was announced this morning.

A law passed several years ago provides that candidates must file 10 days prior to election, to be eligible for balloting.

Thus far not a single person has filed.

Jacqueline Sue Browning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cheston H. Browning, Jr., returned to her home this week after spending several days with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Markwood, at Terra Alta, W. Va.

HARPOLD TALKS TO CLUB ON VOCATIONAL TRAINING

Business and Professional Women Hear of Activities in National Defense Classes

An informative talk by Eugene Harpold, county coordinator of vocational training for national defense, on the activities being conducted along that line throughout the county, was the main feature of the program of the Business and Professional Women's club at its dinner meeting at the William-James hotel last Thursday evening.

Mr. Harpold pointed out in the beginning that his remarks had to do with the training of workers for industries and activities directly connected with production of items needed for the successful completion of the war effort.

The program is considered a supplement to the present public school system and reaches many more youth of high school age and older.

Mr. Harpold was appointed county coordinator by F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent; and H. M. James, state director, on March 11, 1941. He gave the following facts:

By the last of March classes were organized in Oakland, Kitzmiller and Swallow Falls CCC camp. Classes are approved by Mr. Rathbun and Mr. James. The kind of class, amount and kind of equipment, the teacher, the building, etc., must meet certain requirements as set up by the office of Production Management.

To date there have been classes in acetylene welding, electric welding, automobile mechanics, sheet metal, carpentry, cabinet making, and farm machinery repair. The latter course was not on the approved list until January 1, 1942, and since that time four such courses have been started in the county.

Since the National Defense training program was organized in the county there have been enrolled about 600 students, between the ages of 16 and 55, with the much greater number between 23 and 35.

On January 31 there were 188 students on the roll with as many as 25 on the waiting list for certain classes. The Oakland center, being the largest and best equipped in the county, has about 50 percent of the total enrollment. Classes meet at the Helbig property six nights a week from 6:30 to 11:30, and all day, three days a week. Classes are organized to operate for 200 hours.

The only restrictions or limitations on any student is that he be regular in attendance and make satisfactory progress. Mr. Harpold said it had never been necessary to remove a student from class because of lack of interest. The cost of training is absolutely free except for expense of getting to and from the place of training.

At present there are fourteen teachers employed for defense classes. They are employed by the County Board of Education and are paid from Federal funds. The cost of the courses to the government varies but the average is about $60.00 for a 20-hour week for twenty students. These costs do not include about $2,000 in equipment which has been supplied by the Federal government, nor the $1,000 supplied by the County Commissioners. The latter is used for rent, repair, and alteration of buildings.

Pledge Money for Planes

The women of Maryland, through the Women's Council of Defense, have set a goal to reach in the sale of defense stamps and bonds during the month of February in an amount sufficient to cover the cost of three fighting pursuit planes. The matter was presented to the club and those present pledged themselves for the sale of about $2,000, most of which would be taken care of by individual purchase by members. An effort will be made by the members to further increase the total before the close of the month.

Mrs. Merne Kloss had charge of the club program.

O. H. S. Dramatic Club to Present Three One-Act Plays

The Oakland High School Dramatic club is planning to present three one-act plays in the school auditorium, on Thursday evening, March 5.

These plays are under the direction of Miss Dorothea Fridinger, and are entitled "Who Gets the Car?" "Elmer," and "The Red Lamp."

The cast of characters will be announced next week.

Mrs. Edward H. Glade and son, Washington, D. C., and Harry Stemple, Jr., Baltimore, are guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Stemple. The latter will return to Baltimore today, but Mrs. Glade and son will remain here for several days.

Lloyd Cook Appointed Garrett Game Warden

Lloyd Cook, of Mt. Lake Park, has been appointed district deputy game warden for Garrett county to succeed George Shields, now in the armed forces, it was revealed by Regional Game Warden Joseph A. Minke.

Minke said that Cook's appointment, made by State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte with the advice and consent of the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission, would become effective March 1.

Cook, who was recommended for the post by the Allegany County Advisory Council to the game commission, has been a part-time warden for some time.

Expect Agreement on Tree Cutting at Park

Arrangement Will Be Made That Will Be Fair to All Concerned, H. D. Lollar Says

The lull in the tree cutting on the property of the Defenders of the Faith at Mt. Lake Park continues, and H. D. Lollar, manager of the Oakland Timber Corporation, said today that an agreement would be reached that would be fair to all concerned.

The agreement, however, he added, would be between himself and the Defenders of the Faith but he would not make any promises as to whether or not any more trees would be cut.

C. A. Maddy, representative of the Defenders of the Faith, was here for conferences with Mayor C. Oscar Hall and Council of the Park, and also with his local representative, W. O. Bitzer, of the Park, and Mr. Lollar.

"Mr. Maddy saw that my contracts were valid and Mr. Bitzer still remains, under those contracts and by correspondence with the Defenders, as the local representative," Mr. Lollar said.

Lollar added that after Mr. Maddy had seen the contracts and options at a conference between the two of them, he failed to make any comment to the people of city council of Mt. Lake Park, and what was said between them is not for publication but will be released when they both felt it should be released. "The trees are not for sale at any price as there is a moral issue now involved in this controversy."

Continuing he said, "Mr. Maddy and I thought we had reached a solution but owing to over zealous efforts on the part of some persons it was impossible to even consider them in coming to an agreement about the trees. It is an impossibility to make any agreement with Dr. Hall, and furthermore most of the statements made to the public about this tree situation have not been facts."

Mr. Lollar said he felt as if the people of Mt. Lake Park should know the true facts about the tree cutting as a whole and also that the Defenders of the Faith would try to permit the trees to stand. He added that there was never any intention originally to cut down any trees in the area around the amphitheatre, auditorium, or in the midst of the Park where it would affect the beauty of the place.

Rotary Club to Observe Anniversary of Founding

The Oakland Rotary club will observe the 37th anniversary of the founding of Rotary, at its regular meeting in the William-James hotel tomorrow evening. E. Ray Jones will be the principal speaker, his topic being "Youth in wartime and peacetime."

The first Rotary club was formed in Chicago, February 23, 1905, by Paul P. Harris, a young lawyer. Since then the idea has been accepted by men of practically all nationalities and today there are more than 5,000 Rotary clubs in 70 geographical regions throughout the world, with a membership in excess of 212,000.

The original purpose was the development of fellowship and understanding among business and professional men, but soon was broadened to become a factor for the promotion of community betterment endeavors.

Farmers Receiving Checks

More checks for farmers participating in the triple-A program of the agricultural adjustment administration, were received at the office of John H. Carter, county agent, this week, bringing the total number thus far to 996, and the amount received to $36,015.28.

Those eligible to receive the checks are being or already have been notified, it was stated. About 200 checks amounting to about $4,000 are still to be received and distributed to complete the 1941 participation.

PARDON IS RECOMMENDED FOR DR. CLIFT P. BERGER

Parole Commissioner Says Testimony of Many Tend to Throw Doubt on Credibility of Witnesses

A pardon for Dr. Clift P. Berger, Oakland physician convicted of perverted sexual practice by the Garrett County Circuit Court in 1940 was recommended last Friday, February 13, to Governor O'Conor by State Parole Director Herman M. Moser.

Moser, in his report to O'Conor, said the parole department conducted a sweeping investigation into Dr. Berger's case which brought expressions from "a great number of responsible persons tending to raise a doubt as to whether the man committed the offenses as charged."

Dr. Berger, accused of four offenses and acquitted of three, was fined $500 and sentenced to the House of Correction for six months. Protesting he was innocent he refused to pay the fine and later this part of the sentence was remitted.

"Dr. Berger's excellent record until the time of his arrest, expressions of competent medical authorities and the testimony of a large number of people interviewed," Moser declared, "all tend to throw increasing doubt on the credibility of the witnesses."

"Moreover," he continued, "Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan and Associate Judge William A. Huster, who heard the case at Oakland, and who read our investigation report, have stated they have no objection to the granting of a pardon."

Dr. Berger's medical license was revoked following his conviction, but Moser said a recommendation for its restoration would be made by the Garrett county judges if the pardon is granted.

Meeting Is Called To Discuss Program For Victory Gardens

Extension Service Sponsoring Gathering In Lutheran Church Basement Next Friday, Feb. 27

The Extension service has arranged a meeting next Friday, February 27, to bring to all organizations and individuals of the county the national garden victory program which has been advocated throughout the nation to increase the growing of food this year for home needs.

This meeting is for all, but is especially designed for leaders and members of organizations so that the information received in the explanation of the program can be carried back to the various communities.

"We recognize the tremendous responsibility that everyone has in this war effort," said John H. Carter, county agent, so we are making this information about the national program available to anyone who wants it.

Special topics are to be discussed. W. R. Ballard, horticulturist, will speak on the general garden plan in cultural practices. A. V. Veirhiller will discuss fruits, apples, peaches, pears, etc., as well as the smaller fruits such as raspberries, strawberries, etc.

H. A. Hunter, canning specialist, will discuss general disease control. Mrs. Mildred Barton Hoffman, home demonstration agent, will talk on home grown foods in relation to health and the preservation of foods. John H. Carter, county agent, will speak about the garden soil and its conservation. Dr. D. Graham, entymologist, will speak on insect control.

Participating in the day's program also will be Mrs. R. F. Canan, president of the county council of homemakers' clubs; William Winterberg, president of the farm bureau; and Dorsey Guard, chairman of the county war board.

The meeting will open promptly at 10 o'clock in the basement of the Lutheran church and will close at 3:30 o'clock.

Union Mid-Week Lenten Service Well Attended

The second in the series of union mid-week Lenten services will be held next Wednesday evening in the Lutheran church, with Rev. Arthur D. Jones, rector of the Episcopal church, delivering the sermon.

The opening service last night was well attended, the Episcopal church being filled to capacity to hear Rev. Minor Sprague, Methodist minister speak on the greatness of Jesus. The service next Wednesday will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

To Limit Use of Natural Gas In Seventeen States

The Government clamped down an embargo against further installations of gas stoves, gas furnaces and gas waterheaters in homes, stores and factories in sections of Maryland and sixteen other States where the gas supply is wholly or in part natural gas.

The embargo is effective March 1 and was ordered by the War Production Board. It is aimed at a "curtailment in the consumption of natural gas and mixed natural and manufactured gas." The action was taken to assure adequate supplies of gas for war production.

A consumer now using gas to cook or heat water is not restricted in such uses but he may not install a gas-heating system in his home, store or factory, or convert heating equipment now using other fuel to gas.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS NAME ROADS ENGINEER

Alvin H. Wilson, Who Held Position Temporarily, to Return To Cumberland on March 1st

Appointment of Walter L. Hull, of Cumberland, as county roads engineer, was announced this week by County Commissioners Paul M. Friend and Cheston H. Browning.

Mr. Hull will assume his duties next Monday, February 23, it was stated, and will fill the position temporarily occupied by Alvin H. Wilson. Mr. Wilson was made acting roads engineer when Robert W. Sheckells resigned the position, and has spent the past several months in setting up the organization and getting road work under way.

Mr. Wilson expects to leave Oakland about March 1 and will return to Cumberland, where he is a member of the Potomac Engineering and Construction Company.

Mr. Hull has been in the employ of the State Roads Commission as construction inspector for twelve years and has been highly recommended. As roads engineer he will have charge of over 1,050 miles of road.

There are about 1,200 miles of roads in Garrett county, and 730 miles of these roads were included in the county road system and were operated by the state until the maintenance was given back to county management as the result of legislation at Annapolis. This still leaves about 300 miles of roads that the county must look after in addition to the 730, the 300 miles of roads being those which the State never accepted into its system. The State road mileage in the county totals over 125 miles.

Pythian Anniversary Planned for Friday

Ten Members to Receive Long-Time Service Awards—Other Features Listed

The Knights of Pythias will observe their 53rd anniversary of the founding of Garrett Lodge, and the 78th anniversary of the founding of the national organization, with a celebration at Castle Hall on Friday evening, February 20, at 8 o'clock.

Walter Dawson, program chairman, will also act as toastmaster. He announced this morning that all preparations were complete and that a program of specialty numbers, quartet and solo numbers, special movies, presentation of veteran jewels and special group singing would be featured.

All members, their wives or friends are invited to attend. Refreshments will be served as a climax to the entertainment.

Ten members of the lodge will receive long-time service pins. Joseph E. Harned will receive a 50-year award and nine will receive twenty-five year awards: J. H. Loar, F. C. Stahl, G. J. Alstetter, E. R. Jones, Walter Hardesty, W. O. Droege, J. L. Fitzwater, John W. Ream and Charles A. Fleegle.

Warm Weather Ends

The spring-like weather of the past few days was ended suddenly last night as a blizzard struck this area, leaving two or three inches of snow and lowering the temperature to 2 below zero this morning. The snow drifted considerably but did not hamper traffic to any extent. Highways, however, were slippery and dangerous to travel.

1,150 MEN ARE REGISTERED IN 3RD DRAFT CALL

Total of Nine Million Registered Throughout Nation—Seventeen Million Registered Previously

One thousand one hundred fifty men between the ages of twenty and forty-four years registered in the third selective service registration conducted throughout Garrett county by principals and teachers on Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

The largest number of registrants, a total of 291, was reported by F. D. Bittle, principal of Oakland high school, while 124 were registered at Grantsville, according to Frank J. Getty, principal there.

Oakland	291
Grantsville	124
Friendsville	82
Accident	72
Kitzmiller	65
Swanton	50
Kempton	57
Bloomington	45
Avilton	13
Gorman	24
Deer Park	49
Red House	33
Vindex	41
Sang Run	20
Shallmar	19
Jennings	48
Bittinger	23
Crellin	62
New Germany	12
Finzel	40
Total	1,150

The next task of the draft board is to assign serial numbers and group the registrants. A meeting of the draft board will be called on March 9 for this purpose, according to H. L. Jones, draft board clerk.

Mr. Jones said that some of the registration cards will be mailed to the states where the registrants reside, while of course the local board would receive a number of cards from other states.

In the previous two registrations there were 2,502 registrants from the county.

Local draft boards will be advised to speed up the work of organizing the present registrants, since the registration of a fourth class, including men between eighteen and twenty and forty-five through sixty-four, is expected within the next two or three months.

Nine Million Total

Throughout the United States there were enrolled about 1,650,000 youngsters, aged 20 to 21, and roughly 7,350,000 older men, for possible service with the armed forces. Over 17,000,000 were registered in peacetime.

Those in charge reported there was a grimness about this wartime draft registration, less of banter among men waiting in lines, than contrasted with the first roll call twenty-eight months ago of those aged 21 to 35.

The pool of manpower was enlarged still further with the announcement by the army that it had lowered physical standards to make available for military service a larger ratio of new draft registrants and thousands of others who previously had been given deferred classifications.

A lottery to determine the order of liability of the men registered over the week-end will be held in March. Questionnaires then will be sent them as a preliminary to classification as available for immediate service or deferred.

Parks Car One-Half Hour on B.&O. Tracks

Everett Cecil Friend, of near Oakland, appealed the decision of Magistrate H. A. Loraditch this week in which he was fined $101 and costs on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

Witnesses told the Magistrate that Friend had driven his automobile on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad track near the station early Sunday morning shortly after train No. 23 had passed, and that fortunately no other trains happened to come along. The automobile remained on the tracks probably for half an hour, as Mr. Friend was seen at the station around 5 o'clock, and was then discovered over half an hour later in his automobile and on the tracks.

The arrest was made by Corporal Currie of the State police.

Coleman "Bub" Friend, of near Deer Park, was sentenced to serve six months in the House of Correction yesterday before Magistrate Loraditch on a charge of being drunk and disorderly.

Why Maryland Can't Have 1,000,000 Sheep

By RICHARD REA BENNETT, in the Baltimore Sun, February 5, 1942.

Sheepmen of the United States are being asked to go the limit on wool production.

But Maryland is not expected to do any more than usual.

The reason? A simple one—

Maryland has no State-wide dog law.

Dr. T. B. Symons, dean of the college of agriculture of the University of Maryland, and Dr. Fred H. Leinbach, head of the University's department of animal husbandry, are authorities for the effect on sheep raising of Maryland's non-existent State-wide dog law.

A killer dog, getting into a flock of sheep, can destroy a raiser's profits for the year, if not a goodly share of his entire investment. Sheep always have been particularly vulnerable to dogs.

Called Too Burdensome

Because of the danger of half-wild dogs, unlicensed dogs and dogs which are allowed by their owners to range, farmers of the State are obliged to pen their sheep at night and keep a watch over them during the day. Many farmers have stopped raising the animals because of the time required for daily rounding up and penning.

Many attempts, according to Dr. Symons, has been made to get a State-wide dog law through the Legislature. All that has resulted from such efforts, proponents say, is to provide the General Assembly with the appropriate setting for a comic opera.

Legislators have refused to view the question seriously, these proponents declare. The result is that the sheepmen do not want to take the chance which necessarily follow. Most of the counties have dog laws, it is said, but these are not being enforced to the degree necessary to protect sheep raisers.

70,000 Now In State

Despite this and the presence in some sections of the State of an internal parasite endangering the animals, there are some 70,000 head of sheep in Maryland.

The University Extension Service, Dr. Symons says, has been pushing the slogan of "a million sheep on Maryland farms."

At present the greatest sheep production area in the State is in Garrett county, with Talbot county second. Queen Anne's county, which led in the number of sheep in 1930, now is in third place.

Importing Meat

Maryland is deficient in meat production. Producers raise only 45 per cent of the meat consumed. Meat imported annually for State consumption includes:

88,581,000 pounds of pork.
67,711,000 pounds of beef.
10,500,000 pounds of lamb and mutton.
10,175,000 pounds of veal.

The average consumer in Maryland uses during the year:

70 pounds of pork.
50 pounds of beef.
7 pounds of veal.
7 pounds of lamb.

The Government is asking Maryland farmers to go the limit on the production of pork, according to W. R. Harvey, president and general manager of the Baltimore Live Stock Show, and superintendent of the Beef, Cattle, Sheep and Swine departments of the Maryland State Fair.

Sees 30 P. C. Increase

An increase of fifteen per cent in pork is asked for, Mr. Harvey says, but the Government is more likely to get an increase of thirty per cent. How much above that figure production may go remains to be seen.

Mr. Harvey explains that the more progressive farmers in Maryland anticipated the present situation and held back from the market enough brood sows to give a production schedule higher than the fifteen per cent requested.

The live-stock show head says that Maryland should produce more hogs, pointing out that in some counties there are more people than hogs, an unusally unbalanced farm situation.

One reason that more hogs have not been raised in Maryland, Mr. Harvey declares, is because farmers prefer producing milk due to their proximity to Baltimore and Washington.

Quick Return

Hog raising offers a good opportunity for a grower who plans to raise pork year in and year out, according to Mr. Harvey. He does not hold out any such encouragement for the man who climbs on the bandwagon at the price peaks and then hops off again when the slumps set in. The hog producer has another advantage, he explains, in that he can get into the business on a moderate scale and realize a quick return on his investment.

Disease among hogs in Maryland has ceased to become a factor in hog raising. Trouble from cholera is negligible, he says, and this can be avoided by not feeding material from which it might be contracted. In the case of tankage, for instance, the steaming reduces any danger from this source.

Dr. Leinbach, in discussing the situation, says he feels there is a very definite need for legitimate increase in the hog industry in Maryland. This, however, he says, will call for the very best management practices so that the farmers who enter the business will remain in it.

Infant Mortality

One-third of the pigs farrowed in the United States never reach weaning age. This means a 33 1-3 per cent gross loss for the hog raiser right at the start.

In other words, the hog raisers in this class—and this is considered the average—have two strikes upon them right at the start, so far as profit is concerned. They are in the amazing position, Dr. Leinbach explains, of having to make a net profit after tossing away one-third of their gross return.

Fifty per cent of the pig loss between farrowing and weaning, according to Dr. Leinbach, is due to the sow laying on her brood. This can be reduced to a minimum by the placing of guard rails in the pen in which the brood sow and the litter are confined.

Heat Saves Loss

Another means of cutting down the remaining loss is to place some type of heat in one corner of the room in which the litter is kept so that the pigs in the first few days do not become chilled and die. Some of the more progressive pig-raising farmers get around this danger from cold by arranging the litters in milder or warmer weather.

In Maryland, farmers raise an average of six pigs, which compares favorably with other sections of the country. Maryland, too, is said to have the advantage of good weather at the time the pigs are usually farrowed.

Increased hog production to meet war needs may be obtained in two ways, Dr. Leinbach declares. One is through an increase in brood stock and the other through increase in the size of the litter by more efficient preventative measures cutting down the mortality.

The average Maryland farmer, the animal-husbandry expert says, must, in these times, raise at least six pigs to the litter. If, by preventative measures, he can raise just one more—seven—this may be the difference between profit and loss on the litter.

Poultrymen to Confer

Plans for meeting the demands of the Food-for-Freedom program will be made when a committee of poultrymen in this section confer at the William-James hotel in Oakland, Monday evening, February 23, at 7:15.

In the light of the present poultry situation the group will undertake to work out solutions to the most serious production problems facing them at this time, R. R. Furman of Southern States Cooperative, one of the speakers, stated.

The committee is composed of poultrymen from Garrett and Allegany counties, Maryland, and from Monongalia, Randolph, Preston, Grant, and Tucker counties, West Virginia.

Finzel-Long Stretch

The Senior Christian Endeavor Society of Salem Evangelical and Reformed church entertained Wednesday evening with a sleighing party at Hafer's Happy Hill farm. Those present were Rev. and Mrs. John F. Smeltzer, Mrs. Lena Hill, Mrs. Ruth Everline, Mr. and Mrs. Conrod E. Kroll, Miss Lena Martens, Miss Mary Jennings, Miss Margaret Jennings, Daniel Leatherman, Jr., and James E. Brade.

William Arval Clark, Finzel, son of Mrs. Minnie Clark, was recently married to Lelia Mae O'Baker, Willersburg, Pa. The groom is employed at the Clay mines.

Miss Helen Clark, Finzel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Clark, became the bride of Lemuel McKenzie, Grantsville, recently.

Miss Ardell Friend visited Miss Winifred Craze Thursday afternoon, at Frostburg.

Twenty-five were selected to serve as petit jurors. There were two men from this district selected, Clarence M. Murphy and Frank P. Turner.

There was a large crowd of skiers the past week at Guntertown.

Miss Grace Durr was visiting friends in Frostburg, Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert McKenzie were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Bert Minnick, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Winebrenner spent Saturday evening in Frostburg.

Rev. Walter V. Simon, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, Frostburg, is making plans for course in the Red Cross Canteen corps. There are two of these, namely, the Standard nutrition course and the canteen course. Forms will be provided for registration, and those who desire to put their patriotism and civic spirit to work in a practical way through the medium of Red Cross canteen service are asked to sign and quickly return the form so that classes may be formed.

America's War Victims Appeal for Your Help

First war poster of the new World War, painted by the distinguished artist James Montgomery Flagg, carries an appeal for a $50,000,000 war fund to aid the victims of aggression upon the United States and its island possessions.

To aid the victims of warfare being waged upon America and her island possessions, the American Red Cross has issued an appeal for a $50,000,000 war fund, Chairman Norman H. Davis announced from the national headquarters in Washington.

Mr. Davis urged men, women and children to give to this mercy fund through their local Red Cross Chapters. These funds will support the Chapter's war work with the families of men in the military services, as well as the broad relief program of the national Red Cross.

President Roosevelt, who is president of the American Red Cross, issued a proclamation urging all citizens to give to the Red Cross war fund.

In launching the appeal, Chairman Davis said:

"There are millions of our citizens who desire today to demonstrate their will to victory over the enemy. Not all can be in the armed forces, and not all can volunteer their services for humanitarian work, but all can volunteer their dollars to arm the Red Cross to be their representative at the scene of battle and distress.

"Today is the day to demonstrate our high morale, our unity, our determination not alone to support our President and our fighting men at the front, but also to insure to our wounded, homeless and suffering fellow citizens in our Pacific Islands that we stand one hundred per cent ready to aid them through the Red Cross."

AVILTON

Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Fike entertained with a chicken dinner on Sunday in honor of their son Ray's 20th birthday. An Open Letter

To Our Senators and To Our Congressmen:

America is at war and Americans are expected to be patriotic—ALL of us. It includes those in high and low government positions, as well as those in Garrett county.

Garrett countians will give up luxuries and non-essentials, tires, and gas, and everything else if that is necessary—even lives. They'll give what money is necessary to support legitimate spending for war needs—but they'll expect that money to be spent for war needs. In other words, they'll expect that money to be rationed too, cutting out all the non-essential spending of the government.

With everyone giving and the government honestly spending, then we'll have unity. Senator Byrd has advocated the cutting of over one and one-half billion in non-essential spending. He has been specific in his recommendations. But the President seems to want the public to believe he gets only vague advice on non-defense economy and says that economy is up to Congress. A Baltimore Sun editorial Sunday spoke the truth when it said that "Roosevelt never says it is up to Congress when he wants money to spend. He always takes the initiative there. He never hesitates to ask for appropriations whether for defense or non-defense purposes. It is only when it comes to cutting down that he hides behind the Congressional skirts." Is the President consistent? Is he sincere?

People Want to Be Patriotic

Garrett countians want to be patriotic. Practically all of the people, now that we are really at war, want an all-out effort. But what a struggle it is to be patriotic when those in high authority want to make us a bunch of fan-dancers to boost our morale! And they want the patriots to pay for it in taxes.

The only thing wrong with our morale if it is low, is the result of the outlandish actions of the President's wife and those around her, who take this emergency as a time to foist their beliefs upon the country, and at the expense of the patriotic Americans who want action. In the last war there wasn't any need to boost morale. The government was being run sensibly, and people had confidence in its leaders. People were fighting mad in no-time and they oversubscribed all Liberty loan campaigns.

It has been reported that the sale of defense bonds has dropped just since Congress voted its members pensions and Mrs. Roosevelt asked for appointment of two of her favorites to positions in the Civilian Defense organization. Who is to blame?

William Randolph Hearst said not long ago that the billions for defense were going down rat holes, feeding too many rats. It's tough to be patriotic when that is being done continually by the government. It's hard on morale, and such a situation is not going to be corrected by teaching children to play and dance. It can be corrected only if those in high government positions play fair and square with the taxpayers.

Garrett county has a swell civilian defense organization. Its members want civilian defense equipment for protection. Getting such equipment would boost morale 100 percent and prepare them for any emergency.

The Civilian defense workers are working without pay, but it is hard on morale when a salaried official in Washington wants all sorts of information from this area that takes time to gather and demands it immediately, regardless of the fact that Civilians must work for their living in order to provide the money with which to pay taxes.

Children can be taken care of by substantial farm home mothers and their morale will be a whole lot better off than if they were entrusted to the care of a recreation or dancing specialist.

Won't Lay Down on Job

Garrett countians want to help in every way they can, and they don't expect to lay down on the job because of such assinine actions in Washington. But they do want such actions stopped. They don't want a St. Lawrence waterway project or a Florida ship canal during this war effort. Both these projects have been condemned by sensible men but the President still wants to spend millions on them.

We don't need any additional social reforms while there is a war and we are fighting for our existence. We don't need any arguments on closed or open shops as long as we must have planes, guns, tanks, ammunition.

Those who persist in keeping non-essentials in government today are as much fifth-columnists as the Japanese on the west coast, and as dangerous as the German battlefleet is going to be in the North Atlantic since they pulled their trick on the British in Dover strait.

Garrett countians want to win the war and they will remain patriotic. They are also determined that Congressmen and Senators will be that way. They don't want any unconscious saboteurs in Washington. Garrett countians are going to raise a howl along with the rest of the country so that everyone may know how we stand on this important battle—the battle of Washington.

We want the government to strip for action and the legislators to show their worth by the way they act in Congressional meetings. Then there won't be any trouble about morale. There won't be any trouble about bonds, about civilian defense. And there won't be any trouble about winning the war.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS . . . . . .

The Battle of Washington

Washington, Feb. 14.

Things are not going well in Washington and there is no use pretending they are. Silence about the situation is not in the national interest; it is against the national interest. Complacency about the operations of the war organization is sheer stupidity. No informed man is complacent; every posted person is deeply concerned.

That is an opinion widely held not only outside the Administration but inside, where, however, it has to be voiced privately. When, after twenty-two months Mr. Roosevelt finally yielded to pressure and, delegating authority to Mr. Nelson, established the single-headed production board which should have been named in the first place, there was a wave of optimism in the country. A feeling arose that at last confusion was to be ended and competency installed. That feeling has been only slightly justified.

* * *

It is true the single-headed board functions better than those where authority was divided. It is true, too, that planes, tanks, etc., are being turned out in ever-increasing quantities. But that is because to a great extent contracts have been awarded and production is in the hands of the factories. Industry, so far as it is not restricted by shortages of raw materials and labor troubles, is concededly doing a good job. In the matter of supplying, through priorities and development, the raw materials, which is Mr. Nelson's real job, he has performed no miracles—and will perform none.

* * *

The best judgment about Mr. Nelson is that he is "pretty good." He isn't another Baruch. And he isn't a human dynamo, except in the press releases and his publicity-department written speeches. "Pretty good" just about describes him. Nevertheless, "pretty good" is above average here for key men and it isn't the fact that Mr. Nelson is no superman upon which worry is based. Nor is it altogether the unsavory mess of the OCD. Perhaps, if Mrs. Roosevelt does not linger too long, this organization can be cleaned up, and the boondoggling, uplifting absurdities which now characterize it removed. So long as she stays her pretty pets will cluster around her and there is no chance of real reorganization. Even when the departure of the lady relieves Mr. Landis of his chief embarrassment, it is uncertain that he will do the sort of house cleaning called for. His insistence upon the merit of his moving-picture glamor boy is not altogether reassuring.

However, while the offensive fooleries of the OCD have created more public irritation than anything else, they by no means constitute all—or even the main—causes for discontent. For example, there is the basic one that the Administration is still trying to win the war just with the people the White House likes. Great care is taken to bar out of the important posts those who incurred the Presidential hostility by the vigor of their 1940 opposition. The result is that the best brains of the country are still on the outside. There is also the fact that the jealousies, friction and bewilderment engendered by the multiplicity of the information, publicity, propaganda and civilian morale agencies have now reached new heights.

In addition, there is the deliberate effort to intrude upon the legitimate field of Secretary of State Hull (Mr. Willkie calls it "nibbling at him"), who is the most respected man inside the Administration and the most generally esteemed outside. The degree to which Mr. Hull has been detoured and his importance diminished has aroused a natural resentment among his friends. One example is the setting up of a board, headed by Vice-President Wallace, with other starry-eyed New Dealers as members, to map out economic war policies—a field in which Mr. Hull has specialized since Mr. Wallace was a child.

And, finally, there is the action of Congress in voting retirement pensions for its own members and for the President and Vice-President. This measure was again denounced Friday by Senators Byrd, of Virginia, and Norris, of Nebraska, both of whom urged its repeal. Under existing conditions, for Congress to have passed this bill was indefensible. And for the President, who profits by it, to have signed it with apparent approval, with no word to indicate regret was just as bad. He owed it to the country to make it clear that he signed because the pension was included in a general bill which he did not want to veto. He owed it to the country to make it clear that he does not personally want a pension and does not think members of Congress should vote themselves pensions at this time. But not one word of this sort has come from him or from anyone who reflects his views.

Adding all these things up, it is not surprising that there should be throughout the country a lack of confidence in the unselfishness as well as in the competency of the men who are managing our war effort. It is not surprising that the trenchant criticisms of such men as Byrd, Norris, Tydings, Willkie, Taft and others whose patriotism is unquestioned and whose desire to win the war is as great as Mr. Roosevelt's own, should be disturbing.

But, without their kind of criticism, things will get worse, not better. Without their kind of criticism we may lose this war instead of winning it. Because there is nothing else to jar Administration authorities out of their complacency nor to check up upon incompetency. It is absurd to expect the people as a whole to be militant and united while such things go on at the capital. It is absurd to talk about discipline in the country when the Administration's own house is in such wild disorder and waste runs riot. It is impossible to build civilian morale in the face of such an exhibition. As Senator Byrd says, "The first battle we have to win is the battle of Washington."

Maryland Defense Council Plans Broadcast Sunday

How people react under aerial attack and how civilian defense organizations minimize loss of life and property, will be told on the Maryland Council of Defense radio program Sunday, February 22, over WBAL, Baltimore, at 4:30 p. m.

Frank Muto, chief photographer, U. S. war department, will give his observations during the Polish and Norwegian invasions and the Finnish-Russian war. Lydia deRoth will give an account of her experiences as an air raid warden in London. The invasion of Pearl Harbor on December 7, will be described by a watcher.

Governor O'Conor warns that good flying weather is approaching and with it may come a test of defense organizations. The safety of families, neighbors and the entire community depends upon the knowledge people have of what to do when bombs fall. The Maryland Council of Defense is prepared to train those who have joined the defense councils.

Attends Meeting of Employment Managers

Milburn W. Mann, interviewer in charge of the Oakland office of the United States Employment Service, attended a managers' meeting in Baltimore, last Friday and Saturday.

The added responsibilities of all employment offices in recruiting workers for defense industries was emphasized. The urgent need for youths to take training preparatory to accepting employment in factories, was stressed and the importance of an adequate supply of information concerning the training program may be obtained at the local office.

At the close of the business session on Saturday afternoon, Mr. Mann attended a dinner meeting of the International Association of Public Employment Services, at the Longfellow hotel. Mr. D. L. B. Fringer, Acting Director of the United States Employment Service for Maryland, presided.

WANTED! A FAMILY TREE

Dr. H. K. Owens, born in Bloomington, Maryland, son of William Owens and Mary Ellen Kight, his wife. When Dr. Owens was a small lad, his parents died, and he and his two sisters were raised by his uncle and aunts on the distaft side. His mother died in Garrett county about 1875. His father died in Mineral county in 1882. When the home was broken up, the family Bible (if any) and the records disappeared.

As the Dawson family was seldom discussed, the children lost sight of them.

Who was William Dawson's father? What is the relationship between James Sr., James Jr., William Sr., William Jr., Edward Sr., Edward Jr., and Thomas Dawson? Who received land in 1787, evidently Revolutionary Soldiers?

Any information should be sent to Mrs. [illegible] Weir, Elkins, W. Va. Adv. 1t.

Paragraph Opinions . .

Merciless Killer

Last year tuberculosis killed approximately 10,000 more Americans than were killed in action or died of wounds in World War I. Tuberculosis killed 254,668 in four years in America alone.

Civilian air raid casualties in England during ten months totaled about 56,000. During a comparable period in this country, tuberculosis took 50,000 lives.

War means that millions will work longer and rest less. Weariness and exposure are two of t. b.'s most effective allies. Every precaution should be taken by individuals, as the fight against this merciless killer must never cease.

Set The Example

The Joint Committee on Reduction of Non-Essential Expenditures, of which Senator Byrd is chairman, has made a perliminary report to Congress. It recommends action for saving in non-defense spending of almost two billion dollars.

One pparagraph of the report is especially important: "There is no room for non-essentials in a government stripped for action. Our united purpose is to produce sufficient armament and trained personnel to win this war. Nothing can be permitted to interfere with this objective. The American people are being asked to pay extremely burdensome taxes which will become greater; they are being asked to make sacrifices and endure hardships. The Government should set the example."

The American people are waiting.

The Arthurdale Record Furnishes Some Hints

The Morgantown Post, of West Virginia, believes the times warrant a little more efficiency and economy, at least, in the social settlement schemes for which taxes of the people are being spent and which are being further proposed.

The Post was moved to an examination of one of these experiments by an editorial in the New York Herald Tribune criticizing Mrs. Roosevelt's influence in the Office of Civilian Defense.

"Mrs. Roosevelt clearly envisages civilian defense as a many-sided task, involving all manner of projects for improving public health and morale," the New York newspaper said. "This is an attractive prospect, but it is at least debatable whether such a program should be launched at all at this time. . . . What is not debatable is that the civilian defense workers of this country need gas masks, steel helmets, stirrup pumps and a great variety of equipment to deal with possible air raids. To delay the acquisition of this material by efforts to promote collateral schemes of a dubious practical value is distinctly a disservice to the nation's war effort."

The Post noted that at the very moment this editorial was being put into type, Mrs. Roosevelt was at Arthurdale delivering "contracts of sale" to sixty of the homesteaders there and was making a speech in which she asked them to contrast their status today with what it was nearly nine years ago when the Arthurdale homestead was started.

The Post declares that it has none but kindliest feelings for Arthurdale, has been numbered among its well-wishers from the start and hopes it will turn out to be a permanent success. But it points out that it furnishes a standard for determining at least to a limited extent the ability of Mrs. Roosevelt to get accomplished quickly an emergency undertaking such as most of the responsibilities of the Office of Civilian Defense must be regarded.

"According to a report issued by the Federal Security Administration," the Post says, the federal government had spent $2,303,071 on Arthurdale up to June 30, 1939. That did not include an item of $677,754 in government loans to the Arthurdale Association.

"The expenditure of $2,303,071 was equivalent to an outlay of approximately $14,000 for each of the 165 homestead units, although the average cost of the homestead unit itself was only $8,665. The rest went for roads, utilities and sanitation, schools, community land improvement, community land, chicken farm, etc. However, when these expenditures are averaged among the 165 homestead units, the $14,000 figure is obtained.

"If the $677,754 in government loans to the Arthurdale Association is averaged among the 165 homestead units, an additional $4,100 must be placed alongside the $14,000 to bring the average to $18,100 per homestead unit.

"Now, we ask you, what family wouldn't be better off after having expenditures of $18,100 made for its benefit?

"According to the United States census for 1940, the average farm in the United States consists of 174 acres and is valued at $5,518, the land being worth $3,309.30 (or $18.02 an acre), the buildings $1,707, and farm machinery and implements $402.

"The expenditures of $18,100 per homestead unit at Arthurdale would be sufficient to purchase three average farms in the United States and leave something over. Or, these expenditures would be sufficient to buy each Arthurdale homesteader a 174-acre farm (as compared to the three-acre tracts at Arthurdale) and give him a working capital of $12,582.

"Most of us could get along very nicely if someone would simply furnish us that working capital of $12,582 and let somebody else have the 174-acre farm.

"There are in the United States approximately 35,000,000 families, according to the 1940 census. If $18,100 should be allotted to each of these families (as has been done at Arthurdale), the total allocation would reach the astronomical total of 633¼ billion dollars. The total national wealth of the United States, according to the latest government estimate published in the World Almanac for 1942, is slightly less than 321 billion dollars. Therefore, the expenditures of the government per family at Arthurdale have been on a scale nearly twice as great as the national wealth."

That is pretty high, indeed, and the showing certainly suggests the advisability of injecting both economy and efficiency into the added schemes of social improvement at present contemplated if not, indeed, abandoning a large part of them for the duration.

Wake Up Oakland People—Be Americans

To the Editor of The Republican:

Last Thursday, your mayor, Lawrence M. Fraley, issued a proclamation which stated that the period from February 12th to February 22nd would be "Americanism Week", and urged that every citizen, young and old, give due consideration to his duties and renew his pledge of allegiance to the principles set forth in the Constitution of the United States of America.

This we believe was read and digested by some of the people of Oakland but to others it was passed by and not given another thought. What is wrong with the people of Oakland? Are they so minded that they forget our boys are fighting the worst war this world has ever known? Are they forgetting that they are privildged to be an American, living in a country where we still have the right to say what we like and to worship as we please? Are they so smug in their own thoughts as to forget what would happen if Hitler, the murderer, ruled this country as he has claimed he will?

Come on Oakland people, wake up! There is litle we can do here, but we can show we are Americans and display the flag, give our boys courage and show the dirty devils over there that we are proud to live here and with the will of God we will continue the American way of life.

Let's make Oakland the model town as far as patriotism goes. Not only in Maryland, but the United States.

PATRIOT.

Need of More Christianity

To the Editor of The Republican:

War! What causes war? There may be many answers applied. The fallability of man might fit in but sin is the keynote to the whole matter and sin is ruinous in all cases and starts all mankind downward and never lifts anyone up, and the fountain head of all sin is the Devil. There can never any good come from that source.

Those who have sinned read Romans, third chapter and 23rd verse, and find the guilty party; then turn to Isaiah, first chapter and 18th verse then Ecclesiastes, twelfth chapter and 13th verse. The whole chapter may do you good.

America has been called a Christian nation. I will give the statistics as they were given to me for 1941—85 million, or 63 percent of our population without the church; 30 million children and young people without religious training; 30 million foreign-born parents and their families representing 45 nationalities; 96 metropolitan centers have 45 percent of our population with the evils of city life, and in many of them only one out of seven are members of the church. The actual criminal population is four and one-half million, which is three and one-half times as many as are enrolled in our colleges and universities. The annual crime bill is $15,000,000,000, $120 for every man, woman and child.

The National liquor bill last year was $5,000,000,000, a little short of 50 percent of the country's food bill. We spent $15.33 per capita for education and $58.60 per capita for liquor.

So as a nation, where are we headed, for there are only two roads and two masters? It looks like America has been playing with fire and both ends of the rod got hot. There is great need of a remedy and God has the remedy. His remedy is both safe and sound and is mightier than bullets or bombs, and His word is the prescription. Read it! Obey it and live! There is need of fervent prayer.

AN OBSERVER.

TOMORROW MAY BE TOO LATE

KEMPTON

Woman's Christian Service Society

Mrs. A. J. Wotring entertained the members of the W. S. C. S. at her home on Thursday evening. Mrs. Joseph Geroski, vice president, was in charge of devotionals and business. Officers for the new year were elected as follows: Mrs. L. W. Duling, president; Mrs. E. Paul Dice, vice president; Mrs. Leon Steyer, secretary; Mrs. Asa Lewis, recording secretary; Mrs. Robert Martin, treasurer; Mrs. Joseph Geroski, assistant treasurer. Installation services conducted by Mrs. Geroski, followed.

Mrs. Asa Lewis, who attended a recent W. S. C. S. conference in Elkins, W. Va., as a delegate, stated that Dorsey Fox, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Fox, had been named the honorary child of the recently discontinued Elkins District of the West Virginia conference, this honor was conferred because of the outstanding activities carried on by the pre-school child's mother, Mrs. Martin Fox, as a W. S. C. S. worker of the Kempton organization. A twenty-five cent gift exchange was planned for the February meeting.

The social hour was in charge of the chairmen of the annual birthday party committees, contest prizes were won by Mrs. Robert Sprague, Mrs. Joseph Geroski, and Mrs. Robert Martin.

The hostesses served refreshments.

Homemakers' Club

Mrs. Jennie Ryan entertained the members of the Homemakers' club at her home for the regular January meeting. A short business meeting was in charge of Mrs. L. W. Duling. Mrs. Robert T. Hoffman, home agent, gave a demonstration on foods and also gave a talk on present emergencies that are vital to the homemaker. Tea was served by the hostess.

Red Cross Sewing

The first meeting for Red Cross sewing was held at the home of Mrs. A. J. Wotring, sewing chairman, of Kempton Homemakers' club. A number of all wool serge dresses were cut, with Mrs. Joseph Geroski and Mrs. Asa Lewis in charge. Fifteen dresses have been completed. Others sewing are Mrs. Paul Carr, Mrs. W. P. Warsaw, Mrs. Harry Wolfe, Mrs. Jennie Ryan, Mrs. Leon Steyer, Mrs. William Wratchford, Mrs. G. A. Aronhalt, Mrs. Harry King, Mrs. Thomas Liller, Mrs. Anthony Strimel and Mrs. E. Paul Dice. Mrs. Harry Wolfe completed four dresses. Mrs. A. J. Wotring had charge of the cutting.

Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Strimel celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary at their home on Saturday night with a "500" party. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Estel Ashfield, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. P. Scripp, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Steyer, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Wotring, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Wotring, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Broll, Mrs. A. J. Wotring, Mrs. G. A. Aronhalt and Mrs. L. W. Duling. A plate luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by her sister, Mrs. P. Scripp. The couple received a number of gifts.

First Aid Classes

As a Defense project First Aid classes have been organized, the first meeting was held at the school building on Tuesday night. The instructors are the members of the Davis Coal and Coke company's First Aid team. Leon Steyer, assisted by Melvin Wotring are instructing the women's class; Richard Ryan, assisted by Ronald Wotring and E. Ray Knotts are instructing the men's class.

Large classes are in attendance.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Carr visited their daughter, Nola Anne, student, Fairchance, Pa., last week-end. They also attended the 82nd birthday anniversary dinner of Mr. Carr's father, which was held at the family home at Fairchance.

Miss Emily Fox, student, Waynesburg college, Waynesburg, Pa., was a week-end guest at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Martin and sons were visitors to Cumberland on Saturday.

Mrs. Martin Fox, who has been quite ill for some time is improving satisfactorily.

Private Cleadus Corbin, of the Army Medical Corps, stationed in Pennsylvania, was a recent guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Corbin.

Recent letters have been received by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Geroski from their son, Carl, and by Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Willis from their son, John, both are stationed at Honolulu, and are safe and well.

Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Smith visited their parents at Harmon, and Jennington, on Sunday.

Red Cross Knitters Now On Third Quota

Red Cross knitters in the county are now working on their third quota and are busy with mittens, socks, sweaters and mufflers.

Some of the garments are on display in the window of the Oakland Hardware and Furniture company. Mrs. John Stevenson, Sr., Mt. Lake Park; Mrs. Charles Reckard, Mrs. B. F. Selby, Howard Smouse and Karl Kahl did the decorating; Miss Virginia Kalbaugh and Wellington Yutzy printed the three posters, and Clarence Umstot arranged the lighting. Paul McIntire offered either window or both whenever the Red Cross wanted to use them for display.

Mrs. C. P. Jones, Kitzmiller, has knitted sixty pair of mittens. Mrs. H. A. Loraditch completed her twentieth pair of socks; Mrs. Truman Bittinger and Mrs. George Welling are on their fifth pair this week. Mrs. Sarah Riley, past eighty, is knitting on socks every day.

Other work to be completed include Mrs. Mary Fridinger, Mrs. Stanley Stahl, Mrs. Paul Turney, woman's sweater; Mrs. Oliver Smouse, two women's sweaters; Miss Mary Claudus Fraley and Leona Feld, mufflers; Mrs. H. M. Skipper, two toddler sweaters; Misses Elinor Schlossnagle, Wanda Ramsey, Oma Paugh, Eleanor Lipscomb and Patty Filsinger, Oakland elementary pupils, each a toddler sweater.

Red Cross Sewers

Those present at the sewing room Wednesday were Mrs. Irvin Rudy, Mrs. Harry Friend, Mrs. Cecil Smith, Mrs. Elizabeth Schoch, Mrs. Earl Enlow, Mrs. Gordon Miller, Mrs. Walter Dawson, Mrs. Harry White, Mrs. Prema Brown, Mrs. Alvin Casteel, Mrs. O. T. Graser, Mrs. Hugh Teets, Mrs. Harry McRobie, Mrs. William Butt, Mrs. Francis Connoly, Mrs. F. E. Rathbun, Mrs. Harold Harned.

The Women's Christian Service Society of Pleasant Valley Methodist church, completed two ladies' dresses and 25 sleeping garments.

Baby sleeping garments, etc., were completed by Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. DiSimone, Mrs. Earl Enlow, Mrs. Alvin Casteel and Miss Agnes Helbig.

President Roosevelt told a press conference that an enemy attack on New York or Detroit was feasible. Senator Walsh said the coasts of the United States were almost defenseless.

Mayris Chaney, coordinator of children's activities in office of Civilian defense, resigned her post.

Aunt Sophronia says that if the shortage will break Uncle Zeke of his 1890 habit of wearing rubber collars, it will be almost worth it.

GRANTSVILLE

Violates Motor Law

Failure to stop before entering a through highway resulted in a fine of $5 and costs Monday morning for William Miller, near here. The charges grew out of an accident on Long Stretch. Miller, son of Lloyd Miller, was reported by Trooper G. S. Dunlap to have turned out of a side road on to the National Highway without stopping, and crashed against a machine belonging to a man from Detroit, Mich. Both cars were badly damaged. At the hearing before Trial Magistrate Charles S. Zeller, Miller pleaded guilty and was released upon payment of the fine and costs.

Plan Bazaar

In an effort to assist in raising funds to help defray the expense of recent improvements to the church the Women's Society of Christian Service of the local Methodist church is sponsoring a bazaar this evening in the church. DIED

MRS. WILLIAM A. HAUSER

Mrs. Anna Sophia Hauser, wife of William A. Hauser, passed away at her home just northwest of town, on Sunday morning, February 15, about 1:55 o'clock, following an illness of several months. She was a patient in Allegany hospital, Cumberland, for 11 weeks following a stroke of paralysis and was brought to her home here on January 14. She suffered another stroke last Thursday from which she failed to rally.

She was born May 16, 1884, a daughter of the late William and Elizabeth Englehart, and was born at Accident. She was aged 57 years.

She was a member of the Lutheran church in Oakland and had been a faithful member of that church since early childhood. She had resided in Oakland about 19 years. Mr. and Mrs. Hauser were married in 1907.

Surviving are her husband, of Oakland; one son, Rev. Elwood Hauser, pastor of St. Andrew's Lutheran church at Boswell, Pa.; one adopted daughter, Mrs. Robert Willett, of Clarksburg, W. Va.; one sister, Mrs. Minnie Speicher, Meyersdale, Pa.; and one brother, John Englehart, Accident.

The body was taken to the Red House Lutheran church at 10 o'clock on Wednesday morning, February 18, and services were conducted at 11 o'clock from the church with Rev. E. Roy Hauser, D. D., of Clearfield, Pa., brother of Mr. Hauser, officiating, assisted by Rev. A. K. Jones, pastor. Interment was in the Red House cemetery.

JAMES LAZEAR POLLOCK

Final rites were conducted Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock for James L. Pollock, 80, who died February 11 at his home in Oakland.

Rev. D. C. Trimble, former rector of the Episcopal church, was unable to attend from Baltimore, and services were in charge of Rev. A. D. Jones, rector, and were held from the church.

Interment was in the Episcopal cemetery. Active pallbearers were A. G. Gortner, Lawrence M. Fraley, Joseph Hinebaugh, D. R. Sincell, Lindsay A. Gonder and Harley Dawson.

KAREN SCRIPP

Karen Scripp, aged nine months, died suddenly at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Scripp, of Kempton. She had suffered an attack of measles and seemed to be recovering, when a sudden illness caused her death. Funeral services were conducted at the home on Friday afternoon, January 30, 1942, the Rev. A. B. Mann, of Thomas officiated. The choir of Kempton church sang. Pallbearers were Betty Reed, Nellie Sue Repetsky, Mary V. Evans and Julia Havran.

Survivors, besides her parents are three brothers, Tony, Jr., Bobby and Kit; two sisters, Romona and Sandra. Interment was in Bayard cemetery.

MRS. JAMES REED

Mrs. Barbara Ellen Reed, wife of James Reed, of the Meadow Mountain section, near the Mason store, died on Tuesday morning about 4 o'clock. She was a daughter of the late Elijah and Mary Ann Durst and was born in this county on February 18, 1865. She was almost aged 77.

She was twice married and surviving are five children, Emerson Knox, near Deer Park; Harvey Knox, near Accident; Walter Knox, address unknown; Mrs. Katie Friend, of near Glendale; and Mrs. Minnie Knox, of near Oakland; also one step-son, Walter Reed, of near Deer Park.

The remains will be at the Bolden Funeral home until Friday, when services will be conducted at 2 o'clock from the Glendale church, with Roy Kinsinger, of Grantsville, officiating. Interment will be in the Glendale cemetery.

MRS. NANCY VIRGINIA LILLER

Mrs. Nancy Virginia Liller, widow of Clyde C. Liller, died yesterday afternoon, February 18, at her home on Water street. About a year ago Mrs. Liller suffered a broken hip, followed by an attack of pneumonia, and she had been in ill health for several months.

Mrs. Liller was a daughter of the late Henry A. and Mary Ann Hauger, and was born in Terra Alta, W. Va., February 2, 1872. She was aged 70 years. Her husband died in 1910.

She had been a member of the Methodist church for many years and belonged to the Daughters of America chapter at Keyser, W. Va.

Surviving are two sons and one daughter, Ernest C. Liller and Neil V. Liller, of Oakland; Mrs. Hazel Walter, R. N., of Coatesville, Pa.; one grandson, Neil Walter; four sisters, Mrs. J. C. Freeland, Keyser; Mrs. J. H. Smith, Parsons, W. Va.; Mrs. W. Z. Stockett, Grafton, W. Va., and Mrs. Sarabell Kimmell, Oakland.

The body will be at the Bolden Funeral Home until Friday morning at 10 o'clock, when it will be taken to the Methodist church. Funeral services will be conducted at 11 o'clock with Rev. Minor Sprague, pastor, officiating. Interment will be in the Oakland cemetery.

The Uruguay navy will patrol their coast line with American vessels. That country is also planning to build new naval air bases.

JESUS APPOINTS AND TEACHES THE TWELVE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 6:12-26.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.—Matthew 5:16.

God is sovereign and has all power. He might, therefore, perform His works without the help of man, and on many an occasion He does just that.

That fact makes it all the more glorious that He ordinarily works through men, giving to them the privilege of companionship with Him in service. Sinful and weak though they may have been, they become strong and holy in Him, able to do valiant service in His name.

I. Appointed to Serve Christ (vv. 12-19).

It is the constant teaching of Scripture that those called to serve God are not self-appointed. They are

1. Chosen by Him (vv. 12, 13). He chooses whom He will, gives them the gifts and the grace for ministry (and both are important!), and provides them a place of service. It is vital to the servant of Christ that he know that he has been chosen and called of the Lord. Only with that assurance can he meet the problems and bear the burdens of the work.

Observe that it was after a night of prayer that Jesus appointed the twelve. How many churches give that much prayer to the choosing of its leaders? Do we not need it far more than did our Lord?

2. Called from Many Walks of Life (vv. 14-16). The apostles were men of widely differing gifts, temperaments, and personal characteristics. Some had unusual ability, others apparently were of ordinary qualifications. They were of many occupations, fishermen, a tax gatherer, etc.; but not one was by profession a preacher or priest.

Were men to choose for such offices they would look within the narrow limits of a few learned professions, with certain nationalities preferred, and with position in life an important factor. God cuts across every man-made limitation and calls His workers as He sees fit.

3. Companions in Service (vv. 17-19). At once the twelve received their introduction to service to the great multitude diseased, demon possessed, in spiritual need. It was Jesus who healed them (and notice that "he healed them all," v. 19), but verse 17 tells us that the newly appointed apostles came and stood with Him. They had fellowship with the healing and serving Christ, just as we may have it in service for Him today.

II. Prepared to Live for Christ (vv. 20-26).

Service for Christ is as much (perhaps we should say, more) by life as by ministry. The twelve needed instruction that their spiritual perspective might be right. He tells them

1. How to Meet Difficulties (vv. 20-23). Poverty, hunger, weeping, being hated for Christ's sake, these were the things that Jesus knew His servants might expect, so He prepared them. They were told that these things need not disturb them, for there is a kingdom coming; there will be a time when every hunger will be satisfied, when weeping shall turn to laughter.

Hatred for Christ's sake is declared to be the occasion for an outburst of joy because of the reward which awaits in heaven. Scripture speaks much of rewards, and we do well to encourage ourselves and other Christians by the blessed prospect.

Meeting difficulties is a matter of having mental and spiritual eyes rightly focused. If we do, we can see right through them and see that on the other side there is blessing.

But there are temptations in another direction, so He tells them

2. How to Avoid Dangers (vv. 24-26). Jesus is here speaking of those who, lacking true spiritual vision, revel in the satisfaction of worldly things without a thought of God. The passage, however, may well be applied to the worker for Christ. Often he will be tempted to covet the wealth, the prosperity, the pleasures, and popularity of those round about him.

The question which comes to him is, Why should I and my family not share these pleasant things? Therein lies a temptation to become worldly-minded, centered in the temporalities of life. Let him learn that money in itself cannot bring lasting joy; that the fullness of this world is soon exchanged for an eternal emptiness; that the shallow laughter of this world's fun rapidly gives way to weeping.

The praise of men—popularity with those who know not Christ—is a fickle thing. One day they will praise a man to the skies, and the next day no evil word or disgraceful treatment is spared to destroy and dishearten him.

Without Interruption

JOHNNY POWERS is a wise guy. A good enough chap, but a wise guy. You can't tell him much, because he knows just about everything. You start to tell him a story when Johnny's around, and when you're half way through he'll grin and say, "Yeah, I've heard this one." And then he'll spring the point. Very annoying.

Johnny doesn't think much of old Enoch Stewart. Enoch is an octogenarian and likes to reminisce. I enjoy hearing him, because he has a way of telling a story that grips you.

Johnny Powers sits around twiddling his thumbs while old Enoch unfolds a tale in his slow way, and suddenly he'll jump up and say, "Ha! I get it. So and so married so and so. Nothing clever about that!"

You can see the hurt look and the slow anger gleaming in old Enoch's eyes. You feel sorry for the old boy, and you'd like to punch Johnny in the nose. The best you can do about it is to keep Johnny away when old Enoch is yarning.

We've been pretty successful about doing this; everyone was surprised the night he dropped in on us last week. But Johnny didn't seem to notice that anything was wrong.

"Go on," he said to old Enoch. "Go on with your yarn, old timer."

"I was just telling the boys about an experience I had last winter. Maybe it's the kind of story you wouldn't be interested in."

"Uh huh," said Johnny indulgently, "uh huh. Go ahead."

"Well," said Old Enoch, "it was kind of amusing. One of those brisk January days, cold and invigorating. I was walking along out in the country and I come to a bunch of children who were skating, and stopped to watch them. I tell you it was a pretty picture.

"Well, after a while along comes an old man, near as old as I be, with a pair of skates over his shoulder. He stood watching the youngsters for a while, then sat down and put on his skates and started out. He was a good one, knew how to skate all right. But he wanted to show off, wanted to show them kids how good he was and maybe teach 'em a thing or two."

Old Enoch paused to chuckle, and Johnny, grinning said, "And I suppose he went sprawling first shot out of the box?"

Enoch looked mildly surprised and a trifle hurt. "Why, yes," he said. "Yes. That's exactly what happened. First thing you knew the old boy hit a hole and tumbled into it head over heels. It was funny, but at the same time I felt sorry for the old boy."

"Hope he didn't drown," I said, looking sidewise at Johnny.

"Of course he didn't," Johnny said. He stood up. "The youngsters got a rope or a log or something and pulled him out and the old man went home, a sorry looking figure, his dignity having suffered because he'd had to let the children save him. Pretty good story, but old." Johnny laughed tolerantly.

Old Enoch tugged at his moustaches. "You're pretty smart, Johnny. The old boy didn't get himself drowned. Nope. Fact is he didn't even get wet!"

The grin vanished from Johnny's face. He stared, and the rest of us were silent, waiting.

"Now wait a minute," said Johnny. "Let me get this straight. The old man was skating and he fell into a hole, and didn't even get wet?"

"Yeah," said old Enoch, and his eyes began to twinkle. "That's it, Johnny. That's right."

Johnny looked around. He saw us watching him, and he must have sensed the way we felt, because he flushed a little. "Now wait a minute," he said. "There's something wrong here. Something screwy about that yarn."

"No such a thing," said Enoch. "It's a true story, every word. And if you'd listened closely you'd see what I mean."

"All right," he said. "All right. What's the point?"

Enoch chuckled. "You're smart, Johnny. You ought to be able to figure it. You've figured out plenty of 'em before."

The color mounted in Johnny's cheeks. "It's a set-up," he blazed angrily. "I tell you that yarn's cock-eyed! What's the point, anyhow?"

Enoch tugged at his moustaches. For the first time I saw him laugh. Real loud and hearty. He was enjoying this moment. It sort of paid him back for previous humiliations. He laughed, and Johnny grew white, and Enoch said, "Why, Shucks, Johnny, that's easy. Easy. The point is that the children and the old man were roller skating. Get it?"

Which Johnny did, and that's why old Enoch from then on has been able to tell his stories without interference or interruptions.

Body Shipped in Rum Cask

In the Cape May Historical museum in New Jersey there is a ship model with this history: "The brigantine J. B. Kirby, sailed by Capt. Hiram Godfrey in 1860, who died of yellow fever in Cienfuegos, Cuba. His body was brought home in a cask of rum to pass quarantine, by the mate, Mr. Beading."

Traffic Laws

"JO, THAT'S the last time you'll take the car out alone! I'm tired of getting you out of jams. Sergeant Ryan is tired of it, too. He told me today that he'd let you off for the last time."

"Really, Art, you're getting all excited over the silly business. The car is mine as much as it is yours. Moreover, I intend to drive it. I've got to learn some time."

"Now look here, Jo, I've listened to that story for the last time. It's always the same. In my opinion, women shouldn't be allowed to drive cars anyhow. They don't attach enough importance to it."

Art Phillips went out and slammed the door. Jo, his wife, watched him drive away. Of late Art had been considerate enough to leave the car at home for her use, and ride to work on the bus. But now it looked as if all that was over. Art was really angry.

Jo didn't mind so very much. But the fact that that afternoon she was scheduled to be at a bridge party in the neighboring town of Benton, and had been depending upon the car to transport her there, was annoying.

Jo glanced at her watch. The last bus to Benton for over an hour had left ten minutes ago. She became a little panicky at thoughts of being deprived of the afternoon of bridge.

Then, abruptly, came a thought. Quick action followed. She dashed upstairs, dressed quickly, and ten minutes later was on a bus riding down town. As she had expected, the car was parked at the curb in front of Art's office.

Feeling somewhat like a small boy stealing apples, she climbed into the car and was away. Once beyond the city limits she didn't care a hoot whether Art discovered the theft or not. It would do him good.

Jo arrived back in town just before five. She parked the car in the exact spot where it had stood three hours previous, caught an outgoing bus, and was home by 5:15. She had hardly divested herself of coat and hat when the phone rang. It was Art.

"Hello, honey," he began sweetly. "Sorry I can't be home to dinner. Something happened to the car this afternoon. I brought it to a garage and left it there. They just called and said it wouldn't be ready until seven. Guess I'll wait."

Jo's heart leaped. For a moment she was silent. Then: "What—what time did you say you brought the car to the garage?"

"Oh." Jo hung up without replying. She felt weak and wanted to sit down. So this was why Art had been making excuses to stay out late. Probably carrying on an affair with another woman. And she, Jo, had believed in him implicitly.

She suddenly flung herself on a divan and wept.

A half hour later Jo dried her eyes and went upstairs. Her mind was made up. She'd pack and leave on the 6:30 train. She could never be happy with Art again. She could never trust him, never feel that he was loyal and fine as she had always thought.

Hastily she packed, scribbled a note, briefly explaining that she knew of his deceit, and went downstairs, paused at the foot and stared wide-eyed.

Art, grinning broadly, was standing in the center of the living room floor.

"Going some place?" he asked. "Say, I'm glad I got home in time to see you off. They brought the car around earlier than I expected and . . ."

"Art! Please! I don't care to listen to more of your lies!" She tried to get past him, but Art stepped in her way.

"Don't be foolish, Jo. You'll regret it. Wait till you hear my story."

Jo paused. After all, it was only fair to let him explain. She did love him, and she'd never feel right unless she had given him a chance.

"All right. But hurry."

"Then, you do care? You're not really going to run out and leave me flat? I didn't think you would, honey."

"I said I'd listen."

"Jo." Art suddenly swept her into his arms. "Jo, I don't blame you for getting sore. I shouldn't have taken the car, knowing you wanted it this afternoon. But," he paused to grin, "the fact is I saw you drive off from in front of the office. I wanted to teach you a lesson. That's why I hatched up that story about the garage. You see, I went up there this afternoon to make arrangements to have them give you driving lessons. That's what gave me the idea. I was at the garage when I called. And that's why I was so late in getting home."

Jo, both arms about Art's shoulders, reached inside her bag, extracted the note and crumpled it into nothingness.

Made Columbus Day Holiday

Colorado was the first state in the Union to make Columbus day a legal holiday. The bill providing for this was signed April 1, 1907.

Senator Tydings declared he was dissatisfied with prosecution of the war and that Americans wanted "this government shaken down to a war-time basis." They want frills eliminated and every dollar made to count.

HOW MARYLAND MOTHERS' HEALTH IS SAFEGUARDED

Pre-Natal Clinics in State Last Year Helped 2,500 Mothers

Emphasizing the need of every expectant mother for medical advice, continuous supervision and attention during the entire period before the baby arrives, skilled care at confinement, and for some time afterwards, Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health, said that last year over 2,5000 mothers-to-be, in the Counties of Maryland, had the benefit of supervision of this sort at the pre-natal clinics held throughout the States.

Started in 1928, in a single county, for the benefit of mothers of limited means, the service has gradually been extended, Dr. Knox said, to other counties. It is available now to expectant mothers in twenty of the twenty-three counties of the State.

In each county where they are held, the clinics are arranged by the County Health Officer, with the approval of the local physicians and the County Medical Society. They are conducted in cooperation with the Bureau of Child Hygiene by physicians with special training and experience in services of this sort and are held at some central place at a regular time, each month. Follow-up care, according to the instructions of the clinic physicians, is given to the expectant mothers in their homes, by the public health nurses.

The pre-natal services are planned especially for expectant mothers who cannot afford the services of private physicians. They include a preliminary physical examination, measurements, blood tests, periodical tests of the urine, advice as to diet, personal hygiene and as to preparations for confinement. Return visits to the clinics are made by the mothers at regular intervals for further instruction and advice. Care at the time of confinement is not included, but advice and assistance are given in making the necessary arrangements for care at home, or if advisable, in a hospital.

"Services of this sort," Dr. Knox continued, "safeguard two lives—the life of the baby as well as the life of the mother. Mothers come through the waiting period much more safely and the babies who have had a share in pre-natal care have a much better start in life than do those of the mothers who drift along without medical supervision.

"It is the responsibility of the fathers as well as of the mothers to arrange for these pre-natal services and to see that the advice and instruction of the doctor and the public health nurse are carefully followed.

"Information about the pre-natal services, the dates and places where the clinics are to be held may be obtained by those who are interested, from the County Health Departments."

THE REPUBLICAN

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS . . . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

Copyright by The Baltimore Sun and reprinted in The Republican by permission.

Justified Resentment

Much has been written about the lost capacity for indignation of the American people concerning the conduct of their elected Representatives in Washington. For the past eight years it has seemed that nothing could pierce their indifference; that those in authority could break almost any precedent and violate with impunity the most elemental laws of propriety.

* * *

False pretense, broken promises, blatant demagoguery all went unrebuked. So completely had New Deal policies anesthatized the people that there seemed no limit to what could be done. All of which makes the more encouraging the popular resentment manifested in various parts of the country over the recent action of Congress in voting retirement pensions to its own membership. This, considering the period, was, of course, a shocking thing to do, but for a while it appeared that, like so many other shameless performances, after the usual denunciations, it would be accepted, too.

However, it has not turned out quite that way. No sooner had the President signed the bill than the people began to wake up. Ridicule as well as abuse began to pour in on members of Congress. Out in Spokane, Washigton, the Athletic Round Table started its "Bundles for Congress" movement. Whatever happens, said the club president, "our ailing Congressmen must be made comfortable." Other organizations made themselves heard from and a bill for repeal was introduced in the House. The County officers' Association of the State of New York passed a resolution denouncing the Congressional action and favoring the repeal.

* * *

Representative Smith, of Ohio, who introduced the repeal bill, has now presented a petition for a House vote on his proposal. This is a direct reflection of public resentment and is an exceedingly healthy sign. This summer and fall every member of the Hous and one-third of the Senate come up for renomination and election. A record of having voted for or acquiesced in the Congressional pension proposal is likely to be a real political liability. A considerable number of Congressmen, looking forward to fights in close districts, are anxious to rid themselves of this weakness.

* * *

The average Congressman has no desire to present his opponent in either primary or general election an opportunity to make the charge that in the midst of a great national crisis, when every non-war expenditure should be "cut to the bone," he voted himself a pension. Clearly, that will not be an easy charge to handle when pressed by a vigorous opponent who, as he is sure to do, tells the voters that if they send him to Congress instead of the cringing incumbent he will vote to repeal this indefensible act. Visualizing this kind of attack it is not strange the repeal movement should find favor with many sitting members.

The thing that puts them in a particularly vulnerable position in this matter in the effort to sneak it through without a roll call. They succeeded in doing this in the House, and would have done so in the Senate but for Senator Byrd, of Virginia, who made a protest and demanded a roll call. He was supported by Senator Norris, of Nebraska, and a number of others, but the vote showed 47 for the pensions and only 24 against. Of course, popular feeling may evaporate. The whole thing, like many others, may be forgotten in a short time and the repeal proposal be abandoned. But at the moment members of Congress are sweating dreadfully over the situation.

* * *

And it is not lessening their discomfort that this pension vote in their own interests has centered public attention more strongly upon other acts which disregard the declared policy of the President that war expenditures necessitate rigid reduction in normal expenditures. Instead, one branch of Congress or the other has passed bills which involve so profligate a use of the public funds as to endanger the credit of the country and threaten to nullify every effort to maintain even a semblance of financial equilibrium.

* * *

For example, there is the proposal to pension all civilian workers—or their widows—who were engaged in construction of the Panama Canal twenty-eight years ago. This would add close to two million a year to the pension load. Through insistence of Senator Pepper, of Florida, it was jammed through the Senate and now goes to the House. But, previously, the House had passed two pension bills for widows, children and parents of World War veterans, without regard to cause of the veteran's death." These bills are now under Senate consideration. If passed they will ultimately add billions of dollars to the pension load and wipe out the last vestige of the pension reductions of 1933. Various other proposals involving free war insurance for civilians as well as for soldiers, free mail privileges and reduced railroad rates for all members of the armed forces, etc., etc., are in the affing.

* * *

In brief, the trend of Congress is toward an expenditure of the public funds along pension lines so unrestrained as to threaten financial chaos. There is no surer way to weaken our war effort and aid our enemies than unchecked continuation in this direction. The popular resentment over the self-pensioning vote is in the national interest. And it is in the national interest that this resentment should not subside. Congressmen, whether Democrats or Republicans, who by support of these proposals are throwing Federal finances wholly out of control, deserve to be beaten when they come up for renomination and election this year.

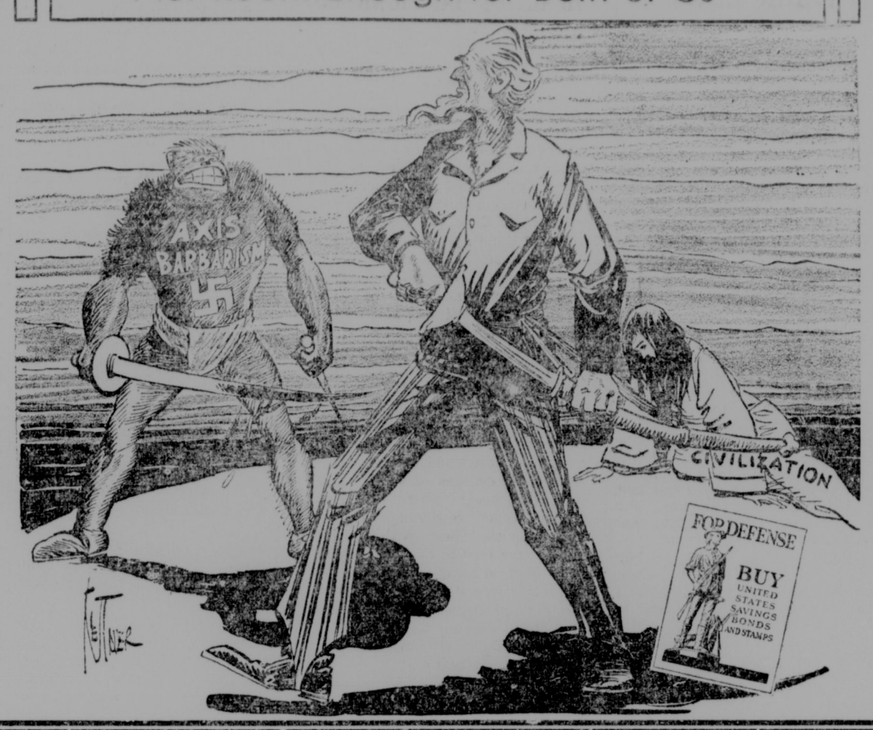
Not Room Enough for Both of Us



Turning Over An Old Leaf

By Phillip A. Gladheim

"There were faces to remember in the Valley of the Shadow:
There were faces unregarded, there were faces to forget;
There were fires of grief and fear that are a few forgotten ashes;
There were sparks of recognition that are not forgotten yet."

Mr. Reynard, popularly known as the Fox, has been conspicuous in literature and books on morals from the remote times when Aesop wrote his fables to these modern days of cinema and comics. Of all the animals most nearly resembling the character traits of a human being, the fox seems to take first place.

The sportsman might not know the literary pedigrees of the fox, but he does know something of his clever habits of living and ways of escape in times of pursuit.

The conservationist lists the fox with vermin, destructive to the wildlife of field and stream. So there is a price on his head. Along then with the sport there is the lawful necessity of hunting him.

Now February in these parts is particularly ideal for the hunting of this clever little animal. It is minus the frills, the elaborate haberdashery of the brilliant red costumes, highly polished boots, smartly groomed horses, and the pomp and circumstance attending fox hunting in the social calendar of the idle rich. Along with their pens of pedigreed hounds, they keep a goodly supply of foxes penned up. And when the hunt begins they release one of these poor imprisoned animals, that in the meanwhile has become 'tamed' by his confined mode of living. The result is tame sport amidst a spectacle of gentlemen and ladies trying to show how accurately they have adopted the customs of the English country-side. This is one of America's idiotic habits, among certain people that they must imitate the customs of foreigners and they could not be persuaded to hunt save in mild weather—spring and fall.

But fox hunting in Garrett county is a realistic sport and has had a diversified history. The most extensive development of the cult in our county was around forty years ago—so far as my knowledge goes. I would like to know of other groups of sportsmen who had developed their group with the same thoroughness, both in the art of hunting the fox and in the fellowship of common interests that grew out of it.

I recall the nucleus of one group. They were men who lived in our Accident community: Harvey Speicher, Fred Burkhardt, John Geis, Henry Speicher and Dr. 'Bob' Ravenscroft. I can still recall some of their stories which they would tell around 'old ironsides' in Floyd Diehl's store back in 1912 and '13. These stories were reminiscences of February fox-hunting at the turn of the century. These men were then in their physical prime. They kept fine kennels of full-blooded hounds and they hunted on fine horses. There was no fanfare—and no dress parade—but there was hardy adventure, taking them on a chase over several mountain ridges where it was treacherous going through deep snow drifts for man and horse.

They woulud often get lost in a blinding blizzard miles and miles from home—perhaps be soaking wet with perspiration, both horse and man, and finding it necessary to make a fire somewhere on a windswept mountain, and there spend the night alone. Here was no imitation of external customs—these men made their own. It is out of such groups of men who identify themselves naturally to their own landscape—and adopt its risks in good spirited hardihood that makes for the authentic folk-lore of this land.

I would recommend that either Henry Speicher or Dr. 'Bob' Ravenscroft write a series of stories, dealing with that period. Speaking of Henry Speicher, I recall a large handsome fox hound, solid black save for a slight touch of tan, which was his pride.

Clarence B. Kelland, Republican national committeeman, declared politics was indispensable in replying to Flynn of the Democratic committee, who suggested a political recess. Kelland said "The hope of the world is in the ballot boxes of America.

Burma Road Is The Lifeline Of The Chinese Empire

By CHARLES M. UPHAM,
International Highway Authority

The "Road to Mandalay," immortalized by Kipling, was a water route traveled only by boat. Modern China has, however, given this phase new meaning. For the literary importance of Kipling's sea road is today matched by the military significance of the overland road to China's fight for freedom.

The Burma Road, 22,100 miles across the Chinese and Burmese wastelands, is the lifeline of the free Chinese government in its war with Japan. Starting at Rangoon, India, free China's only available seaport of any size, it blazes north to Mandalay. Paralleling the railway to Lashio, it snakes thru wild and remote country along the route of the Old Tribute Road to Chungking. Marco Polo took the same trail 600 years ago.

The road as it exists today was built in sections over a long span of years. The Chinese government began to rush its construction after the Japanese invasion in 1937. In fact, China embarked upon a giant road-building program at that time as a vital part of her defense program. Engineers have constructed 50,000 miles of modern roads through previously untouched and isolated wastelands in the past four years. All of these roads have been built in the vast, remote provinces of western China which, before the war, were totally undeveloped economically and industrially.

Within a year after Japan entered China, the nation lost 90 per cent of her industries which were centered in the rich coastal provinces. Faced with economic defeat, her coolies moved 385,000 tons of industrial equipment into the interior, 1,500 miles away, in one of the epic migrations of history. Developement of China's West faced an initial setback because of the total lack of modern roads and transportation facilities. However, thanks to training in the United States and Great Britain, China had a well-equipped corps of engineers and technicians upon which to draw in this emergency. All engineers were immediately mobilized by the government and road building, to speed movement of troops, material and supplies, was undertaken as a first major defense project.

The first job undertaken and the first completed, because of its strategic importance, was the Burma Road. They replaced chain-and-plank bridges with concrete spans, laid a quick-draining gravel surface, rolled it with huge boulders drawn by water buffaloes. Two hundred thousand Chinese engineers and coolies worked to complete this road within a year and a half, though modern engineers had estimated that seven years would be needed for its construction.

Constructions of highways through the Northwest to connect China's war capital with Eastern Asia was started next. More than one million farmers, soldiers, peasant women and young boys, equipped with little modern machinery, cut 3,000 miles of roads out of almost solid rock. They used spades and picks, for the most part, and carried the road over 5,000-foot mountain passes. One difficult section of this highway was built almost entirely by an army of women, with their babies slung on their backs and armed with axes, pickes, kitchen knives and scoops. Another vital supply route which crosses the Northwest border into Russia was built by 20,000 soldiers and civilians. Weekly bus passenger service is maintained over this road. The important Chinese highway which connects Chengtu with Paochi was built by 200,000 farmers under the supervision of engineers.

With seaports and railroads in Japanese hands, China must depend almost solely on Burma Road for materials for her troops. It was found that, while lease-lend funds allocated to China will buy about 800,000 tons of merchandise, only about 10,000 tons a month can now get into the interior. American trucks carry most of the traffic.

So important is the Burma Road to the continuing welfare of free China that it has become symbolic as the lifeline of the nation. Without this road it would be impossible for China to get the food and war supplies that enable her to continue her struggle for existence.

Within recent months China is also building another outlet through India, in case the Japanese seize part of the Burma road.

A Touch Of Red For February

Have you ever tried creamed cheese and cranberry sauce together? The two make a very pleasing combination for open-face sandwiches. The cream cheese and cranberry sauce may be either blended and spread on the bread or the bread may be spread with cream cheese and the cranberry sauce cut into small decorations, such as hearts or hatchets, and placed on the cheese.

Cranberry-Orange Sandwich Spread

Combine two parts jellied cranberry sauce, crushed with one part orange marmalade. Spead on bread for sandwiches, or serve with toast or muffins.

Cranberry-Peanut Butter Spread

Combine two parts jellied cranberry sauce, crushed, with one part peanut butter. Blend well. Use as a filling for sandwiches or as a spread on crackers.

Cranberry-Rice Dessert

Use a cup of the crushed bits of cranberry sauce, or half of the one pound can of cranberry sauce to make this tempting pink and white dessert. It's fun to make, because the ingredients can be put together in a jiffy, and the results are so surprisingly delicious!

One cup boiled rice, 1 cup whipped cream, 1½ tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup jellied cranberry sauce, crushed; ½ teaspoon grated orange rind.

Salt rice to taste. Sweeten whipped cream with sugar and flavor with vanilla. Combine with rice and fold in cranberry sauce and orange rind. To be served very cold. Serves six.

Jellied Cranberry-Apple Salad

One package lemon gelatin, 1 cup boiling water, ½ one-pound can jellied cranberry sauce, 1 apple, ½ orange, 1 teaspoon lemon juice.

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water and chill until it begins to thicken. Crush cranberry sauce. Grind apple and orage, leaving skins on. Combine sauce with fruits and lemon juice. Add to gelatin. Pour into molds to chill until firm, or pour into refrigerator tray and cut in squares when ready to serve. Serve on lettuce with creamy mayonnaise. Serves six.

MT. LAKE PARK

A Soldier to a Sweetheart

"The time has come when we all must fight
For Liberty, love and things which make right.
We may be stunned, but we'll never be beat
By a yellow Jap and a dirty cheat.

"I'll be leaving this country in a week or two
And there's just one thing I would ask of you—
A letter, a picture, or a lock of your hair
To help me fight while I'm over there.

"Remember Pearl Harbor, and the others too.
We'll get those Japs if it's the last thing we do—
And 'till we come back from across the sea
I'll pray to our God you'll be waiting for me."

The following was printed in the Sunday Tampa, Fla., Tribune, under the heading "As Tribune Readers See It." The author, Forrest Welling, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Welling, and is with the 68th Bombing Squadron, McDill Field, Tampa, Fla. Perhaps we should say was at Tampa. At the present moment his whereabouts is not known other than the fact that the Squadron was ordered on active duty somewhere.

And speaking of prayer—one must not forget that there is a Prayer Service being held on Friday afternoon at the Bethel church, here. The time is 2:30. Make it a point to attend this service.

Friday of last week there were 22 members of the knitting class in attendance at the home of Mrs. John Stevenson, Sr. Many finished articles were turned in at that time.

Tonight (Thursday) at the school house in Mt. Lake the P.-T. A. will have a meeting of unusual interest. The subject to be discussed is "The Psychology underlying the Pupil's Report Card." Speakers will be Professor Merle Frantz, of the Loch Lynn school, and Miss Gladys Hamill, of Shallmar school. Time, 7:30.

On Friday evening of this week, February 20th, the Ladies Bible class of the Bethel Methodist church will meet at 7:30 in the home of Mrs. John Stevenson, Sr. Hostesses will be Mrs. Stevenson and sister, Mrs. F. M. Deane.

Mrs. Daniel Butler, who sustained a serious injury on Monday evening, breaking her leg, is doing as well as can be expected. Mrs. Butler was returning from the home of a neighbor when she fell into a hole. X-rays were taken and it may be found necessary to remove her to a hospital. Mr. Butler is an employe of the Celeanese plant in Cumberland.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Turney, Sr., have received word that their son, Harry, Jr., stationed at Jefferson Barracks, Missouri, is able to be out of the hospital after an illness of several days.

Miss Katharine O'Donnell, of the local post office, reports a record sale of $1,625.00 for one week on Defense Savings Bonds.

Miss Sue Sweitzer, a student at the Frostburg State Teachers college, Frostburg, is home for a short visit with her mother, Mrs. Wilma Shipley and her grandmother, Ollie Sweitzer.

Miss Helen Schooley had as her guests last week, Mr. Herschell Nine, of Akron, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pickering, of Detroit, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nine, of Elkins, W. Va.

F. E. Baker, of the Board of Missions, has returned to his home in Evanston, Ill., after a short business trip here.

Mrs. A. V. Schaeffer and daughter, Mrs. Albert Brown were visitors to Bayard, W. Va., last Wednesday.

Miss Hardie and sister, Miss Kitty Hardie, long summer residents, are now in Miami, Fla., and expect to return to the Park in the early spring.

Mrs. Wilma Shipley and sister, Miss Glenna DeWitt, and Master Richard Mussard spent Sunday at Brownsville, Pa.

Dale White, of Cumberland, visited his mother, Mrs. George Zimmerman, last week.

Rev. Olonzo Fike and Mrs. Fike were visitors in Aurora, last Saturday.

Mason Callis spent last week-end with his brother and family, in Accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Shockley spent the week-end with Mrs. Shockley's parents, at Gorman.

Morgan Mosser, of Washington, Pa., was a visitor here last week at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Mosser.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Kisner are in Pittsburgh, called there by the serious illness of their daughter.

West Virginia Buys Area Near Brookside

Wayside Park Is Planned For Land

The purchase of 118½ acres of wooded land near Aurora for development as a "wayside park" was announced by State Conservation Director T. D. Gray, of West Virginia.

Mr. Gray said the land, bought by the State Conservation Commission from Branson L. Haas, was acquired primarily because it was grown over with an expansive stand of virgin hemlock timber. The tract also has on it virgin hardwood trees which adds to its value. It is near the Garrett county border line.

Located between Brookside and Aurora on U. S. Route 50, the land will be cleaned and made ready for use as a picnic ground and recreational spot. An eight acre lake formerly was contained in the tract and probably will be developed again as soon as funds and opportunities permit, Mr. Gray added. No definite plans have been made regarding the lake, however.

Mr. Gray pointed out that this development by the Conservation Commission differed from that of the State Roads Commission which has launched a program of building roadway parks adaptable as rest spots for tourists of West Virginia.

The Preston tract, he said, contains a large tract of forest land and can be developed into a project comparable to an official State Park.

The deed for the land, whose price was not announced, has been recorded in the court house in Kingwood, Mr. Gray said.

AURORA-EGLON

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday afternoon, at Leadmine Methodist church, for Odan R. Evans, who was almost instantly killed Saturday night, near Parsons, when the automobile in which he was riding, driven by his brother-in-law, William Judy, also of Leadmine, left the highway on Slip hill, plunged fifty feet, turned over and pinned both men under the car. Mr. Evans was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Evans, of Leadmine, who survives with his wife, Verda Van Meter Evans, three small children, and several brothers and sisters. Mr. Judy was badly injured, and is a patient in the Tucker County hospital. He is expected to recover.

Arlie Slabaugh, of near Gnegy church, underwent a major operation in an Elkins hospital Friday, February 13. His condition is described as serious.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Fike and family, of Cash Valley, motored to Accident, Sunday, where they visited Mrs. Fike's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. King. The Kings were formerly of Eglon.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Fike moved recently into their newly constructed house, near Red House.

Harvey and Homer Fike, brothers, and Charles Lipscomb, all of near Eglon, who have been working for some time, at Morgantown, went to Fairmont, Tuesday, where they now have employment.

Mrs. Lydia Wotring, of near Aurora, who has been ill for several months, is at present much improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Selders moved Wednesday, into their new house, located near Red House.

Ray Judy, of Eglon, who was confined to his bed for more than a week, suffering of a bad cold and followed by a severe head gathering, was able to return to his work in Fike's store, on Wednesday.

The World Day of Prayer will be observed at the Methodist church, Aurora, Friday, February 20, in which members of the three churches of this community will participate.

The District Young People's meeting and Round Table was held at Keyser, last Sunday afternoon and evening. Approximately 25 young people of the Maple Spring congregation attended.

Mrs. Saloma Slaubaugh was pleasantly surprised on Sunday, when all of her children and several grandchildren, gathered at their home at Eglon, commemorating her 80th birthday anniversary.

Gay Wotring, Aurora, is now employed as agent for the People's Life Insurance Company, a vacancy made recently by the resignation of W. C. Mankins, of Rowlesburg.

Mrs. Eliza Arnold, of near Sunnyside, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Sarah Fike, of Eglon.

Mrs. Stella Mosser, who makes her home with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Teets, near Eglon, has been ill for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman White, and Mrs. White's sister, Miss Elva Lantz, of Baltimore, spent the week-end with relatives in this community.

Rev. and Mrs. John S. Fike, and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse F. Harsh spent Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. Lloyd Harsh, Eglon.

Harry Buckley, who has employment near Morgantown, is spending a couple weeks at his home at Brookside.

Roy Martin, who was a medical patient in an Elkins hospital for several days, returned to his home near Red House, Friday.

Single copies of The Republican may be obtained at the Hamill Book and Stationery Store, corner Third and Alder streets, where the current issue of the paper is placed on sale every Thursday afternoon. Price, 5 cents per copy.

Lenten Week of Prayer Planned February 23-27

The services will be in the Lutheran church and will be at 7:45 p. m., every night except Monday, which will be at 8:30. The public is invited to attend.

Mrs. Karl F. Kahl will be the leader Monday evening for the topic "We Meet Our Father in His World." Mrs. B. H. Sincell will lead Tuesday evening on "We Meet Our Father in His Word."

The regular mid-week union Lenten service will be held in the Lutheran church at 7:30 on Wednesday.

Mrs. Mary Fridinger will lead Thursday's meeting on "We Meet Our Father in His Work," and on Friday Mrs. Newton Coplin will lead on "We Meet Our Father in His Will."

World Day of Prayer

The World Day of Prayer will be held in the Methodist church at 3 p. m., on Friday, February 20. Mrs. W. W. Grant is the leader.

Mt. Lake Park Calls For Civilian Defense Meeting

A meeting of the citizens of Mt. Lake Park for civilian defense activity has been called by Mayor C. Oscar Hall for next Thursday evening at 7:30 at the Mt. Lake Park school house.

Mr. Hall said that about 60 volunteers for civilian defense are needed for the area, but that thus far only about 30 had signed. He urged the attendance of the 30 and many more who would volunteer during the emergency. He said he had asked Robert Stewart, of Edgewood Arsenal, to be present and address the group.

THE POCKETBOOK of KNOWLEDGE BY TOPPS

DIARY OF THE WAR

FRIDAY—British still held up Jap invaders at Singapore. British were holding approaches to Burma road hurled back to Jap attacks along Salween. Fighting was inconclusive in Dutch Indies although there was silence in Borneo and Celebes. There was little activity in Philippines but Japs occupied a small island, Masbate in center of group. Red armies were still advancing but Nazis were hitting back hard. A fight in Dover strait was in progress as Nazi warships endeavored to slip into Helgoland base. An official report on Marshall and Gilbert island raid said Japs had lost five warships and many planes.

SATURDAY — British still held Singapore. British were shocked by news that German battle fleet was loose in North Atlantic and a shake-up appeared imminent. Chinese troops poured into Burma to join in defense against Japs there. In Philippines Jap bombers bombed their own lines by mistake. Ground action was limited. Dutch fired the harbor district of Macassar on Celebes which Japs are trying to use as base for invasion of Java. Red troops entered White Russia which is on the old Polish frontier. Red ships reported sinking of five Nazi transports in northern waters. Senator Tydings asked for at least a fighting effort to save Philippine forces.

SUNDAY — Army bombers struck at Jap shipping in Macassar area. Picked Jap troops attacked Palembang in Sumatra but defendants wiped out parachutists and were putting up a stubborn fight. Jap lines around Singapore were still shelled by British guns but Japs had taken water supply area. British were growing more critical of Churchill's management of affairs. Japs in Burma forced another crossing of the Salween river. British pounded Nazi bases in Libya. There was increased pressure for an inquiry into fire on the Normandie.

MONDAY—Singapore fell and the Japs began rushing to the Dutch island of Sumatra and its oil riches. Churchill pleaded for unity and stout hearts. Dutch killed 700 parachute troops and contested every inch the invaders advanced. In Burma Japs drove from two directions, both sides suffering heavy losses. In Philippines fresh Jap forces were apparently preparing for a new offensive. In Russia the Reds reached many sectors of Germany's basic winter line. In North Africa American made planes annihilated a squadron of thirty Axis planes. Germans and Italians sent mobile columns into a flanking movement around Tobruk. British subs sank two Axis supply ships and an armed trawler.

TUESDAY—Oil fields in Palembang in Sumatra were ablaze but in Japanese control and Java was under threat of imminent attack. British troops fell back in Burma to establish new lines. Enemy batteries were busy in Luzon and infantry were fighting in several sectors. An enemy sub shelled the island of Aruba just off Venezuela and within 700 miles of the Panama canal, and three tankers were torpedoed off the coast; a fourth was damaged. There was inconclusive maneuvering in Libya. There were reports from Turkey suggesting that Nazis were preparing to try to storm through that country toward Suez. Soviets claimed additional successes but were fighting fresh German troops. Australians were preparing to meet Jap menace. Tokyo reported Jap subs in Indian ocean. The new 35,000 ton battleship Alabama, was launched Monday, 9 months ahead of schedule. It was the 6th battleship to be launched under the defense program.

WEDNESDAY—Jap planes raided the small islands in Sundra strait between Sumatra and Java. Both Australians and Dutch were warned by their leaders that the time to win or die was now very near at hand. MacArthur's forces in Philippines were under increasing artillery fire and aerial activity. British in Burma were strengthening their line along Bilin river, only fifty miles from railroad which provisions the Burma road to China. Churchill asserted Nazi battleships had been badly damaged in dash through Dover strait. Russians reoccupied Novgorod, 120 miles below Leningrad and were about to reoccupy Kharkov in Ukraine. British in Mediterranean torpedoed and left aflame two cruisers and two destroyers. RAF operations over desert in Libya were reinforced by Free French fighters. British scored two hits on Nazi ships off Norway. Loss in Jap pilots in Singapore was estimated at 200. A Filipino mess sergeant was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor by the War department for work in Philippines.

THURSDAY—A sharp turn for the worse was indicated on Burma front as Japs crossed Bilin river but British delivered heavy air raids on Jap forces. Chinese troops were crossing into Thailand to relieve pressure on Burma. Dutch fighters shot down five Jap planes as enemy tried to raid naval base. Dutch also fought bitterly on Borneo, Sumatra and Celebes islands. American fighter planes knocked down 4 Jap planes off Java. More enemy troops arrived in Philippines and a coming decisive battle was imminent. Enemy subs off Venezuela were driven off before they could loose any torpedoes. On Russian front Soviet heavy artillery was thundering, but few specific successes were reported. Axis forces retired 20 miles in Libya.

Thirteen more Japanese nationals were arrested in Sacramento, Calif., by FBI agents and twenty raids conducted. Jap navy uniforms and secret documents were found.

Seven hundred million ration cards for sugar will be ready March 7.

Ready and Waiting

You see here one of the finest military airplanes in the world. It is a pursuit plane of the United States Army Air Corps. A fighter. It looks very efficient; yet, as it stands, there is something lacking. It needs a pilot. Without a pilot it must stay on the ground. Our fighting planes belong in the air. That is why the Army is seeking young men for training as Aviation Cadets in the Air Corps—to fly planes like these.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 66. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, MARCH 5, 1942. NUMBER 2.

Keep It Clean . . . . . .

We've got to fight more than the Axis today. We must even fight a part of ourselves—the part that believes rumors, for example, and passes them on to others. For unfounded stories can sometimes be as destructive as fifth columns.

Recently we've heard a lot about shortages. Aluminum, rubber, sugar—the list is growing, and some of us see shortages all around us. Like the traditional old maid, we even look under the bed at night to see what isn't there. We must remember that we still have more than enough of many products. And we must stop believing and spreading rumors about imagined scarcities.

A short time ago many women began to believe that American soap companies wouldn't be able to supply us with enough soap. Some who live in rural areas began hunting up the old iron soap buckets their mothers had used years ago. They started to make their own soap. In doing so they began to hamper America's war effort, and the War Production Board is now asking them to stop, because valuable glycerine is lost when soap is made at home.

Glycerine, it seems, is a by-product of commercial soap manufacturing and today it is badly needed to make explosives. Like other industries doing war work, the soap companies are stepping up their production. They're working so hard to make glycerine that the tables are turned and soap is almost a by-product of their efforts now. The cart's before the horse this time, and it's even helping to pull!

Winning the war is going to be a huge job, and we must all do our part. As this story shows, we can sometimes do that in simple ways—just by not making soap, for example, and by saying "no soap" to rumors.

FULL FLEDGED BLIZZARD SWEEPS ENTIRE COUNTY

Fourteen to Twenty Inches of Snow Causes Slow-up of Business and Traffic in Area

A full-fledged March blizzard that swept over Garrett county Monday night and Tuesday left from fourteen to twenty inches of snow and caused quite a slow-up in travel, business and communications. The storm abated yesterday.

It was by far the heaviest snowfall of the year and choked many secondary roads and for a time entirely closed route 40 west of Frostburg and route 219, near Red House. Both roads however, were reopened for traffic on Wednesday. Rising winds on Monday and Tuesday night made heavy drifts and added trouble for highway crews trying to keep the way clear.

Most school buses made their scheduled trips on Tuesday morning but the pupils were scarce and all were ordered to return home immediately before the highways drifted shut. Both Elementary and High schools closed at noon. Only four or five buses made the trip Wednesday and they came only half full of students, so schools were ordered closed again at noon. About 80 per cent of the pupils in the Oakland schools are bus children. Conditions were improved this morning.

Telegraph service in the area was out part of Tuesday and trains ran on delayed schedules Tuesday and Wednesday. Business and traffic were at a minimum. Many telephone poles and lines were down in portions of Maryland east of Garrett county.

Grantsville reported a snowfall of around 20 inches, with drifts several feet high. Schools were dismissed there also and rural mail carriers were unable to complete their routes.

Leo T. Downey, state roads supervisor for Western Maryland, said his crews were doing everything they could to clear route 40 west of Frostburg to the state line and keep it clear.

In the recreation area around New Germany the snowfall reached 18 or 19 inches and state roads workmen expected to have the roads there open after the main highways were cleared. It was expected the ski tourney could be held this week-end.

In some instances along route 40 the snowdrifts exceeded the height of cars stalled along the road, according to State police.

The one bright spot in the storm was the fact that the temperature remained moderate, slightly below freezing.

Education Board Revises Requirements On Certification

During the emergency and for six months thereafter, the State Board of Education at its meeting last week, in Baltimore, revised teacher certification regulations that now permit issuance and renewal of expired advanced first grade certificates that are based on three years normal school work and also issuance and renewal of expired first grade certificates that are based on two years normal school work.

The regulations also permit a certificate expiring in 1942 for which the full four year requirement has been met, upon recommendation of the county superintendent to be renewed for two years without summer school credits. If summer school credits are presented, the renewal will be for the regular four-year or six-year period.

None of these stipulations applies if teachers with higher qualifications are available.

Well On The Way To Become Pilots

Three Oakland young men are well on their way to becoming pilots in the United States Army. Official stories have been released about them within the past week.

The young men are James Logan Weber and Jack E. Weber, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Weber, whose home is located a mile east of town, and Robert E. Browning, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cheston H. Browning, Alder street, Oakland.

Logan Weber is now at Randolph Field, Texas, the "West Point of the Air", and is training in his 450-horsepower plane, pointing his way toward a second lieutenant's commission, which he will receive in a few weeks at an advanced flying school where he will pilot a still faster and more powerful war aircraft.

He received his bachelor of science degree from the University of Maryland in 1936 and prior to entering the flying force of the nation he was an assistant of his father at the Weber Greenhouses. He is a member of Sigma Phi Sigma, social fraternity and Alpha Zeta, honorary agricultural fraternity. He began his flight training at the Spartan School Aeronautics.

Jack E. Weber, U. S. Army cadet, was included in a list of names published by Lieut. Harold E. Kelly, commandant of cadets, to replace officers of Class 42-D, who have completed training at Shaw Field, Sumter, S. C. Sgt. Weber has been studying aviation at Shaw Field since January 8 and will not become an upper classman with other members of Class 42-E.

Aviation Cadet Robert E. Browning has been commissioned a lieutenant in the aviation cadet detachment at the army flying school at Enid, Oklahoma. Browning, member of Class 42-E, was appointed when Class 42-D left the school to take up training at an advanced flying school and caused 42-E to become the upper group at the new pilot training field.

Cadet officers and non-commissioned officers act as supervisors over other cadets in both their own and lower classes. They carry their ranks through the rest of their basic training period.

Browning's class will complete pilot training at advanced flying schools May 27 and its members will be commissioned as second lieutenants and rated as U. S. Army Air Corps pilots at that time.

Appointed to Scout Post in Philadelphia

Announcement of the appointment of Joseph J. Davis, former commissioner of the Deep Creek District, Boy Scouts of America, to the position of field executive of the Philadelphia, Pa., council, was made this week.

Davis attended the national training school for scout executives at the Schiff Reservation, Mendham, N. J., in January and gained a high rating, having been named senior patrol leader.

A native of New York state, Davis came to Western Maryland three years ago at which time he was the forester assigned to the Meadow Mountain CCC camp. As a boy he was an Eagle scout and was a forestry graduate of Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

In 1941 Davis served as chairman of the Deep Creek district committee and was named district commissioner for 1942.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis and their son are moving from Oakland to Philadelphia, this week.

SEVEN CANDIDATES ARE LISTED FOR CITY COUNCIL

Election Will Be Held Monday, March 9; No Contest For City Treasurer Or Mayor

Interest in the city election, scheduled for Monday, March 9, will be centered in the competition for positions on the City Council, with seven candidates battling for three places.

There will be no competition for the positions of Mayor or City Treasurer, as only the present incumbents filed for re-election.

Candidates for City Council are Earl Shartzer and Raymond D. Houck, whose terms expire and who are out for re-election; Virgil B. Kelley, W. A. Johnson, Harry Stemple, James A. Towler and A. G. Hesen. Mayor L. M. Fraley filed for re-election, as did Richard L. Davis, for City Treasurer.

The law provides that candidates must file their petitions at the City Council chamber ten days prior to election, and this time was up last Thursday afternoon at four o'clock.

For a time it appeared that there would be only three candidates—Messrs. Shartzer, Kelley and Johnson, but a last minute rush brought in four more.

Balloting will take place at the City Council chamber and polls will be open from 9:00 A. M. until 6:00 P. M., where all citizens who are duly registered may cast their ballots.

Apparently no particular issues are involved in the election and as the candidates are not divided as to political faith in town elections no difficulties in major party arguments are expected.

Citizens will have the privilege of writing in names for the three positions—Mayor, Town Treasurer and Councilmen—if they prefer.

New Defense Classes To Be Organized Here

Enrollment Will Take Place In Oakland High School Monday Evening

Due to the increased demand for workers in skilled and semi-skilled trades, the National defense training program is being expanded in Oakland, it was announced this morning by F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools.

A new class in metal work is being organized and will be conducted five evenings each week in Shirer's Metal Shop. This training will include spot welding, acetylene welding, riveting, sheet metal layout and sketching, and sheet metal forming. This class will be able to accept about 15 trainees.

There will be approximately 10 vacancies in the automobile and body repair class, which operates four hours per evening, five evenings a week under the supervision of Kirk Cosner.

Two new classes are to begin in Electric and Acetylene Welding. These classes can accommodate about twenty each. One group meeting on Monday through Thursday from 6:30 p. m. to 11:30 p. m., and the other group meeting ten hours on Saturday and ten hours on Sunday. Although there is a waiting list at present for the welding classes, it will be necessary to enroll if you wish to be admitted within the near future. Enrollment will take place in Oakland High school Monday evening, March 9, at 7:30 o'clock.

Persons interested in future training may also enroll any evening with A. G. Hesen at the training center.

There is no charge for any training offered under this program, and an appropriate certificate of training is issued by the United States Office of Education to those successfully compppleting the work.

Will "Think It Over"

Representative Katherin Byron has not as yet determined to be a candidate for re-election, according toan Associated Press dispatch from Washington.

Asked for a statement, Mrs. Byron said that the Maryland primary is not until fall and that she would "be thinking it over until July."

Speak At Lions Club

O. T. Graser, vocational agriculture instructor, Oakland High school, and John H. Carter, county agent, were the guest speakers at the meeting of the Oakland-Mt. Lake Park Lions club Monday evening. Their subjects concerned the problems of the Garrett county farmers.

Walter L. Hull, county roads engineer, was a guest of the club.

Becomes Certified Public Accountant

At the regular monthly meeting of the Maryland Association of Certified Public Accountants, held at the Emerson Hotel, Baltimore, several days ago, Fred. W. Reis, formerly of Deer Park, received his certificate as such. His name was among the forty successful candidates of a large group.

Mr. Reis was graduated from Oakland High School in 1922, in the commercial department, and for the past several years has been attending a night school in Baltimore to increase his knowledge. He is a son of Mrs. F. W. Reis and the late Mr. Reis, of Deer Park.

$40,000 Received And Spent by City in 1941

Financial Statement of Town of Oakland Released for Publication Today

The annual financial statement of the town of Oakland was released for publication this morning following the final meeting of the present council last night, and shows receipts during the year of $40,612.84, and expenditures of $40,446.22, a record year both for receipts and expenditures.

There is a surplus on hand amounting to $166.62, to start out the new year. The receipts included loans from the First National Bank of $7,300, and the expenditures included repayment of loans amounting to $4,800 and interest of $102.30.

The report which appears on another page of this newspaper shows that the income from taxes amounted to $14,580.90; from the water department, $11,071.25; and from other items, including the bank loan, $14,774.78. Tax collections went back as far as 1930.

The water department again showed a profit, expending $8,800.39. Receipts from the golf course totaled $750.00. Expenditures there this year totaled $4,907.51, net. This included land at $200 and the clubhouse, $5,169.99. Donations toward the clubhouse amounted to $842.13 which were included in the $5,169.99.

Other land purchased amounted to $1,000. Bonds and coupons paid included electric bond No. 20 of $1,000 and electric coupons of $1,275; water and sewerage bond No. 31, of $1,000, and coupons of $1,475; reservoir bond No. 4, of $1,000, and coupons of $480; community building bond No. 1 of $1,000, and coupons of $402.50.

The town owes nothing except its bonded indebtedness, amounting to $58,000 for water and sewerage, electric, reservoir and community building bonds. Thus far 14 community building bonds have been sold, four of them this year. Purchases have included the Helbig property at $8,000, the lot on Third street at $4,000. Architects have been paid $750.00.

The itemized statement will be found on another page.

Other than the acceptance of the annual report of Arthur Lawton, clerk-collector, very little other business was transacted.

Delbert M. Davis, president of the Council, in the absence of Mayor L. M. Fraley, acted as mayor pro tem, while Dr. E. I. Baumgartner served as president.

Monthly bills amounted to $1,339.26 and collections were $1,116.50. This included water accounts of $312.91; taxes of $268.14, and gas tax of $450. The Sunday movie tax for the year amounted to $617.96. This was divided by law, $308.98 going to the Red Cross, $154.49 to the Library and $154.49 to the Fire Department.

More Names Added To Red Cross Roll

Since the last report of the Red Cross roll call several weeks ago there have been 15 members and $19.00 added to the totals. This makes the roll call 755 paid members of $1.00 or more, 12 donations of less than $1.00, and $891.00 handed to the treasurer. The county quota was $1,200 and Mrs. Paul B. Naylor, roll call chairman, said the drive would continue so that all may have an opportunity to join.

Recent members include Miss Dulcie M. Johnson, teacher at Lynndale, who sent $5.00, and the following regular memberships: Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Bittinger, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Otto, Joel Zook, M. W. Schaefer, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Winters, Arnold E. Fox, Mrs. Erwin Fike, Mrs. Jonas Sines, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Steyer, Mrs. George Poole, Mrs. Susan Ashby, Crellin, joined some time ago but in some manner her name was omitted in the publication of other names previous to today.

HI SCHOOL STUDENTS TO MAKE 100 MODEL PLANES

Will Be Used for Instructions in Recognizing Various Types of United States Aircraft

Students of the six high schools in Garrett county have been assigned the task of making 100 model airplanes for use by the U. S. Navy and Civilian Defense Organizations, according to F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools.

Government officials are planning to use the models to instruct Army and Navy observers, and civilians as well, to recognize the various type of airplanes by their shapes, Secretary of the Navy, Frank Knox, has announced.

The scale to which the students will work is 1 to 72. In other words one foot will represent 72 feet. Planes built on this scale and placed thirty-five feet from an observer have been calculated to produce the same outline as a regular plane a distance of half a mile.

The planes will be built without landing gears and propellers, and painted a dull black. Each plane will be examined by Government inspectors, and only accurate scale models will be accepted.

Eugene Harpold, industrial arts instructor, Kitzmiller High School, has received specifications and plans of the first twenty types to be made. Some of these will be built at Kitzmiller, and others will be distributed to schools of the county. Garrett county's quota will be two each of fifty different types, a total of one hundred planes.

Instructions Being Received on Sugar Rationing Program

War Ration Books to Be Distributed Through Elementary Schools

Preliminary instructions on the rationing of sugar in this county and how the distribution of war ration books and other information is to be effected, are now being received by officials here.

All civilians are to be instructed to make application for their war ration books at the public elementary school nearest the applicant's residence. All public elementary schools are to be used for this registration.

The dates when this registration will take place have not yet been decided, but according to Louis C. Burr, State rationing administrator, it would not be done during the tentative dates originally set.

The general responsibility for rationing of sugar in the county will center in the county rationing board, which is the same board administering the certificates for tires. Walter W. Dawson, chairman, Oakland; William L. Thomas, Grantsville; Norval Speelman, Friendsville.

Before the stamps of the war ration book may be used the person for whom it is issued must sign it as indicated. The name of a person under 1 may be signed by the parent or guardian. The first book will contain 28 war ration stamps.

Information on how to use the war ration books will be distributed at the time of registration, it was stated. F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent, has been supplied with 22,000 instruction sheets.

Union Lenten Services Continue Next Week

The fourth in a series of union midweek Lenten Services will be held next Wednesday evening at the Episcopal church with the Rev. Charles R. Stevens, Lutheran supply minister, delivering the sermon.

The service last night was held in the Methodist church with Rev. Stevens preaching. In connection with the sermon, Charles L. Briner, Jr., sang the prayer, "In a Monastery Garden."

Despite the deep snow a fair-sized congregation was in attendance at the service.

O. H. S. Parent-Teachers Plan Card Party March 12

The annual card party and games, sponsored by the Oakland High School Parent-Teachers' Association, will be held in the Oakland high school on Thursday evening, March 12.

A number of committees are planning for bingo, ping-pong and dancing in addition to card games. A minstrel, "The Gay Nineties," will be presented by students of the high school. A large attendance is being urged. Playing will begin at 8 o'clock.

New Demonstration Agent Begins Work

MISS MARIANNA LEE LONG

Sheriff Believes Wilt May Have Been Fatally Wounded

Thorough Investigation Fails to Find Any Clues of Whereabouts

Belief that Leroy Wilt may have been fatally wounded in his escape from officials several days ago near Westernport, following his jail-break along with William Wilson, was expressed by Sheriff J. W. Owens, after a thorough search of various communities had failed to reveal any information as to his whereabouts.

All investigation shows that he has not been seen by any of his acquaintances, friends or relatives, since he was cornered near Westernport on Monday afternoon, February 23. An officer fired several shots at him as he fled over an embankment, and Owens said one of the shots might have taken effect. The search however, is continuing.

Wilson was captured the same day of the break by James Burton, special police at the Savage River Dam, and has since been confined in the "bull pen" in the county jail.

In the meantime Owens also announced that Chauncey Lowdermilk and Elbert McCombie, of Friendsville, "trusties" at the jail, had confessed that they had secured the hacksaws for Wilson and Wilt, with which the two had sawed their way to freedom. Lowdermilk was due to be released from jail on Wednesday and McCombie had only a week or two more to serve. Both are now locked in their cells.

They will be charged with aiding prisoners to escape, for which they may be sentenced to as much as ten years, if convicted, Owens said.

The two women who were apprehended last week for questioning in regard to smuggling the saws to the prisoners, have been released.

Sixteen People On Tire List This Week

Certificates for new tires and tubes were issued to six people this week, but seven got retreaded truck tires, and three were permitted to buy obsolete tires, according to W. W. Dawson, chairman of the tire rationing board.

The six people got 16 truck tires and tubes, and 2 passenger tires and tubes.

The list included the following:

Trucks—Grover C. Sisler, Friendsville, 4 tires and tubes; Kenneth Lyle McRobie, Kitzmiller, 5 tires; Harvey D. Swartzentruber, 2 tires and 1 tube; C. C. Mason, Friendsville, 4 tires and tubes; Stanton's Mill, Grantsville, 1 tire and tube.

Cars—Virgin Sines, Swanton, 2 tires and tubes.

Retreads—Bert Ream, Oakland, 1; Joseph DeWitt, Sang Run, 2; James F. Hamilton, Oakland, 2; Helbig and Rollman, Deer Park, 2; Bruce E. Harvey, Deer Park, 1; Dawson Sisler, Mt. Lake Park, 1; Jimmie O'Brien, Swanton, 1.

Obsolete—Marshall Paugh, Swanton, 2 tires and tubes; John A. Shaffer, Oakland, 1 tire and tube; Leslie H. Rodeheaver, Deer Park, 1 tire and tube.

Teachers Resign

Mrs. Percy Lawton, home economics instructor in Oakland High school, has resigned her position, effective March 2, and has gone to Glen Burnie, near Baltimore, where her husband has a position in some defense industry. Her place on the teaching staff is being taken by Mrs. John H. Carter.

Mrs. Lena Georg Kenney, instructor in the Oakland Elementary school, has also resigned and her place is being filled by Mrs. Edna Baker Wright, of Crellin. Mrs. Kenney has joined her husband in Cumberland.

TALKS FEATURE VICTORY GARDEN MEETING HERE

Value And Necessity Of Home Gardens Are Pointed Out By Specialists In Extension Service

Talks by specialists in the Extension Service and by local homemakers, emphasizing the value and even the necessity of home gardens this year, featured the all-day Victory Garden school, which was conducted last Friday, February 27, in the social rooms of the Lutheran church in Oakland, under the sponsorship of the Extension Service. The talks pointed the way to successful garden practices.

Mrs. Rabecca F. Canan, president of the Garrett County Council of Homemakers, presided and opened the meeting with a discussion of gardens for Victory.

Small gardens was discussed by W. R. Ballard, extension horticulturist. He stressed the different types of seeds and planning of the garden.

Prof. Edgar P. Walls, professor of canning crops, University of Maryland, spoke on the different kinds of soil in Maryland and the care of it. He also described methods of storing vegetables.

The talk on "insect control" was given by C. Graham, extension entomologist, and illustrated with pictures showing eating and sucking insects. He discussed the common insects, peculiar to various plants and also showed simple garden tools for using poison to destroy the pests..

Small fruits and their adaptability to this part of the State were discussed by A. F. Vierheller, horticulturist, in his talk on the home fruit garden.

Mrs. Robert T. Hoffman, home demonstration agent, spoke on "Home Grown Foods for Health," and John H. Carter, county agricultural agent, spoke on "Garden Soils and Conservation."

The question, "Where Do We Go From Here?" was discussed by Mrs. Canan for the Homemakers and William Winterberg for the Farm Bureau.

County-Wide Program

In order that the home garden program did not end with the meeting last Friday, a lengthy discussion was held on ways to set up a county-wide program. Miss Marianna Lee Long, who recently came here as the new home demonstration agent, was appointed chairman of a committee to be made up of representatives of all organizations and agencies interested in the welfare of the community, whose purpose it will be to organize a Garrett County Victory Garden Program. Those attending the meeting are also to carry back the things learned at the gathering to organizations in every community in the county.

Nutrition Committee Meets

Following the Garden school the County Nutrition Committee met to hear reports and to discuss methods of extending the work of the group.

Mrs. Julius Renninger reported on the meeting at Hagerstown on February 13, attended by representatives of nutrition committee of Carroll, Allegany, Frederick, Washington and Garrett counties, and also on the Baltimore conference of the State Vocation group which met February 21.

Miss Long announced that although definite plans for classes to be organized were not available, it was certain that ten should be active within the next two months, if present plans as to instructors and transportation are carried out.

Teachers of the committee are to meet Saturday, March 7, at 9:30 in Miss Long's office to organize material for the classes, and at that time traveling schedules of the health department and welfare board will be presented and plans made to have nutrition instructors to travel with members of these agencies.

Two new members were recommended for the committee, representing the churches of the county, and they were Rev. Garrett Evans, Mountain Lake Park, and Rev. L. A. Wagner, Accident.

Circuit Court Convenes Monday

The March Term of the Garrett County Circuit Court will convene on Monday, when the Grand Jurors will report for duty, hear the Court's charge and begin their work.

The grand jury is usually in session three days. The criminal docket will not be called until Monday, March 23rd.

Sugar in Them Thar Cans

With the rationing of sugar about to become effective, we thought it high time to mention the five cans of molasses which have been on the shelf of The Republican office stockroom ever since that recipe contest last year.

A number of cans of molasses were given away for recipes and there are five ladies of the county who have never received their can.

With the rationing there is bound to be an increase of sweet teeth, and in fact such a change is already being noticed in our own household. There hasn't been candy made at our house for a long time, but the other night there was a great urge for it—just an inner urge for which there was no explanation.

But back to the original topic on cans. Mrs. Ida M. Lee, Mt. Lake Park; Mrs. Carl Stone, Oakland; Mrs. Joshua H. Turner, Avilton; Mrs. Nevin Warnick, Grantsville; and Mrs. Walter I. Friend, Swanton, are entitled to these five cans of molasses at The Republican office. But if they don't call within a reasonable time and the sweet tooth gets to thumping too hard, we're telling them here and now that the cans are going to be distributed to the office force and I am going to carry one of them home.

So here's advising all five to appear in person or by proxy.

Priority on Old Clothes

The art of "keeping up with the Joneses" may possibly take a reverse twist after March 30, for after that time "victory suits" will be made by manufacturers.

No longer will there be cuffs to keep a man's trousers from whipping about his ankles. There will be no more pleats, sporty patch pockets, nor a vest with a double-breasted suit.

This is calculated to save 40 million pounds of wool.

Since I have as much right to predict events as some of these news commentators, I'll predict the following happening in many clothing stores.

They won't kick about saving the wool, but I'll bet they buy up all the old suits before they turn to the war brand.

Now if it was women, it would be different. They're willing to try anything for a change, if they feel it is stylish. Maybe some men will try it. But after you, my dear Alfonse.

* * *

The government has asked everyone to save paper. And yet they actually cover up an editor's desk with enough publicity about various government agencies with propaganda stories that try to justify their existence, that actually 16 pages each week wouldn't take care of it all.

We want facts about government and facts about the war, but we don't need false publicity and "puffs" for useless agencies.

If they would stop hiring propagandists and press agents, they could soon streamline the government setup—if they want to.

BITTINGER

March began with the typical snow storm from the East, accompanied by high wind.

Clyde Broadwater, of Lanark, Ill., spent last week visiting his mother at her home here.

Messrs. Thomas and Edison Beachy, Detroit, Mich., are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Beachy, this week.

Lloyd Brenneman is confined to his home by illness, but at this writing his condition is said to be improving.

Mrs. Perry Broadwater is confined to her bed by an attack of pneumonia.

Blair Buckel, of the State Police force, is spending this week with his home folks.

Kenneth Buckel returned to his home here last Saturday evening after having spent a week in Baltimore and vicinity.

Richard Buckel, who is employed at the Glenn Martin airplane factory, near Baltimore, is spending a few days with his parents here.

Miss Ruth Emory returned recently from a two-weeks' visit at Frostburg.

Miss Dorothy Curran, Pittsburgh, spent the week-end with her parents, the Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Curran, here.

County Commissioner Cheston H. Browning, Oakland, passed through this village last Sunday afternoon.

Misses June and Grace Brenneman, who are employed near Cumberland, spent part of last week at their home here.

Miss Grace Detrick, Cumberland, visited her mother on Sunday.

GORTNER

Mrs. Noah Waybright, of Underwood preached on Sunday morning on "Our Wonderful Saviour." Rev. Dunson's text at the evening service was "Let Not Your Heart Be Troubled."

The Sunday school war relief contribution for war was $10.16.

Miss Fredia Lichty has returned to Meyersdale, where she is employed.

Miss Eleanor Friend, who was employed in Baltimore, returned to her home here for an indefinite stay on account of her health.

Elaine and Louise Spoerlein recently spent a night with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Spoerlein.

Governor Asked To Make March 15 Day Of Special Meaning

Federal Income Tax Due Then; Taxpayers Willing to Sacrifice But Want Frills Cut Out

Taxpayers of Maryland have called upon Governor Herbert R. O'Conor to proclaim March 15th "Taxes for Victory" day as an expression of the will of the people of Maryland, as individuals, to make any sacrifice necessary to the war effort and as a declaration of will on the part of their State and local Governments, to make comparable sacrifice in cutting out all non-essentials and waste to conserve "victory dollars" for victory.

In a letter to the Governor the Maryland Public Expenditure Council pointed out that never before in the country's history has the deadline for Federal income tax payment held such great significance to the average American—the little fellow, the worker, the farmer, the small wage earner. Millions of these average Americans, the statement said, will dig down this year to contribute, for the first time, directly to the operation of their Federal Government—contribute to the biggest, most staggering tax collection of all time.

"Because this March 15th is the first since the nation became locked in war," the letter continued, "we know that taxes will be gladly paid for victory. But just because we are at war—just because the nation is staring at danger, tax payments will be made with legitimate and increasing question as to the use to which they are put. There will be greater and greater demand by the average American, the little fellow, that his "Victory Dollars" be used to buy victory — that Government, Federal, State and local strip itself of all non essentials and waste.

Paint Companies Aid War Effort

Among countless and seldom publicized factories who are doing their bit to whip the Japs and "Little Adolph" are many well equipped paint manufacturers.

Typical of such plants are those of the Marietta Paint & Color Company located at Marietta, Ohio, and High Point, N. C.

Highly specialized finishes are required for a wide variety of products for war and defense. Shells of large and small calibre use interior acid resisting paint to hold the explosive charge—and exterior finishes for identification.

Wood boxes for packaging shells are camouflaged with Casein Paint to make them inconspicuous from the air.

Tanks, trucks, aircraft and warships all demand paint to protect surfaces from rust and deterioration—and paints also help to screen these costly implements of war from enemy eyes.

Despite the heavy demands of war time, energetic management has enabled the Marietta Paint & Color Company to maintain nearly normal production of paints, enamels and varnishes for the property owner. Distribution in the Garrett and Preston County area is exclusively handled through the Whittaker Grocery Co., of Terra Alta.

Dramatic Club Plays Postponed to March 10

The Oakland High school dramatic club plays, which were to be presented this evening in the school auditorium, are being postponed until Tuesday, March 10, on account of the deep snow.

The plays are being directed by Miss Dorothea Fridinger. Scenery for the plays is being painted by members of the Art classes under the direction of Miss Catherine Baker.

The three one-act plays scheduled are "Who Gets the Car?", "Elmer" and "Red Lamp."

Other High School News

During the past month the high school library received 125 new books, made possible by the aid of the Board of Education. There were books on travel, biographies, fiction, physical education references, and science books.

A tradition at school has been broken by the Juniors. They decided to get their school rings this year because of war conditions and the possibility of not being able to get them next year.

The seniors have decided by ballot in favor of the traditional white dresses and dark suits for graduation

Make Your Home Safe For Blackout Trials

Specific Suggestions Are Made To Prevent Home Accidents

While you are getting your house in order for a blackout—trial or otherwise—"put things that people are likely to trip over, out of the way," Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, places first on the list of things to be done to prevent home accidents.

Here are some other specific suggestions:

As a safety measure, repair loose boards, broken steps or stair-rails, if there happen to be any in your house. Don't wait for a blackout to do this.

Don't leave mops, buckets, scrubbing rags, dust brushes or brooms, on stairways, or in the halls, where people are likely to fall over them.

Pick up the children's toys and books from off the floor.

See that extension cords on lamps or other electrical equipment are firmly fastened to the wall or baseboard and not left where people can fall over them.

Put smoker's stands, bridge tables, chairs and small stools where they can't be tripped over. Arrange the other furniture of the room you plan to stay in, so that you can move about easily.

Don't polish your floors to excess. See that rugs, large and small, are tacked down firmly or are held in place so that they are not a source of danger.

Be sure your flash light is in good working order, and is where you can put your hands on it if you need it.

You may have need for your first aid kit. Keep it where you can get to it without any trouble. See that you have the necessary emergency supplies, clearly marked and easily handled.

MT. LAKE PARK

Just an old fashioned winter, or so the old timers tells us. Well, no matter whether it's new or old, Tuesday was something to "write home about." The school was closed. If you didn't have one then you were out of luck, and just about the time you had decided to where you wanted to be, then along comes a sweeping wind with great drifts of snow—then you Bond Baking Company.

Mrs. A. L. Kellar, of Morgantown, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Mears, several days last week.

John Schaeffer, who underwent a tonsil operation in Morgantown last week, is recovering nicely at his home here.

The army friends of Wilmot Bowen, son of Mrs. L. A. Purnell, will be interested to learn that he is now in Java. The word came to his wife in Los Angeles by telephone. Bowen has been in the Naval Air Service for the past eight years. He is pilot in a Bombing Squadron.

Miss Joanna Grimes, of Morgantown, spent the week-end here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bushrod Grimes.

To Give First Aid Course at Mountain Lake Park

At a citizens' meeting at Mt. Lake Park last Thursday evening plans were made for a Red Cross First Aid course, to be carried on for the registration period of 10 weeks.

The instructor will be Dr. Robert R. Williams, of Oakland, and the class will start this evening at 8 o'clock, and will be held in the school house there.

At last Thursday's meeting Dr. C. Oscar Ball, mayor, appointed the following air raid wardens for Mt. Lake Park: Mason Callis, Wiley Welling, James Williams, Rev. H. O. Teagarden, John Bayliss, Edward P. Kahl, Harry Eerser, Jack Stevenson, D. R. Flenner, John Fitzwater, George Hipsley, Bryan Shockley, Mrs. M. Brock.

shoved some more, and so it was. Even Ted Woods with the town plough and a crew of men couldn't keep up with the elements of that day and night. Anyhow, we can be glad that it waited this long to get here, for Spring is on the way. We hope; we hope.

Don't fail to be at the school house meeting on Thursday night at 7:30 when there will be another meeting for making war defense plans in our community. Last week there was a small attendance. True, we may never have to use these plans, but it's just as well to play safe, and believe it or not, there is a war going on.

There will be an important meeting on Monday night, 7:30, at the Ladies Aid Hall, of the Mickey Band ladies auxiliary. It is urged that all members be present.

Enough Sugar for Canning

Every effort is being made to have sugar available for home canning this summer, Louis C. Burr, State Rationing Administrator, has reported.

This assurance was made by A. E. Bowman, chief of the sugar section of the War Production Board, who stated that, "In our monthly allocations of refined sugar we are taking into account the sugar that will be needed for home canning."

"While the supply may be somewhat limited, just as the supply for daily consumption is already limited, it will be sufficient to enable housewives to can what they need."

ABC Chick Program Leads to Greater Poultry Success

Helpful hints for raising profitable pullets and broilers have been pouring for the last two weeks into every farm community served by Southern States Cooperative. Each Cooperative Service Agent has armed himself with the information necessary to successful chick growing. This information has been mustered under the name of the A B C Chick Growing Program. Here is what the A B C stands for . . .

Helpful poultry manual and chick growing chart supplied free on request.

A for ADEQUATE CARE AND MANAGEMENT
There are ten vital steps to careful management of chicks which spell success. They are given on a helpful, handy Chick Growing Chart that you can tack on your brooder house wall. This chart also provides an easy-to-figure record of growth, costs, and profits.

B for BALANCED HIGH QUALITY FEED
Every Cooperative Service Agency has an ample supply of freshly mixed Southern States Starting and Growing Mash with its abundance of vitamins, its balanced minerals and proteins. Here is a feed that has already grown 100 million chicks.

C for CHICKS WITH GOOD BREEDING
Blood-tested chicks with the best heritage are necessary if the money and labor it takes to grow birds is to be wisely invested.

See your nearest Southern States Cooperative Service Agent and talk over your spring poultry problems with him. Ask him about Southern States Starting & Growing Mash in the bag with the open formula tag.

Repair Classes for Farmers Are Popular

Some 300 in Two Counties Learning to Repair Tools And Machinery

Western Maryland farmers seem to be doing their part in the war effort during these winter evenings by learning how to repair their farm tools and machinery.

They're learning by doing, some 300 of them, in eight farm machinery repair classes in Allegany and Garrett counties.

The classes are enabling farmers to make repairs to tools and machinery so that there will be no necessity of purchasing new equipment that might drain metals needed for the war program. They are sponsored by the vocational education department in conjunction with the County Boards of Education.

Heading the program in the county is Eugene Harpold, industrial arts teacher at Kitzmiller. Garrett county centers are at Grantsville, Friendsville, Accident and Oakland, with instructors including John Lawrence and T. F. Edwards, Grantsville; Charley Miller and Ernest Griffith, Friendsville; Emerson Bishoff and C. J. Snyder, Accident; O. T. Graser and L. M. DeBerry, Oakland. Classes continue from eight to ten weeks and average fifteen hours per week.

In the training centers farmers are learning how to make all sorts of repairs to all sorts of equipment. The centers are equipped with machinery and tools and instructional supplies are furnished, although farmers bring their own supplies for major repairs.

Oil was getting scarce in Baltimore and vicinity.

Turning Over An Old Leaf

By Phillip A. Gladheim

"There were faces to remember in the Valley of the Shadow;
There were faces unregarded, there were faces to forget;
There were fires of grief and fear that are a few forgotten ashes;
There were sparks of recognition that are not forgotten yet."

On picking up a tourist pamphlet of Italy one is struck by the curious fact that the chief points of interest, described and illustrated, are the churches. This appears to be true in all parts of the country. This is because within these religious shrines one can gaze upon an old master. This is typical of the modern tourist: he goes to the church because he is curious about art.

To satisfy this curiosity for culture in America we build massive museums and then by the fabulous wealth of a private collector grab huge assignments of the world's art treasures, and then open the show to the public.

The variety and multitude of pictures bewilder the visitor. It is as though he were to comprehend Beethoven, Bach and Brahmn being played simultaneously. It just can't be done. The view of one picture of an old master in a fine old church would do one's culture more good than a visit to one of our museums. A picture must have a setting and a reason for being in a certain place. Isolating the world's art treasures from their natural habitat is really the same thing as taking a lion from the Congo and caging him in the Bronx Zoo.

Even though authentic American art is not being employed with discretion, nor interpreted as having any functional contribution to make by way of symbolic decoration in the churches, it is most gratifying to observe that public buildings which are in daily use, like our postoffices, are being given a generous taste of Americanna, both rural and urban, with a defty paint-brush.

Oakland's new postoffice is the proud exhibitor of a mural, painted by Robert Gates, an aritist who lives in Washington, D. C., and who has influential friends in Government circles. Mr. Gates is a personable young artist, who several summer seasons past occupied one of the cabins in the Youghiogheny Forest Colony, established by Mr. Frank Reeves about a decade back. Gates did a good deal of ruminating about our landscape with his sketchbook.

The mural is a good sized piece which you will see on the upper part of the right hand wall as you enter the postoffice lobby. If it had been placed on the opposite side of the lobby it would have had the advantage of better natural lighting, which is considered an important item when placing pictures. Gates has employed the conventional style for American murals, which to my lay mind means a skillful balance between symbolism and a photographic accuracy of incident. If this was the artist's intention he succeeded very well.

As for color, I think he shows his intimacy with our tableland most convincingly, both as to landscape and skyscape, showing forth their interdependence.

The two items I liked best were the figures of young men and young women, and the horizon. Mr. Gates was rather uncomplimentary by failing to reveal individuality in facial expressions. He revealed but one type and he used this as a "mask", which he put on all the faces. It did reveal alertness and strength which should have been incorporated in the individualized rather than the regimented-yokel face.

If he were painting a landscape, say in France, he would have to take his cue from Edwin Markham's "The Man With The Hoe", because only stubby and weak, old men are left for the tilling of the soil: all the young manhood has gone to the wars (as in the days of Napoleon). It should give us heart to know that when we look upon this picture we are reminded that our strong youths are still among us.

The second item is the church. It might be the school-house. Anyhow it is the focal spot of brightness on a near horizon with the warmth of sunlight, and not too steep ascent from the fields of commonplace toil. The world of the practical and the ideal have a beautiful and real proximity. Youth in the fields and a lofty aspiration and hope keeping watch upon the home-ridge beyond the fields is a symbolism that is typical of the life and spirit of Garrett county folk. It is the general effect of the picture that will be searched with a growing satisfaction.

The wheatfield in the foreground and the shocks nearby are the features of the picture that are not so convincing. For one thing the artist has entirely missed the impromptu untidyness of tying a shock. All his shocks are as though they had been tied by a fastidious spinster in the wrapping and mailing department of Tiffany's jewelry store. There is such an unnaturalness about the stand of wheat that it provokes mirthful comment. Because this item is so prominent in the foreground it seems most unfortunate that the artist by tedious, diligent effort could not have delineated the details of stem and head. The picture would have gained immeasureably if this one detail had been planned and carefully executed. It looks as though the artist is lacking in technique to execute such a detail, or because he has many other commissions to fill in an allotted time he must do a rush job like the contract painter for Mail Pouch tobacco.

If Mr. Gates was endeavoring to depict a representative Garrett county product he might have decided on something that is peculiar to the tableland. Wheat grows in many States and throughout the world, but buckwheat, well, that is a Garrett county specialty. Either in bloom or shocked in the fields and being scratched down by wild turkeys, buckwheat would have been a much more fitting subject for the foreground. Now that "wild turkey" item is really a wild fancy due to the wish-thinking of an incurable sportsman. Just when has a Garrett countian seen wild turkeys in a buckwheat field—now just when? But anyhow, I prefer even the plain buckwheat field to the "aristocratic" wheat.

In fact I would like to suggest to one of those encyclopaedic, bureaucratic departments in Washington, responsible for the commissioning of artists to paint meritorious pictures for our public buildings, that the next commission for Garrett county be given to Maryland artists. There are excellent painters, both conservative and radical, in the Baltimore art colony. They are painters who have had large exhibitions. It has been my good fortune to see some of these exhibitions. And a few of these artists have, like Gates, done some sketching here in the tableland. Would it not have been more natural, the more decent, the more competent thing, to have commissioned a Maryland artist for a postoffice in Maryland? Even though it is a Federal building, is not Maryland a part of the federation, and does not her tax money make it possible to erect public buildings like our postoffice? If we are to leave a cultural record, just what can we say about the postoffice picture? We cannot say it is a product of Maryland culture, and this we should have a right to say.

But there are also local artists that come to mind in this connection. Perhaps if enough public sentiment is stirred we might persuade Washington to give us a carte blanche for the left wall of the lobby. In that event it would be my suggestion to have a triptych executed and each panel painted by a different artist. The central panel should be a harvest scene, a harvest of buckwheat. Let this be done by a Baltimore artist.

For the left panel I would commission Mrs. Lillian Sincell to paint the Beachy maple sugar camp as it appears in March. Mrs. Sincell, by this picture, demonstrates what it means to actually live on a landscape, saturating oneself inwardly with the balance, contrast and quality of color that is peculiar to our own locale.

And for the right panel I would want a painting of Swallow and Muddy Creek Falls by Mrs. Minnie Phillips Hinebaugh.

Mrs. Sincell and Mrs. Hinebaugh have lived most of their lives in this county. They have developed a style that has grown out of their own honest and life-long passion for painting Mrs. Sincell leans decidedly towards the pastoral, while Mrs. Hinebaugh successfully portrays the magical beauty of the primeval—before man began its multilation. Mrs. Hinebaugh wants us to remember the wild and rugged landscapes of old Garrett. Mrs. Sincell wants us to see the beauty of the open fields when June brings its riot of color to our very doorsteps.

Because both these women have distinguished themselves and honored this community with their art, and because they have had the patience and enthusiasm to keep their "lamp of culture" filled with oil, the day has arrived for their proper recognition.

Artists that have for so many years faithfully served an unresponsive community are certainly the kind of people that have the firm stamp of character in their own life and whose art flows from the heart to the canvass. Every person in our community, whether a carpenter, bricklayer, a printer or storekeeper, expects to make a contribution to the upbuilding of his community. If she or he is really altruistic, honest work will remain as their monument. If bricklayers are guaranteed posterity in the buildings they have reared, why not give our artists the same rights to posterity?

They too serve our community who with humble brush turn our fancies into the light-world of the eternal beauty that lies about us between infancy and old age.

VICTORY GARDENS

1942 is a year for "Gardens"! More and more we must come to depend upon home grown foods. The "food goals" of 1942 are: 1. Production of food; 2. Conservation of food, and 3. Wise use of the food produced and conserved.

The Victory Garden School of last Friday, was built around that threefold program. I should like to pass on to our readers a part of the information given at the school.

Garden Plan

W. R. Ballard of the Horticulture Department of the University of Maryland spoke on the Garden Plan. Briefly he said this: We need to grow our own vegetables. Why? The market supply will become scarce because of the delay or impossibility of shipping vegetables and fruits from distant points. 2. The fresh and conserved fruits and vegetables on the grocer's shelves and in his bins should be left to those who cannot produce for themselves. 3. Economy—a garden well planned, carefully and scientifically cultivated, will be a cheaper source of our food than the store. Add to that the pleasure of gardening and the beneficial effect on health and we have strong argument for a "Garden for Every Family."

The choice of vegetables depends upon personal likes and dislikes and climate and soil conditions. However, there are certain groups which every garden should contain—leafy or salad vegetables, root crops, and the vegetables whose fruits are consumed. Cool season types of each group should be chosen for this county. Mr. Ballard recommended the following:

Leafy or salad—Lettuce, cabbage, kale, broccoli, brussels sprouts, chinese cabbage.

Root crops—Potatoes, onions, carrots, parsnips.

Fruit type—Peas (wrinkled), tomatoes, sweet corn (some varieties), snap beans.

Asparagus was discussed at a greater length than the above. Mr. Ballard highly recommends the addition of a small patch of this delicious vegetable to the home garden.

Cultural Practices

Mr. Ballard was followed by Dr. Edgar P. Walls, who spoke on Cultural Practices and storage of Garden Products.

Dr. Walls first pointed out the "time of planting." He divided vegetables into four groups: 1. The hardy to be planted two or four weeks before last killing frost (spinach, turnips, asparagus, broccoli); 2. The half-hardy can be planted about the time of the last frost (beets, carrots, potatoes); 3. The tender are killed by even a light frost (tomatoes, corn); 4. The very tender require a well warmed soil (pumpkins, lima beans, egg plant).

The next consideration is of course a place to plant the vegetables—the soil—and preparation of the soil. Dr. Walls stressed preparation of the soil. He said we must work the soil as thoroughly as seems possible, and then go over it again. As to depth of soil cultivation, the following was said: Cultivate as deeply as previous treatment will permit, or in other words—down to the sub-soil. If the top soil is shallow, the depth may be gradually increased by turning up a small amount of the sub-soil each year.

Methods of growing plants in hot beds, and cold frames prior to transplanting them in the garden were discussed at length. For further information on this phase of gardening, interested readers may apply to the Extension Service office in the Post Office Building.

Following the growing of plants under artificial conditions there is the problem of proper seting of the plants into the garden. "Mudding" of the roots or taking soil with the plants is recommended in order to lessen the shock of transfer. To put the plant into the soil in such a way that the roots will be in complete contact with the soil and thus insure a quick adaptation to the soil is essential.

The date of planting may be further set up by using paper plant protectors to gain 2 or 3 weeks. These are constructed of a paraffin paper which will admit light and at the same time protect against high winds, and light frost and freeze.

The substance of Dr. Walls address may be thus summarized:

1. Select good soil
2. Prepare the seed bed thoroughly
3. Select good plants and set them out properly
4. Use a good fertilizer and use judgment in application.
5. Cultivate to eradicate weeds and to keep the soil in good condition.

Storage of garden products is a factor to be considered in the use of the garden. Dr. Walls briefly outlined satisfactory plans for vegetable storage. Information may be obtained from this office later if desired.

Insect Control

Dr. C. Graham, Extension Entomologist tells us that insects are not difficult to control if preparation is made before hand. So why not get ready for the winged and crawling visitors before they make their appearance this summer!

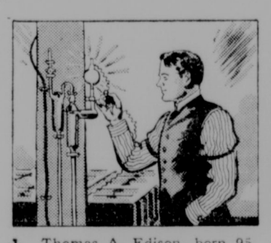
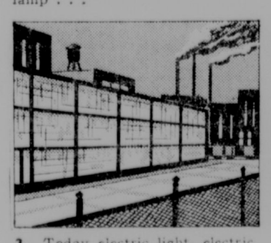
Edison's Ideas Go to War

American scientists and inventors, many of them working in the laboratories of American industry, will play a big part in helping to win the war.

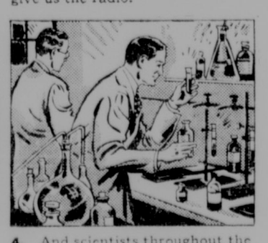


1. Thomas A. Edison, born 95 years ago on February 11, was one of America's greatest inventors. In addition to his famous lamp . . .

2. . . . he built the first of America's electric power systems, and discovered some of the principles which other scientists used to give us the radio.



3. Today electric light, electric power, and radio—so much improved that Edison wouldn't know them—are performing many vital tasks in America's war effort.



4. And scientists throughout the nation, in laboratories like the G-E Research Laboratory, are working, as Edison once worked, to bring victory.

DISCOVERING WHY PEOPLE DRINK BEVERAGE ALCOHOL

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 43:34; Psalm 104:14, 15; Proverbs 31:4-7; Ecclesiastes 2:1-3, 10, 11; Isaiah 56:12; I Corinthians 10:6, 7.

The alcohol problem receives attention in four lessons of each year. This is the first one for 1942 and brings before us a number of scriptures not often used, in order to suggest the drinker's reasons for drinking. Other matters appear, but we shall limit ourselves to presenting these reasons, together with the Christian answer to each one.

Why do men drink?

I. To Be Sociable (Gen. 43:34).

At the banquet prepared by Joseph the allowance for Benjamin was greatly increased, and they "drank and were merry." How often that has been the plea which has led into drinking and into drunkenness. The "social glass" has often led to the drunkard's grave.

Well, surely God wants us to be sociable. Yes, He does, and the perfect provision for man's social nature is found in Christian fellowship.

II. To Be Happy (Ps. 104:14, 15).

Wine is supposed to bring happiness, and we may admit that it does bring a temporary lift which some call happiness. But who is satisfied with happiness? It depends entirely on what "happens." If the wrong thing happens we are unhappy. We need a deep abiding joy, and only a right relationship to God can give that.

III. To Evade Responsibility (Prov. 31:4, 5).

When life's burdens become too much for him the weakling seeks relief and evades his responsibilities in the deadening power of alcohol. But that doesn't solve the problem. It is still there when sobriety returns, and usually more serious than ever. What can a man do? The answer is, turn to God. He gives wisdom, grace and strength.

IV. To Forget Sorrow (Prov. 31:6).

"Drown your sorrows" is the deceptive promise of liquor; but they stand right there beside man, and when his poor befuddled head begins to clear they present themselves more persistently than ever. What's the answer? The God of all comfort is ready to bear man's sorrows or to give him grace to bear them and to lead him out into a place of peace and victory.

V. To Forget Poverty (Prov. 31:7).

Heavy is the affliction of poverty in a world of plenty. Sometimes it is the result of carelessness or of sin, but often it is the lot of those who are innocently caught in its grip. Men have tried to forget, to "drown" even this problem in drink, and have only made their poverty worse and more unbearable.

VI. To Find Satisfaction (Eccl. 2:1-3, 10, 11).

The book of Ecclesiastes gives the account of a man "under the sun," that is, apart from God's guidance and blessing, seeking to satisfy the cravings of his heart in many ways. All of them prove vain, including the effort to find it in wine and in pleasure.

Frustrated souls often seek release through intoxicants. They gain a measure of liberty and a sense of masterful power, but it is all as delusive as the dreams of grandeur of the insane. It is even worse, for it is a false condition, deliberately created and soon lost, together with lost character and decency of life. The morning after brings only the deepened despair of greater dissatisfaction.

VII. To Stimulate Hope (Isa. 56:12).

A certain fearful looking forward to the time of judgment tends to dampen the drinker's enthusiasm. So he drinks more to reawaken in his heart the "hope" that tomorrow will not bring reckoning, but will be another "good" day. The world has no real hope, in fact, the word itself has lost its true meaning and indicates only a sort of wishful thinking. Is there any real hope? Oh, yes, and the Christian has it; hope that is a confident expectation of the fulfillment of God's every promise. That kind of hope takes care of tomorrow—and all the tomorrows.

VIII. To Encourage Play (I Cor. 10:6, 7).

Paul warns against the folly of the "eat, drink, and be merry" philosophy. That road ends in disaster.

Does not God want us to play? Indeed He does. He gave us the instinct for recreation. We need pleasant relaxation, and He has provided for us all the beauties of nature, all the pleasures of wholesome play, and all in the finest of fellowship with His people and with Himself. Thus we find real recreation—not just fun that leaves us empty and dissatisfied.

Price Administrator Henderson predicted that the level of living in U. S. would fall below the lowest point in depression because so much of nation's productive capacity would be devoted to war.

Harvey Winters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Winters, Eighth street, who was brought to his home last Friday from Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, where he had been a patient following an operation for the removal of his appendix, developed pneumonia Tuesday and is now quite ill.

Miss Blanche Cale, of Loch Lynn Heights, hurrying on Monday to take a train for Cumberland to be with a sister, who is ill, fell and as a result fractured three ribs. Miss Cale was brought to Oakland for treatment and later taken to the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Leighton, in Loch Lynn.

Mr. Fred A. Thayer, Sr., dean of the bar of Garrett county, has been confined to his home on Oak street for the past two weeks. His condition, while not of a serious nature, is such as to cause members of his family some concern. Mr. Thayer's many friends in all part of the county will regret to learn of his illness.

As a result of the sudden application of the air brakes on train No. 23, westbound, yesterday morning, due in Oakland at five o'clock, three cars were damaged to some extent and the departure of the train was delayed nearly two hours. The damaged cars, containing baggage and express goods consigned to points west, were later taken to Grafton for transfer and repair.

Rev. H. Kearney Jones, recently appointed rector of the local Episcopal parish, with Mrs. Jones and child, arrived in Oakland yesterday evening and for the present are guests of Dr. and Mrs. William W. Grant, at their home on Second street. Rev. Jones is taking the pulpit of the Rev. Arthur D. Jones, of Philadelphia, Pa., who had been acting rector here for several months.

Joseph Davis, forester at the Meadow Mountain CCC camp until recently, going from here shortly before Christmas to take a training course at the Boy Scout reservation in New Jersey, leading to a position as a scout executive, has obtained such a place in Philadelphia, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. Davis were in Oakland over the week-end and yesterday moved their household furnishings from their apartment on Second street to their new home in the Pennsylvania city.

Single copies of The Republican may be obtained at the Hamill Book and Stationery Store, corner Third and Alder streets, where the current issue of the paper is placed on sale every Thursday afternoon. Price, 5 cents per copy.

Mrs. Harold H. Harned has been ill at her home for several days.

Rev. and Mrs. Minor Sprague and Mrs. J. W. Butt visited Mr. Butt, who is a patient in Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, on Tuesday. Miss Alice Butt, who has been nursing her father, returned to Oakland with the party and will remain here a few days before going back to her work in a Wheeling hospital. Mr. Butt has been a patient in the Cumberland institution for a week or more and is now improving following treatment.

Several members of the local Masonic lodge were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Scott W. Shirer last Thursday evening, when preliminary plans were made for several social events during the year, including the fiftieth anniversary celebration of Oakland Lodge No. 192, A., F. & A. M., which will take place some time in May. The guests at the Shirer home included Delbert M. Davis, Walter W. Dawson, Arthur Lawton, Robert T. Hoffman, Harland L. Jones, Cecil Smith, George Hanst and Milburn W. Mann.

Baptist S. S. Study Course

The Sunday Schools of the Garrett Baptist Field will conduct a study course for officers and teachers during the week, March 9 to 13, using the textbook "Personal Factors in Character Building." Two classes will be held each evening beginning at 7:30 p. m. Rev. William Orndorff, former pastor, will teach a class at the Mt. Lake Park Baptist church, while Mrs. Lola Orndorff will teach at the Deep Creek Baptist church.

MARRIED

GEORG-HETRICK — Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Beulah Hetrick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hetrick, Accident, to Mr. Irvin Georg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Georg, also of Accident. The ceremony was performed February 1 in the parsonage of the German Lutheran church there with Rev. C. F. Dauphin officiating.

The bride wore a frock of navy blue with white accessories. Her sister, Miss Mary Hetrick, was maid of honor and only attendant. The bridegroom's brother served as best man.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Georg attended the Accident schools and for the past year Mrs. Georg has been employed in Cumberland. Mr. Georg is in business with his father in Accident, where the couple will reside.

EHMAN-WINTER — Miss Mary Winter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Winter, Baltimore, became the bride of Roe McFee Ehman, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ehman, of Baltimore, on Thursday morning, February 12, in the Holy Comforter Lutheran church, Baltimore, Rev. J. Frank Fike, pastor, performing the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in blue crepe with a hat to match, and wore a shoulder corsage of orchids. Her sister, Miss Mae Winter, was her only attendant, and she wore a frock of gold crepe with matching hat, and a corsage of gardenias and Talisman rosebuds.

The bride was born and reared in the Grantsville community. She was graduated from Grantsville high school and moved to Baltimore with her parents a few years ago.

The groom is a pharmacist mate, second class, United States Navy.

SINES-SMITH — Mrs. Tassie E. Smith, of Washington, D. C., became the bride of C. B. Sines, of Branchville, Md., formerly of Oakland, on Saturday night, February 28, at the home of Rev. Glenn J. Cooper, of Beltsville, with Rev. Cooper officiating.

The only attendant was Mrs. Ralph R. Sines.

TERRY-FIKE—A wedding of simplicity and beauty was solemnized at the University club in Lakeland, Fla., on Thursday afternoon, February 26, at 5 o'clock when Miss Ruth Fike became the bride of Mr. L. H. Terry.

The ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Ezra Fike, Eglon, W. Va., father of the bride.

Her wedding gown was of peach chiffon velvet, bodice effect, and her dainty hat, of the same material as her dress, caught a finger-tip veil of illusion. She carried a bouquet of talisman roses and blue delphinium. The bride's only attendant, Mrs. Lanier Upshaw, of Lakeland, was gowned in an aqua taffeta, with hat to match and carried a bouquet of pink roses. W. B. Thornton, Lakeland, was best man.

Mrs. Terry has been at Florida Southern College, Lakeland, as instructor in mathematics for the past four years and for several years was head of the mathematics department in Masontown, W. Va.

Mr. Terry has been assistant cashier of the People's Savings Bank of Lakeland since its beginning eleven years ago.

Pledge Amount Monthly to Red Cross

Second Group of Miners Agree To Pay Each Month to Relief Fund

A second group of coal miners in the Kitzmiller section has pledged regular amounts to the Red Cross war relief fund for the duration of the war, it was announced this week.

Employes of the Pritts Brothers coal company have pledged $1.25 per month, almost one hundred percent. The twenty-eight who signed up include Albert Junkins, M. E. Pritts, Pritts Brothers Coal Company, Edward Turner, Woodrow Wilson, Henry Evans, Elzy Knotts, J. E. Ridder, Aubrey Phillips, Wilbur Burrell, W. F. Paugh, Grover Lee, Bartley Wilson, Fred Wilson, Russell Fike, Wendell Wilson, Orville Chapman, Henry McCloud, James Burrell, Walter Keller, R. F. Pritts, Wesley Fike, Fred Burrell, Frank Burrell, John Brown, Dewey Evans, George Tranum, Grover Tranum.

The four who made no pledge were Mike Pratt, Fred Pratt, Dominic Pratt and Tony Sullivan, alleged to be aliens.

Several weeks ago workers in the Garrett Coal company, of Kitzmiller, pledged $1.00 each month while the war lasted. There were fifty-five men in this group.

DIED

WILLIAM E. HINEBAUGH

William E. Hinebaugh died at his home at Turner Douglas near Corinth, W. Va., on Sunday evening, March 1, after an illness of three weeks.

He was born in Deer Park on March 5, 1870, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Boss Hinebaugh, and lacked five days of being 72 years of age.

He was twice married, his first wife being Fannie McRobie, and his second wife being Bertha Wonderly. Surviving are his second wife, four children by his first wife, Daniel R. Hinebaugh, Deer Park; Wilmer H. Hinebaugh, Akron, O.; Mrs. Annie Paugh, Glisan, W. Va.; and Mrs. Carrie Madigan, Deer Park; and four children by his second wife, Mrs. Pearl Breedlove, Crellin; Mrs. Catherine Friend, Albright, W. Va.; Henry and John Hinebaugh, Bergoo, W. Va.; 28 grandchildren; seven brothers and sisters, Mrs. Ella Moon, Deer Park; Mrs. Blanche DeBerry, Corinth, W. Va.; Mrs. Ida Durham, Fairmont; Bruner Hinebaugh, Morgantown; Earl, James and Robert Hinebaugh, of Deer Park.

The deceased worked for the Stanley Coal company for about twenty-five years.

Funeral services are being conducted this Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Methodist church at Deer Park, with Rev. U. R. Hinzman, Corinth, officiating, assisted by Rev. A. C. Arthur, evangelist.

HELEN VICTORIA COSNER

Mrs. Helen Victoria Bray Cosner, 65, widow of Randolph Cosner, of Kitzmiller, died in Memorial hospital, Cumberland, on Thursday, February 26. She was admitted to the hospital on February 18.

Mrs. Cosner had been in ill health for several years, and suffered a stroke of paralysis on Tuesday night, February 17. She had made her home for many years with her brothers near Kitzmiller.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Sarah Wrightsman, Mt. Lake Park; Mrs. Louise Van Meter and Mrs. Elsie Jordan, both of Cumberland; two sons, Norman B. Cosner, and Roy Cosner, both of Kitzmiller; two brothers, Richard Bray and L. C. Bray, Kitzmiller, and nine grandchildren.

LUDWIG LAMBKA

Ludwig Lambka, 64, died suddenly on February 25 at his home at Ridgeville, West Va., near Kitzmiller, where he had lived for four months. He had been a resident of Grant county, West Va., 25 years. Funeral services were conducted Saturday at Bayard, West Va.

Survivors are seven children, Fred and Homer, addresses unknown; William, Henry and Clarence, all of Mt. Storm, W. Va.; Lewis, at Fort Louis, Va., and Miss Elsie Lambka, Gormania, West Va.; a brother, John Lambka, Detroit, Mich., and seven grandchildren.

ROBERT BOWSER

Robert Bowser, aged 75 years, a lifelong resident of Garrett county, died on Wednesday, February 25, at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, following a lingering illness. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bowser, and resided in the Grantsville community.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Victor Durst and Mrs. Ernest Durst, both of Salisbury, Pa.; one brother, Louis Bowser, Salisbury; three sisters, Mrs. Frank Schuschleg and Mrs. Ada Folk, Akron, O., and Mrs. John Legeer, Bittinger.

Funeral services were conducted on last Thursday at Grantsville with the Rev. Alvin J. Forry, pastor of the Reformed church, officiating. Interment was in the Grantsville cemetery.

DIARY OF THE WAR

FRIDAY—The day was satisfactory in most places. In Dutch Indies two enemy troopships and other vessels were torpedoed by American subs and subs also engaged a Jap squadron, destroying probably a cruiser. The Japs' advance upon Java was at great cost and Dutch defense of Sumatra and Borneo and Amboina island still continued. MacArthur launched a successful counter-attack against Jap lines wresting numerous positions from the invader. The Philippine Moros pledged a fight to the last against Japs. The allied air arm shot down 21 more enemy planes over Rangoon to bring score to 51 for two days. Over Thailand 3 enemy craft were downed in two days. Jap troops continued to creep upstream along Sittang river. Russian forces had trapped 96,000 Nazis. British bombers blasted at Kiel where battleship is tied up.

SATURDAY—Japs made first air attack upon Indian territory, bombing Andaman islands in Bay of Bengal. New allied bombers raided enemy fleet off Sumatra. Recapitulation of enemy losses showed five to one in comparison to U. S. losses, especially in planes. MacArthur continued to improve his position. Entrapped German army near Leningrad refused to surrender and were being crushed. Defenders of Leningrad also struck out in force to divert part of German reserves. More tankers were being sunk in Atlantic. Vichy assured U. S. that France wouldn't aid Axis.

SUNDAY—A Jap cruiser and three destroyers were blasted out of action off Java and American subs were believed to have sunk five other vessels. British parachutists and heavily armed infantry carried out a successful surprise invasion of the French coast near LeHavre and destroyed a plane locator. Japs however, effected landings on Java. MacArthur continued attacks to learn reason for Jap lull there. Reds reported desperate but ineffective German attempts to save their trapped army near Leningrad.

MONDAY—Dutch troops took the offensive in a drive against thousands of Jap invaders on Java. A Jap fleet of twenty warships and fifty transports succeeded in landing troops in center of Java. Two Jap cruisers were put out of action, five others damaged and a warship blown up and five destroyers crippled. At least 17 and possibly 20 transports were sunk or damaged. The Dutch lost two cruisers and a destroyer. A fourth warship was lost. There was no substantiation of Tokyo's story that five cruisers and six destroyers were sunk. Jap planes were blasted out of skies over Burma but ground troops were pressing forward. Lull continued in Philippines. Japs bombed an Australian port on New Guinea but Aussies struck back with raids on New Britain and a Jap convoy. Reds continued to hold entrapped Germans and there was bloody fighting on other fronts there. There were many British Hurrican planes on Russian front. There was a stalemate on Libyan desert but British bombers were busy there.

TUESDAY—Allies in Java were making strong counter-attacks but invader's grasp didn't appear loosened upon three beachheads at Soebang, Bandoeng and near Soerabaja. MacArthur reported Japs were using German-built planes. Japs appeared to be drawing breath in Burma preparatory to major lunge. Enemy still was on east bank of Sittang river. Soviets still reported broad successes and Germans were vainly trying to supply the trapped Nazi army of 96,000 at Staraya. Reds were preparing for a major attack on Kharkov. Ten thousand Moros vow never to quit war on Japs in the Philippines. General Wavell was given command of Allied forces in India, and Dutch take over command in Pacific war. President ordered a reorganization of the U. S. army. London said the Germans had marked Iceland, Dakar, Casablanca and Canary Islands for spring conquest.

WEDNESDAY — Japs still head initial beachheads in Java but had gained no additional ground and had been pushed back in some points. Japs attacked several Australian towns and ports in New Guinea. In Burma British still held Sittang river line protecting Rangoon. There was quiet on Bataan peninsula but Japs shelled other Philippine ports and landed troops on other islands of group. Russians recaptured additional towns below Leningrad. Enemy sub sank a U. S. destroyer off Cape May and a sub shelled Mona Island off Puerto Rico, with no damage. British bombed factories in suburban Paris which were working for Nazis.

THURSDAY—Allied line in Java was being slowly beaten back in Java, and Dutch were destroying anything on island which would be important to enemy. The greatest allied weakness was in the air but a blow to allied sea power was also acknowledged. On Burma front British tanks and infantry engaged Jap units north of Rangoon and the west bank of the Sittang river was still in British hands. On Luzon MacArthur turned up with an air victory in Subic bay, smashing three large ships and destroying docks and military stores. Russians announced reduction of fifty centers of enemy resistance, destruction of 51 enemy planes, trying to supply food to the encircled Nazis. A second contingent of troops arrived in northern Ireland from U. S. British bombers smashed with heavy power at industrial plants on outskirts of Paris, killing 600, wounding 2,000 where tanks, airplane engines and trucks were being made for Germans.

The Navy Department announced that enlistments since the Jap attack on Pearl Harbor had passed well over 140,000 mark.

Announces for Council

I hereby announce my candidacy for a member of the Town Council of Oakland, subject to the election on Monday, March 9.

I have been in business in Oakland for twenty years, operating the NuWay Laundry, and have learned the value of a dollar during that time. If elected, I promise you an economical administration.

W. A. JOHNSON.

To The Qualified Voters And Citizens of Oakland!

At the request of many of the taxpayers and voters of Oakland, I have announced my candidacy for a member of the City Council, to be voted on at the Municipal election, Monday, March 9th.

I realize this office calls for time and sacrifices in order to give the citizens the service to which they are entitled, and I assure you if elected to that honorable body, I will endeavor to give you the kind of service you have a right to expect, and you will have no cause to regret the confidence you have imposed in me.

I am absolutely opposed to any increase in taxes or water rates. I believe this is the time to work for the best interest of our town and nation.

Your support and influence will be greatly appreciated.

Signed: HARRY L. STEMPLE.

Youth Can Help Farm . .

Tomorrow several young farm people leave for service in the army. Others have preceded them and the farm elders wonder how they will produce and harvest crops this year, with shortage of help. This situation is similar all over our United States.

A Harvard student offers the best solution yet to the problem. Let college students spend their summers on farms, he suggests, to which we add high school students also.

The result would be of benefit both ways, if the young people had the patriotism of our forefathers, the spirit to win this war, no matter how hard the task.

The young people would be shown how to be self-reliant, how to work. They would come in contact with the most substantial group of people in the nation. They would learn thrift from first hand knowledge, and they would learn the value of honest toil. In future years it would bring a better understanding between rural and urban people and create a lasting good will.

Farmers for their part not only would have the problem of help solved but they would learn much from the urban youth too.

The experience in mutual helpfulness might solve some of our governmental difficulties in years to come.

The initiative would have to come from the young people. With vacation and travel bound to be restricted this year, why not think about it and resolve to spend a summer close to the soil, close to nature, close to reality, close to God, so that this nation will remain on a firm foundation, abundantly provided with food, and its citizens still free and equal.

SECOND ANNUAL SKI MEET IS CONSIDERED SUCCESS

Held Sunday Over Fast Melting Snow, But Seventy-Five Take Part; Scores Watch Events

The second annual Southern Ski championship tournament was staged at New Germany Sunday in summer temperature and over fast-melting snow, but was declared a success in spite of handicaps imposed by the war and weather. It had been twice postponed because of lack of snow.

Highlight of the tournament was the downhill race on Whiskey Hollow Trail, which was won by Cliff Weber, Baltimore, in 1:12. Last year's time was 47 1-5 seconds, set by Amos Little, former Darthmouth college star. Edward Adelsheim, Washington, won second place for the second straight year, while Mickey Sively, Westernport, was third.

Bobby Swauger, New Germany, finished a close second in the two-mile cross country race, being a scant 35 seconds behind the winner, John Mason, of Annapolis, whose time was 34 minutes.

The expert slalom races were run on the lower part of the trail. Cliff Weber again won this event for men with Willis Nolan, Jr., of Washington, 17.

Alice Clark, Washington, was first in the women's expert slalom race, followed by Ruth Magnussen, Baltimore. Miss Clark was the only woman to enter the downhill race and finished seventh in a field of ten.

In the women's novice slalom Miss Salena Sarah Sharp, Cumberland, of the Western Maryland Ski club, was second, with Mrs. E. G. Boettinger, Baltimore, the winner. First place for men went to E. Hicks, Baltimore, and second to E. Gourley, also of Baltimore. J. Cook, a visitor from New Hampshire, finished third.

Some skiers performed in track shorts, as the day was warm and the melting snow made the course slow. War conditions diminished the number of contestants and spectators, but it was estimated 75 persons entered the competition and several score were on hand to witness the meet.

Officials of the meet discussed plans for the formation of a Southern Conference of Ski clubs and affiliation with the American Eastern Amateur Ski Association.

The Grantsville Development Association was active in promoting the meet along with the sponsors, the Western Maryland Ski club. Trophies were offered by several Cumberland organizations and a number of business concerns in that city.

Southern States to Open New Warehouse

The Southern States Cooperative will open its new and modern feed store and warehouse, near the Baltimore and Ohio railroad depot, on Saturday, March 21, it has been announced by B. Beeson Snyder, manager.

The building is 100 by 46 in size and is of frame construction, covered with metal. Construction was started on January 1, and was erected at a cost of about $7,500. Besides the warehouse the building will include the offices.

The Southern States organization came to Oakland on November 19, 1939 and have been located in the building which adjoins Sharps Motor Company on Third street. At the official opening of the new warehouse the company is offering special discounts to customers during the first three days, and a number of awards will also be made.

Shartzer, Hesen and Stemple Are Elected As City Councilmen

Have Comfortable Lead Over Four Other Contestants—L. M. Fraley Re-elected Mayor

Earl W. Shartzer, Harry L. Stemple and Alex. G. Hesen were chosen Councilmen by comfortable margins in the annual municipal election on Monday, with more than sixty per cent of the registered voters exercising their right of franchise.

Harry Stemple, a candidate for the first time, led the ticket with 208 votes, while Earl W. Shartzer, candidate for re-election, gathered 168 votes for second high. Hesen received 152 votes.

Unsuccessful candidates were W. A. Johnson, James A. Towler, Raymond D. Houck and Virgil B. Kelley.

Write-In Campaign Conducted

Lawrence M. Fraley was re-elected mayor with 185 votes. A write-in campaign, favoring Grover C. Stemple, which a few of his friends got under way a few days ago, succeeded in getting 79 votes for the former mayor, who served from 1930 to 1936. Mr. Stemple has steadfastly refused to be a candidate since 1936 and the write-in campaign was instigated without his knowledge, he declared on Tuesday morning.

Two other developments made the election a little different from the ordinary cut and dried affair. Interest was aroused to such an extent that a number of citizens and taxpayers tried to vote and found that they were not registered and therefore under the law were ineligible to cast their ballots. Election officials estimated possibly there were approximately one hundred of these who had to be turned down.

A law passed in 1939 required the registration of citizens before they could vote in city elections. Three registration days were provided that year and one day each year thereafter, the registration days being held some time prior to the election. The last registration was on January 26, when only 19 names were added to the roll. Another registration day will be provided next January under the laws as it stands today.

The second development was the discovery about 10:30 by Virgil B. Kelley, one of the candidates, that he was not registered and therefore ineligible to vote. Monday afternoon Lewis Jones, city attorney, ruled that if elected he would be qualified to serve as he is a qualified citizen and taxpayer, even though he failed to register. A number of voters believed he could not serve, even if elected, which undoubtedly cost him some votes. He was low man on the ticket.

Richard L. Davis received 232 votes for city treasurer and was unopposed in his candidacy for re-election. Davis' term is for one year while councilmen and the mayor serve for two years.

Fraley has completed twelve years as mayor of Oakland and previous to 1924 served on the city council. He has served as mayor 1924 to 1930 and 1936 to 1942.

The tabulated count for the various candidates is as follows:

For Mayor
Lawrence M. Fraley	185
G. C. Stemple (write-ins)	79
For City Council
A. G. Hesen	152
Raymond D. Houck	64
W. A. Johnson	110
Virgil B. Kelley	59
Earl W. Shartzer	168
Harry L. Stemple	208
James A. Towler	108
For Treasurer
Richard L. Davis	232
Total votes cast	310

ABANDONMENT OF COUNTY RAILROAD IS APPROVED

Supreme Court Upholds ICC Order Regarding Confluence-Oakland Branch

On Thursday of last week the Supreme Court of the United States upheld an Interstate Commerce Commission order permitting the abandonment of a 20-mile line of railroad in Pennsylvania and Maryland, requested by the War Department, to facilitate construction of a flood-control dam. Justice Black delivered the unanimous decision of the Court.

Abandonment of the railroad was contested by the Maryland Public Service Commission and the McCullough Coal Corporation, owner of a Garrett county coal mine located on the line of the railroad at or near Friendsville and between that town and Kendall. The contestants contended the line of railroad should be relocated and service continued.

During the argument of the matter before the Court, it was contended by attorneys for the coal corporation that abandonment of the line would make several places in the Youghiogheny River valley "ghost towns," and as a result require the removal of a great number of residents of the affected communities to seek other homes and places of business.

In rendering the decision of the Court, Justice Black added: "It is difficult to imagine what consideration of present or future public conveniences could reasonably impel the commission to decline to authorize abandonment of a line admittedly doomed to be rendered inoperable regardless of what action the commission might take."

The dam now building to control flood conditions in the Ohio Valley district would cross the Youghiogheny River near Confluence, Pa. The railroad extends from Confluence and Oakland Junction, Pa., to Kendall. It is owned by the Confluence & Oakland Railroad Company, a subsidiary of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company.

Construction of the dam, it was contended, would submerge 12 miles of the railrod and render the remained useless.

The United States Government has an option to purchase the road for $306,000, subject to final approval of the abandonment.

Grantsville High Courtmen Claim Garrett Title

Grimm Outfit Closes Season by Scoring 27-20 Victory Over Oakland

Grantsville High's basketball team has claimed the Garrett county championship as the result of a 27-20 victory over Oakland High at Grantsville on Tuesday night.

Coach Baucom's dribblers trounced Grantsville 31 to 14 in the first meeting at Oakland but because of an ineligible player used by the Oakland quint at that time this automatically gives the Grantsville team the title.

F. D. Bittle, principal of Oakland High school, said this morning that James Lyons was found to be ineligible when he had to register for the draft recently and that since then had not been playing. He wrote Frank Getty, Grantsville principal, at the time and asked what could be done. Mr. Getty and Mr. Bittle then agreed to accept the decision of the game Tuesday as neither one favored post season games.

Tuesday night's game was a see-saw affair with Oakland carrying the first and third quarters, leading 5-2 and 17-16.

The victory was the ninth for Grantsville. McKenzie and Buckel were leading scorers for the winners with 8 and 7 points. Gene Rook was best for the losers scoring 12 points.

Blizzard Is Short-Lived

A typical March blizzard and high wind raged in the county on Monday night and for a time there were indications that the storm of a week previous would be repeated.

By Tuesday, however, the storm had abated, and a warming sun disposed of most of the two or three inches of snow, which fell during the night. Wednesday the temperature hovered around 60.

Motorists who had to be on the road Monday night declared it was the worst in several years. The blizzard disrupted telephone communications at Grantsville, and a large window at Firemen's headquarters was blown out.

Garrett County Lags On Civilian Defense

A report of Governor O'Conor on the number of Marylanders in civilian defense shows that Garrett county is lagging.

The report gave 124,374 as the total in the state and Garrett county's total was given at 96. The next lowest county is Calvert with 350 listed. Allegany has 2,701.

Forty-Four Draftees Scheduled to Leave Oakland on Friday

Men Will Return to Oakland After Examination in Baltimore

Forty-four men will leave Oakland for examination prior to being inducted into the U. S. army, according to information from the Garrett County Draft Board, released yesterday.

Twelve of the men will go at midnight Friday, who have remediable defects and will be rehabilitated. The group of thirty-two will be examined and if approved, will be inducted anytime after ten days. Both groups will return to Oakland immediately after examination.

The group leaving by train Friday about midnight are Odell C. Welch, Oren Dale Hoff, Eugene Edward Sines, William Charles Kreyenbuhl, William Glotfelty Hinebaugh, Harrison C. Wright, James Hull Nordeck, Woodrow Butler, Reed Louis Friend, Paul Henry Barnard, Otis Burl Jordon, Marshall Calvin Arnold.

Those who will leave by bus on Friday morning are Lyal Griffith, Oakland; Orval T. Butler, Friendsville; Charles Russell Durst, Jr., Crellin; Irvin Feld, Oakland; Denver C. Sharpless, Deer Park; Paul Rhodes Whipp, Oakland; Richard Leon Roy, Oakland; Henry Clay Uphold, Oakland; James Dean Rush, Accident; Elmer Wesley Ashby, Crellin; James Henry Kreip, Frostburg; Loyal Malcolm Warnick, Swanton; John Henry Wilson, Oakland; Howard Lawrence Ross, Grantsville; Lawrence Conrad Miller, Grantsville; Robert Arnold Ferguson, Sang Run; Jessie James Knox, Oakland.

Twenty Given Right To Purchase Tires

Twenty people got twenty-two tires and 12 retreads during the past week, according to W. W. Dawson, chairman of the tire rationing board.

Trucks—Walter W. Richter, Accident, 2; Dawson Sisler, Mt. Lake Park, 2 tires and 2 tubes; Southern Packing Company, 2 tires; John A. Menges, Grantsville, 1 tire and tube; Clifford Friend, Accident, 1 tire and tube; Ralph Lawson, Friendsville, 2 tires and tubes; James C. Rush, Friendsville, 1 tire; Lee Ludwig, Oakland, 2 tires and tubes; Harry A. and Harry W. Lytle, Grantsville, 2 tires; Harry E. Rice, Oakland, 1 tire and tube.

Passenger—Wade H. Mason, Oakland, 2 tires and tubes; State Department of Health, 2 tires.

Obsolete—Earl C. Ashby, Deer Park, 2 tires and tubes; Jonas Broadwater, Piedmont, this county, 1 tube.

Retreads—Bert E. Minnick, Grantsville, 4; Walter C. Bowman, McHenry, 1; George Aronhalt, 2; Paul Wayne Fisher, Selbysport, 4; and Pauline Frazee, Friendsville, 1.

BODY OF MAN FOUND IN RIVER NEAR KITZMILLER

Verdict of Suicide Given in Death Of Joe Koptinick, 64, After Investigation By Authorities

A verdict of suicide was given last Saturday by County Coroner E. I. Baumgartner in the death last Friday afternoon of Joe Koptinick, 64, of Kitzmiller, whose body was found in the Potomac River, near Chaffee, three miles below Kitzmiller, by a train crew of the Western Maryland Railway when passing that point.

Sheriff J. W. Owens said that Koptinick apparently stood on the railroad bridge and fired a .22-calibre rifle bullet through his right temple. The rifle had a sawed-off barrel. He then must have toppled from the bridge into the water, Mr. Owens said. There were spots of blood on the bridge and powder burns around the temple, the examination revealed.

Koptinick lived with Mike McDean, and a search of his quarters revealed that a rifle was missing. It was not recovered, apparently having fallen into the river after the shot was fired.

Koptinick was a native of Transylvania and came here from Austria in 1902. He was on his way to becoming a citizen of this country, having taken out his second papers last month.

Sheriff Owens said he had gone to the Hamill Coal Company's mine on Friday to work and when there was no work for him he started to return to his home. He had been a miner for a number of years.

43 Schools Apply For Surplus Foods For Month of March

Forty-three schools of the county have requisitioned surplus foods commodities for the month of March, according to F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent. This will make these commodities available to 1,631 pupils, it was stated.

The schools and the number of pupils affected are as follows:

Swanton, 60; Sand Spring, 20; McCabe, 24; Friendsville High, 40; New Germany, 19; Grantsville, 12; Jennings, 50; Manadier Ridge, 29; Chestnut Grove, 13; Bloomington, 40; Accident, 14; Rich Hill, 15; McHenry, 8; Sang Run, 13; Oakland High, 124; Sunnyside, 18; Corunna, 16; Gorman, 19; Swan Meadow, 31; Red House, 83; Steyer, 13; Johnson, 53; Beall, 28; Finzel, 33; Deer Park, 80; Bethlehem, 30; Combination, 22; Spring Glade, 19; Boiling Spring, 22; Bittinger, 22; Beachy, 24; Fairview, 14; Casselman, 12; Bear Hill, 22; Black Hawk, 33; West Vindex, 55; Vindex, 88; Kitzmiller, 75; Oakland Elementary, 150; Bray, 23; Avilton, 39; Lynndale, 11; Loch Lynn, 115.

Meadow Mountain CCC Camp to Move

Orders have been received by those in charge of the Meadow Mountain CCC camp, that the enrollees are to be moved to a camp at Petersburg, Pa., next Monday. This includes the 169 enrolled there.

Lieut. Joe J. Nalinauskas, camp commander, is being transferred to Goldsborough, Md.

This transfer leaves one CCC camp in the county, the one at Swallow Falls.

Pennsylvania Company Takes Over Hydro-Electric Assets

The Pennsylvania Electric Company has taken over the assets of the Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric Company in Garrett county, it was announced Tuesday by C. E. MacMurray, company official, and the latter company ceases to be an operating company.

Approval of the sale was given the first day of March by the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Federal Power Commission and the Public Service Commissions of both Maryland and Pennsylvania.

The change of ownership makes no change in the operation of the property in this county, it was stated.

A public hearing on this matter was held in Baltimore several weeks ago, due notice of which was given in The Republican.

Card Party Tonight

The annual card party and games, sponsored by the Oakland High school Parent-Teachers' Association, will be held in the school this evening.

There will be bingo, ping-pong, dancing, five hundred, bridge and flinch. The students will present a minstrel, "The Gay Nineties."

Re-elected Head of Jaycee Organization

Charles L. Briner, Jr., was re-elected president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce at a meeting of the Board of Directors last Friday evening. Other officers named were Howard White, vice-president; Paul Turney, secretary; and Emeric Dusic, treasurer.

The regular meeting of the organization was held Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at Chimney Corner.

F. E. Rathbun, superintendent of schools, gave an interesting address at Tuesday's meeting.

Present Charter to Grantsville Rotary Club Monday Night

Presentation Made By District Governor—Gathering Is Addressed by Dr. Thomas Bess

The Grantsville Rotary club received its national charter at a special meeting held Monday night in Grantsville, with about 200 in attendance. The presentation was made by Chester J. Langdon, Huntingdon, Pa., governor of this Rotary district, to Harry C. Edwards, president of the Grantsville club.

Mr. Langdon pointed out requirements of Rotary and its advantages to members and the community. Dr. Thomas Bess, Keyser, W. Va., past district governor, made the principal address and outlined the history and growth of the Rotary movement, its aims and purposes.

Rotarians from Frostburg, Cumberland, Oakland, and Dundalk, Md., Meyersdale, Bedford, and Huntingdon, Pa.; Keyser, and Piedmont, W. Va., were present at the function including sixteen members from Oakland. Prof. Arthur Taylor, president of the Frostburg club which sponsored the new organization, was master of ceremonies.

Mrs. Perry Greenwade, Mrs. Chas. Farley, Mrs. Clem Montgomery and Mrs. Warren Kolkhorst, Keyser Legionettes, and the Oakland quartet, comprised of Jesse J. Ashby, Cecil Smith, William Gibson and Rev. Minor Sprague, furnished special music. Group singing was led by Mr. Ashby. The turkey dinner was served by the ladies of the Methodist church.

Club Membership

Charter members in addition to the above are Charles O. Bender, V. Lewellyn Blocher, Hayward F. Broadwater, Dr. T. O. Broadwater, Edwin Elias, Jr., Benny Epstein, Frank J. Getty, Virgil R. Gillum, William C. Grimm, I. E. Hardesty, Daniel W. Hershberger, Scott H. Holliday, John E. Lawrence, Fay L. Miller, H. L. Pettit, James S. Sheehe, Edgar V. Stanton, J. P. Thayer, William Winterberg, Alvin J. Yoder, Harry L. Yommer, and Charles S. Zeller.

The Oakland club members who attended the dinner were Cecil Smith, Grover C. Stemple, Jesse J. Ashby, Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, John H. Carter, W. O. Davis, Walter W. Dawson, William Gibson, O. T. Graser, E. Ray Jones, H. V. Leighton, Paul B. Naylor, Harold Ream, Floyd Stahl, Joseph Stanton, and Ralph Weber.

Five Held for Larceny Of Sheep Near Friendsville

Five residents of the Friendsville vicinity were rounded up Tuesday morning by Corporal Thomas Currie and Constable Juniper S. Teats and brought to the county jail on charges of larceny of two sheep from the home of Anna Friend, also of near Friendsville.

They are Charles Artice, 35; Vernon Humberson, 17; Thomas Friend, 17; Wilburn Gibbs, 19; and Miles Gibbs, 21.

They are alleged to have killed the sheep and to have taken one of them to the Artice home, where it was cooked and eaten at a midnight "feed." A hearing will be held before a magistrate in the near future. Two of those charged are reported to have made a confession.

Union Lenten Services Continue Next Wednesday Evening

The fifth in a series of union midweek Lenten Services will be held next Wednesday evening at the Lutheran church with Rev. Minor Sprague, Methodist minister, delivering the sermon.

The service last night was held in the Episcopal church with Rev. Charles R. Stevens, Lutheran supply minister, preaching. The church was almost entirely filled.

GRAND JURORS RETURN FIFTEEN INDICTMENTS

Adjourn Tuesday Afternoon Following Examination Of Nineteen Witnesses and Inspecting Public Buildings

The grand jury for the March Term of the Circuit Court adjourned Tuesday afternoon after being in session but two days. During that time they examined nineteen witnesses and returned fifteen indictments.

Neil C. Fraley, State's Attorney, announced that indictments were returned against Leroy Wilt, for larceny and breaking jail; William Wilson, for armed robbery and breaking jail; Elbert McCombie and Chauncey Lowdermilk, for aiding persons to break jail, and Albert Swauger, who was charged last fall with shooting his wife in the leg with a charge of shot fired from a gun at their home near Jennings.

Swauger, who disappeared after shooting his wife, later appeared before authorities and gave bond for his appearance, Mr. Fraley said. Several other indictments were found against persons for less serious matters.

The criminal docket will be called on Monday morning, March 23, at 9:00 o'clock at which time the petit jurors are required to report for duty.

The report of the grand jury follows:

To the Honorable, the Judges of the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

The grand jury for the March Term, 1942, hereby submits its report:

Pursuant to the instructions delivered to us in the charge of His Honor Judge Sloan, we have given careful consideration to the matters brought to our attention and have returned indictments where we believed the evidence warranted such action.

We have had before us and examined nineteen witnesses and have found fifteen indictments.

We have made an inspection of the County Jail and Sheriff's Residence and the Court House and the offices of the various county officials and we hereby submit the following recommendations:

We have found that some of the window sash and frames in the Jail are badly in need of repairing and we recommend that the County Commissioners take steps promptly to see that the necessary repairs are made.

We desire to again recommend that the basement of the Jail be equipped to serve as a garage for the use of the Sheriff's cars or if that is not practical, a garage be built for his use.

We note that the ceiling of the Bar Library is in need of repair as well as the walls in the office of the Register of Wills.

We also have noted that the steps leading to the front of the Court House are in need of repair.

We desire to recommend that the Garrett County Historical Society be allotted a room in the Court House in which to keep historical documents, records and books, when a suitable room is available.

We have examined the several offices in the Court House and find them to be in good condition and well taken care of by the officers in charge.

We desire to thank the State's Attorney for his cooperation and assistance given us during our deliberations and express our appreciation to His Honor Judge Sloan for his able assistance.

All of which is respectfully submitted. DEMPSEY R. FLEMING, Foreman.

EDGAR A. SMITH, Clerks.

Dr. W. C. Nedrow Dies in Friendsville

Dr. Willey Clayton Nedrow, prominent physician of Friendsville, died at his home on Monday morning, March 9. He was a son of the late Dr. J. S. Nedrow and Jennie Forman Nedrow, Bruceton Mills, W. Va.

He received his degree of Doctor of Medicine at the University of Louisville, Louisville, Ky., and practiced several years with his father at Bruceton Mills. In 1911 he went to Friendsville and practiced until his health forced him to retire.

Surviving are his widow and three sisters: Mrs. Rose Davis and Mrs. Frank Riddell, Morgantown, W. Va.; and Mrs. A. F. Rodcheaver, Clarksburg, W. Va., and one brother, J. V. Nedrow, Key, Ohio.

Rev. Packard, pastor of the Church of Christ, Cumberland, conducted funeral rites at the home on Wednesday. Interment was in the Savage addition to the Friendsville cemetery.

WHY KEEP THE NYA GOING FOR ANY PURPOSE

"The National Youth Administration," said an editorial in the Baltimore Sunday Sun, had its origin during the depression, when opportunities for employment for old and young alike were few. In theory it was designed to provide employment out of school for young people who needed outside earnings to enable them to continue their education.

The fundamental assumption on which the NYA was based has disappeared. There is no longer any lack of employment opportunity for the young or for the old either. But the NYA holds on. It has been trying to secure a better hold on life and on the Federal Treasury by devoting a part of its effort to the sort of vocational training which fits young people for defense jobs. Now Mr. Aubrey Williams, the NYA director, has ordered that everything else be dropped and that the whole attention of the NYA be concentrated on this one purpose.

This sounds very plausible, but it is a specious argument, and it should not be allowed to obscure the necessity for abolishing the NYA altogether. It is a useless agency. The public schools are doing the same sort of work. They are doing it at less cost and in shorter time. For the NYA to continue in the field merely provides two competing agencies for the task and makes for waste and extravagance which always arise when two public agencies are both trying to do the same thing. Instead of converting itself exclusively to war purpose, the NYA might better go out of business and save the Treasury the $60,000,000 it is scheduled to spend on defense training this year.

"Perhaps Mr. Williams could hardly be expected to abolish himself, but that ought not to be beyond the power of the President or Congress.

Congress Holds The Cards

If it were not that Mr. Roosevelt is the Commander-in-Chief in a time of national peril, the criticism of him would be much more outspoken. What imposes restraint is reluctance to contribute to national disunity and a desire not to harass a heavily burdened national leader.

* * *

Hence, a good many, in Congress and out, have refrained from personal attack and unhappily "gone along" against their judgment, blaming the subordinates and hoping that in time the President would correct his mistakes, accept the counsel of experience and rid himself of the weaknesses which prevent the full weight of the nation from counting effectively and threaten us, if not with defeat, with disasters almost as great. The wisdom of this restraint is now being questioned by a number who heretofore counseled it.

* * *

Particularly, it is questioned by those who appreciate that nearly 20 months were wasted before Mr. Roosevelt could be induced to adopt an effective organization for war production; that it required an outburst of public resentment to even partially clean up the unsavory OCD mess; that only under threat of action by a Senate committee did he end the awful disorder of the sixteen uncoordinated housing authorities; that he has taken no step to support those who are fighting to regain, through retrenchment, control over Federal finances; that he is permitting defense money to be wasted beyond all reason; that a confusion exists so great that the minority of efficient men are mired in it, like the rest.

* * *

Review of the past year is enough to show that Mr. Roosevelt moves to retrieve his errors of judgment and of administration only when forced by public opinion or to forestall Congressional action. Proof of this has been so abundant and the need for correction is so great that recently some who have in the past held that unswerving support of Mr. Roosevelt was essential have swung over to the conviction that if we are to escape danger, public sentiment must be focused upon the Presidential shortcomings. In evidence of this, there arose last week in quarters not at all unfriendly, a determined move to compel Cabinet changes that will increase competency and promote unity.

* * *

Those who best know the situation do not believe Cabinet changes are the real answer. They are convinced, for example, that Mr. Roosevelt can never be induced to put in men whom he cannot dominate, who will stand up to him and even when they obey orders, decline to agree that he is right. If he makes Cabinet changes the new officials will be good but not aggressively able. Certainly they will not include the ablest men in the country, practically all of whom incurred his personal ill-will by the vigor of their opposition to his 1940 reelection. It will be no gain to replace the good men now in his Cabinet with other good men, whom he can control — who, for example, will endorse such things as the St. Lawrence Seaways because he asks them to.

* * *

It isn't going to help very much to replace Miss Perkins with someone else if Mr. Roosevelt is going to continue playing ball with the labor lobbyists and retain his political labor alliances. A more promising plan than that of forcing him to change one set of acquiescent men for another set equally acquiescent would seem to be to build up in Congress a vigorous, persistent, critical spirit which will prod and probe the Executive and the many boards and commissioners created by him into abandoning incompetency for competency.

* * *

That can be done by arousing public sentiment, and public sentiment can be aroused by getting to the public the facts—as was the case with Mrs. Roosevelt and the OCD nonsense and with the Congressional pension business. The potency of public sentiment was never better demonstrated than in the quick action on these two scandals. Right now the things concerning the President about which the public should be concerned are — first, the ineffectual way in which he is dealing with the inflation danger; second, the way in which he continues to temporize with the strike siutation and his refusal to permit any restraint to be imposed upon the plans of the labor leaders to utlize the war to push toward the goal of industrial socialization — and the closed shop.

Third, there is his non-cooperative, if not actually hostile, attitude toward the Byrd committee recommendation for saving two billion dollars by cutting every non-war expenditure to the bone. Fourth, there is his insistence upon retaining all the so-called "social gains" of the New Deal during the war. In addtion there is his obvious determination to keep only New Dealers, or those whom the New Dealers approve, in the key defense positions. And finally, there is the danger of having as his closest counselor and friend as inefficient and enthusiastic a yes-man as Harry Hopkins.

Perhaps all these things cannot be corrected by an enlightened public opinion and an aroused Congress, but certainly most of them can be. And it is hard to see how any of them can be corrected by Cabinet changes, which is not, however, to say that some Cabinet changes would not constitute a measurable improvement. At any rate, it is clear that the perils involved in the present state of affairs cannot be averted by accepting everything the President does in the Hopkins spirit. To follow that course is neither patriotic nor intelligent. It would, in fact, be calamitous. The solution lies in an informed public opinion which will reflect itself in Congress. Congress holds the cards, and should be made to play them. Despite its own somewhat glaring sins of omission and commission, there is still more hope in Congress than in a new Cabinet.

ARTHURDALE BEING SOLD AT LOSS OF TWO MILLION

Houses Which Cost $2,679,157 Will Go To Tenants For $175,000, And Forty Years To Pay

The Arthurdale Homestaed, started at Arthurdale, eight miles from Kingwood, in 1934 and promoted by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the President, is being sold to those who live in the houses at a cost of $175,000, it was disclosed at Washington one day last week.

The cost of erecting the houses has been placed at $2,679,157 and the government will realize a loss of more than two million dollars, according to figures released. The $175,000 to be paid to the government by owners of the homes will be carried over a period of not more than forty years. The government officials announced that credit would be granted for forty years to anyone desiring to purchase one of these homes.

"A Problem Child"

The figure, estimated by C. B. Baldwin, administrator of the Farm Security Administration, was compared in his testimony with an estimated total investment of $2,646,000 in Arthurdale—built by the subsistence homestead division under the National Industrial Recovery Act.

Baldwin's testimony before a subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee, also disclosed that the Arthurdale dwellings are being sold to occupants on credit.

Some of the projects started by the Subsistence Homestead Division, Mr. Baldwin said, were built near cities to supply homes and adjacent lands for gardens for city workers.

Others, among them the one at Arthurdale, he said, "have been really our problem children . . .

"They were built out in open country and were built with the idea, I assume, that if you build a community that the community will attract an industry.

We know pretty well that is not true now. You can build an industry and a community will be attracted to it, but you cannot build a community and attract an industry."

He said that a furniture concern is giving "very satisfactory" employment to about 100 of the 158 families at Arthurdale, but that no sizable industry was developed at the homestead project.

Asked about the present status of the project, he said:

"We have just completed the negotiations for the sale of those (housing) units to individuals living there. It has been a rather difficult situation because we have had to take into consideration the amount of income that they had to pay from, and also what we thought would be a fair valuation of the properties."

Baldwin subsequently presented tables which listed a total capital investment of $2,679,157 for Arthurdale. Operating costs as of June 30, 1941, were $427,514, and operating income $164,806, of which $158,671 was listed as collected and $6,135 as income receivable.

The project, which has undergone several attacks since it was started, has never been a success in any way. Operating costs and income were always out of balance and time and time again business interests were brought to Arthurdale to stay only a short time before moving on or dismantling.

In addition to the mare than 200 dwellings on the project, a large factory building, hotel, community center and other structures were built there in the seven year period.

Mrs. Roosevelt Says Project Taught Many Things

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt told her press conference last Saturday that she was very glad that a cooperative community experiment in which she was much interested, at Arthurdale, West Va., had been tried out, because, she said, it was an experiment which demonstrated a number of important things.

For one thing, she said, it has shown that people, such as those who came to Arthurdale, out of work for some time and discouraged, could be helped to readjust themselves. She said she agreed that it had been demonstrated that you can't build a community artificially and have industry come into it, that it seems that communities grow up around industries.

One objective of the Arthurdale project was to decentralize industries, but this experiment has demonstrated this was not the way to do it. She added that many lessons were learned in Arthurdale about what a community needs, which could be of value to areas in which communities have grown up overnight around defense war industries.

An Editorial Comment

Commenting editorially on the failure of the Arthurdale experiment, the Baltimore Sun, under the caption, "Arthurdale—'Model' Of An Expensive Mistake" said—

Disclosure that the Arthurdale homestead development is being sold for about $175,000 is the sorry comment in conclusion upon this project and upon the whole "experimental program," and, indeed, the sort of thinking which it may be said to typify.

Arthurdale represents a total capital investment of $2,679,167, according to the administrator of the Farm Security Administration. Its operat-Security Administration. Its operating expenses as of last June 30 ran to $427,514. Now it is being sold to its occupants on credit for about one fifteenth of its cost. However, that vast discrepancy between original investment in 1934 and the return on investment in 1942 is a minor matter. The really important thing about Arthurdale's unhappy story is the reason that a $2,679,000 development is sold for only $175,000.

The FSA administrator is at least commendably frank on that point. He says Arthurdale has been a "problem child" and that it owes this status to the fact that there was a most serious error of judgment in its planning. It was built in northern West Virginia on the theory "that if you build a community . . . the community will attract an industry." But now "we know pretty well that is not true. . . . You can build an industry and a community will be attracted to it, but you cannot build a community and attract an industry to it."

In short, the gap between the theory of an experiment and the way the experiment worked was at least as great as the discrepany between Arthurdale's cost and its final sale value. The latter only reflects the initial and fundamental mistake that vitiated the whole experiment and made the melancholy end inevitable. That mistake was twofold. With the best of motives it was rashly conjectured that the Government could usefully give expensive "help" to groups of citizens without regard to traditions and regional characteristics. Apparently it was assumed that a program requiring thrift, enterprise and self-discipline from its participants could be made to work without assurance that such cooperation would be forthcoming. Neither the nature of the country nor the habits of its people were really examined before a full-blown plan and schedule were drafted and imposed.

The industry that was supposed to "come to" the community and support the schedule did not come. The homesteads did not attract it and, in all likelihood, the homesteaders did not seek it. In consequence, the costly shell of a "project" stands lonely and motionless in West Virginia—a "model" which could not work because it was largely built on suppositions, oversights and misconceptions. It stands like a monument to the same fatuity that we find nearer home at Beltsville in an NYA "training project" that is most unlikely to meet the need for which it is designed; and which, even if it can be made to serve that need, will do so only in a manner shockingly wasteful of both time and money.

The fate of Arthurdale underlies the Byrd committee's recommendation that the ill-advised experiments of the FSA ought to come to an end in a time of national emergency and in a reminding essential expenditures.

Taught and Learned In One-Room School

By EZEKIEL CHEEVER.
In the Baltimore Sunday Sun

Early one morning toward the end of summer, 1889, a lankish, sandy-haired country boy of 16 left the farm homestead near Greencastle, Pa., trudged several miles to a one-room schoolhouse, and at the appointed time rang the bell. School was "in," and he—the new teacher.

His preparatioon for the job was not deep or wide, although it was the best that Cumberland Valley State Normal School, at Shippensburg, offered in those days. But if his meager professional training, his youth, and the paltry salary attached to the job were not sufficient to steep him in humility, then the duties of the position were there to do it. In addition to teaching all subjects prescribed for each elementary grade he was obliged to tend the school fire when the weather was cold, and to sweep the classroom every day that school was in session.

At that time many American school systems still required pupils to provide their own textbooks. In conformity with this practice, the boy-teacher in due course requested two husky country sisters to have their father procure a geography for them. The sire's response, conveyed to the teacher next morning, was to the effect that his daughters did not need a geography — they were not going to be sailors.

Weighs The Rebuke

The novice pedagogue pondered this message long and seriously. There was no resentment against either pupils or parents; rather out of his meditations came meek self-condemnation. "Perhaps, geography as I am teaching it could be of value only to somebody who will follow the sea."

As the problem finally cystallized in his mind, it was up to a teacher—himself and others of the craft—to effect such changes in subject-matter and method of presentation as to make pupils and parents see advantage in every subject taught. He spent the next fifty-three years of his life on that self-imposed assignment.

Even though the narrative stopped here, readers who have not had personal contact with him should have gained a mental snapshot of the Albert S. Cook who today (Sunday) retires as State Superintendent of Schools.

He quickly sensed the fact that the scant scholarship with which he began his career would not enable him to carry on as he aspired to in the profession to which he was to devote his life, and so, whenever opportunity offered, he supplemented his normal school training. After two years in the one-room rural school, he spent a full term at Gettysburg College. From there he went to Princeton where, in 1895, he was awarded the A. B., cum laude. Subsequently he got his master's degree at Princeton and also put in a year of summers in graduate work at Teachers' College, Columbia University.

While the ink was still damp on his A. B. diploma he ventured, 1895, into the more dignified position of head of the Academy and Graded School at Bel Air, where he spent three years. After that he served two years as principal of Franklin High School, Reisterstown. From Franklin High he was called, 1900, to the superintendency of Baltimore county schools where he remained until his election, 1920, as State Superintendent.

Not so long before he became county superintendent the heads of the various county systems were designated "examiners" — a term suggestive of the narrow scope of the office. Not long after he became head of Baltimore county schools, he made "county superintendent" synonymous with "educational leaders." With discrimination he selected a group of essential supervisors, and in cooperation with them stimulated, directed, and trained the entire teaching force of the county to a point where Baltimore county's system won recognition throughout the country for its excellence.

One of the means employed for this in-service growth of the teachers was the construction or an adequate course of study. The flimsy syllabus of those days — a skeleton on which the teacher might or might not be able to hang whatever textbooks he was using — was of doubtful aid to the beginning teacher and a hindrance frequently to a really competent instructor. His supervisor-teacher-made course of study, tried out, revised, tried again, rewritten, and then worked over again and again, finally had his approval and was issued in printed form in 1915.

Early Work Remembered

Jesse H. Newlon, head of Lincoln School, New York City, writing in the May, 1935, issue of School Executive Magazine, said: "Some of the most important contributions to American education have come from small cities and towns. . . . The famous Baltimore county course of study twenty years ago beyond question exerted a most important liberalizing influence on teaching in the United States."

Thus, after twenty-six years, Albert S. Cook replied magnificently to the farmer who had condemned his "sailor" geography.

It was no bed of roses that beckoned to the man who became State Superintendent in 1920. The General Education Board's report on education in the State was new off the press. Before its appearance, Dr. Abraham Flexner, who directed the survey, seemed concerned primarily in sugar-coating the many unpleasant findings he felt constrained to reveal about the schools in most sections. Moreover, Leonard P. Ayres had just issued "An Index Number for State School Systems." This revealed Maryland making a bee-line for last place in the sisterhood of States. From twelfth position in 1890, the State had slipped to nineteenth in 1900; thirty-third by 1910, and thirty-seventh in 1918.

Flexner's high praise of the Baltimore county system made Dr. Cook the logical man to lead Maryland education out of the wilderness. With the cordial support of Governor Ritchie and the enthusiastic cooperation of the county superintendents, he undertook to stem the tide. He had gained national eminence as the champion of the county as a proper unit for educational administration. He held that both the district and the township system make uniformly good schools impossible. With the county as a unit, sparsely populated and backward sections fared much better than if the financial burden for their immediate school rested entirely or largely upon them.

Aid Where Really Needed

Dr. Cook revamped his conception of the county unit for use in the State. The authority of the county must not be broken down but the unevenness of educational opportunity must be corrected. And the measure that accomplished the end was the equalization fund. By this it became possible to supplement, but only where necessary, the then existing forms of State aid. The counties and Baltimore City were, and still are, receiving State aid. Since this is based largely on pupil attendance, the populous units get a lion's share; the sparsely populated counties, just a few crumbs, relatively.

The equalization fund gives most to those counties whose needs are greatest, in order that they may maintain good schools, comparable with the best in the State.

Other Accomplishments

Maryland's equalization program represents the master attainments of Dr. Cook's educational career. However, linked to it are other accomplishments of great significance to the State. These include two revisions of the salary scale for teachers — 1922 and 1939; the teacher retiremen system, by which teachers and State contribute to a fund for old age annuities — 1927; and the development of the normal schools into teachers' colleges; also the working out of a scheme of supervision that is wholly cooperative — never domineering. Prosperous counties are encouraged to build up their own supervisory force, thus enabling the State department to render more service to counties that would not be justified in engaging a staff of supervisors.

Within less than a year Dr. Cook will have reached the age where retirement would be compulsory. For some time past he has been planning to anticipate the mandate of the State school law on this point. But in discussing the matter, the intimation has always been strong that his interest in the public school system would not wane. In years to come if the State's educational system is subjected to attack, the chances are that "Al" Cook will forget that he is supposed to have retired from active participation in public education.

More Than Two Millions To County

Note by the Editor of The Republican: The following are the amounts distributed each year to the Board of Education of Garrett county as its share of the State's equalization fund for the public schools of the county since the fund was authorized in 1923, according to County Superintendent F. E. Rathbun, who compiled the figures following:

1923	$ 35,195.00
1924	44,145.00
1925	67,613.00

Non-Defense NYA Units To Be Transferred To Defense

Some National Youth Administration programs in Maryland, considered non-defense activities, are to be transferred to defense lists as a result of an order of Aubrey Williams, NYA Administrator, to eliminate all projects that are not training workers for war production.

Glen D. Brown, State NYA Director, who made a reorganization survey of NYA projects in Western Maryland last week, said those non-defense programs which tie in directly with the national all-out effort will be retained as defense projects.

The non-defense program of the NYA in Maryland will end April 1.

Last week there were 770 students on non-defense projects and 87 supervisors. Youths engaged in defense training totaled 644 on last Saturday, with 56 teachers.

Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Orndorff, Frostburg, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hostetler, on Tuesday.

Oakland High Quint Trims Bayard 27-22

Oakland High school basketball team caused Bayard High school to end its season with a loss on their home floor last Friday night by trimming the West Virginia quint 27 to 22.

In sweeping the series Oakland forged to the front early in the first period and contined to set the pace throughout. The period scores were 5-3, 13-6 and 21-12.

Bayard held Oakland scoreless from the field in the final quarter while scoring four field goals but were unable to overcome the big lead.

Gene Rook was high scorer for Oakland with nine points, while Stewart and Treacy had six each; Kahl 4 and Ashby 2, Sefarin led the Bayard team with 6 points, while Blizzard and Davy scored 5 each. Rodehever and Fulk scored 4 and 2 points respectively for Bayard.

FRUITS

With pineapple, one of our favorite fruits, continually going up in price, many of us will be substituting other fruits that we can get more reasonably.

Some of the following recipies might be used for variety:

Banana Coconut Rolls

6 firm ripe bananas
2 tablespoons melted butter
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup shredded cocunut

Peel bananas and brush thoroughly with butter, then with lemon juice. Place into well-buttered baking pan. Cut bananas in half, crosswise, and sprinkle with coconut. Bake in a moderate oven (375 F.) 15 to 20 minutes, or until bananas are tender and coconut browned. Serve hot with hot lemon sauce or other fruit sauces. Six servings.

Banana Prune Whip

¼ cup prune puree
1-3 cup sugar
Dash of salt
1 cup thinly sliced ripe bananas (1 to 2 bananas)
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 egg whites

Mix together prune puree, sugar and salt. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until sugar is dissolved. Cool. Add bananas and lemon juice to prune mixture and mix well. Beat egg whites until foamy throughout. Add prune-banana mixture, a little at a time, beating constantly until mixture is smooth, thick and fluffy. Chill. Four to six servings.

Note: To prepare prune puree, drain slightly sweetened stewed prunes thoroughly. Remove stones, cut into small pieces and with a spoon rub pulp through a colander or coarse-mesh sieve.

Banana Salmon Salad

1 cup sliced or diced ripe bananas (1 to 2 bananas)
½ cup diced pineapple (canned or fresh)
1½ cups flaked salmon
½ cup diced celery
2 tablespoons finely chopped pickles
1½ teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon mustard
1 tablespoon mayonnaise

Combine bananas and pineapple. Add salmon, celery, pickles and salt. Add mustard and mayonnaise. Mix lightly. Serve with crisp lettuce or other salad greens. Four to six servings.

Apple- Cheese Custard Pie

2 cups sliced apples
1-3 cup granulated sugar
1 tablespoon brown sugar
¼ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons flour
2 eggs (beaten)
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons cream
½ cup cottage cheese
1 unbaked pie crust

Mix together half the sugar, brown sugar, spices, salt and flour. Pour into the pie crust. Add the rest of the ingredients which have been mixed together. Bake 10 minutes 425 degrees F., reduce heat to 325 degrees F. and bake 25 minutes. Cool and serve.

Apple Nut Bread

Cream together:
¼ cup shortening
¾ cup sugar
1 egg and add:
2-3 cup apple sauce (unsweetened)
2 cups flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons sour milk
½ cup chopped nut meats

Place in greased pan and bake 45 minutes 350 deegrees F.

Apple Ice Cream

1 cup milk
1 tablespoon flour
½ cup sugar
1½ cups whipping cream
¼ teaspoon salt
1 egg yolk
1 tablespoon gelatin
2 tablespoons water
1 cup stewed apples (pressed thru a sieve)

Scald milk, add flour, salt and ¾ cup sugar which have been mixed together. Cook until thickened. Combine egg yolk with ¼ cup sugar, stir into the custard mixture and cook two minutes. Soak the gelatin in water, add to the custard base. Chill. Whip cream, add the apples and cream to custard base. Place in tray of refrigerator and freeze.

DIARY OF THE WAR

FRIDAY—Java's principal military and civilian centers appeared about gone but Dutch were maneuvering to create another Bataan upon their broken island. Batavia, Bandoeng and Soerabaja appeared about to fall. MacArthur reported thousands of Jap soldiers were killed in bombing of Jap ships in Subic bay as vessels were transports. Japs admitted 30 planes had bombed Jap island of Minamitori Shima, 1,200 miles southeast of Tokyo. In Burma it appeared Japs were preparing for drive down upon Rangoon. There were also clashes in northern Burma where Chinese have considerable strength. Reds cleaned up a pocket of German resistance 125 miles east of Smolensk at Yukhnov. Tokyo claimed 90,000 Singapore prisoners. Australians were feeling Japs planned invasion there next.

SATURDAY—Battle of Java was entering its last stage, with western end of island abandoned. Dutch were demolishing everything of use. All men up to 60 were made liable for miltary service in Australia. All was quiet in Philippines but Japs, fearful of popular uprising had ordered Filipinos to surrender all weapons, even the bolo. U. S. prepared to send a mission to India as latter was seeking full independence. In Burma British counter-attacked at Pegu and still held Rangoon. Russians claimed more advances. Two more vessels in Atlantic were announced lost by sub attack. Berlin reported that British parachutists were attempting to join Yugoslav guerrilla fighters.

SUNDAY—The fate of Java was in doubt as communications were cut but Dutch were fighting on. Churchill's leadership in British commentators. British and Indian leaders felt sure the latter army remain loyal to the former. The navy was hunting subs believed to be off the Panama canal zone. Australia was being assured of assistance that would bring an offensive against the Japs. Russians were feeling that Hitler could be beaten this fall if a second front was opened against them by Allies. Japs were putting tanks and troops ashore on Philippine islands, giving hint Filipinos were resisting.

MONDAY—Japs invaded New Guinea, Aucaralian mandated island 400 miles from continent. Japs also captured Payagyi, 50 miles north of Rangoon toward Mandalay. Java was isolated but Dutch government denied that they had asked for armistice. MacArthur gave official statement to rumor that General Homma, Jap general, had committed suicide at Manila. He added American troops had ambushed Jap regiment and killed 800 as they tried to move reinforcements to the front. British bombers returned to attack factories in France. Russians pushed offensive but Germans spoke of offensive action too and of rushing up reinforcements. Free French captured Axis desert posts in Libya. Russia paid tribute to its women who were helping to fight in the war.

TUESDAY—American subs sank a Jap destroyer and tanker and disabled an aircraft carrier and three cruisers in Pacific in week ended March 6. British evacuated Rangoon. Japs claimed 93,000 Dutch and 5,000 British and American troops had surrendered but Dutch in London were convinced no such wholesale capitulation had taken place or would take place. Bandoeng, however, had fallen. Jap bombers bombed Fort Moseby on New Guinea. Australia prepared to use "Scorched earth" policy if necessary. The Jap general in charge of Malay campaign was given command of enemy forces in Philippines to try to oust MacArthur. Russians' recapture of a strong position appeared to shake major German forward positions at Rzhev. Nazis were using strong air squadrons in attempt to break encirclement of army at Staraya Russa. British kept hammering foe in France. Two more ships were sunk off U. S. coast. Russia reported French had handed over their warships to Germans.

WEDNESDAY—Japs made a third landing on New Guinea but Australian air arm opened a counter-offensive and reported a number of enemy transports hit. British, giving up southern Burma, broke Jap maneuver of encirclement. A Jap cruiser shelled Cebu in central islands of Philippines but everything was quiet on Bataan. There was possibility of occupation of French Madagascar by Allies lest it be used by Axis. Turkey announced six French ships had been transferred from Dakar to Madagascar. Fear of Russian break through had led Hitler to plan a general offensive. Volunteer fighters over Burma bagged 3 Jap planes in week. Stories of atrocities by Japs were beginning to reach Britain and America.

THURSDAY — Reds pierced a strong fortified line of Hitler and were attacking all along line. Brazil appeared approaching war with Axis. Dutch announced they would carry on guerrilla war against Japs in East Indies. U. S. and Australian bombers sank and damaged 7 Jap ships in attack off New Guinea. British forced a German battleship back to harbor off Norway coast. Churchill offered a plan to put India nearer Dominion status as Cripps was sent out to India as emissary. British forces were sent to Nassau in Bahamas. British in Burma were hard pressed. Japs and Chinese were said to be in heavy battle.

LIVING ELECTRICALLY

By Betty Mays

Flying kites in the March winds is a wonderful sport for the children, and a safe one as long as they are taught to observe a few important rules. Rule one is that kite flying and electric wires don't mix. Be sure that your children fly their kites in open fields, where there are no overhead wires. Tell them to avoid runnir across roads or streets while kite flying. There may be electric wires, as well as speeding automobiles. Impress upon them, too, that if they do get a kite caught in an electric wire they must not try to get it, either by pulling it down, reaching for it with sticks, throwing stones to dislodge it, or climbing electric poles. Be sure too, that the kite has no metal in its frame, that the string has no wire or tinsel in it, and that they keep kite string dry, since wet string will conduct electricity. Following these simple rules will make kite flying safe, and prevent accidents.

Appreciates Support of Voters

I want to express my sincere appreciation to the citizens of Oakland for the splendid support I received at the city election on Monday, which elected me as one of the City Councilmen.

I shall perform the duties of that important office to the best of my ability and pledge an economical administration of the town's affairs. A. G. HESEN.

APPRECIATES LARGE VOTE

I wish to extend my sincere thanks to the voters of Oakland for the splendid vote accorded me at Monday's election, which gave me a place on the City Council by a very handsome majority.

This being my first venture in seeking a public office I was particularly pleased with the support I received.

I shall endeavor to give the taxpayers the kind of service they have a right to expect and will fill the office to the best of my ability. HARRY L. STEMPLE.

EXTENDS THANKS TO VOTERS

I wish to extend my sincere thanks to the citizens of Oakland for their expression of confidence by re-electing me as one of the City Councilmen at the election on Monday.

I shall continue to serve the townspeople earnestly and conscientiously and to the best of my ability.

EARL SHARTZER.

APPRECIATES SUPPORT

I wish to thank the voters of Oakland for their loyal support in the past election, and to apologize for being under the impression that I was registered to vote, when I was not. While I declared my intentions some six years ago and was registered on the county books, my name was not on the town's books.

I believe, however, that I became the first candidate in Oakland, seeking an office, that due to a misunderstanding as to my registering, electioneered against myself for several hours.

I publicly congratulate the new officials and wish them all successful terms in office. VIRGIL B. KELLEY.

Robert Swauger, of this community, won second place in the two mile cross country ski tourney, held this week-end at New Germany.

AURORA-EGLON

Announcement has been received here of the birth of a son, Sunday, March 8, to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Enoch, of Parkersburg. The baby has been named Tommy Errice. This is their third child and second son. The mother was the former Miss Ruth Arnett. Both parents were formerly of Aurora.

At a P.-T. A. meeting at the Eglon school house on last Thursday evening was shown a picture called "The Red Poacher," which was obtained from the Conservation Commission. After that Mr. Templeton, from the Aurora high school, gave a talk on soil conservation. Following this, Robert Spaid and Evert Beckman gave a dialogue "No Good on Directions."

Summers McCrum, of Aurora, is confined to his bed, suffering of rheumatism. He is one of the young men who was to leave next Wednesday for induction in the army.

Rev. W. L. Teets, of near Eglon, is quite ill.

Word was received here that Mrs. Lloyd Heckert is a patient in a Cumberland hospital, suffering of pneumonia. The Heckerts were formerly of Horse Shoe Run.

Herbert Edeburn, of Eglon, went to Clarksburg one day this week, where he now has employment.

Luther L. Adams, 72, died Friday at his home at Rowlesburg, after a six-month illness. He was born at Pifer, near Aurora, the son of William and Mary M. Wotring Adams. Survivors include his wife, the former Miss Sarah Jane Shaffer, and eight children. Funeral services were held Monday in the Trinity Methodist church at Rowlesburg, with the Rev. Asa Wolfe, pastor, in charge. Burial was made in the Terra Alta cemetery.

The body of James N. McMillen, of Rowlesburg, who was found dead Thursday morning, near the railroad tracks, was brought to Aurora Sunday afternoon, where interment was made in the Carmel cemetery.

Dr. J. W. Wenzel, of Meyersdale, Pa., was called to Eglon Sunday, in consultation with Dr. Miller, concerning the illness of Mrs. Julius Arnold, of Horse Shoe Run.

Mrs. Ernestine Schrock Sipes and little son left Aurora Saturday, by bus, to join her husband, Bernard Sipes, who has employment with Montgomery Ward Company, at Johnson City, Tennessee.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Snyder and two little girls, Mrs. Gertrude Snyder and father, Lloyd Harsh, all of Eglon, went to Kingwood Sunday, where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Less B. Harsh and family.

Jackie, the small son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Roth, of Horse Shoe Run, underwent an operation Saturday, at the Tucker County Hospital for the removal of tonsils and adenoids.

Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray C. Judy, at Eglon were Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Judy and family, of Keyser; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fike, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fike, of Morgantown.

Miss Ora Stemple returned last week to her home at Aurora, after having spent most of the winter with Miss Julia Minchell, at Marietta, O.

Mrs. Lephia Gustafson, of Eglon, was pleasantly surprised Sunday with a cablegram commemorating her birthday anniversary, from a son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gustafson, of Honolulu.

A wreck occurred Monday, when two autos driven by Gay Wotring and Ralph Forman, both of Aurora, collided on the Eglon hill. Fortunately no one was hurt. Both cars were slightly damaged.

BITTINGER

Following the thaw and rain that fell last Sunday, removing most of the snow and ice from the ground, owners of local sugar camps were busy last Monday cleaning up their camps and vessels in readiness for the opening of the spring sugar season.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Wiley, of Canton, O., accompanied by their two daughters, spent part of last Saturday and Sunday visiting relatives here and in the Meadow Mountain community.

The Maryland Traffic Safety Commission's slogan for the week is: "A day dream at the wheel may become a nightmare in the hospital. Drive carefully."

IN MEMORY

In memory of our dear father,
BURCHARD H. BITTINGER,
who died one year ago today, March 12, 1941.

God saw the road was getting rough,
The hills were hard to climb—
He gently closed your poor tired eyes
And whispered, "Peace be thine."

Treasured thoughts of one so dear
Often brings a silent tear;
Thoughts return to scenes now past,
Time rolls on, but memory lasts.

OLEN AND FAMILY.

Mrs. Harry Helbig has returned to her home here following a visit of several weeks with her son, Edgar H. Helbig and family in Richmond, Va., and her daughter, Miss Lillian Helbig, in Baltimore.

Harvey Winters, who suffered an attack of pneumonia after returning from the hospital, where he had his appendix removed, took a turn for the worse last Sunday and on Sunday night was taken back to Memorial hospital, in Cumberland, where he remains in a serious condition.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hostetler over the week-end were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hostetler and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hostetler and family, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hostetler, Jr., and family, Johnstown, Pa. A birthday dinner was served on Sunday in honor of Mr. H. C. Hostetler's 74th birthday.

A. Sylvester Albright died in a hospital in Lakeland, Florida, Tuesday morning, March 12, following an illness of several weeks. A former resident of Cranesville and Terra Alta, W. Va., moving from the latter place to Florida several years ago. He is survived by his widow and one son, O. R. Albright, of St. Petersburg, Florida. Mr. Albright was a brother-in-law of J. M. Falkenstein, of Oakland.

War Department Needs Automotive Instructors

Motor transport has assumed such a vital role in defense activity that the United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination for instructors in over ten branches of the automotive industry. The instructors are needed by the Quartermaster Corps of the War Department. Salaries range from $2,600 to $4,600 a year.

Instructors will conduct classes in the following branches: automotive parts; automotive electrical and carburetion; body finishing and upholstery; automotive machinist; tire recapping and sectional repair; fender body, and radiator; Diesel engines; internal-combustion engines; motorcycles; blacksmith and welding; and general. They will plan the courses in these subjects, and prepare and revise text and related instructional material.

Full information as to the requirements for these examinations and application forms, may be obtained from M. C. Crane at the Oakland postoffice.

DIED

MRS. C. E. DUCKWORTH

Mrs. Sophronia E. Hilleary Duckworth, aged 74, lifelong resident of this county until about two years ago, died last Thursday evening, March 5, about 8 o'clock, in the city hospital at Morgantown, W. Va. She had been a patient there for about five weeks.

She was a daughter of the late Isaac and Elizabeth Thompson and was born April 12, 1867, on the Thompson farm near Gorman. She resided there until about two years ago when she went to Morgantown to make her home with her son, Gus Hilleary.

She was a member of the Eastern Star, Alkire chapter, at Keyser, W. Va., and was a lifelong member of the Presbyterian church at Gormania, W. Va.

She was twice married, her first husband, Charles E. M. Hilleary, died thirty years ago last August. She married C. E. Duckworth on July 27, 1916.

Surviving are her husband, one son, Gus Hilleary, of Morgantown; one daughter, Mrs. Frank L. Blamble, of Gormania; and eight grandchildren, two of whom she reared since the death of their mother in 1921. They are Miss Lucille Houck, instructor in Lonaconing High school; and Daniel Houck. Five step-children also survive: Mrs. Norma Wallace, Cumberland; Mrs. Austin Swartz, Jr., Gormania; Mrs. B. B. Sturdivant, Rowlesburg, W. Va.; Mrs. Byron Moon, Morgantown; and H. Keith Duckworth, of Salt Lake City, Utah.

Funeral services were conducted on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the White Church, several miles south of Oakland, toward Gorman. Rev. A. S. Gear, Gormania, officiated, and interment was in the Thompson family cemetery near Gorman.

Among those attending the funeral services were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hilleary and family, Mrs. William Aronhalt, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stein, Kirk Norris, Cumberland; Frank Jamison, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Watson, Westernport; Mrs. Scott Thompson and Mrs. Henry Thompson, Keyser, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. David Kuhn, Moorefield, W. Va.; Calvin Thompson and family, Thomas, W. Va.; Mrs. Fred Bishop, Cameron, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Neville, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Hilleary and family, Morgantown, W. Va.; Mrs. Maud Houck, Mt. Savage; George Houck, Grantsville; Mrs. Broaderick and family, Rowlesburg, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Blamble, and Mr. and Mrs. Austin Swartz and family, Gormania, W. Va.

ROY C. PATTON

Roy Carson Patton, 53, well known resident of the Grantsville community, died about 6 o'clock Saturday evening, March 7, at his home following an illness of a year. He developed pneumonia a few days prior to his death.

Mr. Patton was a son of Henry and Mollie Fuller Patton, and was born near Grantsville September 14, 1889. He lived in that community practically all his life. For some years he was employed at coal mines at Grantsville, but a few years ago established a small store and service station near his home, just west of the town.

He was a member of the Grantsville Lutheran church. Surviving are his widow, who was Miss Bessie Butler; seven children, Mrs. Elwood Broadwater, Melcroft, Pa.; Lottie and Lorna Patton, at home; Dale Patton, Cresaptown; David Patton, at home; Rodney C. Patton and Harry Patton, Cumberland; also two brothers, William O. Patton Holland Falls, N. Y., and Norman L. Patton, Grantsville; three sisters, Mrs. Morgan Scott and Mrs. Lott Sheets, Hopwood, Pa., and Mrs. Lee Durst, Grantsville; and two grandchildren.

MRS. WEBSTER CROWE

Mrs. Webster Crowe, 64, died last Wednesday night, March 4, at her home in New Germany, after an illness of more than a year.

A daughter of the late Peter and Mary Broadwater McIntyre, she was born near Barton, January 14, 1878.

Mrs. Crowe had resided in the New Germany community for many years. Her husband died some years ago. She was a member of the New Germany Methodist church, from which funeral services were conducted on Sunday.

Surviving are one son, Stanley Crowe, New Germany; two brothers, William McIntyre, Merrill, and George McIntyre, and a sister, Mrs. John Wiland, New Germany.

Funeral service for Mrs. Crowe were conducted on Sunday, March 8, from the New Germany Methodist church, with Rev. Virgil R. Gillum, pastor, officiating. Interment was in the adjoining cemetery.

MRS. MARY ELLEN MURPHY

Mrs. Mary Ellen Murphy, 81 years old, widow of Joseph C. Murphy, died at her home about 7:45 Tuesday evening, March 10. She had been in failing health for some time and suffered a heart attack a few days previous to her death.

Mrs. Murphy was born in Banty County Cork, Ireland, November 25, 1861, a daughter of the late Patrick and Margaret O'Connor, and came to this country when she was 17 years of age.

She was a devout member of the Catholic church and belonged to the Ladies' Sodality of St. Peter's church.

Surviving are four sons and three daughters, John R. Murphy, Clarence M. Murphy, Mrs. George Kerins, Mrs. Howard White and Miss Ada Murphy, all of Oakland; Francis J. Murphy and Patrick Murphy, of Swissvale, Pa.; also 11 grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Funeral services are to be conducted on Friday morning at 9 o'clock from St. Peter's church with a high requiem mass by Rev. Fr. John C. Broderick, pastor. Interment will be in the Catholic cemetery.

DORIS ELAINE FEATHERS

Doris Elaine Feathers, 13 months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Feathers, of Kitzmiller, died at her home Friday, March 6. There are four other children.

The funeral was held at Short Run church on Sunday, with burial in the Short Run cemetery.

Card and Bingo Party To Be Held March 19

The annual card and bingo party sponsored by the children of St. Peter's School will be held Thursday night, March 19, at St. Peter's hall.

A large number of prizes including many pieces of hand-embroidered work, have been gathered. Five Hundred, Bridge and Bingo will be played, and there will be a separate room for Bingo for the children and another for adults. The ladies of the parish will have a cafeteria.

Trout Stocking To Start Sunday

Stocking of Western Maryland trout streams is to get under way this week-end, according to Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden.

There are to be 1,100 stocked in Savage river and 1,000 in Bear creek. The fish are to be over legal size, most of them ranging from ten to fourteen inches in length. The allotments will include brook, rainbow and brown trout.

New five-cent pieces will now be half silver and half copper instead of the present combination of one-fourth nickel and three-fourths copper.

The subject of the Gospel for the fourth Sunday in Lent is "Feeding Humanity." Jesus used the little lad's lunch to feed a large crowd, returned thanks to God for it, gave it to His disciples, and they passed it on to the hungry men and women. Our Lord had an orderly way of doing things, a method that was sure to satisfy the needs of all who looked to Him for help. Again we are reminded that "man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."

SOUTHERN STATES COOPERATIVE
FARM BULLETIN

Packaging Now Big Problem
Save Feed Bags and Oil Cans

Most everything that is sold has to be packaged. The things generally used are burlap, tin, cotton, hemp, paper, and glass. Now burlap, tin, hemp have been cut off by the war in the Pacific, and the government has taken over 2/3 of all the burlap in the country.

Every purchaser of feed should treat EVERY feed bag as though it might be the last. Store feed in ratproof, weather-proof containers and whip out the bags, hanging them out of reach of damage. Return them for credit on the next purchase or send them in bundles of 100 to the Premium Bag Co., Boston St., Baltimore, where the best prices will be paid for all in A-1 condition.

* * * *

A government ruling has put a stop to the packing of motor oil in tin cans. Tin is needed for more important war jobs. Buyers of motor oil should save and keep in the best of condition the motor oil cans that will be needed to use for refilling from bulk hereafter.

STOCK UP ON STARTING AND GROWING MASH

There are three good reasons for getting a couple of bags of Southern States Starting & Growing Mash BEFORE those chicks arrive. FIRST, there is the problem of transportation to consider—what you get now may save a special trip later. SECOND, chicks should not be fed chilled feed. Keep a bag handy right in brooder house while you are warming it up for the chicks that are coming. And LASTLY, Southern States Starting & Growing Mash is just the feed to do the important job of quick growing, uniform feathering, and good coloring. It's a balanced, high quality, open formula feed that has been proved by 100 million chicks.

JUDGE SLOAN DELIVERS CHARGE TO GRAND JURY

Calls Attention To Responsibilities And Duties Of That Body In Investigation of Crime

Calling attention to their responsibilities and duties, Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan, of the Garrett County Circuit Court, on Monday, delievered the charge to the grand jurors prior to beginning their investigation into alleged violations of the law.

The grand and petit jurors were drawn a short time ago with the former ordered, under the law, to report for duty on Monday. The petit jurors are not required to report until March 23, when the criminal docket will be called.

Immediately following the Court's charge the group retired to the grand jury room to begin their investigations with Dempsey Fleming as foreman.

The charge to the grand jury follows:

Gentlemen of the Grand Jury:—

Partly, according to custom and partly by virtue of certain statutes in this State, Court throughout the State having criminal jurisdiction, at the opening of every criminal term, instructs the grand jury in a general way of the nature of the duties they are about to undertake and perform.

I need not impress upon you the importance of your service as grand jurors. The grand jury is one of the agencies upon which the citizen relies for his safety as well as his liberty. It is the agency through which crime is punished, persons investigated and ultimately brought to justice if the person be guilty and punished. It has always been recognized as one of the greatest protections that the citizen has and also for those who are accused of crime, and that no one may be unjustly brought to trial for any offense for which he may be charged.

Most of the business that may be brought before you will be cases in which a thorough investigation has already been made by the law enforcement officers of the county and those parties either are out on bail or are in jail awaiting the results of your investigation. You do not try cases nor determine the guilt or innocence of any of the persons whom you investigate. If you determine there is reasonable ground to believe that they are guilty of the offenses for which they are charged, it is your duty to present or indict them so that they may be brought to trial before the petit jury or before the Court by whom their guilt or innocence will be determined.

In addition to any cases that have already been investigated and brought to your attention by the State's Attorney, who will be at your service, you are free to investigate any other cases that may be brought to your attention or of which you may have personal knowledege, and it is your duty to investigate these cases and of those cases of which you have personal knowledge. I do not mean cases in which there are rumors of certain abuses being committed or of crimes done here and there, but cases in which you have reasonable grounds to believe and can produce evidence that parties have been guilty of violation of the law; at least whether or not there is a reasonable ground for our belief that such is the case.

At each term of the Court—at the opening of each criminal Court—there are certain statutes which the legislature requires to be brought to your attention.

One of these is Section 4 of Article 27 of the Code, by which we are required to call to your attention Section 3 of Article 27, forbidding and prohibiting and prescribing punishment for the crime of abortion, the advertisement of any drug, medicine or instrument designed to produce the same, and the sale of any such articles.

Another is Section 79 of Article 27, which provides that if any clerk, Register of Wills, Sheriff, Collector of Taxes, Notary Public, or other officer, whose duty it is to collect revenue due the State of Maryland or any county thereof, shall, after the receipt of said revenue by him, wilfully detain the same in his possession and neglect to pay the same into the Treasury of the State or to the County Commissioners, or the proper officer authorized to receive the same, for more than sixty days after the day upon which it is made by law his duty to collect, and which he shall have collected, and shall neglect to pay the same into the Treasury of the State or to the County Commissioners or the proper officer authorized to receive the same, for the space of six months after he shall have so collected the same, such officer so offending in either case shall be deemed to be a defaulter.

Another of these statutes is Section 285 of Article 27, which makes it unlawful for any practictioner of medicine or dentistry to furnish or present for the use of any person cocaine, heroine, opium, morphine and certain other narcotic drugs, except under the strict regulations therein provided for.

It is the duty of grand juries by Section 22 of Article 51 of the Code to visit the jail and inquire into its condition, the manner in which it is kept, and the treatment of the prisoners and report the same to the Court. It is customary also for grand juries in this county to inspect the Court House and Jail and to make such recommendations as it may see fit for the repair and improvement of the Court House and the Jail.

We are not required to especially instruct the grand jury as to the statute against carrying concealed weapons, but it has been the custom so to do because this offense is lightly regarded by so many persons, frequently with such tragic consequences. The legislature, realizing its seriousness, fixed penalties of a fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment in jail or House of Correction of not more than two years. Although not required, it is customary to direct the attention of the grand jury to the liquor laws of the county. In this county the sale of beer is now authorized by law subject to such regulations as the Act of 1935 imposes. The liquor laws have been rigidly enforced in this county, and we can assume that there will be no relaxation on the part of the grand jury or enforcement officers in this respect.

Article 12, Section 104, of the Public Local Laws, title: "Garrett County," provides that the books of the County Treasurer shall be open to the inspection of the grand jury and it is implied from this that it is your duty to see that the books of the County Treasurer are carefully kept and the money received is properly deposited.

I have not commented on any of the cases which might come before you at this term, because I think that the fair and impartial investigation which you the required to make should not be influenced by any comments from the Court in advance of such investigation. I know of no unusual cases that may come before your.

You will notice that you, by the oath are required to keep secret everything that happened in the grand jury room. That is most important because leaks from a grand jury room frequently result in the escape of people whose cases are being investigated if they are not already under bond or in jail, so that when you leave the Court House you simply forget everything that has transpired in that room.

It is important that you promptly assume you duties and conclude them as speedily as may be consistent with the thorough investigation of all matters which may be brought before you.

That this Court is of the opinion that you will promptly and well perform the duties to which you are summoned, is attested by the fact that you have been selected to serve as grand jurors.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS . . . . . .

Cabinet Change

Washington, March 7.

Changes in the Roosvelt Cabinet have been predicted for so long by so many, without eventuation, that it is easy to understand why public faith in these predictions should be slight Nevertheless, they continue. In the last few days rumor has dealt with names of those about to go out and others about to come in.

* * *

That some changes could be made with advantge to the national interests is clear. Reason they have not occurred before is the reluctance of Mr. Roosevelt to do three things—first, to concede that with himself as the head, any different Cabinet is needed; second, to admit that his critics have been right and some of his selections were mistakes from the start; third, to appear prodded into action by political opponents and independent commentators who have been calling upon him for new men.

* * *

One group of these ignores the merits of the individual and insists that the members of the Cabinet are too old. Another group passes by the age factor and charges general incompetency. A third contends that they are both incompetent and over-aged. Conceding that the Cabinet could be greatly improved, there still is plausibility in the argument that substitutions which Mr. Roosevelt could be induced to make would not greatly improve it. His selections of new men might easily make it less of a truly national Cabinet than now.

* * *

And there is an answer to both the old age and the incompetency allegations. So far as the first is concerned, it is pointed out that while it is true many famous military and political leaders of long gone generations were under 50 years old at the time of their triumphs—the span of human life has lengthened fifteen to twenty years in the last century. Men—and women, too—of 60 and 65 years today are, in reality, not older in mental and physical vigor than those of 45 and 50 in the early eighteen hundreds. Except where poor health has caused incapacity, the age of the Cabinet member ought not to outweigh other qualities.

* * *

More influential, for example, than any Cabinet member is Mr. Harry Hopkins, who is only 52. Yet, not many will argue that his age qualifies him as a sound adviser or an efficient aide. Few would want a Hull and a Stimson, or even a Jones and a Knox, displaced by men of the Hopkins type. But that is the type the President likes and clings to. As to the charge of incompetency, it is certainly true that sins of omission and commission can be charged against various members of this Cabinet. Mr. Jones made a stupid mistake about rubber—and other things. Colonel Knox has spoken and written unwisely and too much. Mr. Biddle, one of the young members, made a mistake in his "War Secrets" bill. Mr. Ickes went off half-cocked about oil. And there have been others.

* * *

However, such is the insistence upon personal domination by the President that competency in the heads of departments does not count as it should. Under him Cabinet members are detail men, not policy makers. Initiative is supposed to come from the White House. It never has been encouraged in Cabinet members. Ideas still come from the brain trust boys of the "inner circle." They are given to the Cabinet, not taken from them. That is the case now. That has always been the case in this regime and changes in the Cabinet would not alter this fact.

* * *

The Cabinet member upon whom the most savage attack has centered is Secretary of Labor Perkins. Certainly, Miss Perkins is no great asset. But, in fairness two things should be said. One is that at least she is a better Secretary of Labor than either of her two immediate predecessors. One of these was William N. Doak, pushed on Mr. Hoover by organized labor and certainly one of the poorest specimens who ever held a public office. The other was "Puddler Jim" Davis, now Senator from Pennsylvania and anxious to be Governor. Mr. Davis was appointed by President Harding, held over under Coolidge and literally had to be pried out by Hoover. It isn't high praise to say that Miss Perkins is better than these, but it is true.

The other thing to be said is that it is unfair to blame her for labor policies, labor excesses, unsound labor legislation, sit-down strikes or anything else. What had she to do with these? The answer is nothing. Labor policy has not been made in the department but in the White House. The President formed his own labor alliances. It was he who built up these labor bosses, giving them what they wanted in return for political support. They dealt with him direct. It is he who in a time of national peril has held to these alliances, blocked regulatory legislation, tolerated defense strikes, avoided wage control to offset inflation and now permits an unrestrained drive toward the labor tyranny of a closed shop.

* * *

What's the sense of kicking poor Miss Perkins around for these things? She isn't responsible. She has simply acted in accord with the Roosevelt wish—and so will Mr. John Winant, our returning Ambassador from England, if, as reported, he is put in Miss Perkins' place.

Rev. Robinson to Lead Easter Dawn Service In Cave

National Speleological Society Plans for Gathering Near Franklin

An Easter Dawn service in Trout Rock Cave, near Franklin, Pendleton county, W. Va., on Sunday, April 5, is being planned under the auspices of the National Speleological Society. The service will begin at 7 o'clock a. m., Eastern War time and the general public is invited.

This national organization during the past year has figured prominently in national magazines because of widespread interest in the activity of discovering and exploration of new caves throughout the United States. The group met last fall at Brookside and explored the Sang Run cave in this area. Invitations are being extended to the three hundred members of the society to attend the service.

The meeting will also be under the auspices of the Institute of Worship and Church Music, and Rev. Felix G. Robinson, Oakland, director of the Institute, will conduct the service. He will use a litany of the Resurrection derived from an ancient Easter Morning office. Mimeographed copies of the service will be printed for distribution. Each person attending is being asked to bring a candle and candle-holder. The service will be held regardless of the weather.

The bulletin of the national Speleological Society has the following to say about Trout Rock Cave: "The cave consists primarily of one large room. As far as we know this is the largest room in any cave in West Virginia. Dimensions of this room are 420 feet long and 165 feet wide at its widest point. The room has a small lake in the center. A great deal of the cave has never been explored. It has some fairly complicated passages but is very dry. There is also an excellent display of fossils. The large room is within easy access of the entrance. As a matter of history the cave was used as a ballroom several times, the last being in 1895 on the Fourth of July, when a grand dance was held."

The cave can be reached by route 220, about 10 miles south of Franklin, W. Va., at Cave Postoffice.

MT. LAKE PARK

If you read this column then you will be familiar with what we are going to say. It's our regular spring prophecy. Anyhow we believe it: That this summer should be and will be a banner season. We are basing our assumption on two reasons. First, because of the state of our country and the logical location of Garrett county, and secondly, because many inquiries are coming in regarding rental and sale of property from those families anxious to leave the coastal cities.

Personals

Mrs. J. S. Elliot has returned from New York City, where she was called by the illness of her mother.

Mrs. I. D. Hill arrived here from Washington on Tuesday and has opened her cottage for the season.

Mrs. George Glotfelty spent several days last week with her daughter and family, Mrs. Walter Hamill.

Turning Over An Old Leaf

By Phillip A. Gladheim

"There were faces to remember in the Valley of the Shadow;
There were faces unregarded, there were faces to forget;
There were fires of grief and fear that are a few forgotten ashes;
There were sparks of recognition that are not forgotten yet."

Christendom is now in the Lenten (Slow) Season. It is a season in which we are to slow our temporal pace and quicken the spiritual. This is especially a sober season of Lent, commemorating not only our Lord's suffering and death, but also the Christian martydom throughout the world, especially in Germany, once the strongest center of Christendom. It was from Germany that many of our forebears came, and almost from the day they settled in the mountains established their churches.

So far as available records show, Garrett county possessed four established churches before the beginning of the Nineteenth Century.

The first itinerant preacher in this section was a Baptist clergyman from the South Branch Valley. His name was Rev. John Taylor. He wrote a book in 1823, entitled, "Ten Baptist Churches." He came over the mountains by McCulloch's Path in 1772. It was at that time that Rev. Taylor visited what was then known as Fort Morris. He called it the Sandy Glades Settlement. It is now known as Glade Farms in Preston county, West Va. His preaching was well received. His congregation was made up of families in the Virginia (West) wilderness, and those from across the border in Maryland, now known as Garrett county.

He mentions two familes that were from the Friendsville section—the Frazees and Benjamin Millers.

According to data collected by Miss Elizabeth West, Frazee's Ridge Baptist church was organized in 1773. This likely means that the Frazee mentioned in Taylor's history was the person responsible for the organizing of a Baptist church. If this is correct, Frazee's Ridge Baptist church is the oldest in the county.

The next in line is at the southern end of the county. In the year 1784 there was organized what was then called "The First Church of Jesus Christ in the Youghiogheny Glades." It was established in the home of one George Rinehart and his wife Susan, devout Christians, who then lived at Sunnyside. Rinehart also called it "Susan's Church. From this parent church stemmed the Parishes at Red House and Aurora. George Rinehart was of the Lutheran faith. There was also George Loar, likewise a Lutheran, who married one of the daughters of George Rinehart.

The George Loars settled on what is now the Truman Bittinger place, on the Monte Vista road, three-quarters of a mile south of Oakland. They built a log cabin, a one-room affair at first, then later on added to it. It was in this log cabin of Mr. and Mrs. George Loar that Isaac McCarty, a neighbor, met with a group one Sunday in 1829 and organized a Sunday school under the auspices of the Methodist church.

Mr. McCarty, a layman, was persuaded by two ladies of New York to found a Sunday school. It was not many years before that Robert Raikes founded the first Sunday school in England. From that one Sunday school the movement spread into every Christian land.

It was from this Sunday school, organized in a Lutheran home by a Methodist layman, which originated the Christian religion in the Oakland community. It was this very Sunday school that flowered into St. Paul's Methodist church. The Loar family from then on became staunch and faithful Methodists, but have retained from the beginning a broad and helpful contact to all the churches and the community at large. It is a family whose record of community uplift has kept climbing through the years.

It is interesting to note that the local Methodist church has an unbroken line from the day of the founders to the present. Mr. and Mrs. George Loar were the grandparents of the Loars—three brothers and two sisters—who live together in their beautifu home on Second street. The brothers are Harry, George W. and Judson Loar and the sisters are Miss Lottie Loar and Miss Grace Loar. One of this family, the late Lawson Loar, of Clarksburg, West Va., recently died. They are the children of the late Mr. and Mrs. David H. Loar, of Oakland.

But the oldest Methodist church in the county is also from the Friendsville community. Thus Friendsville is the only community in the county that can boast of the formation of two churches in the Eighteenth Century. This Methodist church is becoming more thriving each decade. It was organized sometime after 1784—perhaps one or two years later than "Susan's Church" in Sunnyside.

The last church to be organized in the Eighteenth Century in this county was Zion Methodist church (M. E. South later) 1790 in the Swanton community. This was also organized by a missionary under the authority of Bishop Asbury. According to Francis Turner the work was started by Henry Knight. Bishop Asbury himself came to Knight's between 1781 and 1784. Many children of the settlers were named Asbury.

Of the four Eighteenth Century churches two were Methodist.

The first Roman Catholic church was St. Mary's, at Blooming Rose. This was not organized until 1815. In a later article the author hopes to describe the origins of the Roman faith. The late Father Thomas Joseph Stanton has written a book, entiled, "The Church in Western Maryland."

Like the beginnings of Christianity, ours, too, was founded in humble homes of pious people. How different today, when seemingly only ordained clergymen have sufficient missionary zeal to establish churches. What has apparently been overlooked is the fact that strong and vital churches are more often the products of lay-family cooperation, as in the case of Saint Paul's of Oakland.

Single copies of The Republican may be obtained at the Hamill Book and Stationery Store, corner Third and Alder streets, where the current issue of the paper is placed on sale every Thursday afternoon. Price, 5 cents per copy.

Unity and Morale . . . . .

"In this 'all-out' war we are all virtually enlisted personnel in the total army of the United States," said Governor Herbert O'Conor this week.

"Our job is to work hard—to do the things we can do because we know how—and to willingly offer our services to the Local Civilian Defense Organizations. Any other course with the enemy threatening our shores means defeat.

"And above all 'speak guardedly.' Unless we are sure of the facts, and are qualified to speak as military experts; like good soldiers, we should not—intentionally or unintentionally—undermine the very morale on which our safety depends.

"Unity and morale mean victory."

WILL SELECT COMMITTEEMEN FOR 3-A GROUPS

Sixteen Soil Conservation Communities Are Set Up This Year In Place of Four in 1941

Emergency conditions have made it necessary to establish sixteen soil conservation communities in the county, according to an announcement by John H. Carter, county agent. These sixteen will replace the original four communities used in previous years, he said.

The communities have been established and it is necessary to elect a community committee, alternates and a voting delegate for each community. The voting delegates will then meet to elect a county committee whose responsibility it will be to administer the three-A program in Garrett county. The community committees will assist the county committees and carry out the three-A program by making farm to farm contacts as well as checking performance of farms participating in the program which was formerly done by field supervisors, Mr. Carter pointed.

Meetings have been scheduled at which elections will be held. All meetings will be at 8 p. m., as follows:

Monday, March 23—Communities B. and C., election district 2, Friendsville High school; communities O. and P., election district 14, Oakland, county agent's office; and community L., districts 9 and 15, Avilton School.

Tuesday, March 24 — Community M., districts 10 and 13, Deer Park school; community F., districts 4 and 11, Bloomington school; community G., district 5, Accident High school.

Wednesday, March 25—Communities D. and E., district 3, Grantsville High school; community H., district 6, Sang Run school; community A., district 1, Swanton school.

Thursday, March 26—Community M., district 12, Bittinger School; Communities J. and K., district 8, Sunnyside Grange hall; community I, districts 7 and 16, Pleasant Valley Grange hall.

Mr. Carter pointed out that the committeemen should be willing to serve and that it required the careful thought of all in nominating parties in the various communities in whom people would have confidence to do this type of work.

Official Opening Of New Auditorium At Accident Is Planned

Building Committee Will Have Public Officials Present At Meeting

Plans for the official opening of the Accident school auditorium on Saturday evening, March 21, at 8:00 o'clock have been announced by Henry M. Speicher, member of the building committee. The public is invited to be present, according to the committee members.

The program is to be sponsored by the building committee, consisting of F. E. Spoerlein, chairman; A. J. Richter, secretary; Henry M. Speicher, William Miller and Henry Harman.

County officials who were instrumental in making possible the erection of the wing to the main building will be present, including the local members of the State Legislature, the Garrett County Board of Education and the County Commissioners.

Music will be furnished by the Accident Community band and the Accident High school glee club.

Cumberland Man Wins $7,500 Suit At Hagerstown

Negro Chauffeur Gets Big Verdict for Loss of Arm In Accident

William Harris, of Cumberland, 26-year-old negro chauffeur for former State Senator William A. Gunter, was awarded damages of $7,500 Wednesday, by a Washington county circuit court jury for injuries suffered in an automobile-truck collision last July 31.

The jury returned the verdict against Harve Mussard, Oakland produce dealer, after deliberating less than an hour. The damage award was described as the largest made in a personal injury suit in the Hagerstown court in the past ten years.

Harris suffered the loss of his left arm when his car was sideswiped on U. S. Route 220 by a truck owned by Mussard and operated by Albert E. Brown.

It was brought out in the testimony that Brown, who was at large for several months after the accident, pleaded guilty in trial magistrates court here last month to a charge of leaving the scene of an accident and was fined $100. It was also shown that within twenty minutes after the crash in which Harris was injured Brown struck a parked car in Keyser, later paying a $25 fine there on a similar charge.

The case was originally docketed in Garrett county, then moved here on motion of counsel for Harris. It was subsequently removed for trial to Hagerstown on the petition of defense counsel.

The trial occupied the entire day Tuesday and part of Wednesday.

Counsel for the plaintiff included Lewis M. Wilson, of Cumberland; Walter W. Dawson, of Oakland, and Omar T. Kaylor, of Hagerstown. Defense attorneys were William R. Offutt, of Oakland, and Robert McCauley, of Hagerstown.

Twelve Given Right To Purchase Tires

Importance of Scrap Rubber Emphasized in Needs of Nation

Twelve were given certificates this week enabling them to purchase tires, tubes, and retreads, according to W. W. Dawson, chairman of the tire rationing board.

Mr. Dawson stated that Price Administrator Henderson was emphasizing the importance of scrap rubber in augmenting the nation's rubber supply and urged everyone holding tires so worn out or damaged as to be unfit for retreading or recapping, to turn them in to a scrap or junk dealer or a collecting charity. The scrap when processed and reclaimed will lessen the drain on new rubber stocks.

Passenger—Dr. N. R. Davis, Grantsville, 2 tires and tubes; C. and P. Telephone company, 1 tire and tube.

Trucks—Floyd Frantz, Friendsville, 2; Henry Bowser, Selbysport, 4 tires and 2 tubes; Roy M. Myers, Selbysport, 2 tubes; Hugh Ream, Oakland, 2 tires and tubes; Ivan Humberson, Selbysport, 3 tires and tubes; Charles R. Savage, Deer Park, 2 tires and 1 tube; Sherman Gilbert Frazee, Accident, 2 tires.

Obsolete—Wesley A. Fike, Friendsville, 2 tires and tubes.

Retreads—Stanley Coal Company, Crellin, 5; William Upperman, Deer Park, 2.

Blizzard of Short Duration Hits County

After several days of spring-like weather, old man winter sent a driving snowstorm to the Garrett County hills last evening which in intensity was similar to those of a week or two previous, but which was of much shorter duration.

The lowering temperature however, made the highways icy and there was no sign of clearing skies this morning. Earlier in the week the thermometer had risen steadily, reaching 72 on Tuesday.

Filling station prices of gasoline along coastal areas were frozen under orders, to remain at prices as of Friday, March 13.

TOWLER NAMED CHAIRMAN VICTORY GARDEN GROUP

Committee Discusses Methods of Bringing Garden Program Before Public Last Friday

The importance of gardening and methods of bringing the garden program before the public were discussed last Friday night at a meeting of the Victory Garden committee in the office of Miss Marianna Lee Long, home demonstration agent.

The eighteen members of the committee present named James Towler, of Oakland, representing the Rotary Club, who was a former county agent, as permanent chairman of the group, and he chose from the larger committee a group to meet with him to draft a practical county plan.

His selection included Mrs. Rebecca F. Canan, Mrs. Robert T. Hoffman, D. L. Reed, John H. Carter, county agent, Lawrence M. Fraley, Mrs. E. Z. Tower, John L. Fitzwater and Miss Long.

Mr. Towler said he would call a meeting of his group as soon as he received some definite material from the Extension Service at College Park and that a definite plan of procedure would be outlined. He said he was counting on distributing the information to the people of the county through the schools and other county-wide organizations.

Mr. Fraley, mayor of Oakland, declared that anyone who wanted to have a garden this summer and had no available space, that the space would be provided if they would make application at the City Hall.

Others present at the meeting and the group they represented were Dorsey Guard, war board and AAA; Francis Connolly, Welfare Board; K. R. Wagaman and Miss Carolyn Blanks, farm security; Mrs. T. C. Bittinger, Homemakers club; Mr. Finke, Junior Chamber of Commerce; Miss Anna Durst, County Older Youth Group; Mrs. Lawrence Moomaw, Mt. Lake Rebekah lodge; Miss Elizabeth Leary, Pythian Sisters, and Clifford Phillips, Knights of Pythias.

Mr. Reed represented the Agricultural Planning committee; Mrs. Tower the Oakland Civic club; Mr. Fraley the Moose; Mr. Fitzwater the Board of Education, and Mrs. Hoffman is former home demonstration agent.

Red Cross Activity

At the sewing room this week Mrs. T. E. Bishoff returned 36 baby slips made by her, Miss Margaret Bittinger, Mrs. Walter Bittinger, members of the Woodmen Circle.

Mrs. Lester Yutzy and her Crellin group are making baby shirts and children's rompers, returning 63 shirts to headquarters and taking 90 yards of material for rompers. This group sews two afternoons each week at different homes in Crellin.

Mrs. Harry Durst has returned 19 shirts and 6 slips this week and has taken 12 more shirts. Mrs. Emma Specht returned 5 baby blankets and is making 4 patch work blankets out of outing flannel pieces left from other garments. Mrs. Dewey Rice returned 12 baby slips. Mrs. Hanson Friend has made 14 baby blankets at home and 12 at headquarters in the past week. Twenty-three shirts and 19 blankets were sent to Mrs. Terrence O'Donnell and her group at Kitzmiller.

Five pair booties were returned by Mrs. Mitchell; 12 shirts by Mrs. Earl Enlow; 17 baby dresses by Accident high school; 12 baby sleeping garments by Sisters of Mercy, St. Peter's school.

Sewing at headquarters this week were Mrs. Francis Connolly, Mrs. Harry Friend, Mrs. Hanson Friend, Mrs. E. I. Baumgartner, Mrs. O. T. Graser, Mrs. Cecil Smith, Mrs. Gordon Miller, Mrs. George Fulk, Mrs. Hugh Teets.

Flying Class to Graduate Week Ahead of Schedule

The speeding temp of the nation's war effort struck the basic flying school at Enid, Okla., as the latest graduating class, 42-E, finished the middle stage of pilot training one week ahead of schedule. Graduation had been set at March 23.

The class roster included the name of Robert E. Browning, of Alder street, son of County Commissioner and Mrs. Cheston H. Browning. Basic training time was thus cut from nine to eight weeks. Fliers mastered the pilotage of basic training craft and obtained basic knowledge of cross-country navigation, aerial acrobatics, night flying and landing, and instrument technique. From there they will go to advanced schools for another eight or nine weeks before being rated as pilots with the commission of 2nd lieutenant in the U. S. Army Air Corps reserve.

Criminal Docket For March Term Called March 23

The criminal docket for the March term of the Garrett County Circuit court will be called for Monday morning, March 23, with either Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan, or Associate Judges William A. Huster and Joseph D. Mish on the bench.

The Grand Jury found fifteen indictments including ones against Leroy Wilt for larceny and breaking jail; William Wilson and Harold Harvey for armed robbery, and Wilson for breaking jail; Elbert McCombie and Chauncey Lowdermilk, for aiding persons to break jail; and Albert Swauger for shooting his wife in the leg.

The petit jury is required to report Monday morning at 9 o'clock to be on hand for possible trials by jury. The session is not expected to last long.

The State will be unable to try the Wilt case unless he is apprehended before that time. Wilt and Wilson escaped Monday, February 23, by sawing two bars covering the window in the hospital room. Wilson was caught that same evening. Wilt was seen and fired upon by officers but escaped to the woods.

Army Deserter Jumps From Train In Vain Attempt at Freedom

Michael Adsio, 25, a deserter in the United States Army, who was being taken back to Fort Knox, Kentucky, from New York, by Sergt. D. H. Lassitee, made a desperate effort to escape Monday night, when he jumped from the National Limited at Altamont, but was picked up Tuesday by county officers.

The sergeant and his prisoner were returning from Fort Jay, New York to Camp Knox, and when the Limited slowed down at Altamont to release the helper engine, the two were passing from one car to another at the time. Adsio quickly pulled the car door shut with the sergeant on the inside, and then with the other opened the door above the car steps and jumped out. The sergeant detrained at Terra Alta and notified Sheriff J. W. Owens and Corporal Thomas Currie, of the State police.

On Tuesday they picked up a clue and arrested Adsio on the Deer Park-Sand Flat highway a short time after he had hitch-hiked a ride with a passing motorist.

The sergeant and his prisoner then continued their journey to Kentucky, where Adsio was to be turned over to authorities.

Knitted Material Enroute to Armed Forces of the U. S.

Seven hundred thirty sweaters, mufflers, socks, and mittens that have been made by Garrett County volunteer knitters were mailed from Oakland on Monday, on their way to the armed forces in many parts of the world.

Staff workers spent the past weekend labeling, packing, checking and marking cartons for shipment to the Eastern Area warehouse of the Red Cross.

Mrs. John Stevenson, Sr., Mt. Lake Park, Mrs. Jesse Ashby, Mrs. D. M. Dean, Mrs. Foster Bittle and Mrs. B. F. Selby checked the different items of sweaters, socks, mufflers, beanies and mittens. Mrs. E. C. Lawrence and mother, Mrs. Henry McComas, worked at their home to complete several sweaters, and Mrs. Anna Smouse completed a muffler so it could be included. Mrs. H. A. Loraditch, who has finished her 21st pair of socks, Mrs. T. E. Bishoff and Mrs. George Welling assembled socks. Mrs. F. E. Rathbun labeled the last fifteen pair of mittens sent by Mrs. S. Townshend Naylor and Mrs. Anna Smouse. Mrs. Newton Koplin labeled the socks.

The knitters, under direction of Mrs. Bittle, completed seven women's sweaters over their quota of sixty-four. The sweater knitters reported that forty more would be ready for shipment in the next two weeks.

Completes First Aid Course

Between fifty and seventy-five persons of Oakland completed the first aid course which has been in progress here for the past ten weeks, and took the final examination last night.

Those who succeeded in passing the course will be called together later for presentation of cards. The class was instructed by Dr. E. I. Baumgartner.

OPERATION OF C. & O. R. R. EXTENDED TO APRIL 1ST

Tearing Up Of Track Postponed In Order For Coal Operators To Fulfill Existing Contracts

In order that coal mine operators using the Confluence and Oakland Railroad as a means of transporting their output to the market and thus fulfill existing contracts, an order has been issued delaying the demolition of that road until April first, according to information from a reliable source.

The orignal plan was to immediately remove the rails and ties from the bed of the road following the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, dismissing the petition of the McCullough Coal Corpoation and the Maryland Public Service Commission which sought to prevent the abandonment of the 20-mile line of road in Garrett county and Pennsylvania, requested by the War Department to facilitate construction of a flood-control project.

While the main line of the road remains intact at present, side tracks at Friendsville and at other points along the route have been torn up and the material entering into their construction hauled away.

The road was built primarily more than fifty years ago to transport lumber and forest products from the section served by it, he original intention, as the name implies, was to construct the railway into Oakland, but for some reason this was abandoned, the southern terminal being at Kendall, a few miles up the river from Friendsville.

During the life of the line Harry J. Black has been connected with the road as agent at Friendsville, where he has a commodious home and with the abandonment of the road he will retire from active life and remain a resident of Friendsville.

Bethel Has Perfect February Attendance

One-Teacher School Is Highest For Month—Few Above Standard

Bethel school, with 100 percent rating, led all other schools of the county in attendance for the month of February, as most of the schools were below the county standard, according to a bulletin issued by the Board of Education.

Due to much sickness in the schools, only seven out of forty were above the standard of 93 percent for one-teacher schools. Not one two-teacher, graded or high school was above the county standards set for their group.

Steyer school was second among the one-teacher schools with 98, while Piney Run was third with 97.7. Others above standard were Casselman, Sunnyside, Gorman and Herrington.

Shallmar led the two-teacher schools with a rating of 92.5, while Bloomington was second with 90.3. Crellin had attendance of 91.7 to lead the graded schools, while Kitzmiller was second with 90.8. Grantsville led the high schools in attendance with 93.9 percent, while Oakland was second with 91.6.

Attendance standard for high schools is 95, graded schools and two-teacher schools, 94; and one-teacher schools, 93.

Union Lenten Service

The union Lenten services of the churches of Oakland go into the last week before Holy Week with the service at the Methodist church next Wednesday night. At this service the message will be brought by Rev. H. Kearney Jones, new rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal church.

Last night's service was held at the Lutheran church, with Rev. Minor Sprague, Methodist pastor, bringing the message.

Holy Week services will be held each night, the first three rotating as usual among the churches, but the Thursday services in the individual churches, in order that each may hold its own communion. On Friday it is expected that, as in other years, three-hour services beginning at noon will be held by the Episcopalians, and by the Methodists and Lutherans together.

CCC Truck Wrecked

Several CCC enrollees were badly shaken up, but no one was seriously injured when the truck in which they were returning to the Swallow Falls camp from Oakland was wrecked at the Round Glade bridge last Saturday night.

The rail on the bridge was torn off but the truck reached solid ground before turning over.

Miss Ann Sloan Speaks at Club Meeting

Forty-three persons attended the dinner meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club at the William-James Hotel on Thursday evening. Besides members were representatives from the Women's Civic Club, Rotary Club, Lions Club and Red Cross workers. The speaker was Miss Ann Sloan, State Chairman for the sale of Stamps and Bonds under the Women's Council of Defense, and also chairman of other active defense agencies.

Taking as her topic, "What's wrong with the world, today," Miss Sloan held her listeners with unabated attention, relating incidents of her experience in World War No. 1, where she served troops at the front in France as a dietician, and later was hostess at the American Officers Hotel in Paris following the signing of the Armistice.

Stave Mill Entirely Destroyed By Flames

Several Thousand Dollars' Loss Is Incurred Tuesday Afternoon

A heavy loss was sustained by the Oakland Timber Corporation on Tuesday afternoon when the stave mill owned and operated by the company, located just west of town on the Swallow Falls road, was completely destroyed by fire of undetermined origin.

The loss will run to several thousand dollars, according to H. D. Lollar, manager, as there was less than ten per cent coverage with insurance.

Mr. Lollar said last evening that the mill was valued at $10,000, but just how much of the machinery could be salvaged was yet to be learned.

The watchman had been at the mill about five minutes before the blaze was discovered and there were workmen in a lumber yard nearby when the fire broke out, but the thirty-mile wind caused the flames to spread quickly and envelopd the entire structure in a very few minutes.

Oakland firemen kept the flames from spreading to nearby lumber but were unable to prevent the destruction of the mill and its contents.

Mr. Lollar said he would attempt to salvage what he could and start over. The timber company was engaged in manufacturing staves from the oak logs.

Oakland firemen were called that same afternoon to extinguish a grass fire on the Andrew Helbig property south of town. Another call to Mountain Lake Park that same evening was found to be a false alarm.

The firemen also had a slight mix-up last Saturday evening about six o'clock, but fortunately there were no dissastrous results. An alarm was given at that time and the firemen went to the home of John Ours, at Loch Lynn, where the truck became stalled in the mud for a short time. The alarm, which was later learned, was from the home of John Lower because of a flue fire, but it was extinguished without further damage.

To Stock Streams With 16,000 Trout

Some 16,000 trout are to be stocked in Garrett and Allegany county streams this year and about 10,000 of them will be large as a result of having been held over in the Bear Creek hatchery for two years, according to Fulcher P. Smith, of the Maryland State Game and Fish Commission.

All trout which are reared at Bear Creek are stocked in the two western counties. The average production at Bear Creek has been about 16,000 but the number last year was cut about 4,000 as a result of disease in the pools. This year fully 16,000 will be stocked from Bear creek, the condition which caused the 1941 loss having been corrected by construction of a new supply dam with proper conduits, Smith reported.

This work, together with rebuilding of one of the pools, cost the department several thousand dollars. A fish-saving move has been made with the purchase of a new truck with an aeration unit which permits fish to be delivered to the streams without the losses that formerly occurred as a result of long hauls and hot weather.

The stocking program is financed out of the fishing license fees with the department receiving only ninety-five cents out of each $1.25 license fee. On an average it costs thirty cents to place a legal-sized trout in streams. All of the warden-policing of trout waters is paid for by game department funds—not by fishing license fees, Mr. Smith said.

DRAFT LOTTERY IS COMPLETED FOR 9 MILLION

Frank Getty, Grantsville, Number 441, Will Be Order No. 1 On Garrett County List

Number 3485 bobbed up as the first drawn in the third United States draft lottery, intended to add "millions to that pool of men who stand ready for selection for the necessary tasks, whatever they may be," according to Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service chief.

General Hershey emphasized that some of the nine million men involved in the lottery might be drafted to man factories while their comrades manned guns.

The first number was drawn by Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, from among 7,000 slips encased in opaque green St. Patrick's Day capsules. It meant that among the men who registered February 16, those holding that serial number would be the first in their districts to be called for possible service.

The first number affecting this county was drawn fourth and was Frank J. Getty, Grantsville, serial number 441. All numbers above the number 1,112 do not concern this county.

The first twenty-five to be called for classification in this county will be Frank Getty, 441; Alvin Rodeheaver, Accident, 1,103; Joseph Dolan, Bittinger, 176; Branson Brady, Deer Park, 606; Charles Niner, Deer Park, 359; Andrew J. Wolf, Oakland, 129; Clyde Ellis, Crellin, 968; Dwight Speicher, Accident, 537; Isaac F. Elliott, 1,064; Hoye Rodeheaver, Swanton, 244; Eugene S. Schlossnagle, Accident, 1,111; Edward G. Baker, 636; Leslie Earl Savage, Friendsville, 967; Harvey D. Swartzentruber, 657; Grant O. Glotfelty, McHenry, 131; Walter H. Fratz, Accident, 345; Sloan W. Shockey, Bloomington, 255; Ray Ellsworth Cogley, Oakland, 937; Marshall T. Lewis, Kempton, W. Va., 54; Paul M. Friend, Oakland, 179; Aubrey F. Bowers, Kempton, 69; Lee T. Crowe, Avilton, 212; Glenn C. Broadwater, Avilton, 459; David Arthur DeWitt, Hutton, 369; Walter Franklin Campbell, Mt. Lake Park, 233.

Republican readers are advised to retain last week's issue which contained the serial numbers of all Garrett county registrants, and these numbers may be checked with the order numbers which will be published in a later issue along with the serial numbers so that the names of those who will be called up for classification may be learned.

The draft board will make up an official list as soon as a master list is received from State headquarters. That will not be received for about a week, judging by the other two drafts.

It took several hours for officials to draw the 7,000 capsules in this latest draft lottery.

Seal Sale Returns Increased In State

The final returns of the 1941 Seal Sale were released by the Maryland Tuberculosis Association and show for the State as a whole on increase over the past year of 21.5 per cent. The total in the State was $118,066.28. The counties furnished $49,228.78 and Baltimore City $69,066.50.

Garrett county's total was $453.49 and was one of seven counties to show a decrease over 1940 sales.

In order to increase the Association's program emphasis has been placed upon equipping various clinics with modern x-ray machines. For use in the counties six new mobile units have been purchased which can be transported from place to place and used to x-ray any part of the body as well as the chest.

The Association was formed in 1904 as a volunter group and is financed through the annual sale of Christmas seals. At the present time it is preparing for its annual educational campaign during April, which is known as the early diagnosis campaign.

Prisoner Is Taken to Westminster This Week

Sheriff J. W. Owens announced yesterday that James Clarence Flanigan, 25, who was arrested recently at Althouse Hill, near Gorman, by Corporal Thomas Currie, and jailed for a motor vehicle law violation, was returned to Westminster this week, where he was wanted on a charge of embezzlement of $400.00. Owens said he was an employe of a vacuum sweeper plant there.

Rambling Around

One has only to drive his automobile along any main highway to discover that motor traffic has been reduced by more than fifty per cent.

In the towns and villages the cars still line the streets, showing that people still use them for what they consider necessities, but for pleasure driving—it looks like that is out for the duration.

For that reason it looks silly to me for the government officials to ration the sale of gasoline. With the sale of cars restricted because of rubber shortage, gasoline will ration itself without any orders from self-styled Ickes dictators.

Last week's town election showed how hastily some people pass over their duties as a citizen and then holler about the way our officials are doing. It doesn't apply only to town—but to the State and Federal governments.

Ample notice of the necessity of registering in order to vote in a city election has been given regularly for three years. And yet there were one hundred or more who tried to vote who had failed to register.

They were put out, too, because they were taxpayers and were not overlooked when it came to paying on their property assessment. Some reacted by saying: "To heck with it all; I won't even try to vote next year."

We need for an example the newly-made citizens who came from other countries. They realize how precious is the right to vote and they make sure that they use this privilege of a democracy.

All of us should follow what laws are passed in order to make us eligible to cast our ballots in municipal, county, State and Federal elections. And then, being eligible, we should consider it a most sacred duty to vote.

The artist who painted the mural that has been placed in the local postoffice received $800.00 for his work, so it is reported.

From information available there is no reason for the high price of soap. Manufacturers are producing a lot of it because a by-product, glycerine, is being used in great quantities by the Government. Therefore, there ought to be sufficient soap for everyone—and at reasonable prices.

Somebody must have told my boys about a scarcity of soap, from the way their hands look at mealtime. Don't tell me your children are like that too?

* * *

Question of the hour: If they cut out the manufacture of cars, refrigerators, tires, typewriters and a hundred other items, how are people going to keep on making a living so that they can support the Government by paying income taxes, sales taxes, social security taxes, and many other taxes? It has already been demonstrated that one cannot squeeze blood out of a turnip.

Streamlining Needed

We need to streamline our Government and eliminate all the useless agencies, especially those which counteract the others.

Government urges the saving of paper.

A town of 2,500 population asks an agency to provide some air-raid precaution information. The agency sends 30,000 pamphlets, printed by the Government.

The Attorney General sponsors legislation with a covering letter signed by him. He says he didn't know what was in the letter.

The CCC drains farm localities of labor at taxpayers' expense. Farmers are urged to grow more food for victory.

Hints come of wool rationing for civilians—CCC burns wools on closing camps.

Government urges economy and sacrifice on citizens. The President's wife urges continuance of the NYA.

People are urged to save paper. Government agencies sends out tons of propaganda each week to voters, editors and others trying to justify this and that agency.

Government says that tire rationing boards and other such boards must give their time and that its members cannot be allowed even traveling expense.

Office of Civilian Defense appoints 99 coordinators of everything from badminton to bowling and would have had dancing and acting if the people had not become aroused.

There's no reason why citizens can't become aroused and get angry again and protest to their representatives.

Stay mad until you get action.

The Department of Agriculture insists it must continue its subsidy to sugar producers or price will be too high. Mr. Henderson says he can and will control prices. Sugar is to be rationed, yet 300,000 tons are in Puerto Rico but the Secretary of Agriculture won't let it be processed and sent to the United States because the producers grew more than their quota.

President says "no strikes." There are strikes and nothing is done.

Is it any wonder that the mood of the people is what it is. It is not a lack of morale, but a sign of resentment among the people against the lack of morale on the part of Washington.

But don't give up.

Get mad and let our lawmakers know how you feel about this war business.

They don't need to worry about our morale.

What they need to worry about is the production of war materials and provide ways to defeat the enemy.

The salaries of useless government officials and the cost of useless agencies would furnish sufficient planes to clear out the Philippines of every Jap there.

News of such an event would raise the morale of the people more than a civilian bowling coordinator and all the other 98 coordinators might do in years.

Maple Sugar And Syrup Season May Be Short This Year

Colder and more varied weather is required and that very soon if the crop of maple sugar and maple syrup is to amount to any more than half a normal yield, according to a number of the producers throughout Garrett county.

Producers are the authority for the statement that there hasn't been a normal crop for the past five years due to weather conditions and that this year has been no exception thus far. Cold nights and warm days are needed to make the sugar water flow properly. A continued warm spell will bring the sap, which is the end of the season as far as the maple syrup producers are concerned.

The syrup that has been made is bringing a good price, even in drums, and much of it is being sold that way to Vermont producers, it has been said by several local people.

Quite a number of sugar maple groves are standing idle this year because of a shortage of labor and more camps are inactive this year than for many seasons.

MT. LAKE PARK

If you have not read that public letter placed at the postoffice by the Mt. Lake Water Company, then by all means make it a point to do so. It's worthwhile and will explain why some of you are not getting your quota of water. That a second depredition should be made on the water company's pump house is carrying things a bit far, and would certainly point to spite work on the part of those responsible. Possibly a grudge against the company or against those connected with the company. But no matter what the reason, if they are caught they should be punished. A water shortage is a dangerous thing and the suggestions made in this letter we speak of are well worth consideration. We do have good water, which is a great deal more than many of our nearby out-of-state towns, where it has been necessary to use chemicals in the city water. So read the letter, it's a fair and square summary of the situation, we think.

Special Council Meeting

At a special meeting of the Mayor and Council on Tuesday evening, a motion was passed making it possible to pay 1941 back taxes in four equal payments, in April, May, June and July.

D. R. Fleming, city clerk, said that a number had inquired about such a possibility who still had taxes to pay. According to Mr. Fleming about $1,000 of 1941 taxes are still outstanding and it is the hope of the council that most of this will be paid by June, when the 1942 tax bills will be mailed.

Personals

Mrs. Flora Jones entertained her Friday bridge club. A new feature was inaugurated by giving prizes of Defense Stamps. First prize went to Mrs. Harve Mussard; second to Mrs. Edgar Smith, and the consolation was won by Mrs. Emroy Bolden.

A birthday surprise party was tendered Rev. J. C. Foster, at Loch Lynn, on Tuesday night, March 10, when about 60 persons from Crellin and Loch Lynn met at the Ladies' Aid hall, where a program of singing and speaking was given. Rev. Foster received many splendid gifts. Refreshments were served during the evening.

Mayor Oscar Hall and Mrs. Hall were visitors to Lonaconing, on Sunday.

Miss Myrtie Finnell has returned from Morgantown, W. Va., and has re-opened Allenhurst cottage for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Burk, of Cumberland, have opened their home here for the season.

Donnie Peck, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Peck, is ill with an attack of measles.

Mrs. Alma Bell and daughter, Miss Vivian Clary, spent the week-end in Hagerstown with Mrs. Bell's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Munsen.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Slater Sponseller have announced the marriage of their daughter, Catherine Virginia, to Mr. William Scott Veasey, on Friday, February 6. The marriage took place at Norfolk, Va., where the couple will reside. Mrs. Veasey was a former resident of Mountain Lake and was associated with the Garrett County Welfare work for a number of months.

Roger Williams, young son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Williams, has been very ill with an attack of measles.

Rationing Plan For Trucks In Effect

Five Classes of Eligible Purchasers Are Listed By Government

The rationing plan of the Federal government for trucks went into effect March 9, and it is now necessary to secure a certificate from the rationing board before one can be obtained.

The user must make application before the allocation board, which for Maryland, is located in Baltimore. If the local board approves the application is sent to Washington, where it will be passed on by the Division of Motor Transportation, then to the director of Industry operations, who will then issue an authority to buy.

Those eligible to buy are divided into five classes.

Class I—Vehicles used principally in connection with military forces, public health or safety such as mail, telegraph, telephone, water supply, sewage, etc.

Class II—Vehicles used in connection with war effort, transportation of materials, supplies and equipment of industry and business directly connected with war effort, including farm and forest products and food; in service operations such as sail, highway, water pipe line and air transportation, in transportation of material and equipment for construction of defense housing facilities, public utilities, and persons engaged in business, industry, etc., directly connected with war effort.

Class III—Vehicles used in transportation of materials, supplies and equipment of industry and business indirectly connected with war effort including farm and forest products and feed, transportation of ice, fuel for heating and power to consumers for personal, family or household use; for rendering essential, roofing, plumbing, heating, electrical, building and vehicle repair services; in service of public and private schools and educational institutions.

Class IV—Vehicles used for essential forms of retail delivery and transportation of persons or goods not connected with war effort.

Life Insurance Grows In Maryland

Insurance Commissioner John B. Gontrum reports that Actuary Calvert F. Stein, of the State Insurance Department, has completed his annual valuation of all outstanding life insurance business in force as of December 31, 1941, of all the companies organized under the laws of Maryland.

The actuary's report shows that life insurance companies organized under the laws of this State had outstanding and in force on December 31, 1941, life insurance aggregating $883,489,280.59 in amount, the reserves upon which aggregated $90,320,450.79. This shows an increase of over $73,000,000.00 insurance in force in Maryland companies and over $7,700,000.00 in reserves over 1940.

Wide Range Of Health Promotion in Counties

Activities Are Summarized In Report From State Director R. H. Riley

A report recently issued by Dr. R. H. Riley, director of the State Health Department, shows the wide range of the health promotion and disease prevention services of the County Health Departments. The report covers the services in 1941.

The activities in each county are summarized with reference to communicable disease prevention or control; the health supervision of mothers and children; services for crippled children; dental care; the sanitary supervision of food handling establishments; of tourist and other camps; educational and other services.

There were 23,072 cases of notifiable diseases reported to the State Department of Health from the counties; over 9,000 home visits were made by the health officers and public health nurses to discover sources of infection or to establish the necessary measures to prevent the spead of the diseases. Over 19,000 young children were immunized against diphtheria; 6,736 persons were protected against typhoid fever and 7,647 were vaccinated against smallpox. All protective activities of this sort were carried out in cooperation with the physicians practicing in the counties.

Nearly 5,500 persons were examined at the monthly chest clinics held in cooperation with the Maryland Tuberculosis Association; 506 were admitted to sanatoria and over 11,000 home visits were made to persons who were suffering from tuberculosis or who had been in contact with it.

Venereal disease clinics were held in every section of the State with nearly 8,000 persons admitted for diagnosis or treatment. Over 86,000 treatments were given and over 8,800 follow-up visits were made to the homes of the patients.

More than 2,500 expectant mothers were enrolled at the prenatal clinics and over 19,000 young children were examined at the child health conferences; more than 52,000 home visits were made by the public health nurses in connection with the services for mothers and young children.

Health supervision of the older children was carried on in cooperation with the State Department of Education. Over 31,000 children in the elementary grades were given a physical examination and over 123,000 inspections were made in connection with the control of communicable diseases in the schools. Dental clinics were also a part of the school health services and over 13,000 children had the benefit of dental attention.

Over 3,400 physically handicapped children had the benefit of supervision and treatment in connection with the services for Crippled Children.

Over 7,000 sanitary inspections were made of public or private premises; 850 of school property; nearly 1,000 of tourist or other camps; over 11,000 of food-handling establishments, and nearly 6,500 of dairy farms.

Senator Byrd proposed a 2 billion budget cut and would drop CCC, NYA, WPA, FSA.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS . . . . . .

An Awakening Due

Washington, March 14.

On Monday some seven million men and women who never before paid a direct personal tax will begin to pay into the Federal Treasury part of their income. Thereafter, for as long as they live, they will continue to make this contribution every year. And the more they make the more they will have to pay. At the same time, the fourteen million who last year constituted the tax-paying class will begin to pay at a rate far higher than they ever paid before. There is no escape for either class—no way for any individual to avoid the levy.

But that is not all—next year, both the seven million new taxpayers and the fourteen million old taxpayers, will have their taxes increased over this year. How much we will not know before July, but it has already been made clear that stiff as are the 1941 rates, the 1942 rates will be stiffer still. In many instances they will be doubled. Nor is there any certainty that still further increases will not be imposed. The certain thing is that so far as present generations are concerned, these taxes are permanent. There is no prospect of reduction in our time—quite the contrary.

* * *

This being so, the vital question is—what change, if any, will they effect in the attitude of the people toward their Government? To a considerable extent, the answer to that may determine whether we shall remain a strong, stable nation or sink into economic chaos. The reasons are clear. Heretofore, all efforts to arouse the people to the dangers of wild governmental extravagance have proved futile. A majority of the tax-paying class, it is true, has been deeply stirred but the millions upon whom taxes weighed lightly and the many millions who paid none at all have been impervious to alarm and indifferent to consequences.

* * *

With complacent approval they have watched the Administration waste billions of the public funds and pile up a peacetime debt beyond all reason. All warnings were disregarded and, even before the war, a critical stage had been reached. In addition, to carry now the stupendous expenditures of war so enhances the peril that it should be apparent to every man capable of coherent thought. In the past the trouble has been that the millions who could think would not think. The new, all-embracing and exceedingly painful taxes are counted upon to make them think and with thought will come action. That is the hope.

* * *

In a majority of the homes of the working people the two most cherished possessions, usually kept locked in the bureau drawer, are the life insurance policy and the savings bank book. These are the evidences of thrift, the marks of success and independence. Without them most people would have nothing. There are 225 life insurance companies in the country with more than 65 million policyholders. These companies have 120 billion dollars of insurance in force, with assets of 32½ billion dollars, largely invested in municipal, State and Federal securities, railroads and large industrial concerns. There are more than 16 million depositors in mutual savings banks with total deposits of ten billions of dollars. This does not include savings in commercial banks. Savings bank funds, like insurance funds, are invested in city, State and Federal securities and in the bonds and stocks of industry.

* * *

The conclusion is inescapable that the wage earners of the country have a high personal stake not only in the soundness of their city, State and Federal Governments but in the health of industry as well. The only ones of which this is not true are the small number with nothing to lose and an itch to change our form of government. It has always been true that the paralyzing of industry or the bankruptcy of the Government would hit the small insurance policyholders and savings bank depositor harder than anyone else. No one would lose as much or suffer as much as he.

* * *

In the past the majority of policyholders have contemplated with equanimity the vast outpouring of the taxpayers' money on all sorts of silly experiments and have not been shocked by the inexcusable expansion of the government payroll. In addition, many deluded by demogogic politicians, have supported strikes and drives and policies the effect of which is to cripple industry and weaken the government upon the strength of which the value of their savings depends. It has been a strange example of men, misled by the cheapest and oldest of political bunk, acquiescing in movements designed to destroy the personal assets they hold most dear.

* * *

As in this, and following years, the income taxes bear heavier upon the millions who bore them lightly before, and are imposed upon other millions who until this year bore none at all, it is reasonable to believe that a change in the public mind will occur. If under such circumstances, it continues complacent over governmental extravagances and indifferent as to governmental economy, it will be surprising, indeed. If men can sweat to pay the heavy taxes which are already here and for the heavier ones to come, and still look tolerantly upon the waste of their own money and be patient with those who stand in the way of retrenchment, without which their personal possessions are imperiled, then nothing much makes sense.

* * *

If, with the money it is now proposed to take away from them, these sixty-five million small insurance policyholders remain undisturbed by efforts which undermine the Government and weaken the industrial structure, then we are, indeed, an unintelligent people and nothing can be done for us. The hope is that, with the new taxes, the scales will drop from the wage earner's eyes and an irresistible demand arise for the abolition of waste and the elimination of useless governmental activity. If this hope fails, then we may as well stop worrying because the ultimate disaster will be inevitable.

MARRIED

SHOOK-WARNICK — Miss Mary Katherine Warnick, daughter of Mrs. Nora L. Warnick, of Piedmont, W. Va., and John H. Warnick, of Moorefield, W. Va., was married to Paul R. Shook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shook, of Beryl, W. Va., Tuesday night, March 10, at 8:30 o'clock, at the parsonage of the Trinity Methodist church, Westernport, by Rev. J. L. Robertson.

The bride was attired in a blue crepe gown. The bridesmaid was Mrs. Harry Fields and Wendell Warnick was best man, sister and brother of the bride, respectively. Mrs. Fields was attired in a blue crepe dress with accessories to match.

Mrs. Shook is an employe of the Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper company. Mr. and Mrs. Shook left for Baltimore, where the groom is employed.

WINTERMOYER - HINEBAUGH—Miss Mary V. Hinebaugh, of Cumberland, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Hinebaugh, of Oakland, and John B. Wintermoyer, of LaVale, were married at Hagerstown on Friday, March 13, it has been announced.

The couple will reside in Cumberland. The bride has been a beautician there for the past several years. Mr. Wintermoyer is engaged in the tire business.

DIARY OF THE WAR

FRIDAY—A super-Russian offensive appeared on horizon as there was lull in Pacific. Over million and a half men were on the move in southern Russia and beating Germans back. In Pacific a U. S. sub sank three enemy freighters and a cargo ship in Jap waters. Japs who lost 7 ships off New Guinea were awaiting reinforcements. Allies said 13 Jap transports were put out of action there. There was quiet in Philippines and Briish and Chinese were consolidating in Burma. Japs were said to be digging trenches in southern Burma, fearing counter-attacks. Crowds in Brazil were inflamed over Axis ship sinkings and were storming Axis stores there. China reaffirmed its determination to "fight to victory" against Japs. Four more ships were sunk in Caribbean.

SATURDAY—Japs appeared to be casting out at Solomon Islands to cut off aid to Australia. On New Guinea Japs were trying to create fighter plane bases 400 miles from Australia. Five Jap planes were shot down by American bombers without loss to themselves. There was quiet again in Burma and Philippines. Soviet news remained good with gains in Ukraine and also northwest of Moscow and below Leningrad. Nazis admitted Russians were attacking strongly in Donets basin. Additional strong bombing raids were reported by British with Kiel being especially hard hit. An enemy sub attacked the island of St. Lucia in Caribbean. Australia feared loss of two warships.

SUNDAY—It was announced that the Allied losses in the Java sea battle were 5 cruisers and 7 destroyers, two of them American warships Houston and Pope. Japs lost eight. An Axis sub sank another American ship and remained in vicinity for four hours. In English Channel air battles British shot down 10 German planes. Hitler was said to be offering Japs part of Africa in a world-conquest plan.

MONDAY—Hitler told the Germans they must wait until summer rather than spring for Nazis to annihilate Russians. He warned his people of the hard struggle that lies ahead. Russians announced liberation of Kharkov was near in Ukraine. Australian and American bombers blasted at springboard bases in New Britain island. In Burma Allied planes battered troop-laden canoes and strafed columns of troop trucks. A plane crash in China took some British and American high officials. An Allied sub completed a 15,000 mile voyage and announced it sank 60,000 tons of Jap shipping. Japs bombed Port Moresby. There was artillery and air action again in Libya. Hitler's U-boats continued active in Atlantic.

TUESDAY—Allied and Jap air forces fought over northern Austr lia and there were reports that Japs were moving out of China presumably for use in Australian waters. Philippine sector was quiet. In Burma the Allied forces seized the initiative to recapture three towns on Sittang river. Port Darwin was raided by 14 enemy bombers. Allies attacked Jap airdrome on island of Timor and at Rabaul on New Guinea. Navy announced another enemy freighter sunk by sub in Jap waters and also tanker in Philippine area. American fliers downed five Jap planes. Germany reported weather on entire Russian front at 13 to 31 below zero. A Chilean ship was torpedoed. Army officially announced that army units including air and ground troops were in Australia in considerable numbers.

WEDNESDAY — Gen. MacArthur took over supreme Allied command in Australia, where he flew from Philippines. Japs renewed attacks on Bataan but were repulsed. In Australia Jap raiders struck at northern mainland. Chinese gave good account of themselves in Burma by killing force of Thailand troops fighting for Japan. Germany closed all of Norway's ports in attempt to hide some military preparations. Reds reported fierce battle at vital city, probably Kharkov. Vichy interned 2,000 Britons in Morocco. U. S. ship was sunk off Atlantic City. Anti-axis riots were spreading to Chile and Uruguay in South America.

THURSDAY—A great marshalling of fighting men and equipment was evident in Australia. U. S. gave fresh information bearing on enormous losses suffered by Japs in battle off New Guinea. Japs lost 23 ships including 12 warships. In Burma British and Japs were at it again. American volunteer flyers struck at enemy troop concentrations at air base at Moulmein. Russians reported continued successes and isolated several strong points held by Nazis. Two more ships were sunk off Atlantic coast. Four army pilots were killed in crashes in U. S. Suicide of General Homma for failure to destroy Philippine defenders was confirmed by Tokyo. U. S. High commissioner of Philippines, back in U. S. called for furious attack, more ships and planes.

Gary Cooper and Joan Fontaine won film awards for best actor and actress of the year. "How Green Was My Valley" was declared the outstanding picture of 1941.

Three were killed and over forty injured in a head-on collision of two fast passenger trains operating between Miami and New York.

Washington Snapshots

By JAMES PRESTON

"Do what you can with what you have."

This is Donald M. Nelson's advice to American manufacturers. The War Production Board is placing emphasis on plant conversion — changing over from the production of peacetime to military goods. It also lays strees on the necessity of each factory-owner's going out to get a defense contract.

The procedure suggested is to find out what is needed by inquiring at the proper local offices; then, to check machinery and other facilities to determine where the factory owner can fit into the picture.Once that is decided it's up to the manufacturer to land his contract, even at the risk of making a nuisance of himself. Persistence does it.

War Production Board Chief Nelson thinks that it isn't possible to put too much stress on the need for conversion of all available facilities from civilian to defense production. In his latest statement on the subject he says:

"We must have all-out conversion, for all-out conversion will mean victory.

"Conversion is our Number One problem."

The Division of Industry Operations of WPB answers all comments to the effect that conversion isn't as simple as it sounds by pointing to conversions which have already taken place. For example, a plant that used to make merry-go-rounds is now making vital Army and Navy equipment, in spite of the fact that the company was told it couldn't be done with its machinery.

More than $150,000,000 worth of war goods have been contracted for in the shops of a community which is in the under-100,000 population class.

And then there is the man whose normal business was making orange squeezers and metal games for children. He is now engaged in the business of making intricate gauge dies and bullet punches.

All of this is reflected in the changing attitude of government officials toward small business. Whereas formerly the slogan was: "Save small business," today, the key word is "Use small business."

Pearl Harbor, Guam and Singopore have resulted in toughening the attitude of Administration men in charge of production and of businessmen working to meet production schedules.

From the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor comes the news that for the duration of the war, at least, the nation's women will add to their duty as homebuilders the task of filling in on the factory front.

The Bureau reports that the War Production Board is studying the advisability of having a compulsory registration of women for defense jobs. Many informed people feel that such a registration will be needed before the war is over. Mrs. Roosvelt, for instance, advocates the immediate registration of women under 45 years of age in order to save time later as the need develops. Sidney Hillman says that at least one million American women will be needed to work on the production of war materials, especially to replace men who are called to the colors.

Where women are used for factory and precision work, personnel managers agree that they perform their tasks satisfactorily, and, in many instances, better than their male predecessors.

BRIEFS: Launcning traditions are going. Congress has passed a bill reducing the cost of a ship-launching, which ordinarily runs for $14,000 for a destroyer to $125,000 for an aircraft carrier (plus a diamond studded gift for the sponsor), to $25.00 . . . The Department of Agriculture was authorized by Congress to provide funds for planting 75,000 acres of the guayule shrub. This shrub is to be used for the production of synthetic rubber. The acreage covers all for which seed is available . . . The Labor Division of WPB plans to train 200,000 skilled foremen and supervisors in factories throughout the country by July 1, 1942. Foremen will be taught how to break in untrained men on skilled jobs and experienced men on new jobs. The factory itself is the classroom . . . C. E. Wilson, president of the General Motors Corporation, made his for the automobile industry. He is the first head of a large automobile firm to appear in person at a union meeting to talk things over.

LIVE-STOCK RAISING IS ON THE RISE IN MARYLAND

Development Of Purebred Herds Has Outstripped Commercial

By RICHARD REA BENNETT
In the Baltimore Sun

This is the second of a series of articles on present-day farm problems in Maryland.

Live-stock raising in Maryland is going to get a great stimulus from the war.

This is the opinion of W. R. Harvey, a farmer for forty years and president and general manager of the Baltimore Live-Stock Show.

Development of purebred herds in Maryland has progressed faster than that of commercial cattle, according to Mr. Harvey. He cites, as an example, the experience of the Live-Stock Show.

When the show was started in 1929 there was only a part of one thoroughbred herd of cattle in Maryland. That, Mr. Harvey declared, was of the shorthorn breed and belonged to Robert Crain, of Charles county.

Prices Up 100 P. C

At present there are hundreds of purebred herds in the State, consisting pricipally of shorthorns, Aberdeen Angus and Herefords. Prices of breeding cattle have increased 100 per cent from 1939 to 1940 for top breeders. This, Mr. Harvey said, was due more to the war than to the fact that breeding was a new and growing industry.

Progress with commerical beef cattle has not been as rapid as with purebred cattle, Mr. Harvey points out, because the average farmer is not educated to nor is fully aware of the advantages to be derived from beef production. Neither, he says, has the average farmer been able to make it profitable.

One drawback is the fact that purebred heifers are being picked up so rapidly and at a price too high to make them available to the average farmer as a nucleus for the cross-breeding of a strong commercial strain.

Varies With Weather

Another, according to Mr. Harvey, is the practice of overpasturing; that is, placing too many cattle on or overcrowding the pasture. Live stock, he explains, must have a set amount of pasture on the basis of so many acres to the head.

This varies with the weather and the condition of the pasture itself. It is generally accepted, Mr. Harvey says, that from four to five acres per head are needed in Maryland for yearlings and over. However, it is usually found that most of the cattle raisers are allowing only one or two acres per animal, which barely serves, he says, to keep them alive.

Neither, in Mr. Harvey's estimation, are the cattle fed enough to make them profitable. If beef cattle are not fed all they can eat while on the feeding lots they will not get fat.

Feed lots are comparatively small, fenced-in areas on farms where feed constantly is available for the stock.

The farmer often tries to achieve the impossible, he says, of having his beef stock fat and the corncrib full of corn.

One Or The Other

It must be one or the other. If the cattle raiser feeds his stock just enough to carry the animals over to the next pasturage, it is very likely that he has done all his work for nothing. The demand for cattle will be in proportion to the degree to which they are fed.

If the farmer can produce prime beef through proper and full feeding, says Mr. Harvey, the buyers will seek the farmer out. If not, the farmer must do the seeking.

Mr. Harvey cites the example of the farmer who takes his improperly fed stock into the market. This farmer must go to the buyers who are lounging against one of the stockyard's fences and urge them to look at his cattle. This cattle raiser, according to Mr. Harvey, is licked at the start so far as price for his animals is concerned.

Beef Producers' Profit

The beef producers' profit lies between what is regarded as the good and the prime grades of beef. Only ten per cent of the cattle received in the stockyards of Maryland can be placed in this category. The next fifty per cent of the cattle received fall in the grade classified as good.

The remaining forty per cent, Mr. Harvey declares, should be taken back to the feed lot, where buyers would send them, anyway.

Mr. Harvey asserts there is one farmer in Maryland who makes a business of buying these cattle and sending them to feed lots which he has established on farms he owns. He makes the profit which the first farmer would have made had the previous owner taken the trouble properly to feed the stock.

No doubt there will be a demand for finished or prime cattle at prices even above those quoted on the open market. In fact, it is said, the market will go the limit to obtain this type of beef.

Good Rule Cited

A good rule for the beef cattle raiser, says Mr. Harvey, is to purchase March and April calves in October or November of the same year, when they should weigh from 400 to 500 pounds, and put them on full feed. They should double their weight and be ready for market by the following summer or by early fall at the latest.

This would get his cattle into the Baltimore market before the Virginia and West Virginia grass-fed cattle arrive. It also would give the Maryland packer an opportunity to get his Maryland stock out of the way before he is forced to obtan his beef from outside the State.

The farmer has the protection of a close relationship between the feed and the cattle maket. When the price of feed goes up, the price of cattle will likewise advance. When the price of beef cattle drops, the price of feed also takes a slump. One is hinged upon the other.

352,000 Head

It is estimated by C. E. Burkhead and D. B. Wilson, agricultural statisticians of the Maryland Crop Reporting Service, that on January 1 there were 352,000 head of cattle and calves on Maryland farms, said to be the largest number in the seventy-five years of record. A year ago the estimate was 338,000 head and the ten-year average (1930-1939) was 304,000 head.

Milk cows, the statisticians reported, increased about three per cent during 1940 and were estimated at 208,000 head on January 1, 1941, compared with 202,000 a year earlier. An increase in milk heifers also was indicted by the survey.

The total value of live stock on Maryland farms on January 1, 1941, was estimated at $33,226,000, or about four per cent above the total valuation of a year ago and twelve per cent above the ten-year average.

Sentences for those stealing tires are becoming more severe. A Baltimore man was given a year for theft of four tires and tubes, four rims and a jack.

Final tests at U. of Maryland will be abolished, with emphasis being placed on attendance and periodical examinations.

The Dies committee reported there was much spying of Japs in U. S. Detailed maps of U. S. defenses have been seized.

FARM BULLETIN

GROWING CHICKS is not quite as simple as A B C, but if you'll be careful of these three things your worries with poultry will be few and far between:

FIRST, give your chicks really adequate care, and keep a complete record of growth, costs, and profits. (Southern States will be glad to furnish you free helps.)

SECOND, feed them balanced, high quality feed—with plenty of vitamins, balanced minerals, and proteins. (Southern States feed has already grown 100 million chicks.)

THIRD, buy chicks with good breeding—healthy, disease-free chicks. (Even if they live, poor chicks aren't worth the feed it takes to raise them.)

HYBRID CORN. There will be a critical shortage of some of the outstanding hybrids that Southern States supplies.

Add to this the farm labor shortage and you can see that it's far more important than ever to use high quality seeds, so that maximum results can be obtained from the land that CAN be farmed.

Taxpayer Associations Are Vital to War Effort

"The work of taxpayer associations in Maryland and all over the country is vital to our war effort and to the stability of the nation in the post-war peace," Senator Harry Flood Byrd, of Virginia, wrote in a letter to Harry S. Middledorf, president of the Maryland Public Expenditure Council.

Mr. Middledorf's organization has formed local taxpayer associations all over Maryland, and since Senator Byrd has been chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee which is aiming to reduce Federal non-essential spending by two billion dollars, these taxpayer associations have been bombarding their Congressmen and Senators with demands to cut out all frills of government until the war is won.

"More and more evidence comes to me of the very important work of taxpayer associations of the country," said Senator Byrd. "In furthering public consciousness of the need for drastic curtailment in non-essential non-defense expenditures, they perform a patriotic duty."

CONSERVING SUGAR

Now that the Nation's sweet tooth is undergoing a little discipline, many a homemaker is working out ways to make her sugar supply go further.

Restricting retail sugar purchases may be a bit inconvenient at first, but it can hardly be regarded as a kitchen catastrophe.

In the first place, we can get along on a lot less sugar than we have been eating, and still have nutritious meals that taste good.

For, as far as actual food value is concerned, sugar is not an indispensable item in the diet for most of us. Sugar supplies food energy in an exceedingly palatable form. But as far as energy from food goes, any reduction in sugar can easily be taken care of by increasing quantities of other energy-giving foods in the diet. There are many other inexpensive energy-giving foods that supply, in addition, valuable vitamins and minerals. Whole-grain cereals are one such food group. Starch vegetables and dried fruits are others.

Although sugar is a quicker source of energy than most foods—that is it can be digested and used by the body rapidly—most of us do not work at hard physical labor for long periods of time and have no special need of quick energy.

Therefore, cutting down on sugar means little more to most of us than cutting down on a flavor that is particularly pleasing. And, with a little thought, the homemaker can cut the sugar in her meals to the necessary amount in comparatively painless ways.

Following are suggestions for reducing the amount of sugar used:

Keep a weather eye open for out-and-out sugar wastes. One of the most obvious sugar wastes, of course, is the undissolved sugar in the bottom of a cup of coffee or tea. Other wastes of sugar are over-sweetened foods, cake failures or failures of any product that contains sugar.

Next, cut down on sugar in least noticeable ways. Experiment to see if the amount of sugar you've been putting on your breakfast cereal or in your coffee is just a matter of habit—whether you could be just as happy with half a teaspoon or so less. If the breakfast cereal is topped with dried fruit, you need less sugar than for plain cereal.

In fact, when it comes to eating less sugar, we might take a tip from the diets that are recommended for children. Little sugar is given to a child early in life, so he can learn to like the natural taste of foods undisguised. And his sweets are kept simple—served to him either for dessert or just shortly after a meal. Sweets are such concentrated foods that they tend to take the edge off the appetite—make children or adults less hungry for other foods they need.

Try eating fewer rich desserts, fewer pastries and very sweet cakes. Fresh fruits are among the most nutritious and desirable of desserts, and they carry their own sugar. Canned fruits also come in the class of not-too-rich desserts. Dried fruits are one of the best sources of natural sugar. A pudding made with raisins or dates, for instance, needs less sugar for sweetening than a plain pudding.

Finally, add variety and supplement the weekly white refined sugar with other naturally sweet foods. Available now are honey, cane sirups, molasses, sorghum, corn sirup and maple sirup. Molasses, cane sirups and sorghum contain a good deal of calcium and iron.

Recipes using maple sugar and maple sirup::

Baked Beans

One quart cooked soup beans, ½ c. chili sauce or tomato catsup, 1 cup maple sirup, few grains pepper, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ lb. bacon or ham.

Add salt and pepper to beans. Put layer of beans in baking dish. Add one-fourth of maple sirup, one-fourth of catsup and few slices of bacon or thinly sliced ham. Add second layer same as first. Repeat until all has been added, having the bacon or ham on top. Cover with water and bake in slow oven (250-350 degrees F.) four hours. If beans are soft before baking do not add as much water and bake two or three hours.—By V. R. Bishoff, Garrett county.

Candied Sweet Potatoes or Carrots

Place either raw or partly cooked sweet potatoes or carrots in a baking dish and add maple sirup and enough butter to keep vegetable from becoming dry. Cook until vegetable is tender, basting from time to time with the sirup.

Maple Cake

One c. butter, 2 c. maple sugar, 3 c. flour, 4 eggs, 1 c. milk, 4 t. baking powder, ¾ t. salt.

Cream the sugar and butter, add unbeaten egg yolks. Add dry ingredients (flour, baking powder and salt) and milk alternately. Fold in beaten whites. Bake in moderate oven (350-375 degrees F.) until done (20 to 30 minutes). (2 c. maple sirup may be used in place of 2 c. maple sugar, and omit 1 c. milk).

Maple Icing

Two c. maple sirup, 1½ t. butter.

Boil to 323 degrees F. or soft-ball stage. Remove from fire, cool to lukewarm and then beat until ready to spread.—By Mrs. C. C. Beachy, Garrett county.

Turning Over An Old Leaf

By Phillip A. Gladheim

"There were faces to remember in the Valley of the Shadow;
There were faces unregarded, there
were faces to forget;
There were fires of grief and fear
that are a few forgotten ashes;
There were sparks of recognition that are not forgotten yet."

Religion is the most ancient and universal experience of the race. True or false, it is the dominant factor in life today. As in the past, so today we see the true and false in a death struggle within each religion, and one religion competing for mastery over another.

This column has been recalling the recent past of the life, manners and customs of a folk that settled in these mountains but four generations ago. But this week we will jump back into the Ancient of Days.

When you read the following ask yourself who said these words—whether there is a strange, almost terrifying familiarity in their meaning and whether these same words could be used in giving the basic and deepest interpretation of what is happening to life in man's Twentieth Century heart:

God put forth His hand and touched my mouth; and God said unto me, Behold I have put My Word in thy mouth; See! I have this day set thee over the nations and over the kingdoms, to pluck up and break forth upon all the inhabitants of the land. But I remember thy youth, the love of thine marriages; how thou wentest after me in the wilderness, in a land that was not sown. And I brought you into a plentiful land to eat the fruit thereof and the goodness thereof; but when you entered you defiled my land, and made my heritage an abomination.

(Author's Note:—What connection has this to the mutilation of our forests and the pollution of our streams with sawdust, refuse from mines etc,; never a thought of planting where there had been uprooting).

For my people have committed two evils: they have forsaken me, the fountain of living waters, and hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water. Is Israel a home-born slave? In the time of their trouble they will say: Arise and save us. But where are thy gods that thou hast made thee? Let them arise if they can save thee in the time of thy trouble. My anguish, my anguish! I am pained at my very heart; my heart is disquieted in me; I cannot hold my peace; because thou hast heard, O my soul, the sound of the trumpet, the alarm of war. For my people are foolish, because they know me not; they have no understanding. They are wise to do evil, but to do good they have no knoweldge.

Run ye to and fro thru the streets and see now and know, and seek in the broad places thereof, if ye can find a man, if there be any that doeth justly, that seeketh truth. They have denied God and said it is not he; neither shall evil come upon us; neither shall we see sword or famine: and the prophets shall become like windbags, and the Word is not in them.

Lo, I will bring a nation upon you from far, saith God. It is a mighty nation, it is an ancient nation, a nation whose language thou knowest not, neither understandest what they say. Their quiver is an open sepulcher, they are all mighty men. And they shall eat up thy harvest and thy bread, which thy sons and thy daughters should eat. They shall beat down thy fortified cities, wherein thou trustest, with the sword. Like as ye have forsaken me, and served foreign gods in your land, so shall ye serve strangers in a land that is not yours. For among my people are found wicked men; they watch, as hunters lie in wait; they set a trap, they catch men. As a cage is full of birds, so are their houses full of deceit; therefore they are become great and waxed rich.

A wonderful and horrible thing is come to pass in the land: the prophets prophesy falsely, and the priests bear rule by their means; and my people love to have it so. For from the least of them even unto the greatest of them everyone is given to covetousness; and from the prophet even unto the priest everyone dealeth falsely. They have healed also the hurt of my people slightly, saying peace, peace, when there is no peace.

Thus saith God: Stand ye in the ways and see, and ask for the old paths where is the good way; and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls; but they said, we will not walk therein.

Hear then, O earth! Behold, I will bring evil upon this people, even the fruit of their thoughts. For a people cometh from the north country; and a great nation shall be stirred up from the uttermost pats of the earth. They lay hold on bow and spear; they are cruel, and have no mercy. But my people hearkened not, nor inclined their ear, but walked in their own counsels and in the stubbornness of their evil heart, and went backward and not forward. And the dead bodies of this people shall be food for the birds of the heavens. Then I will cause to cease from the cities and the streets the voice of mirth and the voice of gladness.

Oh that my head were waters and mine eyes a fountain of tears, that I might weep day and night for the slain of the daughter of my people.

Oh! that I had a lodging-place in the wilderness of wayfaring men; that I might leave my people. Take ye heed everyone of his neighbor and trust ye not in thy brother; for every brother will utterly supplant, and every neighbor will go about with slanders. And they will deceive everyone his neighbor, and will not speak the truth; they have taught their tongue to speak lies; they weary themselves to commit iniquity. Thy habitation is in the midst of deceit. One speaketh peaceably to his neighbor with his mouth, but in his heart he layeth wait for him.

Reader! Ponder these words. Do you know the Author of these thoughts—and do you know the name of the man who was the mouthpiece? His name is Jeremiah, and he once lived in the suburbs of a great city—Jerusalem.

Now finally let me close with another quotation from a man now living, and he also lives in a suburb of a great city—the city of London, England.

The endless cycle of idea and action,
Endless invention, endless experiment
Brings knowledge of motion, but not of stillness;
Knowledge of speech, but not of silence;
Knowledge of speech, but not of The Word.
All our knowledge brings us nearer to death,
But nearness to death, no nearer to God.
Where is the Life we have lost in living?
Much is your reading, but not the Word of God.
A cry from the North, from the West and from the South
Whence thousands travel daily to the timekept city;
Where My Word is unspoken;
In the land of lobelias and tennis flannels
The rabbit shall burrow and the thorn revisit.
The nettle shall flourish on the gravel court
And the wind shall say: "Here were decent godless people:
Their only monument the asphalt road
And a thousand lost golf balls.
—T. S. Eliot.

Many upon reading the above quotations will shrug their shoulders and say, "This is defeatism."

Yes, that is true; for unless we take God's Word seriously we will experience a national defeat thru a personal spiritual defeat.

It is true that we need an organized healthy optimism that will make us increasingly generous in buying defense bonds, more alert with new inventions and more cooperative in mass production, if we are to win the war. But these tangible advantages are of no avail unless our optimism is born of a nation-wide repentance.

We need have no fear of a guilt-complex if we confess our sins with our whole heart and make sure we stay in the beam of God's shining word.

The destiny of America and the whole world hangs on the decision we make with regards to the last, but the best hope on earth—the righteousness that is potential in the despairing heart of Twentieth Century man.

AROUND THE WORLD
ELECTRICITY IS MANNING THE BULWARKS

Little wonder that young Americans, in classrooms, are puzzled by the almost daily changes on the face of the globe. But there is hope for the future!

America is producing more electricity than Germany, Italy, and Japan combined and in that power lies the hope of victory . . . victory that will be achieved.

When the War Clouds Lift

Around the world the hand of war is tearing away signs that have stood for centuries. But manning the bulwarks still is Electricity, spanning not only our own continent, but bringing light and cheer in the far-away places. Electric energy, so important in the war, will be even more important when the reconstruction period comes . . . and your utility company will be ready, whatever the needs of the hour!

SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

JESUS THE MESSIAH FORETELLS HIS DEATH

LESSON TEXT—Mark 8:27-37.
GOLDEN TEXT—For whosoever will save his life shall lose it: but whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel's, the same shall save it.—Mark 8:35.

Jesus came into the world as the Redeemer of men—and that means He came to die. The prophets who wrote centuries before His coming presented Him as both the suffering and the reigning Messiah. However, to the minds of the Jewish people only the idea of His glory and kingship was acceptable, not of His suffering and death.

Apparently His own disciples had this same impression and it therefore became necessary for Jesus as He came to the last months of His earthly ministry to speak plainly to them about these matters.

I. Recognition of Christ by Faith (vv. 27-30).

As a foundation for right thinking on any spiritual question there must be recognition of Christ's deity. He drew forth such a confession from the disciples by asking who men said that He was. Notice that while there was difference of opinion, all had a high opinion of Him, calling Him John the Baptist, Elijah, or one of the prophets. They knew that a great man was in their midst, and had to admit it, even though they hated and opposed Him. But it is not enough to accept Christ as a great man, as a teacher, a prophet, or an example. Nor is it enough to tell what others think of Him. The question quickly becomes: "Whom say ye that I am?" Have you answered that question? What will you do with Jesus Christ?

Peter responded with a straightforward, heaven-born confession of Christ as the Son of the living God (cf. Matt. 16:16-18) upon which Christ established His church.

II. Rejection and Crucifixion Prophesied (vv. 31, 32).

The foundation of faith in Him having been laid, Christ plainly laid before the disciples the fact of His coming rejection and death. Notice the word "must" in verse 31. "There was an imperative necessity for these things. But why must He die? This question is fully answered elsewhere in the Bible (John 3:14; Heb. 9:22; Isa. 53:4-6; II Cor. 5:21; Gal. 3:13; I Pet. 2:24). There could have been no salvation for any sinner if He had not died (Gal. 3:10, 13; II Cor. 5:21; Rom. 3:20-26)" (John W. Bradbury).

Note also that He "must rise again" (v. 31). He died for our sins, but "was raised again for our justification" (Rom. 4:25).

III. Rebuke of Unbelief (vv. 32, 33).

Peter, quick to accept Jesus as the Son of God, permitted Satan to blind his mind to the necessity of the cross, and thus became a stumbling block of unbelief, calling forth a severe rebuke from Jesus.

It is a striking and humbling thought that the very one who a moment before spoke such acceptable words of recognition of Christ's deity could by unbelief so quickly become the tool of Satan. "My soul, be on thy guard" lest such temptation overtake thee!

May we also learn from this incident that we do well to weigh the words of even good men lest in a moment of weakness or unbelief they say that which may lead us astray. God's Word alone is sure!

IV. Requirements of Discipleship (vv. 34-37).

Following the Christ of Calvary calls for a willingness to say "no" to self (literally, to deny any connection with self-life) and to follow through with Him on the path of shame and crucifixion. No self-will and no compromise are permissible to Christ's disciples.

Foolishly to attempt to hold one's life for self is to lose it. That painful loss has left brokenhearted, wrecked lives all along the path of man's history. But why should any one do it? Equally foolish is the one who supposes that this world has anything to satisfy the human soul. Assuming the possibility of the impossible—that is, attaining the whole world as one's own possession—to do so at the cost of one's soul would be an indescribably poor bargain.

What then shall we say of those who barter their eternal souls for a mess of pottage, a moment of sensual satisfaction, or for a few paltry dollars? "What shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" It is the unanswerable question.

Right Endures

When Christ preached the Sermon on the Mount he was mocked and later crucified; but the inspired truths that he uttered continue to live through the ages, defying crucifixion. We may doubt the divinity of the Christ, for the proof lies in the hereafter; but only by stultifying ourselves can we doubt the wisdom of the moral precepts he uttered.

A bill establishing a women's army auxiliary corps of volunteers to take over many behind the lines assignments was passed by the House despite protest that it was silly and an affront to American manhood.

GRANTSVILLE

Thirty-six local men took examinations after completing a course in fire fighting as applied to military explosives and ammunition, which was conducted during the past several weeks. Alvin J. Yoder served as director of the course, which dealt with war gases and combatting bombs.

With the closing of this class a basic Firemens Training course, for firemen and auxiliary firemen, is being organized. The first meeting of this group was held at the school Thursday evening was set as the date for the next session.

Natural Gas is Vital to War Industry

Use it wisely!

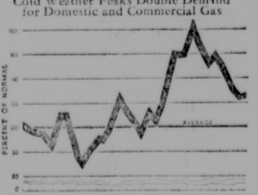
The "arsenal of democracy" relies heavily on this district.

On all sides, you see the evidence—the flare of furnaces in the night sky . . . the growing armies of workers . . . the stepped-up production . . . the steady conversion of plants to war.

Of all the weapons of war—ships, planes, tanks, guns, bombs, torpedoes, shells—there is hardly one whose parts do not call for some application of heat.

In this district, that means Natural Gas.

The use of Natural Gas by industry has risen sharply, and must go even higher as America lifts her sights to a scale of war production beyond our yesterday's imagination. The year 1941 saw our war industries use 126% more Gas than in the peacetime year 1938.



The chart above shows how abrupt and acute these peak loads can be. It illustrates the actual demand, as against the average, between Dec. 15, 1941 and Jan. 15, 1942.

In spite of this unbelievably heavy and increasing load, the local Natural Gas industry, because it had drilled new wells, provided for vast underground storage, built new pipelines and new compressor stations—is continuing to serve its normal domestic and commercial Gas users.
